The United States Court of Claims has passed upon the suit of Admiral W. T. Sampson and others under his command at Santiago for prize money on account of the destruction of the Spanish fleet. The court declares that Admiral Sampson was the Commander-in-chief and that Commodore Schley was the commanding officer of a division of squadron thereof, on duty under the orders of Admiral Sampson.

The Spanish squadron is found by the court to have been inferior to the American force, and a bounty of $100 therefore was awarded for every officer and man under Admiral Cervera's command.

The total amount of bounty money allowed is $166,700, of which amount Admiral Sampson will receive $8,335 and Admiral Schley about $3,000.

An Important Decision.

Judge William K. Townsend, in the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York, has handed down an opinion in the case of John H. Goetze & Co. vs. the United States, in which he declared the treaty of Paris valid and that the status of the people of Porto Rico is that of inhabitants of a foreign country as regards the constitution of the United States and within the meaning of the tariff acts.

Legation Burned.

A special dispatch from Shanghai says an unconfirmed report has reached there from Tien Tsin to the effect that a foreign legation has been burned and that a minister has been killed. The names, it is added, are witheld pending a confirmation of the report.

It is further rumored here that the international relief parties are experiencing great difficulties in regard to provisions and water.

On to Pekin.

Washington special: Admiral Kempff notified the Navy Department that the international army numbering 2,800 troops is making progress in their march to Pekin. The Viceroy of Tien-Tsin gave permission to them to go. The Russians are now sending soldiers and artillery from Port Arthur. Minister Conger was not heard from and his silence causes great anxiety.

They Hurt His Feet.

Tuscon (A. T.) special: Thomas Lewis, a miner, has been arrested on a charge of setting fire to the Catalina forests, where 50,000,000 feet of timber were destroyed. A miner who was with Lewis claims that Lewis became incensed because pine needles hurt his feet and set fire to them causing the most disastrous forest fire ever known in the Southwest.

Dewey is Gratified.

Beyond expressing his gratification with the receptions accorded him everywhere on his recent trip, Admiral Dewey, who has returned to Washington, declined to make any statement. He will remain at his country residence, Beauvoir, with Mrs Dewey until June 25, when he will go to Newport.

BREAKS RECORD FOR FAILURES.

Month of May Shows Defaulted Liabilities of $23,771,151.

Dun's review says: "Failures in May were not only the largest ever known in that month since such records were made, but of eighty months covered by these returns only six have shown as large liabilities. Contradictory though it may appear, the report is encouraging. There was not a single failure in the month which was calculated to shake or did shake commercial credits, which were stronger at the end of May than at the beginning. The large brokerage failure for about $13,000,000 exceeded in amount all failures in any other month except one since 1898, and with it came another for $735,000. Nearly 60 per cent of the total defaulted liabilities was due to five 'other commercial' failures, while the ten large failures in manufacturing and trading covered less than $3,000,000 liabilities in all. The number and amount of liabilities of all commercial failures in May compared with last year are: May, 1900, 947; 1899, 581. Liabilities, May, 1900, $23,771,151; 1899, $3,820,686."

WOMAN DIES OF FRIGHT.

Mistakes Her Husband for a Burglar and Falls Dead.

At Wilkesbarre, Pa., Mrs. Elizabeth Bedford was frightened to death by her husband, whom she mistook for a burglar. They had only been married a short time. Bedford is a mining engineer and frequently is kept late in the mines. It was 2 o'clock in the morning when her husband reached the house. Instead of going up the front steps, as he usually does, he went to the kitchen for a drink and then climbed the back stairs. It is believed Mrs. Bedford awakened as he was going up the steps, and at once imagined he was a burglar. Mr. Bedford heard a shriek, followed by a fall. The door of the bedroom was locked. He got no answer to his cries and then burst in the door. His wife was lying unconscious on the floor, and she died before a physician arrived.

BANKER BUYS A GOLD BRICK.

Invests $13,600 in Alleged Treasure from Mexico.

William Kerr of Hastings, Neb., one of the oldest bankers in the State, has been buncoed for $13,600 by a gold brick scheme. May 10 a stranger met Mr. Kerr at Hastings. He said he was a friend of his cousin, Albert Kerr. The stranger said he had discovered a mine of fabulous wealth in Old Mexico. He asked Mr. Kerr to go to Leavenworth, Kan., where he had a specimen of the gold, guarded by an Indian partner, in a cave. There a brick was produced, a portion of it was taken to Kansas City and the assay showed the brick to be worth $18,000. A second visit was made to the cave near Leavenworth and the brick was bought. The stranger was to have met Mr. Kerr at Hastings Sunday, but he did not appear.

Put Paint on Victims.

A St. Louis mob of furious women and boys beat and denuded Lena Kaenter, a young woman who makes her living by peddling lunches. When the mob had stripped her to the waist one woman daubed her with green paint, while two others held her. Two shop girls were attacked by the same mob an hour later, and they also were partly denuded before they escaped.

To Help Negroes in Business.

Killed by Four Desperadoes.

Four Mexicans murdered Anton Olsen and a man named Stewart, newcomers in Arizona, at New River Station, twenty-five miles north of Phoenix.

Missionaries Want Aid.

The American missionary conference at Peking sent a telegram to President McKinley appealing for protection and stating that the missionaries at Pao-Ting-Fu and other places were in extreme danger; that the Tung-Chau mission station had been abandoned; that chapels everywhere were being burned, and hundreds of native Christians massacred by the Boxers. Admiral Kempff's instructions are to protect American interests at all hazards, but not to interfere with Chinese internal affairs. The administration will avoid alliance with European powers.

SCHOOL TEACHER DISMISSED.

Told Her Pupils that Christ Was One of Ten Brothers.

Because she told her pupils that Christ was one of ten brothers and sisters, Miss Anna B. Hasbrouck, an instructor in history, was dismissed from the Holyoke, Mass., high school faculty by the school committee. The incident which cost Miss Hasbrouck her position happened in the medieval history class a few days ago. The discussion drifted to the parentage of Christ, and one of the students, Miss Jess, wanted to know if Christ was the only son. Miss Hasbrouck replied: "No; he was one of a family of ten brothers and sisters." A second student doubted Miss Hasbrouck's statement and wanted to know her authority. "I cannot tell you accurately just now," she replied, "but I have the impression that the statement is made in the Bible." Miss Hasbrouck is a graduate of the New York State Normal College.

DEFENDS LONG SKIRTS.

Germs Picked Up Harm No Healthy Person, Says Dr. Church.

"The law could no more regulate the length of a woman's skirts than it could the length of her hair," says Dr. Eloise J. Church of New York, commenting on the suggestion made by Judge McAuley of Kansas City that the wearing of long skirts on the streets be made a misdemeanor. Dr. Church is herself an advovate of dress reform. Her gowns, even for evening wear, all clear the ground, but this, she asserts, is solely for comfort. "We have no more sickness in our homes to-day," she says, "than we had before we wore trailing skirts. Germs never affect any one who is perfectly healthy. Legislate to keep the people healthy."

SAMPSON WAS IN COMMAND.

Court of Claims Decides as to the Santiago Battle.

"Rear Admiral W. T. Sampson, United States navy, was the commander-in-chief of the said United States naval forces or fleet and Commodore W. S. Schley, United States navy, was the commanding officer of a division or squadron thereof, on duty under the orders of said commander-in-chief." In these words the court of claims has judicially determined the famous Sampson-Schley controversy. They are part of a finding of fact in the decision of the court on the claims of Rear Admiral Sampson and his men to bounty for the destruction of the Spanish squadron under Admiral Cervera.

ROBBED 120 SWEETHEARTS.

Prince of Matrimonial Swindlers Sentenced to Prison.

As a matrimonial swindler who has succeeded in inducing 120 girls to become engaged to him within a few years, Alois Frankenberger, formerly of the United States, has been sentenced at Graz, Austria, to two and a half years' imprisonment. He holds the record as a matrimonial shark. In each case he managed to appropriate the savings of his intended bride and then took French leave.

Glucose Seeks German Home.

Following the lead of several other big American corporations, the Glucose Sugar Refining Company has decided to open a branch house in Bremen, Germany. The belief is general among business men who have allied interests that the move is due to the increase in the consumption of corn products and to a desire to save middlemen's profits.

CARTOONS OF THE WEEK.

FOOD IN ITS TRUE COLORS.

Labels in Illinois Must Tell if Goods Are Adulterated.

The Illinois grocer who has been selling adulterated goods with the fervent assurance that the articles were pure as nature could make them is soon to appear in his true colors to his customers. July 1 the new Illinois pure food law goes into effect, and from that day forward every label on every package of food stuff must tell the truth and the whole truth about the quality of the goods or the man responsible for falsehood will be liable to fine and imprisonment.

July 1 will be the day when every grocery store is off with the old label and on with the new, and when the "pure maple sirup" of yesterday will become the plain "glucose" of to-morrow. "Currant jelly" will no more appear stamped in big letters on the outside of tubs of colored glucose with added tartaric acid. "Apple butter," that never needed the products of the orchard to produce it will have a new name all its own, from which the word apple is carefully excluded. Coffee and chicory mixed together will no longer go forth to the innocent man's breakfast table as "coffee," but will have to take its place as "coffee compound" among the many kinds of substitute coffees now on the market. Circus lemonade is to be one of the beneficiaries of the new law. There is an absolute prohibition of the sale of "lemon extract" which has less than 5 per cent of pure lemon oil, and the flavor of the fruit will consequently be in the cheapest of street lemonade. The "honey" of the future in Illinois will be carefully distinguished from "adulterated honey," and a "compound extract of vanilla and tonka" will for most persons take the place of what is at present sold as straight extract of vanilla. Also, every can of baking powder sold in the future must bear a specific statement as to whether it is an alum, alum-phosphate or cream of tartar powder.

COST OF THE SPANISH WAR.

About $388,000,000 Has Been Expended Since the Maine Was Sunk.

No official statement has been prepared of the cost of the Spanish war, but W. F. MacLennan, chief of the division of bookkeeping and warrants of the Treasury Department, has a memorandum based on the money advanced to various disbursing officers, which shows that $388,000,000 has been withdrawn from the public treasury to defray expenses growing out of the Spanish and Philippine wars, as well as the expenses incident to preparation for hostilities. This covers the national defense fund, the expenses of the Paris peace commission and the $20,000,000 paid to Spain for the Philippines.

In this connection it may be interesting to note the expenditures of the fighting departments of the Government during recent years. In 1896 the expenditures of the War Department were $50,830,920; in 1897, $48,950,267; in 1898, $91,902,000, and during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1899, they were $229,841,254. During the eleven months of the present fiscal year the expenditures were $126,422,544.

During the fiscal year 1896 the expenditures of the Navy Department were $27,147,732; in 1897, $34,561,546; in 1898, $58,823,984; in 1899, $63,942,104, and during the eleven months of the present fiscal year $51,039,528.

There has been an annual deficiency in the revenues during recent years, amounting in 1897 to $18,052,454, in 1898 to $38,047,247, and in 1899 to $89,111,559. During the present fiscal year a different condition is shown, the statement issued by the Treasury Department on May 31 placing the excess of receipts over expenditures to that date at $63,356,142. Commissioner of Internal Revenue Wilson says that during the last fiscal year the war revenue act produced a revenue of $102,000,000, and that the returns this year are exceeding those of last year. He estimates that at the close of the present fiscal year, on the 30th of June, the receipts from the war revenue act will be $120,000,000, making the total revenues derived from that source during the two fiscal years about $222,000,000. The surplus is accumulating in the treasury at the rate of about $5,000,000 a month.

The Census Man and His Troubles

The rap of a Boston census taker at the door of a Blackstone street tenement on the top floor, was answered by a little girl, with a tear-stained face, who said: "Are you the undertaker?"

"No," he said, "I am the census man, and I want to see your father."

"Papa's drunk," said the child, in a matter-of-fact way, "and he's out somewhere."

"Where's your mother?" asked the census man.

"Mamma died last night; she's in there," said the little girl, pointing to an inner room.

The woman died the night before, and her husband went out and got drunk, leaving the little girl alone with the body. The census man notified the police, who took the little girl to the Children's Society and sent a city undertaker to care for the body.

Chicago census enumerators had many troubles. Loaded down with portfolio and various kinds of blank books and record slips, they trudged into many a queer nook in search of the knowledge the Government wants. In the fashionable residence districts the work was comparatively easy, but in those districts where two-story houses held from three to four families and twelve to fifteen individuals, a system of espionage was inaugurated. The enumerator would go to a house and make his argument for information. In other rooms and on back porches there would be a buzzing of voices pitched to a whisper. Then a small, ragged boy would shin over the back lot line fence and whisper something into other back doors along the row. In this way the coming of a nameless scourge was passed along in advance of the Government agent.

"In what year were you born, Mrs. O'Neill?" asked a Philadelphia census man.

"Oh, I'm about sixty-five years old. Count that up."

"Born in Ireland?"

"Who? Me?"

"Yes, you."

"I was," replied Mrs. O'Neill.

"How long have you been married?" asked the enumerator.

"I wuz married in 1862, to the best of me knowledge. Count that up. I suppose you're scholar enough to do that."

Mrs. O'Neill admitted to having a son named Dan.

"Is he married?" the census man asked.

"Not that I know of. If he is I have to keep him, and the divil keep her."

A San Francisco enumerator came in just before noon with ninety names enrolled. He was especially pleased, because he had found a family of ten living in a hay loft. He said:

"I saw a curtain in a barn window, and got a ladder and climbed up to the hay mow. There were living a man and his wife and eight children. They seemed to be having a good time, and though the man was away at work the wife gave me all the names."

Twelve Brooklyn census enumerators quit last Saturday. When Superintendent Atterbury got to his office that morning most of the enumerators who intended to resign were waiting for him. The spokesman for the twelve said:

"Women have threatened us with imprisonment for what they deem the insults contained in the queries of Uncle Sam; men have said that they would like to break our noses for prying into their business, while aliens by the score have abused us in all the living languages and some of the dead ones."

One Chicago woman who was asked the number of her family replied: "Four—my husband, myself, the cat and the canary."

"We can leave out the cat and the canary," said the enumerator.

"That's strange," she remarked. "You haven't left out anything else."

A new pest has made its appearance in the wheat fields in portions of Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma. It is the green louse, or aphis, that usually gathers on the tender shoots and buds or roses. Experienced farmers say the wheat has good enough stand to resist the pest.

ORIGIN OF THE "BOXERS."

Murderous Chinese Secret Society Is Two Hundred and Fifty Years Old.

The Boxer society, which is responsible for the present troubles in China, is not of recent origin. It had its rise more than 250 years ago and was originally an organization of radicals who are in favor of overthrowing the Manchu sovereignty and restoring the great Ming dynasty. The present troubles may be related back to the disputes between the progressive party which had the Emperor for its figurehead and the conservative party of the empress dowager. It will be remembered that the Emperor blossomed out as a reformer and issued several edicts which made the representatives of China shudder with aversion and dismay. Competent critics said at the time that his methods were so crude and arbitrary as to be utterly impractical, though they were inspired by correct motives. Events justified their predictions. Superstitions, long-established customs and abuses could not be overcome at a word, and the reform movement played right into the hands of the Empress.

After the Empress was restored to power the Yee Ho Chuan (righteousness, harmony and fists, hence Boxers) marshaled their already well-organized secret society to assist in the work of discouraging those reformers who were not discouraged enough already, and to help check the foreign devils, among whom, in spite of the contradiction in terms, were the missionaries. As time passed checking became murdering, and the wicked old woman either abetted or winked at the crime. That is why the imperial troops have made no headway against the so-called rebellion and why the powers have united in self-protection.

PRICES STILL HIGH AT DAWSON.

Board and Lodging at $200 a Month in the Mining Town.

Some interesting matter concerning the conditions in Dawson City and the Yukon district has been furnished the State Department in a recent report from United States Consul J. C. McCook. "Dawson," he says, "is beginning to present a more substantial appearance. Claims are now being prepared for sluicing; that is, for washing the gold from the large dumps of earth taken out of the claims during the winter months. Residents are very much gratified at the excellent mail service, the mail coming and going regularly every week all through the past winter. Provisions are a little cheaper in some lines, but there is no change in the cost of living, and board and lodging at $200 a month, eggs at $3 per dozen, orangese at $1 each, and apples of questionable quality costing 50 cents apiece, are examples of the high prices at Dawson City.

"The license on saloons has been reduced from $2,500 per annum to $1,500. A duty of $2 per gallon is asssessed on all wines, liquors and beer brought into the Yukon territory. By August it is expected that the White Pass and Yukon Railroad will have been extended seventy miles to White Horse, and from there in the summer months the steamers can make the run to Dawson City in a couple of days. All kinds of boats are being fitted up in Dawson to convey people to Cape Nome, but as many people came into Dawson last winter as went out."

Eight hundred men were released from work at the Ball Bros.' Glass Manufacturing Company plant, Muncie. Three hundred workmen are still at work, but these will be released in a few days for the summer shut-down. The plant is the largest of its kind in the world. The company feels that it has enough stock on hand for the season's supply.

A Mishawaka dispatch last week stated that Jonathan W. Fancher, of Davis, had become heir to $150,000 through the death of his brother, a wealthy miner of Merced, Cal. Fancher instead received $1,500,000. The deceased brother's will, as probated, shows assets of $7,000,000, and Jonathan is one of the five designated heirs. The error was due to the omission of one cipher in the original legal notification from the California attorneys.

The Western Association of Writers will hold their annual meeting at Winona the last week in this month, beginning June 25. The indications are that the attendance will be larger than heretofore. The literary people of the West are taking a deep interest in this association, and many new and strong names have been added to the list of members. The program for this year is better than usual, and a delightful time is anticipated at the coming meeting.

Clarence Quilleon, who is reported by Gen. MacArthur as having been killed on June 4 at Norzagrary, was an Indiana boy and enlisted in Indianapolis July 31 last. His home was in Gale, Ind., and the nearest friend designated on the record at the local recruiting station is Charles Quilleon of Gale. Clarence Quilleon was 22 years old when he enlisted and the following day he was sent to Vancouver Barricks, Washington, and assigned to company E, Thirty-fifth Infantry.

THE DAFFODILS.

Long, long ago, when this old world was young,
Before first thrushes on first blossoms swung;
While yet Night reigned, in fragrance soft and still,
O'er all the world there crept a subtle thrill;
Strange, steady, strong, it came apace, and Night,
Affrighted, fled before the triumphant Light,
And where the sun's first kisses touched the hills,
There sprang and grew, the golden daffodils.

HIS OWN GIRL.

GERALD FANCOURT flung himself out of a house in Grosvenor place one night about 12 o'clock with an excessively bored expression upon his features. He was in evening dress and had evidently been attending some society function.

He had a kindly face, and, as he walked rapidly along, he seemed to inhale the cool air of the night with a sense of delightful relief. He pursued his way on the Green park side of Picadilly.

As he passed beneath the flare of a vivid lamp his eye was attracted by an object insignificant in size, but great in pathos—a female child in poor rags and with naked feet. The child's hair was tangled and not too clean; her face pinched and white, but her eyes were large and brilliant and stared out with an expression of bewilderment sad to behold.

Gerald bent down to her and said gently, "Little one, what are you doing here?"

The child looked at him much as a very tame cat regards a stranger—not frightened, but doubtful.

"I dunno," she replied, after a pause.

"Where do you live?"

"I dunno."

"Have you no mother?"

"'Ees. Mudder far away."

"Are you hungry?"

"'Ees."

"Will you come with me?"

A long pause—then a little sigh.

"I'se so tired."

Without another word Gerald lifted the child in his arms and carried her into a small restaurant off King street. There he ordered for her a little warm soup and an egg pudding. She took them greedily. Her hunger being appeased, Gerald again lifted her in his arms and bore her to his chambers in a fashionable hotel. She fell asleep on the way. Indoors he laid her on a soft couch and then sat down to contemplate this "find" of his over a cigar.

The thoughts of what he should do with this waif of humanity, which fate had thrown in his path, gradually shaped themselves into a vision of prophetic fancy. Sanguine temperaments are prone to castle building. Gerald thought he would claim this bit of femininity for his own.

He was rich. He would have her educated. He would make of her all that money and care could make of her. If the total result pleased him he would make her his sister; if it more than satisfied him he would make her his wife.

The waif, under the name of Carrie King, was sent to a series of schools and finishing academies. Fancourt stuck to his scheme; he never saw her. He signed checks; he answered school principals' letters; he gave permission for his ward to visit her school fellows at their homes, and he provided her with pocket money to keep up her position as a lady; that was all.

The crowning pleasure and reward for all his care and expenditure was to come at the end of ten years, when she would be 19 years old, and he would see her in the glory of her budding womanhood.

The period of ten years was nearly closed. The night before the final day when Carrie was to appear before her protector and guardian, Gerald invited one or two choice chums to dine with him.

They were laconic men of the world. He had told them the tale of his fancy and its approaching completion.

"I have taken a little house for her," he concluded, "and to-morrow she enters into possession."

"Is she pretty?"

"How do I know? She promised to be so ten years ago."

"The whole thing seems Quixotic and risky."

"To-morrow will decide whether she is to be my wife or not."

"Not wise," replied the more taciturn of the two friends.

* * * * * * *

Next morning Gerald entered the drawing room of Carrie's newly furnished house. The maid informed him that the young lady had arrived late the night before; she had breakfasted in bed, but would be down in a few minutes to receive him.

"What would she be like?" he kept asking himself.

After about five minutes he heard the soft rustle of skirts coming down the stairs. The door was gently opened and a sweet-faced young girl stepped into the room, dressed all in a flowing morning robe of white. It seemed to Gerald afterwards as if it were embroidery and lace, with a soft drapery as though covered with an ethereal angel webbing. As it was, the girl came slowly down the room with one hand outstretched timidly, yet with a sweet determination of manner.

Gerald had time to notice that she was tall and slender, quite fair, with a mass of red gold hair and the prettiest pink cheeks he had ever seen. "A pink and white prettiness," he thought to himself, but in that one glance he had to acknowledge that there was a depth behind the pink and white softness which spoke of earnest thought.

"I am so very glad to see you," said she, hesitating for her words; "so very, very glad. I cannot tell you how often I have thought of this moment."

Gerald took her hand in his. "I suppose I should call you my daughter," said he, smiling, "but I shall do nothing of the sort."

"Please do," said she, "I would like so much to have you, for I feel as if you were my father—the only father I have ever had."

Gerald took a seat and the girl sat down by the side of him. "Do you know," said she, "I have been afraid to meet you. I almost wished, sometimes, that I had seen you and had it over. I so dreaded it; and then there were other things I wanted to tell you."

Gerald sat spellbound. Such a pretty girl he had never seen. What a sweet voice; what glorious color; how prettily she spoke. So she had been afraid of him, dreaded to meet him. Well, well.

"I hope now we shall be the best of friends," he said awkwardly; "the very best."

"Oh, indeed we shall," said the girl, "but there is one thing I must tell you first. Oh, please do forgive me."

"I could forgive you anything," murmured Gerald, looking straight into the beautiful eyes that were upturned to him appealingly.

"Then forgive me for getting married. Jack Leonard—you know I visited the Leonards last holidays—and I got married yesterday. We have been engaged three years. He waited for me to graduate from school."

Gerald rose, picked up his hat and strode out of the room without a word.

MAY SUCCEED LORD SALISBURY

The Duke of Devonshire Considered as the Safe Man for Premier.

Among those most prominently mentioned as the probable successor to Lord Salisbury as premier of the British Empire is the Duke of Devonshire, who sits in the cabinet as lord president of the council. The genius of heavy, solemn common sense is personified in the Duke. He is considered as the safest man who could be selected as the head of the British cabinet and the one to guide to a certain extent the destinies of the world. When he entered Parliament he was awkward, scared and shy, and it is said that no man ever remained at Westminster for thirty-five years and has spoken so little. He was sneered at by Disraeli at 26 as a "young Whigling," but at 33 he was a member of the cabinet. Under Gladstone he was at one time leader in the House of Commons. He has been Secretary of State, of War, Postmaster General, Lord of the Admiralty, Secretary of State for India, and Ireland, and has filled every position with conscientious ability. He left the iberal party with Joseph Chamberlain in opposition to home rule, but always remained on cordial terms with Mr. Gladstone. He was then the Marquis of Hartington, not becoming Duke of Devonshire until the death of his father in 1891.

The Duke is now 67. Plainness is the keynote of his life. Personally he is not attractive. His face is heavy, his frame lacks grace, and he has no taste for dress. In the House of Lords he sits with his hat tilted over his eyebrows. His body is buried in a long, dark-colored coat with deep pockets. His hair and beard have grown entirely gray. He always speaks from notes and makes no attempt at oratory, but depends upon the common sense and candor of his expressions.

In 1892 the Duke married a woman who was already a duchess—the widow of the Duke of Manchester. The bride and her husband had been firm friends for over thirty years, and it was even said that they had been engaged before the marriage to Manchester, but this has been denied with positiveness. Her first union had been most romantic. The Duke of Manchester, traveling in France, saw her in an opera box in Nice, fell in love with her on the spot, was introduced, and at once began a successful courtship. She was then

THE DUCHESS OF DEVONSHIRE.

Louise Fredericke Auguste, a daughter of Count Von D'Alten, of Hanover. The marriage with Manchester was most happy, and the Duchess was grief-stricken at his death, only consenting to marry her old friend when her son joined his voice to her lover's in favor of the match. She is most devoted to the Duke, goes with him to all the functions that require his presence, and has an attractive way of taking her distinguished husband under her wing. They are to-day, perhaps, the most devoted pair in London society.

The Duchess was credited with having a deep interest and an occasional hand in politics during Manchester's life, and this propensity is believed to exist to-day.

Some men are successful because they have too few friends, and some because they have too many.

HUGE FLOATING DRY DOCK.

Large Enough to Accommodate a Warship of 18,000 Tons.

There is now being constructed at Sparrow Point, Md., what will be the largest floating dry-dock in the world. It is being built for use by the Navy Department, and when completed will be towed to Algiers, La., a voyage of 2,000 miles. It will then be placed in position at the naval station there for the use of all vessels in service in the Caribbean and Mexican waters. The dock is being built in conformity with a plan to strengthen all the Southern naval stations, and to provide there facilities for the handling of the largest vessels in the United States navy.

While the contract capacity of the new dry dock is 15,000 tons, the real capacity is really considerably larger than this. As now estimated, a vessel displacing 18,000 tons can be successfully floated and supported by the dock, though it is probable that no effort will be made to place any ship of such dimensions within it. The work is really gigantic and outclasses that done on the old Havana dry dock in use during the Spanish war. The Havana dry dock, by the way, has passed out of the hands of the United States Government, and now belongs to the Government of Vera Cruz, to which it was sold. The feat of traveling from New York to Havana, which at the time was thought to be a very notable one, has been duplicated by a second trip from Havana to Vera Cruz and the practicability of the floating dry dock again demonstrated.

The new dry dock is to be built at the cost of $810,000, and will be complete in every detail. It will consist of five pontoons, three of which compose the bottom and the other two the sides of the dock. The extreme length of the dock is 240 feet, while the extreme width is 126.

The dock is complete in itself, having its own engines, boilers and operating machinery and complete quarters for its crew. It can be towed anywhere, is a sailable property, and is altogether one of the most desirable acquisitions that have been made to the United States navy since the upbuilding of that navy began.

MAMMOTH DRYDOCK FOR THE NAVY.

The arrangement by which the dock is operated is very ingenious. Each pontoon is fitted with forty water-tight compartments, with a drain pipe leading into them. These individual drain pipes then feed into a large drain pipe in either side. All these pipes are connected with pumps, which are operated by central engines at either side. When desired these engines can be made to run independently of each other upon separate compartments, or they can be made to individaully operate them all. By this device all possibility of a general breakdown is almost removed, since in event of accident to one set of machines the other can be set in motion to do the entire work of the two.

When it is proposed to float a vessel the valves in the various compartments are opened. The dock, which floats at the draught of four feet, is then lowered with the onrush of water into the various compartments until it reaches the desired depth. By simply closing the valves the depth can be readily controlled, while if desired a vessel of thirty feet draught can be taken in.

The vessel is then floated in and carefully centered over the keel blocks on which it is expected to rest. The pumps are then started and slowly as the water is drawn out of the various compartments and discharged through the drain pipes the dock rises, lifting its great burden out of the water. As the vessel rises it is secured in its position until it finally reaches a height of four feet above water, permitting every part of it to be reached by the repair mechanics without difficulty.

One of the greatest advantages afforded by the new arrangement, however, is the ability to dock the dry dock itself by a simple device. This is accomplished by having the pontoons detachable so that one at a time each one can be raised out of the water and repaired. This is accomplished in this way: If it is desired to dock the middle pontoon the fastenings connecting it with the other pontoons are removed and it is allowed to float loosely. Water is then admitted to the end pontoons and side walls, and the middle pontoon floats up until a set of lugs on its bottom corresponds to the upper connecting lugs on the side walls. This brings the middle pontoon entirely out of water. The middle pontoon in turn has sufficient capacity to dock both end pontoons at once, and one of the side walls can be tilted out of water by filling the other one. By these various means the entire water surface of the dock is made accessible for repairs.

HAIR TELLS OF NATIVITY.

Results of Observation by Hotel Clerks and Commercial Travelers.

Commercial travelers, and no men it is said are better judges of character, claim that they can always tell to what part of the country a man belongs, and this by looking only at his hair. They say that in Kentucky the hair is worn long behind, so long that it is caught over the ears, permitting the oft-repeated gesture of smoothing it with the fingers as the wearer talks to you. The ends are cut square, and the fashion requires a certain amount of pomade to keep it in place. This gloss is imperative. In Indiana, they claim, it is worn equally as long, but with the ends curled in about the neck almost touching the collar. Further West, across the Rockies, and in the southwest, especially in Texas—where barbers are scarce, or were scarce when the fashion was set—the hair is worn cowboy fashion, loose over the shoulders, the untrimmed ends flying in the winds. In the Eastern States, however, and along the whole Eastern border of the country, except in North Carolina where among the cornerackers it grows wild, the hair is cropped short, especially behind, where it is shingled evenly from the top of the head to the neck.

Hotel clerks add to this knowledge of the hair one of the wearer's shoes. It makes all the difference in the world whether they are square, pointed or round. Each fashion proclaims a district of its own. Patent leather shoes with extremely pointed toes belong to the South; while people from the North and West wear square toes and heavy shoes. These fashions, however, are due more to climatic conditions than to local tastes.—Harper's Bazar.

BOGUS PORTER AND BAD RING.

Lieutenant Perry Tells of a New Confidence Worked in Chicago.

Several detectives were sitting around the Central station, in the City Hall, telling stories of "smooth" confidence games they had encountered during their police experience.

"The old gags catch the farmers every day or two, but I'll tell you about a new one, which caught a young society fellow," Lieut. George Perry said, as he slid down in a chair and lit a nondescript cigar. "Just the other night this young fellow, who was dressed strictly up to date, came in and called me to one side. He produced a ring with a stone setting and asked me if it was a diamond. I examined the stone closely and saw right off that it was 'con.' I told him this and asked him where he got it. He said he didn't want to make any complaint and was afraid his name might get into the papers. Of course, I told him there was no danger of that, and then he said:

"I bought that ring of a Pullman car porter. I was coming down Madison street near the union depot when a colored fellow wearing a porter's suit came up and said he wanted to speak to me a minute. We stepped into a hallway and he produced this ring, offering to sell it cheap. He told me that he found it in one of the berths while making it up at the end of his trip. He was afraid the owner would miss it and the boss would search him. I looked at the stone, thought it was a good one, and bought it for $20, all the money I had with me. I took the ring up to a friend of mine and told him how cheap I had bought it. The friend said he thought I had been swindled, and that's the reason I came to see you.'

"Then, and not till then, did that fellow realize that the porter as well as the ring was a fake."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Population of British India.

The population of British India—that is, of the territories under direct British Government—was 198,860,606 in 1881, and had increased to 221,172,952 when the last census was taken in 1891. The population of the states which are governed by native rulers under the eye of the British representatives increased in those ten years from 54,932,908 to 66,050,479. The figures for 1891 show that of the total population 146,727,296 were males and only 140,496,135 were females. British India covers 964,993 square miles and the Native States 595,167; but in the former the average number of persons living on every square mile is 229 and in the Native States it is only 111. The highest average is 471 per square mile in Bengal and the next is 436 in the northwest provinces and Oude; while the lowest average in British India is 35 in Upper Burmah—the native state of Cashmere falling still lower, to 31 per square mile. England had in the same year 540 people to the square mile, and Scotland 134.

An Exciting Run.

The following incident in Lord Wolseley's military career is recorded as having taken place when he was in his twenties, and had been in the British army three years. He speaks of it himself as the most exciting experience of his life.

It was in Burma, and Wolseley was in charge of a small detachment. During the advance he had the bad luck to fall into a deep hole, and when he crawled out found himself on the enemy's side. As he emerged, he was met with such a shower of bullets that he slid back in short order. After a few minutes he came out again, and amid a vigorous volley, ran for his life. He was nearly two hundred yards from the British line, and was hit three times before he reached a place of safety.

Value of Our Lesser Toes.

Recent investigation in England has cleary shown that the great toe, with the head of its metatarsal bone, constitute the real tread of the foot. If this tread is lost in any way it is best to discard the whole foot as useless. The remaining toes of the foot are mechanically of slight value and they can be removed one and all with little detriment to the ordinary walking powers.

CAPTAIN TO CONVICT.

A DASHING ARMY OFFICER IN A PRISON GARB.

Handsome and Brilliant Government Employe Loses His Identity and Is Known Simply as 2094—Case of Captain Oberlin Carter.

It is but a short time since the whole country was interested in the case of Capt. Oberlin M. Carter, of the United States army, who on trial was proved to have stolen from the Government which honored and protected him more than a million dollars. Now the erstwhile dashing and handsome captain and brilliant engineer is paying the penalty of his wrongdoing and is drinking the bitter cup of humiliation which his dishonesty brewed. Shorn of the honors of his profession, his commission revoked forever, his former companions forbidden to speak to him; stripped of his uniform of blue and gold and clad in the rough garb of the convict, he has lost his identity, even, and is known as No. 2095. He will spend the next five years behind the bars of the Federal prison at Fort Leavenworth. By the irony of fate he is compeled to occupy a narrow cell in a prison which he designed and built, and, worse still, the only window in this cell overlooks the ballroom and banquet hall where he led the dance and indulged his epicurean tastes while officer of the post a few years ago.

Carter was considered one of the brightest men ever turned out by the nation's school for soldiers, and from boyhood fortune seemed to grudge him nothing that ambition could dictate. He was made a cadet at West Point by special appointment by President Hayes, after having tried unsuccessfully in the regular way, and was a model student and soldier, completing the four years' course with a higher average of scholarship than had ever been obtained before, and his record has not been equaled since.

From the day that he graduated until the day that he was summarily ordered back from London to stand trial before a court martial he seemed to have the ear of the War Department, and was advanced rapidly in rank, and in the important character of the work intrusted to him.

Early in life he married the daughter of a millionaire, Thomas S. Westcott of New York, and his father-in-law's purse was at his disposal from that time on. Fortunately for her, his wife died before his sins found him out. Just before the discovery of his enormous peculations—while he was military attache of the American legation in London—he was named one of the three members of the Nicaraguan commission, and there was hardly a man in the army who did not envy the distinctions showered upon him.

Military prisoner No. 2094 is a vastly different person. The prison barber took him in hand within a few minutes after his arrival at Fort Leavenworth and removed the gracefully curled mustache and waving locks which had contributed much to his distinguished appearance. Then his hat, clothes and shoes, each article made to order and of the finest material, were taken from him and he was given a suit of dark gray homespun with the figures 2094 stamped in large red letters on the front and back of the coat, and each leg of the trousers, under garments of heavy cotton stuff, rough shoes fastened with buckles, and a big straw hat.

Like almost every other noted criminal, Carter persists in declaring himself innocent of the charges upon which he was convicted and for which he is incarcerated. He has been given every opportunity to explain what he did with the vast sums of public money that were traced to his door, but has not done so. He simply declares that he did not steal the money, and asks that his declaration be believed.

Within a dozen rods of his cell are the homes of a number of army officers, who know him well, but to them Capt. Oberlin M. Carter is dead, and any army officer of high or low rank who dared exchange one word with No. 2094 would be court martialed and cashiered in short order. Since he has become a part of the great penal machine Carter has stoutly declined to discuss his case and has gone about his work as bookkeeper in the factory department of the penitentiary with apparent interest and zeal.

Floating Slaughter-House.

The Hamburg liner Burton, trading to Boston, has inaugurated a new departure in the foreign meat trade. She shipped eighteen oxen from Denmark and to avoid the regulations with regard to the importation of live cattle into the United Kingdom, carried three German butchers, who slaughtered the cattle on the voyage and dressed the carcasses, which were forwarded to London on the steamer's arrival. The experiment having been found to answer, will be continued on other steamers of the Hamburg line to Boston.

SWITCH THE GIRLS THEY LOVE.

Practices Indulged In by the Young People in Pennsylvania.

At Shamokin, Pa., some queer customs have survived the march of progress among the Poles and Russians. One of these observances is "switching day." It is a favorite day for bashful lovers, for swiftness of limb, rather than eloquence of tongue, captures the belles of the community.

For days the man has been in training for the run of his lift, while the maids adjure corsets and rub linament on their kneecaps every night ere wooing slumber. Finally the morning of "switching day" arrives. The man sees before him all the maidens of his village. He may take his pick. All he must do is to catch and switch and duck with water the one of his choice—the maid whom he would have for his wife. If she is fleeter of foot than he and escapes she is free. If the man is beloved of his quarry she seldom gets away, though his feet are clad in leaden shoes.

"Switching day" at Shamokin is Easter Sunday, when all the lads and lasses of the country round about gather at the town for the annual meeting. A girl's starting to run is accepted as a token that she is not averse to her pursuer. The youth's start is accepted as a proposal, and no matter what misfortune may befall his quarry he must provide for her all the days of his future life.

Pathetic indeed was the illustration of this fact in the case of Susan Manbok, who was by all odds the handsomest girl in the Russian colonies for many miles about. She was tall and slender and her eyes were azure blue. She was crowned with golden hair, which grew in dainty ringlets close upon her head. Miss Manbok had more suitors than she could accept, and she was very coy. Fleet of foot, the maid had, since arriving at a marriageable age, passed one "switching day" in safety without the giving of her promise.

Miss Manbok until noon on the latest festival occasion had succeeded in outdistancing all her pursuers. Many were the races she had run, but never had a switch or a pail of water come within reaching distance of her petite form. It was then that Andrew Kobinsky, a shrewd young man, who had purposely waited until Miss Manbok had become fatigued, gave chase. Off darted the maid, and after her sped the pursuer.

Down the railroad track they rushed, all unheeding. So excited were both contestants—the man running for a wife, the girl for liberty—that the approach of a train was unnoticed. The engine tooted shrilly and at its blast Miss Manbok, affrighted, stumbled and fell upon the rail. Both of her legs were cut off below the knees. And Kobinsky, regardless of her being a cripple, declares that he will wed her.

The Oldest Postal System.

We find the first recorded postal system in the Persian Empire, under Cyrus the elder; but it is clear that Rome of all the ancient states possessed the best organized system of transmitting letters through its numerous provinces.

All along the great Roman roads houses were erected at a distance of five or six miles from each other. At each of these stations forty horses were constantly kept, and, by the help of relays, it was easy to travel 100 miles a day. These services were intended for the state only, it being imperative to secure the rapid interchange of official communications.

In the time of Julius Caesar the system was so well organized that of two letters the great soldier wrote from Britain to Cicero at Rome the one reached its destination in twenty-six and the other in twenty-eight days. Private citizens had to trust to the services of slaves, and it is not till the end of the third century that we hear of the establishment of a postal system for private persons by the Emperor Diocletian, but how long this system remained history does not say.—New York Evening World.

Accommodating Diseases.

Perhaps the record for school attendance belongs to a Walworth lad named Thomas Ward, who was never absent or late during his eleven years of school life, beginning with his fourth. The local member of the school board for London tells the story that when the proud boy received the attendance medal for the eleventh year—which had to be specially struck to meet his case—the mother was questioned as to how her boy had been able to make so remarkable a record. "Had he the usual children's complaints?" she was asked. "Yes, sir." "The measles?" "Yes, sir." "Whooping cough?" "Yes, sir." "How is it, then, that he has never been away from school?" "Well, sir, he had them in his holidays," was the interesting reply.—London Westminster Gazette.

SNAKES IN COSTA RICA.

The Culebra de Sangre Is the Most Deadly of Them All.

Costa Rica means the Rich Coast, and in most respects it is rich, particularly in the snake family, the most deadly of which is the terrible Culebra de Sangre (or blood snake).

This variety of reptile does not grow to a large size, and perhaps for that very reason is most to be dreaded, as it is not so easily seen. It is red and resembles a large swollen vein, ready to burst with blood.

A short time ago I stepped on one of these snakes, and like a flash he struck at me, but as I had a pair of leather leggings no harm was done, though it was a close call. Not so fortunate was a poor day laborer who was bitten by the same variety of snake. The man was working for a neighbor of mine, and I did not see him until the day after he was bitten. The moment I heard about it I went over to see the poor fellow, taking with me a remedy for snake bite, thinking it would do no harm to try it, anyway. When we reached the man's camp the sight that met our eyes was a sickening one.

The man was bleeding from his nose, mouth, and ears; also from his finger and toe nails. How a man could bleed as much as he had and still live was a marvel. He had been bitten in the foot; only one fang of the serpent had entered the flesh. The manager of the estate had given him several doses of curarine, a medicine made in Colombia, and much used here in Central America for poisonous bites. We also gave him the medicine which I had brought with me, which made him vomit profusely.

In a few hours' time the bleeding stopped, and next day the poor fellow was sent to the hospital. No one expected that he would live, as the bite is considered deadly; but, strange to say, he did recover, and in a month's time was at work once more. If both fangs of the snake had entered the foot instead of one he would undoubtedly have died. I have known a horse to die in a few hours after being bitten by one of the snakes. In the last three years two men in my district have died from snake bite, and in hunting in this country one must always keep a sharp lookout for snakes.—Forest and Stream.

FOLLOWS STRANGE BUSINESS.

This Nevada Woman Shoots Wild Horses for a Livelihood.

Mrs. Maud Whiteman, of Humboldt, Nev., has a stranger occupation than that of any other woman in the United States. She shoots wild horses for their skins and earns about $5 a day at it. Wild horses have so increased in numbers in many Western States that they are ruthlessly killed for their hides, or they would drive cattle off the ranges and monopolize the best grazing. Mrs. Whiteman goes hunting always with her father, Henry Wilman, a veteran of the Mexican and civil wars, who lost his ranch in California about six years ago by financial misfortune and removed to Nevada.

Father and daughter ride well and shoot well. It is their custom to hitch their own horses as decoys and hide in the timber. When wild horses come up one of them carefully shoots the leader of the herd, so as to disable him, but not kill him. The others scamper away, but curiosity soon impels them to return. Then father and daughter open with their guns and shoot as many as possible before the herd gets out of range. The skins are taken off and dried on sage bushes and then sold for about $2 each. When hunting Mrs. Whiteman wears masculine garb, but when she comes into town she wears a black silk dress and a very feminine plumed Leghorn hat.

Damascus Sword.

It is but seldom that a real good specimen of the Damascus sword can be obtained, for the art of working and engraving this kind of steel is dead. These swords are made of alternate layers of iron and steel, so finely tempered that the blade would bend to the hilt without breaking. The weapons had edges so keen that no coat of mail could resist them, and surfaces so highly polished that when a Moslem wished to rearrange his turban he used his sword for a looking-glass.

Big Libraries in Berlin.

In the twenty-three libraries of Berlin, which are either public or belonging to official bodies, there are over 2,000,000 volumes. The royal library contains over 1,000,000 volumes, the university library 158,000, that of the royal statistical bureau 130,000. The war academy collection consists of 88,000 volumes, that of the general staff of 69,700 and that of the royal chancery 72,000 volumes.

Harmonious Bicycle.

The latest thing "made in Germany" is a "harmonious bicycle." This terrible invention is constructed to grind out 500 tunes, and has been given the name of "Il Trovatore." The contrivance is fixed to the handle bar, is worked by the front wheel, and will play for an hour while the cyclist is pedaling at a speed of ten miles.

Age of the Whale.

The age of the whale is calculated according to the number of laminae, or layers of the whalebone, which increases yearly. From these indications ages of 300 to 850 years have been assigned to whales.—San Francisco Bulletin.

A Campaign Trick.

The New York Sun, the ablest republican paper in the country gives the following opinion of the proposed anti-trust amendment to the constitution:

"When we say plainly that this is the most dishonest, and therefore the most discreditable piece of work achieved during the present session by the leaders of republican policy in the House, we are not speaking of the merits of the proposed amendment. Its revolutionary character, the sweeping change it would effect in the entire system of our institutions, the bestowal upon congress of an unlimited and arbitrary power over all private business in all the states, and without regard to state lines or state rights, need not even be discussed. There is no more prospect of its adoption by a two-thirds vote of both House and senate and of its ratification by the legislatures of three-fourths of the forty-five states than there is of the adoption of a constitutional amendment vesting in the Federal government the direct management of all the myriad industries of this land.

"The dishonesty of the performance lies in the fact that there was no expectation on the part of the author of this resolution, or of the republicans on the Judiciary committee who favorably reported it, or of the republicans in the House who were willing to vote for it, that the proposed sixteenth amendment will ever amount to more than a campaign trick of the cheapest and unworthiest description."

And it should be added that they knew it takes several years for the states to ratify an amendment. And in that time the coming election would be over, and the trusts have so many years more to rob the people.

OBITUARY.

Valentine Seitz was born in Lancaster County, Penn., on the 14th of October, 1827, and departed this life Friday, June 15th, 1900, after nearly two years of intense suffering, at the ripe age of 72 years, 8 months and 1 day. In 1850 he was united in marriage to Miss Mary Ann Kridler. To this union were born three children, two sons and one daughter, who survive them. In 1851 he moved to Allen County, Indiana, where he lived until the begining of the civil war, when he enlisted. He faithfully served his country as a soldier for three years, when he was honorably discharged on account of ill health. After the death of his first wife he came to Auburn, where he has since lived as a quiet and honored citizen. In 1891 he was united in marriage to Mrs. Martha Kolbe, who survives him. Shortly after coming to Auburn he joined the Grand Army of the Republic, DeLong Post where he was an esteemed member to the time of his death. Mr. Seitz was reared in the Lutheran church in his native state. He never departed from the religious training of his youth. He was always a devout believer in Jesus Christ, and when the end was drawing near he was watching and waiting for the coming of the Master. He leaves to mourn his death a faithful wife, two sons, one daughter, two step-sons, one sister, two brothers, besides many other friends. The funeral service was conducted from the Lutheran church Sunday at 2:30 p. m. Interment took place in the Evergreen cemetery, Rev. J. D. Brosy officiating.

They "Flew the Coop."

Last Saturday evening shortly before 9 o'clock Marshal Hilkey arrested Frank Conner and Henry Showers, who had been drinking and later on engaging in a fight on Main street. The men were too drunk when arrested to be placed on trial, and the marshal placed them in the cooler. They were still there when he made his last visit to his office at 2 o'clock Sunday morning, but when he came around to look after their wants at 8 o'clock they were not there. The heavy Yale lock which fastened the cell door had been cut off at the hasp, and marks above the front door showed that help had come in from the outside through the transom, which had been left open to give the prisoners air. When they went out the lower sash of the front window was raised and left open.

There can be no doubt that the two men had a friend on the outside who helped them out of their predicament, but if they will stay away from Auburn we don't believe any one will mourn their absence. From a carrful investigation of the circumstances and surroundings the COURIER is of the opinion that Marshal Hilkey is in nowise responsible, as he only intended to give the follows a little air. They were not satisfied with a little, but will probably enjoy a good deal more before they come back to Auburn.

National Convention.

We have the following telegrams from the National convention:

At 12:35 p. m., the convention was called to order by chairman of national committee, Mark Hanna.

At 12 53, Senator Wolcott of Colorado made temporary chairman.

At 3 p. m., the convention adjourned to meet at 12 noon, tomorrow.

It appears that all contests as to delegations, had been settled by the national committee before the convention met. Harry New was elected member of the national committee for Indiana.

Gov. Roosevelt of New York is the favorite for vice-president. But he says he don't want it, and it may go to Mr. Long, secretary of the navy, or to Mr. Dolliver of Iowa.

Officers Chosen.

The first meeting of the directors of the Fidelity Saving & Trust Company was held Monday. The board consists of T. J. Knisely, W. H. McIntyre, S. C. Snyder, Warren Mason, Chas. Camp, Albert Robbins, and Lester Harding, all of whom were present, and in addition a number of out-of-town stockholders. W. H. McIntyre of this city was elected president and T. J. Knisely of Butler, vice president. The election of the other officers was deferred. Steps were taken toward the securing of a building and employes. Prospects for the new enterprise are flattering. The purpose and scope of this new organization is, as its name emplies, the recieving of savings and to act as trustees in the execution of trusts. It will act as administrators and executors of estate, receieve deposits on which interest is paid, and make loans. The laws of the state are very stringent, providing for the organization of such an institution, looking first to the security of all the money and the execution of all trusts confided to it.

It is not exactly known when the new institution will be ready to transact business but it will probably be in the neighborhood of the first of September.

CEDAR.

Bill Zern and Al. Lung took the benefit of the cheap rates to Detroit last Sunday.

We notice by way of DeKalb items of last week that DeKalb and Cedar will celebrate jointly on July 4. Now we are sorry to spoil the plans of DeKalb people, but will say, cannot be with them as we expect to open a keg of nails at Cedar on that date.

The Chicago Record 5 months for $1.00. Inquire of P. M., here.

Mrs. Jackson's father and mother are visiting her. Their home is at Bourbon, Ind.

Adam Lung is treating his new house to a coat of paint.

Milton Graham expects to erect a new dwelling on his farm soon.

—Dan Weaver of Garrett Ind. Sundayed with friends here.

—Frank Hartzog now draws the reins over a matched span of grays.

Nellie Baxter.

So early dead! So soon at rest!
For the last time her eyelids close,
Fold her thin hands in sad repose
For sleep is best.

Her face is passionless and still—
Since His voice bade the struggle cease,
No earthly pang can move her peace,
Nor joyful thrill.

It was not her sad fate to feel,
Those hearts estranged and careless grown,
Whose love she once had thought her own,
Through woe and weal.

Yet it was hers to see the light,
From eyes beloved die out for aye;
Through a child's tears to watch their day,
Closing in night.

So early dead! So soon at rest!
This bud, thus hidden in the tomb,
Through Christ, at last shall sweetly bloom,
Where all are blest.

The Chinese Trouble.

Fighting between Chinese and foreigners has begun. For some time there has been trouble with a portion of the Chinese people, opposed to foreigners. They call themselves "Boxers" and have been murdering and burning at several places where missionaries were located. They kill the Chinese christians also. Representatives of foreign powers have been trying to induce the Chinese authorties to stop this murdering and burning but they have paid little attention to it Several nations who have ministers at Peken, are in fear that even these may be in danger of their lives, and not having heard from them for several days it is believed they are besieged in their homes and possibly have been murdered. The homes of these ministers are in the walled part of Pekin, and the walls are guarded by a large Chinese army. To insure the safety of our representative there, we have sent 100 marines, and these with larger forces sent by other nations, have been trying to force their way to Pekin along a railroad owned by English capitalists, and which extends from Tientsin near the sea to Pekin. But they were stopped some where along the route and forced back to Tientsin. Below Tientsin, at the mouth of the Pei Ho river, is the town of Taku, the port of both Tientsin and Pekin, the latter being the farther up the river. At Taku the warships of several nations having ministers in danger at Pekin and missionaries at other points, have been assembling, and were lying in the harbor. when suddenly Sunday morning at 12:45, the Chinese forts on each side of the river opened fire on the warships. The latter at once got ready and fired back, when the battle became general. There were thirty-two warships carrying over 200 guns. At 8 in the morning the forts surrendered. The losses of the Chinese are supposed to be large. The ships lost each a few. Troops are being hurried forward and we are adding our Ninth regulars from Manila, and the warship Oregon, to the small force we already have on the ground. It is believed the Chinese government ordered its forts to open fire. If so, it is a declaration of war to all the nations whose warships were in the harbor. It looks now as if the American, minister, Conger, and the others may have been murdered. If this should prove true, China is liable to be wiped off the map. This is the substance of the Chinese situation, though the sources for news are very uncertain.

The Anderson Meeting.

The meeting of the Northern Indiana Editorial Association at Anderson June 14 and 15 was one of the most agreeable of the thirty-one annual gatherings that are the milestones of its life. The first session began Thursday at 2 p. m., in the spacious apartments of the Anderson club room. J. L. Forkner, president of the Anderson Club and M. M. Dunlap, mayor of the city made addresses of welcome, both being witty and eloquent. President F. D. Haimbaugh, reponded in well a written address. These were followed by the address of the president of the Association, F. D. Haimbaugh of the Muncie Herald, in an excellent and thoughtful paper. The regular program was then carried out, closing at 4 p. m., when all met at the offices of the Union Traction Company and given a street car ride to all possible points in this beatiful and interesting city, and the day closed with a reception in honor of the editorial visitors, given by Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Campbell of the Anderson Herald. As they are so well known in Auburn and DeKalb county, no excuse need be made for giving this charming function in full as found in one of the Anderson dailies.

THE RECEPTION.

"Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Campbell gave a reception at their beautiful home on Hendricks street Thursday evening in honor of the visiting newspaper men and their wives. There were probably 400 Anderson people present and was a most delightful gathering. There was an informality about it that is always pleasant and the greeting that the many Anderson people gave the visitors was so cordial that it will remain in their memories as one of the delights of their annual meeting.

The decorations were done by Stuart & Haugh and were elaborate. In the hallway there was a large bank of palms that completely concealed an orchestra of four pieces. The parlor decorations were palms and carnations and in the sitting room there were palms, vines and begonias. A bank of them completely covered the large mantle. In the dining room the effect was especially pretty. Red carnations and smilax made it a most attractive place. In the library there were pink roses and palms and in the coffee room pink carnations. A corner set off by American flags and made a very pretty booth for coffee, in which Miss Greta Hileman presided. She was assisted by Miss Winifred Cain, Miss Metha Vance and Miss Bessie Craycraft."

A part of the veranda was walled in by a large American flag and vines and evergreens and made a pretty alcove, where punch was served. The bowls were presided over by several young misses. The refreshments in the dining room were served by a number of ladies, among them being Mrs. Harry Hallam, whose husband was a former Auburn man. Miss Helen Servoss well known in Auburn, assisted Mrs. Campbell in receiving. The hours were from 7:30 to 11, and though 380 guests had responded to invitations, the rooms are so well arranged that no discomfort was possible. Every profession and calling was represented in the attendance, including many of the best in the city, and they agreed it was one of the most elaborate and successful ever given there.

The forenoon of Friday was taken by a ride over the line of the Union Traction trolley line to Alexandria, where we visited the great Depauw Plate glass mills and the paper mills, both wonderful establishments and among the largest in the country. The citizens here, won the hearts of the visitors by setting out a fine lunch, a matter their long rides and walks had made most welcome. Then on returning came a visit to the tin-plate mills and window glass factories at North Anderson, both a revelation to most of the party.

In the afternoon the literary and business program was carried out, ending with election of officers for next year. These are:

President—James A. Barns, Auburn COURIER.

Secretary—J. S. Conlogue, Kendallville Sun.

Treasurer—C. H. Bundy, Marion News.

Those of the visitors and citizens who could go were then taken in carriages out several miles to visit the wonderful mounds or ancient earthworks, a full description of which will be given some other time. From there we were taken to Chesterfield to see the camp grounds of the spiritualists, who have a permanent property and hold meetings each summer. The existence of such an establishment will be news to many, and at some future time we may give it fuller mention.

The editors in their closing session expressed thanks for the handsome treatment given them by Anderson, and especially to Mayor Dunlap, Mr. Forkner, Editor Crittenberger of the News, and Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Campbell.

Ladies, Why Don't You?

EDITOR COURIER:—Is there anything at all that we can do to convince all your lady readers that we are actually giving away to every married lady in the United States who writes for it, an elegant sterling silver plated sugar shell, like jewelers sell for 75c each? There is no "catch" about this offer. There is nothing to pay, nor any requirement to buy anything in order to secure this beautiful souvenir gift. It is our way of advertising the merits of Quaker Valley silverware. A copy of the Home Furnisher, our own publication, will also be sent free. Surely this beautiful sugar shell gift is worth asking for. Then it seems to us that we should hear from every lady who reads your paper. Quaker Valley Mfg. Co., Morgan and Harrison Sts., Chicago.

Club Notes.

The L. L. C. met with Mrs. Mabel Hodge last Saturday. A goodly number were present. After the business session was over the program was taken up and given as printed. Miss Nellie Buckley gave an exceedingly fine paper entitled, "Snap Shots of Washington City and the Potomac." The descriptions were excellent and to those who had seen these sights it was as good as another visit with many new beauties seen, and those who had never had the good fortune to visit the capitol City certainly gained much knowledge and an increased desire to visit these beautiful and interesting scenes.

Mrs. Willis gave as a substitute for her work a selection about "Great Conventions" which was very apropoo at the present time. Mrs. Swineford gave an interesting paper on "Our National Cemeteries". All these papers were followed by discussions or remarks by the members. The rest of the time was given Mrs. Ralston to make a report of the Biencial Convention at Milwaukee. All were eager to hear this and gave close attention, further reports will be given next week by Mrs. Lewis, Mrs. Sprott and Mrs. McCord, who were at the great convention of Womens Clubs. The Club adjourned to meet with Mrs. Mollie Robbins next Saturday.

A New Version.

My country, t'is of thee
That set Hawaii free
Of thee I sing!
I am a slave no more,
I've dumped the load I bore
And ceased to kneel before
A king or queen.

Land of the brave and just,
Land of the sugar trust
How sweet to be
Held up outside the gate
And made to pay the freight—
I tell you what, it's great
And tickles me.

Why Are You Nervous

Some Information and a Valuable Hint from One Who Knows.

Perhaps no physician of our time has come more in contact with nervous people than Dr. Sylvester Stone. For thirty years he has given exclusive attention to the cure of stomach and liver troubles. People thus afflicted are always nervous. It is doubtful if nervousness ever exists without these complaints. Dr. Stone says that his way of curing nervousness is to pay no attention to it, but to devote his time to overcoming the disordered condition of the stomach and liver. When this is accomplished the nervous symptoms disappear. If you suffer from loss of memory, sleeplessness, depressed spirits nervous tremors, vertigo or that restless "figity" feeling so common in cases of stomach and liver trouble, you can get some benefit in twenty-four hours by taking Dr. Stone's New Despepsia Cure. Every day you take it the nervous symptoms will decrease until they finally disappear. Thousands are doctoring for various forms of debility without success, or are drugging their protesting nerves into silence, who could be restored to perfect health and vigor if they would realize the faulty digestion or a sluggish liver was the cause of it all. If you have any stomach or liver trouble you know it. Remember then that vigorous action of the organs is the basis of all health. Remember also that your druggist guarantees Dr. Stone's New Dyspepsia Cure. No cost if it fails. Try it a week and note the results. Price 50 cents. Sold by H. B. McCord.

A Campaign Trick.

The New York Sun, the ablest republican paper in the country gives the following opinion of the proposed anti-trust amendment to the constitution:

"When we say plainly that this is the most dishonest, and therefore the most discreditable piece of work achieved during the present session by the leaders of republican policy in the House, we are not speaking of the merits of the proposed amendment. Its revolutionary character, the sweeping change it would effect in the entire system of our institutions, the bestowal upon congress of an unlimited and arbitrary power over all private business in all the states, and without regard to state lines or state rights, need not even be discussed. There is no more prospect of its adoption by a two-thirds vote of both House and senate and of its ratification by the legislatures of three-fourths of the forty-five states than there is of the adoption of a constitutional amendment vesting in the Federal government the direct management of all the myriad industries of this land.

"The dishonesty of the performance lies in the fact that there was no expectation on the part of the author of this resolution, or of the republicans on the Judiciary committee who favorably reported it, or of the republicans in the House who were willing to vote for it, that the proposed sixteenth amendment will ever amount to more than a campaign trick of the cheapest and unworthiest description."

And it should be added that they knew it takes several years for the states to ratify an amendment. And in that time the coming election would be over, and the trusts have so many years more to rob the people.

OBITUARY.

Valentine Seitz was born in Lancaster County, Penn., on the 14th of October, 1827, and departed this life Friday, June 15th, 1900, after nearly two years of intense suffering, at the ripe age of 72 years, 8 months and 1 day. In 1850 he was united in marriage to Miss Mary Ann Kridler. To this union were born three children, two sons and one daughter, who survive them. In 1851 he moved to Allen County, Indiana, where he lived until the begining of the civil war, when he enlisted. He faithfully served his country as a soldier for three years, when he was honorably discharged on account of ill health. After the death of his first wife he came to Auburn, where he has since lived as a quiet and honored citizen. In 1891 he was united in marriage to Mrs. Martha Kolbe, who survives him. Shortly after coming to Auburn he joined the Grand Army of the Republic, DeLong Post where he was an esteemed member to the time of his death. Mr. Seitx was reared in the Lutheran church in his native state. He never departed from the religious training of his youth. He was always a devout believer in Jesus Christ, and when the end was drawing near he was watching and waiting for the coming of the Master. He leaves to mourn his death a faithful wife, two sons, one daughter, two step-sons, one sister, two brothers, besides many other friends. The funeral service was conducted from the Lutheran church Sunday at 2:30 p. m. Interment took place in the Evergreen cemetery, Rev. J. D. Brosy officiating.

They "Flew the Coop."

Last Saturday evening shortly before 9 o'clock Marshal Hilkey arrested Frank Conner and Henry Showers, who had been drinking and later on engaging in a fight on Main street. The men were too drunk when arrested to be placed on trial, and the marshal placed them in the cooler. They were still there when he made his last visit to his office at 2 o'clock Sunday morning, but when he came around to look after their wants at 8 o'clock they were not there. The heavy Yale lock which fastened the cell door had been cut off at the hasp, and marks above the front door showed that help had come in from the outside through the transom, which had been left open to give the prisoners air. When they went out the lower sash of the front window was raised and left open.

There can be no doubt that the two men had a friend on the outside who helped them out of their predicament, but if they will stay away from Auburn we don't believe any one will mourn their absence. From a carrful investigation of the circumstances and surroundings the COURIER is of the opinion that Marshal Hilkey is in nowise responsible, as he only intended to give the fellows a little air. They were not satisfied with a little, but will probably enjoy a good deal more before they come back to Auburn.

National Convention.

We have the following telegrams from the National convention:

At 12:35 p. m., the convention was called to order by chairman of national committee, Mark Hanna.

At 12 53, Senator Wolcott of Colorado made temporary chairman.

At 3 p. m., the convention adjourned to meet at 12 noon, tomorrow.

It appears that all contests as to delegations, had been settled by the national committee before the convention met. Harry New was elected member of the national committee for Indiana.

Gov. Roosevelt of New York is the favorite for vice-president. But he says he don't want it, and it may go to Mr. Long, secretary of the navy, or to Mr. Dolliver of Iowa.

Officers Chosen.

The first meeting of the directors of the Fidelity Saving & Trust Company was held Monday. The board consists of T. J. Knisely, W. H. McIntyre, S. C. Snyder, Warren Mason, Chas. Camp, Albert Robbins, and Lester Harding, all of whom were present, and in addition a number of out-of-town stockholders. W. H. McIntyre of this city was elected president and T. J. Knisely of Butler, vice president. The election of the other officers was deferred. Steps were taken toward the securing of a building and employes. Prospects for the new enterprise are flattering. The purpose and scope of this new organization is, as its name emplies, the recieving of savings and to act as trustees in the execution of trusts. It will act as administrators and executors of estate, receieve deposits on which interest is paid, and make loans. The laws of the state are very stringent, providing for the organization of such an institution, looking first to the security of all the money and the execution of all trusts confided to it.

It is not exactly known when the new institution will be ready to transact business but it will probably be in the neighborhood of the first of September.

Nellie Baxter.

So early dead! So soon at rest!
For the last time her eyelids close,
Fold her thin hands in sad repose
For sleep is best.

Her face is passionless and still—
Since His voice bade the struggle cease,
No earthly pang can move her peace,
Nor joyful thrill.

It was not her sad fate to feel,
Those hearts estranged and careless grown,
Whose love she once had thought her own,
Through woe and weal.

Yet it was hers to see the light,
From eyes beloved die out for aye;
Through a child's tears to watch their day,
Closing in night.

So early dead! So soon at rest!
This bud, thus hidden in the tomb,
Through Christ, at last shall sweetly bloom,
Where all are blest.

The Chinese Trouble.

Fighting between Chinese and foreigners has begun. For some time there has been trouble with a portion of the Chinese people, opposed to foreigners. They call themselves "Boxers" and have been murdering and burning at several places where missionaries were located. They kill the Chinese christians also. Representatives of foreign powers have been trying to induce the Chinese authorties to stop this murdering and burning but they have paid little attention to it Several nations who have ministers at Peken, are in fear that even these may be in danger of their lives, and not having heard from them for several days it is believed they are besieged in their homes and possibly have been murdered. The homes of these ministers are in the walled part of Pekin, and the walls are guarded by a large Chinese army. To insure the safety of our representative there, we have sent 100 marines, and these with larger forces sent by other nations, have been trying to force their way to Pekin along a railroad owned by English capitalists, and which extends from Tientsin near the sea to Pekin. But they were stopped some where along the route and forced back to Tientsin. Below Tientsin, at the mouth of the Pei Ho river, is the town of Taku, the port of both Tientsin and Pekin, the latter being the farther up the river. At Taku the warships of several nations having ministers in danger at Pekin and missionaries at other points, have been assembling, and were lying in the harbor. when suddenly Sunday morning at 12:45, the Chinese forts on each side of the river opened fire on the warships. The latter at once got ready and fired back, when the battle became general. There were thirty-two warships carrying over 200 guns. At 8 in the morning the forts surrendered. The losses of the Chinese are supposed to be large. The ships lost each a few. Troops are being hurried forward and we are adding our Ninth regulars from Manila, and the warship Oregon, to the small force we already have on the ground. It is believed the Chinese government ordered its forts to open fire. If so, it is a declaration of war to all the nations whose warships were in the harbor. It looks now as if the American, minister, Conger, and the others may have been murdered. If this should prove true, China is liable to be wiped off the map. This is the substance of the Chinese situation, though the sources for news are very uncertain.

The Anderson Meeting.

The meeting of the Northern Indiana Editorial Association at Anderson June 14 and 15 was one of the most agreeable of the thirty-one annual gatherings that are the milestones of its life. The first session began Thursday at 2 p. m., in the spacious apartments of the Anderson club room. J. L. Forkner, president of the Anderson Club and M. M. Dunlap, mayor of the city made addresses of welcome, both being witty and eloquent. President F. D. Haimbaugh, reponded in well a written address. These were followed by the address of the president of the Association, F. D. Haimbaugh of the Muncie Herald, in an excellent and thoughtful paper. The regular program was then carried out, closing at 4 p. m., when all met at the offices of the Union Traction Company and given a street car ride to all possible points in this beatiful and interesting city, and the day closed with a reception in honor of the editorial visitors, given by Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Campbell of the Anderson Herald. As they are so well known in Auburn and DeKalb county, no excuse need be made for giving this charming function in full as found in one of the Anderson dailies.

THE RECEPTION.

"Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Campbell gave a reception at their beautiful home on Hendricks street Thursday evening in honor of the visiting newspaper men and their wives. There were probably 400 Anderson people present and was a most delightful gathering. There was an informality about it that is always pleasant and the greeting that the many Anderson people gave the visitors was so cordial that it will remain in their memories as one of the delights of their annual meeting.

The decorations were done by Stuart & Haugh and were elaborate. In the hallway there was a large bank of palms that completely concealed an orchestra of four pieces. The parlor decorations were palms and carnations and in the sitting room there were palms, vines and begonias. A bank of them completely covered the large mantle. In the dining room the effect was especially pretty. Red carnations and smilax made it a most attractive place. In the library there were pink roses and palms and in the coffee room pink carnations. A corner set off by American flags and made a very pretty booth for coffee, in which Miss Greta Hileman presided. She was assisted by Miss Winifred Cain, Miss Metha Vance and Miss Bessie Craycraft."

A part of the veranda was walled in by a large American flag and vines and evergreens and made a pretty alcove, where punch was served. The bowls were presided over by several young misses. The refreshments in the dining room were served by a number of ladies, among them being Mrs. Harry Hallam, whose husband was a former Auburn man. Miss Helen Servoss well known in Auburn, assisted Mrs. Campbell in receiving. The hours were from 7:30 to 11, and though 380 guests had responded to invitations, the rooms are so well arranged that no discomfort was possible. Every profession and calling was represented in the attendance, including many of the best in the city, and they agreed it was one of the most elaborate and successful ever given there.

The forenoon of Friday was taken by a ride over the line of the Union Traction trolley line to Alexandria, where we visited the great Depauw Plate glass mills and the paper mills, both wonderful establishments and among the largest in the country. The citizens here, won the hearts of the visitors by setting out a fine lunch, a matter their long rides and walks had made most welcome. Then on returning came a visit to the tin-plate mills and window glass factories at North Anderson, both a revelation to most of the party.

In the afternoon the literary and business program was carried out, ending with election of officers for next year. These are:

President—James A. Barns, Auburn COURIER.

Secretary—J. S. Conlogue, Kendallville Sun.

Treasurer—C. H. Bundy, Marion News.

Those of the visitors and citizens who could go were then taken in carriages out several miles to visit the wonderful mounds or ancient earthworks, a full description of which will be given some other time. From there we were taken to Chesterfield to see the camp grounds of the spiritualists, who have a permanent property and hold meetings each summer. The existence of such an establishment will be news to many, and at some future time we may give it fuller mention.

The editors in their closing session expressed thanks for the handsome treatment given them by Anderson, and especially to Mayor Dunlap, Mr. Forkner, Editor Crittenberger of the News, and Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Campbell.

Ladies, Why Don't You?

EDITOR COURIER:—Is there anything at all that we can do to convince all your lady readers that we are actually giving away to every married lady in the United States who writes for it, an elegant sterling silver-plated sugar shell, like jewelers sell for 75c each? There is no "catch" about this offer. There is nothing to pay, nor any requirement to buy anything in order to secure this beautiful souvenir gift. It is our way of advertising the merits of Quaker Valley silverware. A copy of the Home Furnisher, our own publication, will also be sent free. Surely this beautiful sugar shell gift is worth asking for. Then it seems to us that we should hear from every lady who reads your paper. Quaker Valley Mfg. Co., Morgan and Harrison Sts., Chicago.

Club Notes.

The L. L. C. met with Mrs. Mabel Hodge last Saturday. A goodly number were present. After the business session was over the program was taken up and given as printed. Miss Nellie Buckley gave an exceedingly fine paper entitled, "Snap Shots of Washington City and the Potomac." The descriptions were excellent and to those who had seen these sights it was as good as another visit with many new beauties seen, and those who had never had the good fortune to visit the capitol City certainly gained much knowledge and an increased desire to visit these beautiful and interesting scenes.

Mrs. Willis gave as a substitute for her work a selection about "Great Conventions" which was very apropoo at the present time. Mrs. Swineford gave an interesting paper on "Our National Cemeteries". All these papers were followed by discussions or remarks by the members. The rest of the time was given Mrs. Ralston to make a report of the Biennial Convention at Milwaukee. All were eager to hear this and gave close attention, further reports will be given next week by Mrs. Lewis, Mrs. Sprott and Mrs. McCord, who were at the great convention of Womens Clubs. The Club adjourned to meet with Mrs. Mollie Robbins next Saturday.

A New Version.

My country, t'is of thee
That set Hawaii free
Of thee I sing!
I am a slave no more,
I've dumped the load I bore
And ceased to kneel before
A king or queen.

Land of the brave and just,
Land of the sugar trust
How sweet to be
Held up outside the gate
And made to pay the freight—
I tell you what, it's great
And tickles me.

Notice to Contractors.

Why Are YouNervous

Some Information and a Valuable Hint from One Who Knows.

Perhaps no physician of our time has come more in contact with nervous people than Dr. Sylvester Stone. For thirty years he has given exclusive attention to the cure of stomach and liver troubles. People thus afflicted are always nervous. It is doubtful if nervousness ever exists without these complaints Dr. Stone says that his way of curing nervousness is to pay no attention to it, but to devote his time to overcoming the disordered condition of the stomach and liver. When this is accomplished the nervous symptoms disappear. If you suffer from loss of memory, sleeplessness, depressed spirits nervous tremors, vertigo or that restless "figity" feeling so common in cases of stomach and liver trouble, you can get some benefit in twenty-four hours by taking Dr. Stone's New Despepsia Cure. Every day you take it the nervous symptoms will decrease until they finally disappear. Thousands are doctoring for various forms of debility without success, or are drugging their protesting nerves into silence, who could be restored to perfect health and vigor if they would realize the faulty digestion or a sluggish liver was the cause of it all. If you have any stomach or liver trouble you know it. Remember then that vigorous action of the organs is the basis of all health. Remember also that your druggist guarantees Dr. Stone's New Dyspepsia Cure. No cost if it fails. Try it a week and note the results. Price 50 cents. Sold by H. B. McCord.

Monday's Daily.

—Mrs. John Blaney is still confined to her bed.

—Frank Barney of St. Joe was in town today on business.

—Mrs. J. E. Rose is able to be out again after her recent illness.

—Mrs. Amy Kelley on North Main street is quite sick, and has been for several days.

—Miss Laura Keeran and Arthur Nelson were guests today of the latter's parents in Jackson township.

—George Coe is visiting Trustee Thrush and family in Butler township and taking his first lessons in farming.

—Amos Swigart has a letter from Edward Mottinger, now located in Jackson county, reporting all well and prospering.

—J. J. Martin of Albion came over Saturday evening and on Sunday took in the Detroit excursion. He returns home today.

—Miss Lydia Teeters who is home for her vacation, returns again in September to her school work at Plymouth, where she has been for some time.

—Geo. L. Price of Newville township was here today settling up some matters as commissioner in a land sale in which Steuben county parties are interested.

—Hon. Nick Ensley came up from Indianapolis Saturday and spent Sunday with the relatives. He has greatly improved in health, as we are glad to notice. He returns tomorrow.

—The County Board of Review met today. They are the Auditor, Treasurer and County Assessor, and the two new men appointed by Judge Hartman, R. N. Crooks and James Provines.

—Billy Palmer did a quick job of painting Saturday morning, completing in eighteen minutes the baseball banner which was displayed in court square. And it was a neat job, too.

—L. J. Loveland, his wife and the latter's mother, Mrs. Henry Rock, of Creston, O., came up from Newville Saturday and spent Sunday with his uncle. John Loveland, west of town. Mrs. Loveland has been visiting her daughter about two weeks, but goes home today.

—Unclaimed letters remaining in the Auburn postoffice, week ending June 16, 1900:—Mrs. Peter Quinlan, Mrs. Emily Fryhayer, Belle Schmitt, Amos Zerwis, W. A. Tisdale, Samuel Hay, M. Peth. Claimants will please call for letters in advertised list.—G. H. Forkner, Postmaster.

—Mrs. Dr. Stametz went to Chicago Junction, O., Saturday to visit a couple of weeks with her sister, Miss Blanche Saunders, before the latter starts on a trip to Europe. The latter expects to spend the summer abroad. Our people will remember her as she has visited Auburn several times.

—When the Detroit excursion train stopped at the Wabash station yesterday two men who had got into a quarrel on the train stepped off onto the platform and settled the matter in a pugilistic way. The result seemed to be satisfactory, as both men got on the train and went through to Detroit.

—At the Castleman lecture at Corunna June 4 Mrs. Sarah Dice, formerly of Auburn, drew the capital prize, a feather-bed worth $12. The second prize was a pair of pillows worth $3 These were given without purchasing any tickets, merely to get a large audience to the lecture. It certainly paid Mrs. Dice to go.

—Mrs. W. M. Leedy and two children came up from Fort Wayne at noon Saturday for a visit over Sunday with her father, John Shugers, and her brother Cory and other friends. She was accompanied by little Miss Sadie TenBroek of that place, a daughter of Manager TenBroek of the Metropolitan Insurance Co. The little lady is becoming a proficient in elocution and physical culture work.

—Nellie R. Baxter, whose illness has been noted in these columns, passed away at the home of John W. Baxter at 9:45 Sunday morning, aged 15 years, 5 months and 18 days. Nellie was a bright, lovable girl and her death is deplored by her large circle of friends and acquaintances. The funeral services will be held at the Baptist church tomorrow at 2 o'clock, Rev. Pearce of Goshen officiating. Interment in Evergreen cemetery.

—Geo. L. Hurni, now at Brookville, Ind., sends us two little pieces of paper, one being a $2 P. O. money order, and the other, which is quite as much to the point, reads: On last Sunday evening abot 6:25 o'clock a young lady came to the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Herni. Her belongings were very scanty, not even being in possession of a name; but this happy couple, whose hospitality and generosity are well known among most of our people, received the little one with outstretched arms, and after giving her a home with them, supplied her with some fine clothes and a name—Wilma Wilbaretta. She weighs 11¼ pounds and is the picture of health. All parties are doing fine.

Summer Colds

are noted for hanging on. They weaken your throat and lungs, and lead to serious trouble.

Don't trifle with them. Take Scott's Emulsion at once. It soothes, heals, and cures.

Tuesday's Daily.

—Henry Emme is solid at the Courier office for another year.

—Isaac Hague is making an addition to his residence on South VanBuren street.

—A lady's jacket, left at the Bazar store a few days ago, is at this office awaiting an owner.

—Supt. Coe is already arranging for the county teachers' institute to be held in this place, the week beginning August 20.

—The boy of Lafe Miser, this side of Waterloo, fell in the barn the other day and had his arm badly sprained. He is getting along all right.

—Carl Shilling found a ring which the owner can have by calling on him at Grund's barber shop, proving property and paying for this notice.

—Mrs. Ellen Rainier has been confined to her bed for two weeks with inflammatory rheumatism.

—Mrs. Worth Coats of Newville was guest over night of Mrs. Laura Ward. Mr. Coats and daughter Mary drove over today to attend the funeral of Nellie Baxter.

—Mrs. F. D. Ryan came up from Attica Sunday on the excursion and paid a visit to her sister at Montpelier, Ohio. She returned here yesterday and this morning went home.

—Kill your bugs with Black Death. potato bugs, squash, melon, rose bugs, currant and cabbage worms, and insects on leaves. Use Black Death the latest and best. Sold by T. C. Ford, Auburn.

—For Sale:—Fine brussels carpet, modern design; a bargain. Also several pieces of good furniture at private sale. Inquire for Mrs. Grisier at A. Wheelock's residence, No. 3, Fifth street, Auburn. j21

—The opening of the Base Ball Park was well attended Saturday with their opening game with Kendallville which resulted in a defeat for Kendallville. Prospects are that Auburn will have the strongest team in Northern Indiana.

—G. C. Lahnum is devoting his time this year to the sale of rubber collars, cuffs and shirt bosoms. They are an improvement on the old celluloid collar, having its washable qualities without its defects. He is doing quite a business.

—Two young ladies were driving along the road near Sixteen the other day when their horse stopped stock-still and refused to go any farther. The obstruction was found to be a big blue racer which was finally killed by a brave man-but not the one who was first called. So says a reporter from Richland.

—W. H. McIntyre is preparing for a trip to Europe and the Paris exposition with a party of one hundred carriage makers who are going over to view the products of the old world factories. The party will sail from New York on the steamer Verra of the North German Lloyd line on July 3. Mr. McIntyre expects to spend about two month's on the trip.

—Some invitations have been received here for a birthday party to be given to Mrs. Rev. Henderson Widney at Weldon, Ill., by the members of the church of which her husband is pastor. Both Rev. and Mrs. Widney have relatives and friends in DeKalb county. The latter was formerly Mrs. Norton, a sister of the late Robert McDougall, and the party is in honor of her seventieth birthday.

—A circular we have at hand from an engraving and enlarging picture house, is quite complimentary. It says, "Have you ever had one of your negatives enlarged? Do you know what pretty wall pictures they will make? Pick out one of your prettiest negatives and send it today." We have for years admired our own peculiar style of beauty but have waited and pined in vain for this public acknowledgement. That the writer believes what he is saying may be inferred from the fact that he never saw us.

BUTLER.

A vigorous effort is being put forth on the part of many of our people to have a street fair this fall. From the general sentiment prevailing just after the last street fair, we had concluded that Butler people had seen the last street fair here for many a year. Fully $500 has been raised for the purpose.

Miss Ida Walters, daughter of James W. Walters, died last Saturday morning after an illness that baffled the skill of our best physicians. She was a most excellent young lady and will be missed from a wide circle of friends and from her sorrowing relatives. Her funeral took place from the residence of her father last Monday, Rev. Neible officiating.

Mrs. Burns, wife of William Burns who recently lost his life near Butler by his horse becoming frightened at the cars and throwing them both from the buggy, died at her daughter's, Mrs. Samuel Heely's, three miles north of Butler, last Saturday. Her injuries which were though not to be serious, resulted in her death.

Charles W. Campbell was united in marriage to Miss Mary Jones at the residence of the bride last Thursday at 5 p. m., Rev. Frech of the M. E. church officiating. The ceremony was almost private, only a few of the immediate relatives being present. After the ceremony the company sat down to such a supper as only Mrs. Jones, mother of the bride, could prepare. They are most excellent and popular young people and their many friends predict for them a successful and happy life. They left on Friday for Chicago where Mr. Campbell has a good position on the B. & O. railroad. They will make their home for the present in Chicago.

Wednesday's Daily.

—Miss Faye McDonald is visiting friends in Garrett.

—Miss Zella Rush is spending the week with relatives at Concord.

—Cal. VanAuken is at Stroh looking after the construction of his new house.

—Mahlon Price of Concord has lost about 100 pounds of wool by some sneak thief.

—Mrs. Frank Rose will go to Hartford City this week for a visit with friends.

—Mowing machines go rattling out of town now-a-days. The clover will soon be out.

—Henry Lochner is building an addition to S. J. Brandon's barn in Jackson township.

—For Sale:—One Osborne mower; has been used but two days, will sell at a bargain.—J. Beubet.

—Charley Picker and Don Lawrence were over in Allen county yesterday doing some brick-laying.

—H. A. Winslow tells us that he intended to tell us a six-foot wheel in his locomotive problem last week.

—For Sale:—One phaeton and one gasoline stove, almost as good as new. —M. Kline, North Main street. tf

—M. E. Garrett is preparing to build an addition to his store building to accommodate his increasing trade.

—Huntington will have a carnival and street fair this year and committees are at work arranging the preliminaries.

—Lost:—Garnet, crescent pin, with white ribbon attached. Finder will please leave at this office and receive liberal reward. j22

—Dr. J. R. Kester of Columbia City was the guest of his son Charlie here this forenoon. He was on his way to St. Joe on a business mission.

—Watermelons from Georgia, Tennessee and southern Illinois are coming into the northern markets and meet with ready sale at good prices.

—In some Indiana cities the complaint is made that the census enumerators have been careless and that a number of people were missed.

—Mrs. M. Houston and daughter went to Avilla today where they will attend the marriage of her niece which occurs there this evening at seven o'clock.

—There will be a meeting at the office of Moody & Rickel on Thursday evening at 7:30 for the organization of a new gun club. All interested are requested to attend.

—Pine and hemlock stumps and old logs that were supposed to have become worthless years ago, are being gathered in northern Michigan to be manufactured into lath.

—Columbia City Post:—Mesdames Rittenhouse and Howe, of Warsaw, arrived in this city this forenoon from Auburn where they had been visiting and are now the guests of Sam Randall and family.

—You get more for your money, get faster colors and brighter colors when you buy Putnam Fadeless Dyes, and it takes less time to dye and makes less muss and for the same price, 10 cents per package. Sold by F. E. Davenport. 24-25

—Young Men Wanted:—With fair education and good character, to learn telegraphy, railroad accounting and typewriting. This is endorsed by all leading railroad companies as the only perfect and reliable institution of its kind. All our graduates are assisted to positions. Ladies also admitted. Write for free catalogue. Fall term opens August 15th.—Globe Telegraph College, Lexington, Ky. tf

—Auditor Seiler has a letter from Mrs. Seiler's brother, Colly Andrews, now in Alaska. He staid all winter at Dawson and then started down the Yukon on his way to St. Michael's from which place he will go to the new gold diggings at Cape Nome. The letter was written at Circle City, a town on the Arctic circle. That seems a good ways north for a DeKalb boy, but we hope he will get the gold he is after and come home a rich man.

—Old soldiers are advised to look out for some smooth fakirs. Three persons are in the work. They approach the intended victim by offering to sell him a book containing his war record, and to be accompanied by a certificate, which, when properly filled out, will enable his widow or children to secure his pension without the usual tedious process. The old soldier is to pay a dollar down, and two more on the delivery of the book. Don't bite, advises an exchange.

—At the democratic convention in Noble county yesterday the ticket nominated was as follows: Representative, Hon. E. B. Gerber, Ligonier; treasurer, Herman Krueger, recorder, Henry Bluhm, both of Kendallville; sheriff, Joseph Homsher, Albion; assessor, O. L. Myers; surveyor, Henry S. Bortner; coroner, Dr. F. C. Maloney; commissioners, George Huntsman and Thomas Kelham. The ticket is one of the strongest ever put up by the democrats in our neighboring county.

"Can't Afford to Paint."

The man who says that, forgets that painting properly done is economy, and the fact is he can't afford NOT to paint.

How often you require to paint is largely dependent upon the paint you use.

THE SHERWIN-WILLIAMS PAINTS

out last others. They are the most economical paints you can use, because they cover most and wear longest. Add to this their good appearance, and you have perfect paints—The Sherwin-Williams Paints.

They are made for many different kinds of painting. Whatever it is you want to paint—a house, or anything in or out of the house—we make the right paint for that particular purpose—not one slap-dash mixture for all.

CULBERTSON & BOLAND.

—Oom Paul is like Louis XIV in one way at least. "I am the state," said Louis. "Where I am, there is the Transvaal capital," declares Oom Paul.

—Mr. A. Cunningham of Nashville says, "I used a number of things, but did not get the satisfaction that I got from Barnes' Kidney and Bladder Cure. I believe one-half dozen bottles would cure anyone."

—The Union Traction Trolley line which runs each way from Anderson, will be the longest in the world, 107 miles outside of its city lines, which makes sixty miles more.

—Fatal mistakes are made by those who do not heed the earlier symptoms of kidney or bladder trouble that often end in Bright's disease or diabetes. When Foley's Kidney Cure makes the kidneys well, how foolish it is to delay. H. B. McCord.

—Mr. Taylor of Kentucky has announced that he will not run for Governor this fall, although he will continue his personal private running for freedom. It is just as well. The country had pretty well made up its mind that there wasn't very much to choose between Goebel and Taylor.

Women's Doings.

HIS IDEAL WOMAN.

MAN has a number of fixed, old-fashioned notions about the ideal woman, which are quite apart from questions of complexion and dress, says the Woman's Home Companion. The sober truth is that, while men may seek diversion with the more showy, flippant type of girl, and are often caught by mere glitter, they have an ideal far, far above this cheap type which is imperishable. A man does not picture a completely limp and characterless creature as his soul's ideal, however "sweet." Yet the woman as she appears to him in his dreams is not too clever. It is a pleasure to be a little superior to his mate—to be "looked up to"—and, as the true woman desires to "look up," it is clear that nature's arrangements in these matters are not without design. The most charming woman of all is she who has the consummate wit to seem to "look up" when really she stands on a level with the man who loves her, or perchance a little above him.

One thing imperatively demanded in the make-up of the ideal woman is sympathy—that all-divining, all-forgiving quality which makes the whole world akin. Sympathy is one of the prime factors of charm. So is humor. A man is fearfully lonesome when his wife cannot see his jokes. She could hardly offer him a more deadly affront than to laugh in the wrong place at one of his pet stories. The ideal woman is religious—has the wise, sweet, old-fashioned notions about right and wrong. A man is quite capable of making merry over his wife's scruples of conscience, but I think he would be rather disappointed if she had no scruples—if in his worldly way she was guided chiefly by experience. He may not say many prayers himself, but he loves to know that his children pray at their mother's knee. Perhaps he sometimes reflects that the nightly petition from innocent lips, "God bless father," may not be quite empty of meaning.

Read Newspapers.

Mrs. Cynthia Westover Allen is one of the most capable newspaper women in the country. She told the women of the International press union in Detroit that it was a good thing for women to read the newspapers. She said: "Suppose they do show filth? It is filth that must be seen to be removed. Suppose they do show crime? It is crime that springs out of the social conditions that surround you. It is far better to open your eyes and ears to the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. That makes you a better churchman every day you live. "Women has even discerned that mild scandals about the people she knows make the most fascinating sort of reading; way ahead of Ibsen or Kipling. But when it comes to having her own name in the papers, she still throws her wings like a frightened bird, and flutters as though she had a premonition of the post-mortem potpie."

MRS. ALDEN.

Don'ts for Clubwomen.

Don't join a club just because there is a vacancy.

Don't join a club expecting to attend only when there is nothing else to do.

Don't join a club until you have read and understand its bylaws.

Don't join a club expecting the officer to furnish all the fuel for the steam of enthusiasm and for the fire of energy.

Don't imagine if you are an officer that you have any higher personal privileges than a high private, except to work early and often.

Don't imagine that every other subject on the program would have suited you better than the one the committee assigned to you.

Don't imagine because corporations have no souls that clubs have no epistolary etiquette; prove that they have by answering letters even at the point of nervous prostration.—Harper's Bazar.

With Auburn Hair.

Auburn hair of itself is beautiful, but one rarely meets an auburn-haired girl who knows just what colors suit her best. The girl whose hair is of any shade of so-called red must never, under any circumstances, wear pink, red or bright yellow. Those colors will only accentuate the reds in her hair, and the contrast is exceedingly unbecoming, says the Pittsburg Dispatch. She may, however, wear golden browns and plenty of them. These will bring out the ruddy gold tints of her hair. She may also wear light and dark shades of blue and green, dark purple, gray, white and lavender, with a blue cast.

Defends Her Husband.

Mrs. Irene Sheridan, widow of Gen. Phil Sheridan, has made a spirited denial of the charges made against her husband's memory by Gen. Manning, of Boston, who made the statement that Gen. Sheridan's famous ride to Winchester was a myth. Mrs. Sheridan says Gen. Manning's charges come rather tardily, thirty-six years after the battle. She publishes a letter from President Lincoln to Gen. Sheridan in proof that he had a very different idea from Gen. Manning of her husband's services in 1864.

MRS. SHERIDAN.

Baby.

Most important is the baby's food. This should be given with absolute regularity. Because the baby is asleep do not neglect the stomach and let him go for hours without anything in it. Then again, do not, because of his long fast, and the fact that he is somewhat fretful, feed him every half hour or so; if this is done, you are surely sowing the seeds not only of trouble, but of serious indigestion and much suffering on the part of the infant later.

If regular feeding hours are established and adhered to, such little creatures of habit are babies, that when the clock strikes the feeding hour, just as surely will they make their wants known, and often a few minutes in advance of time. It will not be necessary to awaken baby; he will wake himself without fail. A child thus regularly fed seldom suffers from indigestion, although this course depends somewhat upon the kind of food given. A well and regularly-fed baby is invariably a good sleeper, and a healthy baby will sleep a good part of the time. It will not be necessary to coax sleep; take it as a matter of fact, and so will the baby.—Marianna Wheeler in Harper's Bazar.

The Ladysmith Girl.

The rough-rider girl of 1899 has given way to the Ladysmith girl of 1900. The Ladysmith girl is just as chic as the rough-rider girl, if not more so.

LADYSMITH GIRL.

It's the hat that makes the Ladysmith girl. The hat is made of rough straw, and its brim turns down into the face in a way that is the height of abandon. The Ladysmith has a bandanna kerchief trimming, loosely folded. The hat is most popular.

Don't Be a Home Sloven.

Nothing so tends to coarsen a woman generally as carelessness about her personal appearance in the privacy of her home or of her apartments. However limited her means, if she clings to the determination always to appear well at home, she will find later on that she has preserved the root of good taste that will blossom forth delightfully in more prosperous days. The woman, on the other hand, who becomes for whatever reason slovenly seldom finds strength in "better times" to rise up out of the suicidal rut into which she has thrown herself. Rich, poor or middling well-to-do, there is positively no excuse for an unsightly mien at home.

Miniatures as a Fad.

The wearing of miniatures is a fad which has merits which all fads do not possess. It is a charming way of carrying a likeness of some dearly remembered relative or friend, and if one happens to be rich in these beautiful gems of art, one can have a never tiring array of decorative baubles, says the Mail and Express. There is a delicacy about miniature pendants which appeals to the refined taste. And when the fashion for wearing them passes away, why, then they may go to the wall, not in a sense of desuetude, but merely in an alternative usefulness.

Men, Marriage and Women.

In choosing a husband always leave him to do a fair share of the choosing.

Marriage is a lottery in which many of the prizes are drawn by men that never find it out.

When a man marries the girl he loves he thinks he's got everything he wants, but he soon finds out he hasn't.

Marrying a woman for money is generally a trifle risky, for you always get the woman and not always the money.

Many a married man is kept from wishing that he was single again through fear that his wife will find out about it.

Keeping Young.

During the banquet given to Julia Ward Howe on her eighty-first birthday by the New England Woman's Club, that poet, philanthropist and philosopher remarked that when she was a child an old friend used to say to her, "Julia, never give in to growing old." "That advice," continued Mrs. Howe, "made a deep impression on me, and that is why I am here to-day." There is a bit of philosophy which every woman might adopt as her own and profit by.

A Woman's Predicament.

The Chicago Post describes the sad case of a woman who was waiting at the "limits car barn" for an Evanston avenue car. There were plenty of Evanston cars, but her transfer check was good only on the avenue line, and she was determined not to pay another fare.

At last, as night approached, she went to a telephone and called up her husband. She told him the situation—that no Evanston avenue cars seemed to be running; that it was getting dark, and she was afraid. What should she do?

"Why, take an Evanston car," he replied.

"But I shall have to pay another fare," she objected.

"Well, what of it? You don't want to stay there, do you?"

"But I can't," she said, and hesitated.

"Why not?" he asked.

"Because—because, I haven't any money. I just used my last dime in the telephone to call you up."

And then she wondered at the laugh which reached her ears over the wire.

Didn't Like It.

There is more in a dog than man's philosophy accounts for. No theory of instinct—sometimes defined as a faculty prior to experience and independent of reason—will explain some actions of a clever dog, whose case is reported by a correspondent of the London Spectator.

I knew a dog in Ireland—a retriever—who had been taught always to bring his own tin dish in his mouth, to be filled at the late dinner. For some reason his master wished to make a change, and to feed him twice a day instead of once.

The dog resented this, and when told to bring his dish, refused, and it could nowhere be found; on which his master spoke angrily to him, and ordered him to bring the dish at once.

With drooping tail and sheepish expression, he went down the length of the garden, and began scratching up the soil where he had buried the bowl deep down, to avoid having to bring it at an hour of which he did not approve.

IDEA FOR FARMERS.

THE CO-OPERATIVE COLONY OF ROCKWELL, IOWA.

Nearly Six Hundred Farmers Combined Twelve Years Ago—Plain Business, with No Philosophy, Creed, Politics Nor Factions.

Co-operative living without community life; active practice in buying in the cheapest market and selling in the highest; without a common religion, common politics or daily association—all the elements that control "the new idea for farmers," as comprised in a model co-operative colony at Rockwell, Iowa. Here 600 farmers combined twelve years ago, eliminating all middlemen, starting out on the basis of plain business, with no philosophy, creed, politics nor factions, and their scheme is described as a success.

Rockwell is eleven miles south of Mason City, on the Iowa Central Railroad. Twelve years ago the community now centering there adopted a basic principle of co-operation not following "trust" lines. The association was not conducted for profit, but the cardinal doctrine of the society was this: The middleman is always an instrument of injustice toward the buyer and the seller. The character of the competition of the association with the private stores in Rockwell has been such that the population of the town has doubled since 1888, and the business last year aggregated nearly $400,000. The association now controls two grain elevators, a lumber yard and a supply house of paint, oils, salt, fish and other commodities. How all this prosperity has been brought about is an interesting story. A strong sentiment that has been enunciated by an active member well covers the theme: "The only tie that binds us together is that of financial need. We have nothing else in common. Aside from financial need, each farmer in our association walks his own way."

THE CO-OPERATIVE OFFICE.

Rockwell has a population of 1,000. A farming community of several thousands surrounds it. The village was once Lynn Grove. The soil is fat and rich; corn is produced in abundance; also wheat, rye, oats and timothy. Hogs thrive in the region, as do beef cattle, and many fine horses are bred. The community is made up of Germans, Irish, some Americans, some Scotch, no Scandinavians. There is a schoolhouse every two miles in the country, and weekly and daily newspapers are liberally taken. Works on communism, socialism, communtiy life or social democracy are not found in the homes or the store places. Rockwell is practical, and common sense has made it so.

Twelve years ago the farmers in and about Rockwell decided to become merchants and grain dealers. At that time two brothers owned the main store of the town, charged what prices they liked, and had a practical monopoly on trade, such as exists in hundreds of country towns. The farmers protested against the rates current, but the merchants pointed to the long railroad haul, to the capitalist jobbers of the big cities. A fight was started to battle the wrong use of money and power with the right use of money and power. The farmers of Rockwell incorporated under the title of the Farmers' Incorporated Co-operative Society. The limit on the capital stock was not less than $1,000, and no more than $25,000, the shares being $10 each. No member was allowed to own more than ten shares, and had only one vote in the conduct of affairs. Only "practical farmers" were admitted. A business agent was appointed, and the start made to put in store such goods as were wanted. The manufacturing companies objected to allowing a community to buy at wholesale and sell at the same prices. The result was that the association turned farther away from home trade centers until they found concerns that would sell to them. Each farmer reports the amount of his sales on honor, and pays a certain percentage that enables the liquidation of association expenses. When the company has a surplus of profits the same runs at a 6 per cent. interest rate. In 1899 the expenses of the society were $6,007, of which $2,092 was paid to the business agent and his clerks. In permanent improvements $1,236 was invested. The same year the liabilities of the society amounted to $10,677.55, and the assets to $22,131, represented by lumber, grain and seeds, elevator property and cash. In 1897 the assets exceeded the liabilities by $6,459. Nearly half a million bushels of grain were handled, the volume of business generally reaching up to nearly $300,000.

To demonstrate how business may be done, it is stated that the association sees to it that the lowest shipping rates are secured, that grain is sold only when the highest rate can be obtained, and that the home elevator charges and facilities are made so as to favor members always. In the store a member buys a sack of flour, for instance. He gets it for 95 cents, or at a profit to the society of 2½ cents. If a non-society member buys it, he pays $1.05. Outside of Rockwell it would cost him $1.25. The illustration shows the effect co-operation has on Rockwell prices. If the society price of corn is 31 cents, and track agents offer 33 cents, the member selling at the latter figure turns in one-quarter of a cent to the association for every bushel sold.

According to recent reports, Rockwell is handling more grain than any interior point in Iowa. The people are prosperous, the motto of the society is "Honesty among ourselves, small profits and large sales." Nothing can destroy the society but individual dishonesty. As to expansion of their trade, members do not believe in it. They have an elevator capacity amounting to 65,000 bushels, a lumber yard, a fine office and good storage sheds. Their advice to communities is to imitate, not join the original body.

Thomas Chappell and R. H. Dickson were among the original incorporators of the association. J. H. Brown is its present President, and Frank Campbell the business agent. No saloon exists in the town, churches are plentiful, law and order is visible everywhere. There is no philosophizing, no theories—it is all cold-blooded, practical business The main officers and directors receive no salary, and the dividends paid are given out in stock. A clean-posted ledger shows what a few hard-headed farmers can do in the matter of selling their products for an honest price, and buying their supplies at the lowest figure. Rockwell is an interest point for any practical co-operator to visit and study. Twelve years of success, without extermination of competition, mark the history of the little village—a place of peace and real, not political nor legislative, prosperity.

Japanese Imitation.

The Japanese are almost universally condemned by writers for the imitation practiced by them of late years of Western literature, art, science and invention. And yet this imitation seems natural and right. Imagine, if possible, the nation of Japan leaping across the civilization of hundreds of years in half a century. Think of her emerging from the darkness of the middle ages and standing suddenly forth in the light of the nineteenth century. Would it not have been worse than madness for her to have said, "This new civilization is better than ours, yet we will not imitate it. We will retain our originality, and perhaps in ages to come we shall reach the enlightened state now enjoyed by the rest of the world."

But fortunately the Japanese did not say this, but gave themselves up to the acquisition of the wonderful stores of knowledge opened to them.—Lippincott's.

THE ROCKWELL ELEVATOR.

Spanish Bullfights.

The average number of horses killed in Spanish bull fights every year exceeds 5,000, while from 1,000 to 1,200 bulls are sacrificed.

The only thing original about the average joke is the sin of stealing it.

HUMOR OF THE WEEK

STORIES TOLD BY FUNNY MEN OF THE PRESS.

Odd, Curious and Laughable Phases of Human Nature Graphically Portrayed by Eminent Word Artists of Our Own Day—A Budget of Fun.

She—"Were you enlisted during the war with Spain?"

He—"Certainly. That is, my sympathies were."

Chip Off the Old Block.

Growells—"I wonder what makes that boy cry so when the nurse is trying to wash the dirt from his face?"

Mrs. Growells—"Oh, I suppose he takes after you."

Growells—"Now, what do you mean by that?"

Mrs. Growells—He wants the earth."

A St. Louis Episode.

Lady—"I would like 'Rienzi's Address' if you have it."

Bookseller—"Well, there's the city directory. You can look it up."

A Wrong Diagnosis.

Doctor—"So, so; you did not close an eye last night? Oh, well, you will sleep all right to-night."

Patient—"Would you really be kind enough to pay my rent?"—Fliegende Blaetter.

Behind the Scenes.

Sue Brett—"Footlights can't be such a much as an actor."

Ham Lett—"Because why?"

Sue Brett—"He married fifteen years ago and has never been divorced."

Friendly Advice.

De Auber—"I am thinking seriously of donating one of my paintings to some public institution. Which one would you suggest?"

Criticus—"Well, it strikes me that the blind asylum would be just the caper."

Best in the World.

The Blaze Girl—"I thought you would marry a title, dear."

The American Girl—"I did."

The Blaze Girl—"Oh, did you? What is it?"

The American Girl (with emphasis)—"Mister."—Philadelphia North American.

A Starter.

Fond Mother—You say Mr. Willing objects to my presence in the parlor when he calls?

Daughter—Yes, mamma.

Fond Mother—I wonder why?

Daughter—I'm sure I don't know—unless it is because he loves me for myself alone.

All Sound.

Biggs—That was a sound argument of your wife's.

Diggs—Yes; it wasn't anything else.

A Look Ahead.

Jack—Why did you marry the widow instead of the daughter?

Tom—Well, I thought a stepdaughter would be less trouble than a mother-in-law.

In a Dangerous Trade.

"My son is learning to be an electrician."

"Well, I suppose he knows pretty well what to do by this time."

"Oh, no; he isn't half through yet learning the things he mustn't do."

He Was at the Front.

Wouldn't Work—"Can't yer give a poor man what's been to de front somethin' to eat?"

Housekeeper—"Have you really been to the front?"

Wouldn't Work—"Well, I was around to de front an' couldn't get in, so I come to de back."

Logically Depressed Health.

Citizen—So your star wouldn't play because she was ill?

Manager—That's it; and I guess if you had seen the box office receipts you'd have been indisposed, too.

By Virtue of Its Position.

"Do you mean to say," demanded the sugar microbe, arrogantly, "that I am more responsible for political corruption than any of the rest of you?"

"You bet your sweet life!" exclaimed the other microbes.

The Conversational Score.

"When the weather is bad you can't play golf?"

"No, but we can sit indoors and brag about games we have played."

Expert Antipathy.

"What are 'apples of discord,' pa?"

"Dried apples."

Brutal Man.

"Your wife has a very sensitive, clinging disposition, hasn't she?"

"Clinging? Well, it's rather more like what you might call 'grasping.'"

Facial.

Irene—You got a good seat in the crowded car by looking at a man till he got up and made a vacancy for you. It was splendidly done, but I could never have done it. I wish I had your cheek.

Clara—It would be an improvement, dear, if you had my whole face.

Crushed Again.

Softleigh—You dwell in me—aw—mind all the—aw—time, doncher know.

Miss Cutting—Well, you'll have to change your mind or I'll move. I never did fancy living in a flat.

The Length of It.

"Has the giraffe been sick long?" asked the veterinary surgeon as he entered the park inclosure.

"Yes," replied the keeper. "I should say it was rather long. He has a sore throat."

Taking All the Credit.

Miss Jones—It seems to me that all the nicest men are married.

Mrs. Brown—Well, dear, they weren't always so nice, you know; they've only been caught early and tamed.

Distressing Mistakes.

"A man can't be too careful whom he snubs."

"What do you mean?"

"Why, every once in awhile I've snubbed some plain people who afterward came into a lot of money."

Literary Ornaments.

"What is a library, pa?"

"A library, Jimmy, is what a man has when he gets together an awful lot of books that he never has time to read."

Sarcasm.

"We'll send you these circulars early to-morrow."

"Can't you print them and deliver them to-day?"

"Goodness, yes; we'll send them to you yesterday if you say so."

Preliminary Arrangement.

"These photographs are my souvenirs of travel."

"All these? Well, Miss Julia, you've been an extensive traveler."

"No, I haven't traveled at all. These are souvenirs of the travels I'm going to travel when I marry rich."

His Private Opinion.

Guest—Here, waiter, hand me a paper.

Waiter—Which one, sir?

Guest—Oh, the best one.

Waiter—Sorry, sir, but the boss doesn't subscribe for it.

In Danger.

Mrs. Brooks—John, do you think Mr. Jobloiz is going to marry our daughter?

Mr. Brooks—Yes, if he doesn't look sharp.—Puck.

Letting Well Enough Alone.

Customer—You enlarge photographs, don't you?"

Photographer—"Yes, madam."

Customer—"Well, I wish you'd enlarge this one, but you may leave the nose as it is!"—Fliegende Blaetter.

Like a Bird.

"Don't you think that girl next door sings like a bird?"

"Yes—like the bird in a cuckoo clock."

"How's that?"

"She sings by the hour."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Modern Matrimony.

He—Will you be mine?

She—Hardly that, Henry. Why can't we arrange it so that each of us will be ours?—Detroit Free Press.

Compact Apartments.

Stubb—Is Mr. Winter's flat small?

Penn—Small? Why, every time one of his children wants to sneeze they have to rush out in the hallway.

A Lively Game.

Mrs. Wiggles—Mrs. Rachet played whist with us this afternoon.

Mr. Wiggles—Is that so? What score did she make?

Mrs. Wiggles—Three hundred and eighty words a minute.—Somerville Journal.

Theory, Only.

Weary Watkins—Pardner, did you know that nigh 90 per cent of the human system is water?

Hungry Higgins—I've heard of it. I s'pose that's the reason we can't live forever.—Indianapolis Press.

But Not for Him.

"This mineral water is charged with carbonic acid gas, is it not?" asked Mr. Ardup, insinuatingly.

"Yes, sir," coldly replied the grocer. "But that's the only way we charge it."

Elevation Desirable.

Lady (with high hat)—I beg your pardon, but I forgot my opera glasses. Would you kindly lend me yours just a moment?"

Tyrant Man (in the seat behind)—"Very sorry, madam, I need it to sit on."

Finns Unusually Well Read.

According to a book on the Finns recently published by the Russian authoress, Mrs. O. R. Popow of St. Petersburg, there is not a single peasant's hut in all Finland where a political paper is not regularly read, and most of the Finns, even the peasants, can recite from memory long portions of the writings of Runeberg and Topelius. Of the thirty-five smaller villages in the country all but five have at least one periodical, the total number of such publications being 186.

Anti-Burglar Device.

A novel anti-burglar device consists of flexible safety curtains made of hardened steel tubes properly connected. These are absolutely invulnerable to the ordinary burglar's apparatus, since the tubes revolve freely and the center-bit or other tool can find no hold.

As the twig is bent so is the small boy inclined to shoot—out the back way.

The great objection to a theory is that it is very apt to strike a practical snag.

FITTING A PRINCE TO RULE.

Rigorous Training of the Future Emperor of Germany.

The Crown Prince of Germany, who recently attained his majority, is one of the most popular young men in Berlin. Notwithstanding his rank, he is "hail fellow well met" with the young men of the capital and is always a welcome addition to any party of merry-makers. He has been carefully reared, however, and is not at all given to dissipation, and there is little of frivolity in his composition. The training of the Prince and his brothers was not left wholly to his tutors. His mother, a woman of rare discretion, exercised a personal supervision over it. His future station in life was kept constantly in view, and those studies and sports that were best suited to his preparation for the duties that may in time devolve upon him were especially chosen.

For many years the Prince's mother made it a point to be present at all the indoor lessons. No matter what the hour may be of her return to the palace or the conclusion of this or that festivity or ceremony she does not retire without having gone the round of all her children's rooms. Ordinary boys do not work on their holidays. Wilhelm II.'s boys are not indulged in that way. During certain seasons the teaching is relaxed; not sufficient, however, to please the lads, if we may judge by Prince Eitel Fritz's answer to his English governess some years ago. "You'll soon have your holidays," said Miss Atkinson. "I don't mind mine so much, Miss Atkinson," was the answer. "I wish they would give you some." The princes' riding lessons usually are superintended by the Emperor himself, and the reward for proficiency is a pony for a birthday present.

GERMAN EMPEROR AND HIS SON.

Naturally military studies occupy a foremost place in the curriculum, but Prince Adalbert, the Emperor's third son, is destined to be the high admiral of the future German fleet. There is at the new palace, near Potsdam, a miniature fortress, the construction of which has cost a considerable amount of money. Its walls are three metres high, it is provided with casemates and moats and real Krupp guns. This is practically the only plaything of the young princes, for even during their most tender age toys, in the strict occupation of the word, were and are far and few between. On their birthday, when the pony is not yet due or has been given, the parents' presents consist of useful things, a bicycle, a violin—two of the young princes play that instrument—books, and even wearing apparel. Frivolous gifts do not find a place in Wilhelm's educational system. On such a day there is an entire cessation from work. There are seven children, hence seven of such days, which the Crown Prince described as the "seven fat kine, swallowed, alas! by the 350 odd lean ones."

Japanese Wit.

Oriental wit of a kind to be better appreciated than enjoyed in France is credited to the members of a Japanese embassy once sent to Paris to arrange for three free ports to be opened in Japan and France respectively. The French officials after long deliberation announced that they would be content with the opening of Yokohama, Yeddo, and Han-Yang. The Japanese listened gravely, and, after they had deliberated in turn, said they wanted Havre, Marseilles, and Southampton. Thereupon the Frenchman indulged in superior smiles, and called attention to the fact that Southampton was in England. "Yes," replied the Eastern diplomats, maintaining the utmost gravity, "and Han-Yang is in Corea." This story, which is said to be so old as to be new, has been revived in connection with the visit of the Japanese Ambassadors to the Paris exposition, and it is supposed in England to worry the Frenchmen a lot.—New York Times.

A Great Glacier.

The largest glacier in Europe is the Josledalsbroe, in Norway. With its numerous ramifications it covers an area of 350 square miles, just half as big again as the county of Middlesex. This enormous field of ice sends its branches down the valleys in all directions, often coming into close proximity to the cornfields. One of the most accessible of its branches is the Brigsdalbroe. From a distance its effect is extremely grand, surrounded as it is with dark, bare mountains, fringed with birch trees—a perfect setting for the mighty mass of snow and ice.

Great Britian's Coast Line.

Great Britain has a longer sea coast line than any other nation in Europe. It measures 2,755 miles, with Italy second, 2,472 miles. Russia ranks third, and France fourth.

Insects in Cages.

In Japan men sell caged locusts, singing crickets and other noisy insects in the streets of cities.

It will be interesting on Resurrection morn to see if Gabriel has as much trouble in getting everyone out of bed as the mothers have always had.

After all, hasn't it occurred to you that you get the greatest comfort out of the plain, plug people?

GRAY

STREAKS

Why let all your neighbors and friends think you must be twenty years older than you are? Yet it's impossible to look young with the color of 70 years in the hair. It's sad to see young persons look prematurely old in this way. Sad because it's all unnecessary; for gray hair may always be restored to its natural color by using—

Ayer's Hair Vigor

For over half a century this has been the standard hair preparation. It is an elegant dressing; stops falling of the hair; makes the hair grow; and cleanses the scalp from dandruff.

HEAT BREAKS THERMOMETER.

Arizona Has Summer Weather that Cannot Be Recorded.

The cottonwoods have shed their caterpillars, there has been a thunderstorm, mesquite wood has fallen in price, Indians are selling bows and arrows, the rose and the oleander have long been out, oranges are in bloom, the umbrella tree is putting out its leaves, last summer's suit has been cleaned and pressed, the small boy has gone swimming in the canal, the wise man stays up nights and steals irrigation water from his neighbors, alfalfa is almost ready to cut, strawberries have been shipped, mulberries are nearly ripe, summer will soon be here and the Phoenix summer bedroom will soon be necessary.

Phoenix sleeps out of doors in the summer and the bedroom is born out of that necessity. It is on stilts, is built of wire screen of fine mesh, for the Phoenix mosquito is microscopic in size. It is furnished, according to the taste of the occupant, with interior curtains to keep out the morning sun, the gaze of the curious and the sandstorm.

The bed is a cot of canvas or woven wire, covered, perhaps, with a sheet, but even a sheet feels like a feather bed on a Phoenix summer night. The bed covering is the roof of the bedroom, and careless folks who consult their comfort only don't wear nightshirts.

Phoenix is proud of its climate during eight months of the year, but it doesn't talk much in public about its midsumer. It is a right warm day when the Government weather bureau doesn't know what the sun temperature is and is unable to determine it, and that is how hot it gets in Phoenix. I called on Observer Burns one day last July and asked him what the "official" temperature was in the sun. He said he did not know and that the Government couldn't afford to experiment to that end. He said he had attempted to catch the sun temperature during the summer of 1898 and had broken a $3 thermometer in the attempt. To please my curiosity he hung a thermometer in the sun, watched it until it registered 136 degrees, and then took it in, fearing it would break.

The dryness of the atmosphere relieves this great heat of any terrors to all living things except women and cats. There is a saying in Phoenix that women in summer and cats are nervously prostrated, while men and dogs thrive and grow fat. There is a luxury in quenching one's thirst during the summer heat that is possible nowhere this side of the hereafter, and nothing will quench it so well as water. The average mortal can drink a gallon of water per day during the heated time and apparently every drop of it comes out through the pores of the skin.—Phoenix Graphic.

Marriage Performed Free.

In a fashionable church on 5th avenue, New York, marriages are performed free, if desired, and an announcement is made to that effect. "If a clerk comes here to be married," says the pastor, "and insists on having an organ wedding march it means $25; if he wants the choir it means more; if he wants flowers, ribbons and special ushers it means a great deal more. But if he comes here and says, 'I want to get married,' and dispenses with all these things it costs him nothing."

CHINA'S END IN SIGHT

IMPRISONED EMPEROR INVITES FOREIGN PROTECTORATE.

Such an Action Would Mean the Extinction of the Chinese Empire—Boxers Burn Christians Alive—American Marines Are Landed.

Events have lately been moving at a rapid pace in China. With 4,000 Russians marching on Pekin and the small forces under the admirals, Americans joining, co-operating in this movement, it is evident, says a correspondent, that a crisis is at hand which may have big and unexpected results and denouements.

Marines of the thirty-one ships of war of all nations now in Chinese waters have a big job cut out for them if they undertake to protect all the foreigners in China. As a matter of fact they cannot do it, and Russia is the only country with the necessary military force on call that can effectively deal with the situation. Before Germany, France, England or America could send a sufficient military force to Pekin the missionaries and all other foreigners would probably share the fate of the Christians in Armenia five or six years ago.

MINISTER CONGER.

From Shanghai comes the report that the Emperor of China has appealed to the European powers for joint intervention in his behalf. He proposes that the foreign governments now represented by troops at Pekin release him from his palace prison, depose the empress dowager, declare a joint protectorate over the country, disband the Chinese armies, substitute for them an army under foreign officers, provide gunboats for the rivers, and assume entire control of the customs, posts and telegraphs. If correct, this report means the end of China. When the Emperor of China invites the European powers, he invites the extinction of his empire.

In 1644 there was rebellion in China, and the defeated party asked the Manchoos to enter the empire. That request practically closed Mongolian rule, for the Manchoos, who went to Pekin to defend the empire, remained to rule it. There have since been rebellions in China that have carried the empire to the verge of anarchy, but the Manchoo dynasty has maintained itself. There have been insurrections that have devastated whole provinces, revolutions that have received the support of the Mongolians, anti-dynastic movements which have had the fanaticism and fury of the old crusades, and several anti-foreign outbreaks, all of which have been covertly encouraged by the Government, but never before has the Government or a representative of the Government invited the Western powers to assume control.

In addition to the American marines landed at Pekin by direction of United States Minister Conger, the United States hospital shop Solace sailed from Manila, having on board 100 marines and five officers, Maj. Waller commanding, in response to the telegraphic request sent from Tong-Ku by Rear Admiral Kempff. Thirty other marines left Manila on the United States gunboat Nashville, bound for Tien-Tsin. The Navy Department at Washington has been informed that the Monocacy has gone to Tien-Tsin and the Yorktown to Che-Foo. A large body of Boxers have burned three American launches at Soo-Chow.

ADMIRAL KEMPFF.

A Pekin correspondent says: "The American mission buildings at Tung-Chau, twelve miles from Pekin, which were abandoned by the missionaries, have been looted and burned by the Chinese soldiery who were sent to protect them. Within three days seventy-five native Christians, well-known men, who had been trained for years by American missionaries, have been massacred near Tung-Chau. Many of them were burned alive. The intimidation of Christians continues within Pekin itself. Most of the mission compounds are closed, and the missionaries are being collected under the protection of the legation guards.

News was received in New York City Wednesday of the murder of Dr. Edna G. Terry, in charge of the station of the Methodist Episcopal Woman's Foreign Missionary Society at Tsung-Hua. Edna Terry was born in Boston and was appointed by the New England branch of the Methodist Missionary Society in 1877. Tsung-Hua is six or seven miles north of the great wall and about 100 miles from Pekin.

A correspondent with the foreign column going from Tien-Tsin to Pekin says that sixteen British marines, reconnoitering in advance of the international column, fought and chased 2,000 Boxers on Monday, killing a number of them.

All dispatches out of Pekin are censored in the interest of the Empress. The determination of the foreign ministers to increase the garrison at Pekin leads to a belief in foreign circles in Tien-Tsin and Shanghai that the powers will never leave the Chinese capital, but will make China another Egypt.

The chancellor of the Japanese legation at Pekin, Sugiyama Akira, while proceeding alone and unprotected on official duties, was brutally murdered by soldiers of Tung-Fuh-Siang, the favorite bodyguard of the Empress, at Manigate railroad station.

Cigars at $5 a Piece.

Cigars are more costly in London than here, remarked a traveler the other day. Here the most expensive cigar I have ever seen exposed for sale costs $1, whereas in London I have frequently seen them of so fine a grade as to call for the expenditure of $2.50 before you could smoke one, and cigars costing $5 apiece have been sold in London, but only in block, and never by single sale. It is in connection with the $5 cigar that they tell a story over there to the effect that a lot of a thousand were offered to the Duke of Westminster, England's richest peer, by a dealer, whereupon the duke, replying that he was altogether too poor a man to smoke so expensive a cigar, ordered the entire importation sent to the Prince of Wales and the bill to himself.

GIRLHOOD, WOMANHOOD AND MOTHERHOOD

Are Renovated, Regulated and Restored by the Pelvic Catarrh Remedy, Peruna.

Mrs. E. C. Everly, 505 Diamond street, Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I feel well, never felt better, thanks to your attention and Peruna. I will be glad to do all I can in the way of advancing the sale of your valuable medicine. I do think Peruna the best medicine I have tried at any time. Since I began taking Peruna we have never been without it."

Read what an elderly woman says—a woman who has passed through all the phases, crises and experiences of girlhood, womanhood and motherhood: "I really believe that every woman in the world ought to have Peruna on hand all the time; for, if she gets tired, Peruna refreshes her; if she gets nervous, it soothes her; if despondent, it cheers and invigorates. It is a panacea for all irregularities of her monthly periods.

"It is a constant friend to the expectant mother; a never-failing stand-by to the nursing mother, both for herself and for her child, and finally when the change of life comes on, no medicine on earth is of equal efficacy to the woman in this critical period. Surely Peruna is the woman's friend. This is no maudlin flattery, but is the simple, plain truth of the matter."

Miss Bertha E. Sargent writes: "I can scarcely find words to express my gratitude to you for all your kindness to me. We have used Peruna in our family for the past year and find it a wonderful medicine. It has robbed the grave of one victim, for I was in a critical condition when I wrote you before. Thanks to you, however, my health is fully restored and am better than I have been for five years. I cannot say too much in favor of your medicines.

"If you can use any words of mine to assist you in your work I will only be too glad. I wish every young lady in our town could read your book. There would be a great deal less sickness and puny women."

A DEAD LIVER

He thinks he lives, but he's a dead one. No person is really alive whose liver is dead. During the winter most people spend nearly all their time in warm, stuffy houses or offices or workshops. Many don't get as much exercise as they ought, and everybody knows that people gain weight in winter. As a rule it is not sound weight, but means a lot of flabby fat and useless, rotting matter staying in the body when it ought to have been driven out. But the liver was overburdened, deadened—stopped work. There you are, with a dead liver, and spring is the time for resurrection. Wake up the dead! Get all the filth out of your system, and get ready for the summer's trials with clean, clear blood, body, brain free from bile. Force is dangerous and destructive unless used in a gentle persuasive way, and the right plan is to give new strength to the muscular walls of the bowels, and stir up the liver to new life and work with CASCARETS, the great spring cleaner, disinfectant and bowel tonic. —Elkhart Review: William Ulrich reports a strange affiliation between a hen and a quail in his berry patch, the birds having used the same nest. Both are accumulating a setting of eggs, and he doesn't understand how they are going to arrange matters when they decide to set.

—During the storm yesterday lightning struck the house occupied by a Mr. Hamm and family on the old Jenkins farm in Concord township, tearing off part of the roof. Mrs. Hamm was badly shocked but soon recovered, and the damage to the building was only nominal.

—Ashley and Hudson will have a joint celebration of the Fourth of July in the grove between the two towns, under the auspices of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen. It will be an old-time celebration and everybody will find something on the program to please them.

—A big attraction in Indianapolis on July 4, at the state fair grounds, will be the coming together of two trains under a full head of steam. They will start one-fourth of a mile apart and several flat cars will be attached to each engine. It is expected this will draw a large crowd to the capital city.

—The old pioneers who remember the days when flax was used as a staple article for clothing will be interested in knowing that T. C. Ford has at his store one of the hackles used in combing out the fibre. Sam Campbell found it among a collection of junk at Greenburg, a place in the north west part of town.

—Charles W. Campbell of Chicago and Miss Mary Jones of Butler were married at the home of the bride's parents in the latter place yesterday. The young people who have just embarked on their matrimonial journey have many friends who will add their congratulations and good wishes to those of the COURIER.

—At the session of the Indiana state board of pharmacists Wednesday, President F. D. Warner, in his annual address, urged a state pharmacy board, which should absolutely control the issuing of permits to sell liquor for medicinal purposes and should have the power to revoke those permits when the privilege was wilfully abused.

—The republicans of Noble county nominated the following ticket yesterday: Representative, James Harvey; treasurer, Worden; sheriff, Harry Bell; recorder, I. N. Shanower; surveyor, Fred B. Moore; assessor, J. M. Bonham; coroner, Dr. W. F. Carver; commissioners, Thomas Budd and A. J. Morris. Sol. Mier, the Ligonier banker and formerly a democrat, was chosen as one of the councilmen-at-large.

Saturday's Daily.

—Butler has decided to give another street fair this year.

—A number of horses have died from pinkeye in the country south of Garrett during the past week.

—Mrs. C. M. Hunt, who was here to attend the funeral of James Griswold, returned to Eaton Rapids, Mich., today.

—MARRIED:—At the residence of the bride's parents by Rev. W. O. Butler, June 14, 1900, Mr. Albert E. Maxwell to Miss Cora McEnterfer.

—Cycling has its ups and downs. After the downs, use Banner Salve if you're cut or bruised. It heals the hurt quickly. H. B McCord.

—Greenberry Monroe and wife of Richland township were here yesterday to see their daughter, Mrs. John Blaney, who has been quite sick, but is improving.

—Two Angola citizens, believing in the old saying that "keeping everlastingly at it brings success" have published notices of application for liquor license at that place.

—H. C. Shull lost a fine Dictum colt a few days ago which was valued at not less than $100. It is supposed the animal's death was caused by something in the nature of the pinkeye.

—Senator Tom Platt of New York is in feeble health. He is well along in years, and it is stated that he will retire from public life and active participation in politics at the close of his term in 1903.

—Mr. C. R. Hall of Tullahoma, Tenn., says, "I used every remedy for my kidneys I could hear of, but they did me no good until I found Barnes' Kidney and Bladder Cure and it proved perfectly successful.

—John J. Gillette of Lagrange has been selected for joint representative by the republicans of Lagrange and Steuben, defeating Dr. Fuller of Pleasant Lake. The convention was held at Lagrange, Thursday.

—Grandma Link of the Junction came up to visit Auburn friends yesterday and not withstanding her great age, 93 years, walked from the Wabash depot to the north end of town with apparently little fatigue.

—It is rumored in political circles at Washington that Admiral Dewey has withdrawn from the presidential race and emphatically refuses to become a candidate for vice-president. The rumor has not been confirmed.

—An Auburn young woman, who is going away for the summer, has announced the fact to her numerous young men admirers with the added note: "If you have anything to say speak early to avoid the rush."

—A petition has been presented to Prosecutor Rhoads asking that he appoint F. A. Brink deputy prosecutor at Butler to look after the state cases in that vicinity. Mr. Pomeroy has heretofore had charge of this business.

—Fair warning is given those who trespass upon my grounds in the southeast part of the city that they will be prosecuted. I will pay $2 for any information leading to the conviction of persons so trespassing.—H. C. SHULL.

—Chicago is to have a new democrat daily. Hearst of the New York Journal and San Francisco Examiner is the owner of the new venture. It will be a cent paper and its first issue will be July 4th. It will be a Bryan paper all over.

—There is one thing for which there is no remedy at present, and that is that good corn-growing weather is just as friendly to weeds, and some people think that the latter can thrive with even less encouragement than is given to the corn.

—Backache should never be neglected. It means kidney disorder which, if allowed to run too long, may result in Bright's disease, diabetes or other serious and often fatal complaints. Foley's Kidney Cure makes the kidneys well. Take nothing else. H. B. McCord's.

—The high school boys at Fort Wayne painted the large fence around the school house red, white and blue. They are rejoicing over the defeat of Dr. Boswell for school trustee and the possible restoration of Prof. Study to the superintendency of the public schools.

—We would suggest that the editor of the Churubusco Truth should buy a new spelling-book. Here is his latest offense against the English language. "After all, there is very little difference in the description of the walk of a man on his way to the gallows, and that of a groom on his way to the alter."

—Omaha, Neb., May 4. To Whom it May Concern: I am troubled considerable with headache, and have tried almost everything which is used as a preventative or cure, but there is nothing that has done me as much good as Krause's Headache Capsules. Albert Heller, 1114 Farnham St. Sold by H. B. McCord.

—The Nappanee saloon men have all purchased ground in Kosciusko county, just across the line from Nappanee and will erect buildings and apply for license in that county to sell liquors. The distance from Nappanee will only be half a mile and the saloonists believe the lovers of "booze" will walk that distance to quench their thirst.

—Columbia City Post:—Jacob Plattner made a rich find Tuesday afternoon while papering a room in the house of G. N. Harter. He was removing paper from the walls of the house built several years ago and in a secluded place in the partition he spied a shining $20 gold piece. He informed the family of his good luck and said if they were able to describe the coin he would give it to them, but as they were unable to do so he claimed the coin by right of discovery.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

The nation's greatest foe is the open saloon because it murders its citizens in cold blood; because it destroys the character of its citizens, the units upon which the national structure rests; because it fosters ignorance, immorality and crime, which sap the vitals of the nation, and means death to a democracy founded upon the virtue and intelligence of its subjects; because it defiles the ballot, entrenches the boss, defies the law, impoverishes the people. It is a crime against the state, a crime against humanity, a crime against God. It has opened dens of anarchy and is schooling our young men to a life of sensual indulgence, personal impurity and profanity, sickening the public conscience with its daily horrible details of debauchery, devilry and crime.

LEGALIZED EVIL.

The following prayer was often repeated by the late John B. Gough, the eminent temperance lecturer.

"Almighty God, if it be thy will that man should suffer, whatever seneth good in thy sight impose upon me; let the bread of affliction be given me to eat; take from me the friends of my confidence; let the cold hut of poverty be my dwelling, and the wasting hand of disease inflict its painful torments; let me sow in the whirlwind and reap in the storm; let those have me in derision who are younger than I; let the passing away of my welfare be like the fleeting of a cloud, and the shouts of my enemies like the rushing of waters: when I anticapate good, let evil annoy me; when I look for light, let darkness come upon me; let the terrors of death be ever before me. Do all this but save me, Merciful God, save me from the fate of a drunkard. Amen."

If the drink habit produces such horrors, surpassing all the calamaties here stated, what shall God, dear people, say of ministers of the Gospel, or other church members who advocate, or consent to legalize this unholy traffic?

The Old Settlers.

Owing to the delays we could not get a complete report yesterday, but give it in main today. In the morning little was done but to appoint committees and read the list of deaths for the past year. This we give elsewhere. In the afternoon came report of committees and short speeches by old settlers including those by M. B. Willis and R. M. Lockhart.

Fine recitations were given by Rosamond McIntyre and Helen Smith, and there was music by the Auburn Band.

It was decided to change the rule that locates the reunion at Auburn each year and let it go to other towns. It will be at St. Joe next year.

The attendance was not as good as usual, owing to several causes, one being the fact that people were trying to get their corn clean after so long a wet spell. Another reason was the probability of more rain, which in fact, came on them before they adjoured. The exercises were however good. The death list is unusually large. Judge Hartman was made president of the meeting Hiram Pooler had charge of the grounds and furnished water and kept order in good shape.

Deer Park Hotel.

Prevented A Tragedy.

Timely information given Mrs. Geo. Long of New Straitsville, Ohio, prevented a dreadful tragedy and saved two lives. A frightful cough had long kept her awake every night. She had tried many remedies and doctors but steadily grew worse until urged to try Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle wholly cured her, and she writes this marvelous medicine also cured Mr. Long of a severe attack of Pneumonia. Such cures are positive proof of the merit of this grand remedy for curing all throat, chest and lung trouble. Only 50c and $1.00. Every bottle guaranteed. Trial bottles free at McCORD'S Drug Store.

Verdict, $695.91.

The witnesses in the case of Blakely vs. Bodette were all done yesterday noon. This morning the jury retired after being instructed by Judge Hartman. At 3:20 p. m. today they brought in a verdict giving Blakely $695.91, damages for injuries sustained by the caving in of the sewer.

GRAND GIFT DISTRIBUTION

A Forty-Cent Sugar Shell FREE To Every Married Lady.

EDITOR COURIER:—We believe that the most effective advertising we can do is to get samples of our goods into the homes of the people. Therefore we are sending an elegant sterling silver-plated sugar shell, such as we sell regularly at 40c each, to every married lady in the United States who writes for it. There is nothing to pay. The gift is absolute. You will confer a favor upon your readers by making this announcement in your paper. Each lady will send her name only, as this is too valuable a gift to send to persons who don't ask for it themselves. We give choice of any of our 40c designs, and will send illustrations from which selections may be made.

It Saved a Leg.

I have used Dr. C. D. Warner's Compound of Seven Cures with such good results that I recommended it to Geo. Chipp, who was taken with typhoid fever about two years ago. The disease settled in one of his legs, causing enlargement of the entire limb, which resulted in a fever-running sore, rendering the leg entirely useless. The doctors tried to cure it, but had no success, and they advised him that his leg would have to be amputated. Then I urged him to give the Seven Cures a fair trial and accordingly he commenced taking it, and continued to use it for six months. He is well and hearty today and his leg is just as sound as ever.

Why Milk Sours.

The Purdue experiment station in a recent circular gives this matter attention, a part of which we quote:

"The souring of milk is due to bacteria. These bacteria are minute forms of plant life and like corn or any higher plant their life depends on temperature, food and moisture.

The Illinois Experiment Station finds that the number of bacteria which fall into the milk from an apparently clean and washed udder [illegible] compared with 90, when the udder has been washed just before milking.

In spite of the best efforts, some bacteria will get into the milk; this makes it necessary to cool the milk as quickly as possible to 50 degrees or below. Professor Fraser said before the Indiana State Dairy Association, that at a temperature of 93 degrees, germs common to milk, multiply two hundred fold in one hour, while at 55 degrees only eight fold, and at 45 degrees are practically inactive.

Old Landmarks Gone.

—The two large fir trees on the lawn in front of Mrs. A. B. Richards residence were cut down today, thus removing one of the prominent landmarks on West Seventh street. They were planted there by the hands of the late Judge McClellan, some time in the 50's. We believe the property was then owned by Milton J. Pierce a relative of the Judge's who at that time, we believe, was county auditor, and the Judge, his deputy. They were lovely, stately trees, but had become so large as to be in the way, giving too much shade to the house and preventing the growth of grass. It makes a great change in the looks of things, but will be for the better.

Won the Suit.

J. Y. W. McClellan sold out his business at Fort Wayne, when he left there to parties named Scott. Soon after they claimed he had agreed to pay certain accounts against the old firm, which he denies, as he merely sold them the business as it stood. A bitter legal fight was the result, a week of it closing yesterday. Mr. McClellan won the case fully. He feels very grateful to his attorneys, D. M. Link of Auburn and Henry Colerick of Fort Wayne for the very hot and persistent fight they made for him. He says D. M. stood up to those Fort Wayne lawyers like a veteran. He got his account allowed in full.

It Saved His Leg.

P. A. Danforth of LaGrange, Ga., suffered intensely for six months with a frightful running sore on his leg, but writes that Bucklen's Arnica Salve wholly cured it in ten days. For Ulcers, Wounds, Burns, Boils, Pain or Piles it's the best salve in the world. Cure guaranteed. Sold by McCORD the DRUGGIST.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

Who does not remember the odd looking, little old locomotive "John Bull" at the Chicago World's Fair? There were a score or so of these pioneer railway engines, but the John Bull had the distinction of being the first one ever used in America. Of the engineer who ran its first trip, Wood Benson, a recent paper says:

"He is a straight, clean-shaven old man, with a face composed of innumerable wrinkles and topped by a brown wig, oiled till it glistens. He confesses to 93 years and is greatly flattered when told he does not look nearly so old as he is.

He lives now in one of the cheap little East Side lodging houses for men in New York City, but he is a historic character and enjoys nothing more than a chance to tell of the time when he ran the first steam locomotive that ever turned a wheel on the Western continent.

Wood Benson was born in New York in 1807 and ran away to England when he was a boy. He had heard great tales of the locomotive engines then just being tried in England, and he went across the water in order to get a closer acquaintance with them. He got work on one of the two English roads, first as fireman and later as an engineer. Then when the old "John Bull," now in the Smithsonian Institute in Washington, was built and sent across the ocean to make its first trip in this country, Benson came with it as engineer. The first run was made on May 27, 1829, just seventy-one years ago next Sunday. Among the passengers on that historic run between Albany and Schenectady were Thurlow Weed, General Scott and Commodore Vanderbilt. Old Benson still has the original letter signed by these and other famous men as a testimonial of the skill shown on his first trip. As an additional souvenir of the trip he was presented by Commodore Vanderbilt with a wonderful set of false teeth built to order at a cost of $150.

Benson does not chew, drink or smoke, and declares that the little money he has saved is sufficient to support him so long as he needs support. His wife died several years ago, but long before her death the couple had celebrated the golden anniversary of their marriage. Benson is a consistent [illegible] happy in the closing days of an honorable, if humble, old age."

Those who think the cars and locomotives in those early days, are the same as the ones now in use, are mistaken. The few old engines and cars at the World's Fair settled that. The first train we remember seeing was on the old line of the Michigan Southern & Northern Indiana, and at a point a little east of Baw Beese lake near Hillsdale. The picture of the little short, high, box-like cars is still vivid, and they came rattling around among the hills, for the road was crooked, it being easier to go around the little hills than over or through them. But it was an inspiriting sight, and impressed us a thousand-fold more than would now a ninety-ton locomotive with a train of Pullmans and palace cars. But those early day tracks would not have held it up under a modern train. In place of the present heavy T rail, the track then was a scantling on top of which was a heavy strap of flat wrought iron bar. And even with the light trains, this track often gave way. A defective scantling would break or some other cause would loosen the strap of iron at one end, when it would sometimes curl up and punch a hole up through the floor of the car to the danger and disgust of passengers. After the big T rails came into use the flat iron of the track went on the scrap pile, and the scantlings were made to serve as a very neat looking rail fence, the "worm" of it being very symmetrical. Whether any of this old fence is still in existence, we cannot say, but suppose it has long since disappeared.

The Eel River Road.

meeting at Buffalo, of the officers of the Wabash Road. He says they expect to be obliged soon, to drop the Eel River division and are talking of building a new line from Butler to Fort Wayne. They are not anxious to give up the line here, but the decision of the court leaves no choice. The proposed changes will work to the harm of all parties concerned. Auburn, Columbia City and even Butler will be greatly injured. For when Butler has a direct road to Fort Wayne, her people will go there to trade. The entire Eel River line will go down to almost nothing, and the Wabash will lose, not only the splendid business it has built but also its new short line from Chili to Peru, which will be useless and no doubt will be torn up.

Notice to Contractors.

Notice is hereby given that the Board of Commissioners of DeKalb county will receive sealed proposals until July 6, 1900, at one o'clock p. m. for painting nine iron bridges in DeKalb county, each bid to be accompanied by an affidavit and bond in compliance with section 4, Acts of General Assembly and in effect after February 27, 1900. Specifications are on file in the auditor's office in Auburn, Ind. The Board reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

More Double Track.

Begining tomorrow Lake Seore trains will be run on the double track which has been constructed between Pettisville and Stryker. With the exception of four miles between Stryker and Pettisville and 15 miles between Ligonier and Kendallville there is a double track between Buffalo and Chicago. The four miles of track will soon be completed and it is thought that work will be commenced next month on the track between Kendallville and Ligonier.

Let Us Get It.

for some time been endeavoring to procure a cannon from the government, to be mounted on the soldier plot in the Woodlawn cemetery, and have now the assurance from the war department that a cannon the size they will make a requisition for will be shipped to Auburn free of charge from one of the sea-coast fortifications, except the expense of loading and freight. This will amount to from $75 to $100 for a gun weighing 5500 to 6000 pounds, and large enough to be an ornament in this cemetery. The post does not alone feel able to bear all of this expense when others are interested also, and at its last meeting appointed a committee composed of soldiers of '61 and '98, with citizens, to test the liberality of our people in that matter. As soon as $75 as assured the requisition for the cannon will be forwarded.—COMMITTEE.

Story of a Slave.

To be bound hand and foot for years by the chains of disease is the worst form of slavery. George D. Williams, of Manchester, Mich., tells how such a slave was made free. He says: "My wife has been so helpless for five years that she could not turn over in bed alone. After using two bottles of Electric Bitters, she is wonderfully improved and able to do her own work." This supreme remedy for female diseases quickly cures nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, headache, fainting and dizzy spells. This miracle working medicine is a godsend to weak, sickly, run down people. Every bottle guaranteed. Only 50 cents. Sold by H. B. McCord the Druggist.

The Art Display

We spoke yesterday of the art work on china, etc., at Shull's shoe store. There is a larger collection at Lackey's store that is the work of the same class, all being young pupils of Miss Collins. The display at Lackey's is a surprise to people who had supposed there was no art talent in the city. There are many pieces and all are lovely and display great skill and a good deal of natural talent. We advise people to go and enjoy a sight, they have never seen in Auburn before, and not to forget that it is all the work of young misses in their teens. Some of the pictures are from nature and are wonderfully life-like. We shall publish the names of the young artists when we can get them.

Bismark's Iron Nerve

Was the result of his splendid health. Indomitable will and tremendous energy are not found where Stomach, Liver, Kidneys, and Bowels are out of order. EVENTS OF INTEREST

THAT OCCURRED DURING THE PAST WEEK.

Tersely Told Telegraph Tales in Brief Paragraphs—Many Casualties—A Few Crimes—Some Fires—Political and Religious News.

Sensational Reports.

The reports of the murder of foreign ministers at Pekin, and of the death of Admiral Seymour, although viewed with suspicion, have created a profound sensation. The press expresses the opinion that Japan must, with or without the consent of powers, adopt active measures. The naval and military officers are very busy. Probably the whole Hiroshima division under command of General Fukashima, will be afloat within a few days. The Russian cruiser Rurik has arrived at Yokohama, with the new Russian Minister to Japan and will immediately leave for Taku.

Cooked to Death.

Engineer Richard Ricksaker of Chicago, and Fireman Moses Livingston of Crown Point, Ind., met a horrible death at the latter place. They were employed on the narrow gauge railroad of the Brownell Improvement company of Chicago, building stone roads and using the "dinky" train to haul the stone. In going down an incline the engine jumped the track and overturned, penning Ricksaker and Livingston in the cab. Before they could be extricated the hot water from the boiler litterly cooked their flesh until a great portion fell from their bones.

Fatal Hotel Fire.

Fire destroyed the Morrison Hotel (formerly the Glenview) at South Bend, Ind. One life was lost and six guests were severly injured. It is believed the fire was of incindiary origin. Only a few moments after the flames were discovered on the ground floor there was a terrific explosion, presumably of gas, which shook the buildings all around and scattered firebrands throughout the lower floors of the hotel. The guests were instantly in a panic.

Examination of Rathbone.

Havana special: Major E. Rathbone, the suspended director general of posts, is being examined by the inspector's attached fourth assistant postmaster general who is in charge of the official investigation into the Cuban postal frauds. This completes Mr. Bristow's duties. Later, he will make a report to Governor General Wood, when it will be decided if additional steps are to be taken.

Tien Tsin Attacked.

Washington special: Acting Secretary of the Navy Hackett received a cable message from Admiral Kempff, dated Che Foo, June 21, saying that Tien Tsin is being bombarded and that much of the American consulate as well as foreign concessions are being destroyed. A relief party is enroute to Tien Tsin including 130 American marines under Major Waller.

Missouri Bars Cattle.

Governor Stephens of Missouri has issued a proclamation shutting out the cattle from a number of states in which he says tuberclosis exists. Among the states are Maine, New Hamshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Deleware, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and the Dominion of Canada.

Bank Clerk Confessed.

Anthony J. Hemsteger, a clerk in the Third National Bank of Piqua, Ohio, who is charged with using money belonging to the bank, confessed that he had taken $1,150. An expert examined the books. The American Surety Company of New York, furnished Hemsteger his bond and is held good for the amount.

More Troops for the Philippines.

Troop M, of the Sixth cavalry, Captain Cabell commanding, departed from Jefferson Barracks, St. Louis, on a special train for San Francisco, from whence it will sail for Manila as soon as transports can be procured. The troops will be joined at San Francisco by troops A, B, D, K and L, also of the Sixth cavalry.

Krugersdorp Occupied.

Lord Roberts has reported that General Hunter had occupied Krugersdorp, west of Johannesburg, without opposition, and that General Methuen, June 19, routed a Boer force which was opposing his entry into Heilbron, in the Orange River colony.

Muravieff is Dead.

St. Petersburg special: The Russian minister of foreign affairs, Count Muravieff, died suddenly in this city. The Count had just finished his morning cup of coffee, and had ordered his lunch when he fell in an apoplectic fit and expired in a few minutes.

Burglars Failed.

A partially successful attempt to rob the Belmont County treasury was made at St. Clairville, Ohio, the other night. The burglars entered the court-house at a rear window and the Treasurer's office by prying off the front door with a jimmy. They blew the double vault doors open, which admitted them to the inner vaults where the safe with $70,000 was located. They made an unsuccessful effort to dynamite this. The thieves secured about $600 worth of stamps and $135 in currency belonging to the postoffice left there for safe keeping.

Crew Picked Up at Sea.

The British steamer Maryland, from London for Philadelphia, upon her arrival had on board Captain Baxter, his daughter and eight of the crew of the British schooner Nelly, who were picked up at sea June 11. The Nelly was abandoned in a water-logged condition.

Crash of Electric Cars.

In a collision of a Bowling Green and a Maumee Valley electric car Ross Quickle was fatally hurt and several others seriously injured. The cars were running at the rate of thirty miles an hour when they came together on a curve between Perrysburg and Toledo, Ohio.

CONVENTION MEETS

National Republican Gathering Called to Order.

BIG CROWD PRESENT.

Senator Wolcott of Colorado Made Temporary Chairman.

Senator Hanna Wields the Gavel at the Opening of the First Session—Brilliant Scenes in the Great Hall—Lodge of Massachusetts Permanent Chairman—Credentials Committee Reports—Platform Adopted.

Philadelphia correspondence:

Shortly after noon Tuesday the twelfth national nominating convention of the Republican party was called to order in Philadelphia, the same city in which the first one met forty-four years ago. Of these twelve conventions Philadelphia has had three, Chicago five and Baltimore, Cincinnati, Minneapolis and St. Louis one each.

Tuesday's proceedings were of a purely perfunctory character. Senator Hanna, chairman of the national committee, called the convention to order. A surpliced clergyman read a lengthy prayer in a silence which was truly remarkable in so vast an audience. Then Secretary Dick read the call. The delegates answered to their names and Senator Wolcott was installed as temporary chairman and made a speech, after which the committees on credentials, organization, resolutions, and rules were selected and retired for deliberation.

Ten thousand people attended the formal opening of the convention. The splendid hall was well filled and the scene was one to remember. Facing the speakers' platform were nearly one thousand delegates and as many alternates, representing the Republicans of every State and territory in the Union, including Hawaii and Alaska. Seated in tiers surrounding the inner circle was the crowd of sightseers. The arrangements were perfect. On all sides was heard unstinted praise for the Quaker City managing committee. The feature of the first session was the speech made by Temporary Chairman Wolcott of Colorado.

Senator Wolcott in his eloquent speech touched upon all the leading events of the past four years, and made them appear as arguments for the continuation in power of the present administration. All allusions to the Spanish war, of the Philippine questions and other leading characteristics of the administration were received with prolonged applause. The scene in the spacious hall during the progress of Senator Wolcott's speech was impressive in the extreme. The orator had evidently completely caught and swayed his audience, and the vast multitude answered to his glowing periods with the greatest enthusiasm.

The forenoon had produced nothing new in the Vice Presidential situation, and when the convention had settled down to business the question was still in a condition of as much uncertainty as it was forty-eight hours before. It was evident, though, to even a casual observer, that Gov. Roosevelt, of New York, was still the hero of the hour, and that it would be as easy to stampede the convention for him as to start a conflagration by the commingling of fire and tow. A significant thing in this connection was the fact that when reference was being made to the Spanish war and the bravery of American arms was being extolled by Senator Wolcott, there were frequent cries of San Juan intermingled with great outbursts of cheering for Roosevelt.

The arrangements for transporting the great multitude from downtown to the hall were admirable, many lines of electric cars giving ready conveyance. That splendid avenue, Broad street, leads to the most direct route, that on South street, and all of the early cars along this line were crowded with those wishing to secure points of vantage in or around the building. The throngs weer good-natured and intensely earnest.

The day opened auspiciously for the event. The sky was slightly overcast and there was none of the sweltering of many former national gatherings. The air was cool, the temperature being below 70. After being up half the night with the demonstration of 30,000 marching men, fireworks, bands, final caucus and earnest conferences, the army of delegates and the conspicuous figures of the convention were slow to make their appearance. But the staid old Quaker city was early astir with preparation and by 8 o'clock the streets took on an air of animation and anticipation as the crowds began to converge toward the convention grounds.

Out at the convention grounds the officials were early on hand with their corps of doorkeepers, sergeant-at-arms, ushers and pages, putting them through final drills in anticipation of the crush soon to come. The first squad to put in an appearance was that of under Organizer Owen, 300 strong, having charge of seating the delegates and spectators. After them came the 400 assistants under Sergeant-at-arms Wiswell, more particularly to care for the interests of the delegates. Chief Doorkeeper Kercheval had an early drill, both at the outer gates and at the entrance doors, which gave promise of an avoidance of the confusion and delay which often attend admission to conventions.

During the early hours the inside of the convention hall presented the appearance of a vast sea of pine, overhung with a wealth of festoon, bunting and historic portraiture. It was very light, very airy, and so arranged in the gradual rise of seats from a common center to give full opportunity for the demonstrations of enthusiasm which were soon to come.

The women showed their interest in the event by making up a considerable percentage of the moving hosts, and the fair weather permitted all the color of bright parasols and midsummer dress to be blended with the blaze of bunting.

Outside of the hall the approaches began to congest with the crowds during the early hours. The cars added hundreds every minute, and as the outer gates were not opened until 10 o'clock, the early arrivals were massed on the walks and streets awaiting the signal to get in. The street venders did a thriving business in buttons and badges and a lively trade was carried on in seats for the convention at rates varying from $5 for a single session up to $60 for the three sessions.

While these scenes were being enacted about the convention hall, the political managers and the delegates were holding their final conferences and caucuses and preparing for the work before them. Illinois, Ohio and a number of other delegations held morning meetings for organization, and felt the pulse of the delegates on the vice-presidential situation. Most of the State delegations arranged to go to the hall as bodies, many of them being escorted through the streets by their marching clubs with bands and banners.

To the leaders, however, these outward demonstrations had little interest, and they continued to spend most of their time in the privacy of upper chambers at the hotels, trying to figure out the perplexing questions presented.

At Dolliver headquarters the feeling was strong that if Roosevelt should put himself out of the race the Iowan would receive the nomination. With an open field and the San Juan hero not a starter, the Iowa people believed that Dolliver would win.

WEDNESDAY'S SESSION.

It was almost 11 o'clock Wednesday when the advance guard of the great army of visitors crossed the Schuylkill and besieged the doors of the convention hall. Every road led toward the Exposition building. In street cars, carriages and afoot the people streamed thither. There are thirty entrances to the hall, mere keyholes into the vast amphitheater, and through these tiny apertures the populace flowed unceasingly, gradually spreading over and blotting out the great waste of unpainted pine chairs.

As on Tuesday, the delegates were slow in arriving, but the distinguished guests were on hand somewhat earlier. Shortly after 11 o'clock the big municipal band of Philadelphia took its place in the gallery opposite the stage and a few minutes later the strains of one of Sousa's stirring marches crashed out.

Some of the women of the national legislative league of the woman suffragists were busily engaged while the delegates were assembling, distributing appeals for a declaration by the convention favorable to woman suffrage.

At 12:30 o'clock, when the convention was called to order by Temporary Chairman Wolcott, the band played "The Star-Spangled Banner" and the crowd arose to join in the song. During the prayer by Rev. Chas. M. Boswell seven delegates who had been at the birth of the Republican party in 1856 marched to the chairman's platform waving a faded flag, bearing the date 1856 on a streamer attached to Old Glory. Behind the standard bearer was an octogenarian carrying the banner of the Fremont Association. Senators Hanna and Cullom met the distinguished veterans of Republicanism, and, leading them forward to Chairman Wolcott's side, waved their arms as a signal for applause. The convention cheered, delegates arose and waved their hats and the faded flag was kept in sight of the demonstrative spectators while the band played "America." This was the signal for renewed enthusiasm. The banner bore the legend "National Fremont Association of Republican Clubs of Pittsburg."

This incident over, the chairman recognized Representative Sereno E. Payne of New York, chairman of the committee on credentials, who mounted the platform and read the exhaustive report of the committee. The settlement of the Delaware contest in favor of "Gas" Adicks, announced by the chairman, was greeted with considerable applause from the friends of the Delaware crowd. In behalf of the majority of the delegates from New York Mr. Payne asked the previous question and the motion prevailed. Chairman Wolcott put the motion for adoption of the report. This was passed without a dissenting voice. The convention, which evidently felt relieved as this quick disposition of the contests signified its approval with applause.

Gen. Grosvenor of Ohio, chairman of the committee on permanent organization, then presented that committee's report. This report was also put through with a whirl. Henry Cabot Lodge, United States Senator from Massachusetts, was made permanent chairman of the convention. Senator Lodge made a scholarly speech in accepting the gavel from Senator Wolcott, who retired as temporary chairman. Charles W. Johnston of Minnesota succeeded to the secretaryship.

At 3:15 o'clock the convention adjourned until 10 o'clock Thursday morning. This action was taken when the order of business reached was the call of States for nominations for President. Plans of the leaders were changed almost at the last moment. The platform and the reports of the credentials and rules committees, however, had been adopted.

The Platform.

The platform declares against improper trusts, but commends combinations of capital which result in the extension of business. The maintenance of the gold standard is insisted upon. A plank pledges the party to give the people of the Philippines and Porto Rico as large a measure of self-government as the circumstances justify, and the party reiterates the pledge made by Congress to give Cuba independence as soon as possible. On the expansion question the conduct by the administration of the recent war with Spain is praised, and attention called to the fact that as a result of that war the country finds itself with responsibilities which did not exist before. It is stated that these responsibilities must be met, and commends the course which President McKinley has so far pursued in the matter. Porto Rico is grouped with the Philippines in the general statement that the Republican party is in favor of giving both countries the largest measure of self-government that it is demonstrated the inhabitants are capable of receiving. The proposed canal to connect the Atlantic and Pacific oceans is called the isthmian canal, in order to avoid binding the party to either the Nicaragua or Panama route, and advocates the building of such a canal when the route is determined by the United States, said canal to be "operated, owned, controlled and protected" by this Government. The plank on the labor question advocates such legislation as will secure the greatest amount of employment at the best wages, and favors some plan of arbitration on labor disputes. Convict labor is denounced. A plank is also incorporated favoring legislation which would tend to an extension of the merchant marine interests of the United States. Sympathy is expressed for the Boers, and the present situation in China is referred to in a paragraph suggesting it to be the duty of the United States to protect the interests of its citizens wherever they may be.

Hawaiian Delegates Seated.

The delegation from Hawaii reached Philadelphia Monday morning. There were four in the party—Samuel Parker, A. N. Kepoikai and W. B. Castle, delegates, and C. H. Wilson, alternate. It was decided by the national committee that the Hawaiians would be allowed two delegates in the preliminary organization of the convention. These were Samuel Parker and A. N. Kepoikai, both of whom are natives and ex-royalists.

TICKET IS NAMED.

McKinley and Roosevelt the G. O. P. Standard-Bearers.

CHOSEN BY ACCLAIM.

Vote of the Convention Unanimously Cast for Both Candidates.

Foraker Presents the Name of the President to Succeed Himself, and Lafe Young of Iowa Nominates Governor Roosevelt—Philadelphia Assemblage Completes Its Work Amid Great Demonstrations.

Philadelphia correspondence:

McKinley and Roosevelt is the Republican ticket as named by the national convention Thursday. The nominations were unanimous. The official announcements of Chairman Lodge were followed by a scene seldom witnessed, and in point of enthusiasm never surpassed by any national gathering of the party. The demonstrations bore all the details of stampedes, with waving standards of States and a procession of delegates, which were repeated in all their exciting details, and for over fifteen minutes reigned a tumult of the wildest character.

It was nearly forty minutes after the scheduled time for beginning when Senator Lodge asked for quiet while Archbishop Ryan invoked divine blessing on the convention. After the full report of the committee on rules was adopted, Chairman Lodge announced that the next order of business was the nomination for President, and called on Alabama. This State yielded to Ohio, and Senator Foraker placed Mr. McKinley's name before the convention in a speech which was one of the greatest oratorical efforts that well-known speaker has ever made. He was repeatedly interrupted by the plaudits of his audience and at the conclusion of his address there was a wave of applause that required ten minutes to subside. Gov. Roosevelt, the choice for vice-president, seconded the nomination in an oratorical effort, which captured the convention. Senator Foraker was also followed by John W. Yerkes of Kentucky, George Knight of California and Gov. Mount of Indiana. Then the delegates became restive and responding to the vociferous demands Senator Lodge ordered the roll-call, which resulted in every vote being cast for McKinley.

PRESIDENT M'KINLEY.

Gov. Roosevelt Named.

Then came the call for nomination for Vice-President and Col. Lafe Young of Iowa advanced to the platform. He withdrew the name of Dolliver and in a ringing speech placed Gov. Roosevelt's name before the convention. The scenes attending the renomination of President McKinley were re-enacted with equal enthusiasm. Gov. Roosevelt announced that the nomination was so spontaneous he could not decline, and he in a brief statement accepted the nomination for Vice-President.

GOVERNOR ROOSEVELT.

President McKinley received the entire 926 votes, while Roosevelt lacked only one of that number and that because he himself refused to have his ballot recorded. Committees were appointed to notify the nominees, and at 2:15 o'clock the convention of 1900 adjourned sine die.

Brisk Trade in Buttons.

The street venders did a thriving business in buttons and badges. A lively trade was also carried on in seats for the convention at rates varying from $5 for a single session up to $60 for the three sessions.

Image of Oom Paul Kruger.

One of the delegates to the convention from Michigan is the image of Oom Paul Kruger of the Transvaal. His name is W. H. C. Mitchell, and he is 75 years old. He has never been in Philadelphia but once before. That was in 1856, when he came to attend a convention of the American party.

Two hundred and ninety millions of dollars for poultry, the proceeds of one year, compared with $186,000,000 for hogs for the same time, tells with emphasis the enormous magnitude of the poultry business. We are still importers of eggs.

WHEAT PRICES BOOM.

ADVANCE OF 16 CENTS A BUSHEL IN TWO WEEKS.

Heavy Demand for the Cereal by Shorts and Speculators—Northwest Reports Continue Bad—Predictions that the Price Will Reach $1.

Wheat advanced with giant strides on the grain exchanges of the country Wednesday. On the Chicago Board of Trade prices advanced nearly 4 cents, and the July delivery touched the high point at the close, 81⅝ cents, and later sold up to 83 cents. The close showed a jump of 16 cents in two weeks. At Minneapolis prices advanced 4⅝ cents. There was only 8⅝ cents between prices in Chicago and in Liverpool, while the cost of shipping and selling is 16 cents. Frantic efforts on the part of those who were short to purchase the advancing cereal and a marked increase in the number of buying orders received from the country were phases of Board of Trade dealings.

There has been no such excitement on the Board of Trade in ten years, says a dispatch. The pit was the scene of a struggling mass of shouting humanity yesterday, so crowded that it was difficult to get in. It became so large a market that individual operations cut no figure, and the big traders were lost sight of.

Hot, dry weather in the Northwest, temperatures in some places being reported at 100, is seriously affecting the spring wheat crop in the Dakotas and Minnesota, and well-posted men, who two weeks ago estimated the yield of the three States at 100,000,000 bushels, now say that there will not be over 75,000,000 bushels. This makes the large holders more confident of their position, and they are talking $1 wheat with much unconcern. Minneapolis and Duluth exchanges experienced a rising market and the daily crop reports from the Dakotas and Minnesota showed that the conditions were worse even than former bulletins had reported. Correspondents in those regions said that instead of half a crop there was a strong probability that the yield would be less than one-third. Flour felt the influence of the advance in wheat and sold in Chicago at $4.40 a barrel. Conservative men who have studied the crop bulletins carefully did not hesitate to say that they would not be surprised to soon see dollar wheat.

NOTICE OF AMNESTY.

Filipinos Have Ninety Days to Accept United States Sovereignty.

The War Department has made public the notice of amnesty which was issued by Gen. MacArthur at Manila. By direction of the President, Military Governor MacArthur announces amnesty, with complete immunity for the past and absolute liberty of action for the future, to all persons who are now or at any time since Feb. 4, 1899, have been in insurrection against the United States in either a military or a civil capacity and who shall within a period of ninety days formally renounce all connection with such insurrection and subscribe to a declaration acknowledging and accepting the sovereignty and authority of the United States in and over the Philippine Islands. The privilege is extended to all concerned without any reservation whatever, excepting that persons who have violated the rules of war during the period of active hostilities are not embraced within the scope of the amnesty.

EVENTS OF INTEREST

THAT OCCURRED DURING THE PAST WEEK.

Tersely Told Telegraph Tales in Brief Paragraphs—Many Casualties—A Few Crimes—Some Fires—Political and Religious News.

Sensational Reports.

The reports of the murder of foreign ministers at Pekin, and of the death of Admiral Seymour, although viewed with suspicion, have created a profound sensation. The press expresses the opinion that Japan must, with or without the consent of powers, adopt active measures. The naval and military officers are very busy. Probably the whole Hiroshima division under command of General Fukashima, will be afloat within a few days. The Russian cruiser Rurik has arrived at Yokohama, with the new Russian Minister to Japan and will immediately leave for Taku.

Cooked to Death.

Engineer Richard Ricksaker of Chicago, and Fireman Moses Livingston of Crown Point, Ind., met a horrible death at the latter place. They were employed on the narrow gauge railroad of the Brownell Improvement company of Chicago, building stone roads and using the "dinky" train to haul the stone. In going down an incline the engine jumped the track and overturned, penning Ricksaker and Livingston in the cab. Before they could be extricated the hot water from the boiler litterly cooked their flesh until a great portion fell from their bones.

Fatal Hotel Fire.

Fire destroyed the Morrison Hotel (formerly the Glenview) at South Bend, Ind. One life was lost and six guests were severly injured. It is believed the fire was of incindiary origin. Only a few moments after the flames were discovered on the ground floor there was a terrific explosion, presumably of gas, which shook the buildings all around and scattered firebrands throughout the lower floors of the hotel. The guests were instantly in a panic.

Examination of Rathbone.

Havana special: Major E. Rathbone, the suspended director general of posts, is being examined by the inspector's attached to the staff of Joseph L. Bristow, the fourth assistant postmaster general who is in charge of the official investigation into the Cuban postal frauds. This completes Mr. Bristow's duties. Later, he will make a report to Governor General Wood, when it will be decided if additional steps are to be taken.

Tien Tsin Attacked.

Washington special: Acting Secretary of the Navy Hackett received a cable message from Admiral Kempff, dated Che Foo, June 21, saying that Tien Tsin is being bombarded and that much of the American consulate as well as foreign concessions are being destroyed. A relief party is enroute to Tien Tsin including 130 American marines under Major Waller.

Missouri Bars Cattle.

Governor Stephens of Missouri has issued a proclamation shutting out the cattle from a number of states in which he says tuberclosis exists. Among the states are Maine, New Hamshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Deleware, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and the Dominion of Canada.

Bank Clerk Confessed.

Anthony J. Hemsteger, a clerk in the Third National Bank of Piqua, Ohio, who is charged with using money belonging to the bank, confessed that he had taken $1,150. An expert examined the books. The American Surety Company of New York, furnished Hemsteger his bond and is held good for the amount.

More Troops for the Philippines.

Troop M, of the Sixth cavalry, Captain Cabell commanding, departed from Jefferson Barracks, St. Louis, on a special train for San Francisco, from whence it will sail for Manila as soon as transports can be procured. The troops will be joined at San Francisco by troops A, B, D, K and L, also of the Sixth cavalry.

Krugersdorp Occupied.

Lord Roberts has reported that General Hunter had occupied Krugersdorp, west of Johannesburg, without opposition, and that General Methuen, June 19, routed a Boer force which was opposing his entry into Heilbron, in the Orange River colony.

Muravieff is Dead.

St. Petersburg special: The Russian minister of foreign affairs, Count Muravieff, died suddenly in this city. The Count had just finished his morning cup of coffee, and had ordered his lunch when he fell in an apoplectic fit and expired in a few minutes.

Burglars Failed.

A partially successful attempt to rob the Belmont County treasury was made at St. Clairville, Ohio, the other night. The burglars entered the court-house at a rear window and the Treasurer's office by prying off the front door with a jimmy. They blew the double vault doors open, which admitted them to the inner vaults where the safe with $70,000 was located. They made an unsuccessful effort to dynamite this. The thieves secured about $600 worth of stamps and $135 in currency belonging to the postoffice left there for safe keeping.

Crew Picked Up at Sea.

The British steamer Maryland, from London for Philadelphia, upon her arrival had on board Captain Baxter, his daughter and eight of the crew of the British schooner Nelly, who were picked up at sea June 11. The Nelly was abandoned in a water-logged condition.

Crash of Electric Cars.

In a collision of a Bowling Green and a Maumee Valley electric car Ross Quickle was fatally hurt and several others seriously injured. The cars were running at the rate of thirty miles an hour when they came together on a curve between Perrysburg and Toledo, Ohio.

CONVENTION MEETS

National Republican Gathering Called to Order.

BIG CROWD PRESENT.

Senator Wolcott of Colorado Made Temporary Chairman.

Senator Hanna Wields the Gavel at the Opening of the First Session—Brilliant Scenes in the Great Hall—Lodge of Massachusetts Permanent Chairman—Credentials Committee Reports—Platform Adopted.

Philadelphia correspondence:

Shortly after noon Tuesday the twelfth national nominating convention of the Republican party was called to order in Philadelphia, the same city in which the first one met forty-four years ago. Of these twelve conventions Philadelphia has had three, Chicago five and Baltimore, Cincinnati, Minneapolis and St. Louis one each.

Tuesday's proceedings were of a purely perfunctory character. Senator Hanna, chairman of the national committee, called the convention to order. A surpliced clergyman read a lengthy prayer in a silence which was truly remarkable in so vast an audience. Then Secretary Dick read the call. The delegates answered to their names and Senator Wolcott was installed as temporary chairman and made a speech, after which the committees on credentials, organization, resolutions, and rules were selected and retired for deliberation.

Ten thousand people attended the formal opening of the convention. The splendid hall was well filled and the scene was one to remember. Facing the speakers' platform were nearly one thousand delegates and as many alternates, representing the Republicans of every State and territory in the Union, including Hawaii and Alaska. Seated in tiers surrounding the inner circle was the crowd of sightseers. The arrangements were perfect. On all sides was heard unstinted praise for the Quaker City managing committee. The feature of the first session was the speech made by Temporary Chairman Wolcott of Colorado.

Senator Wolcott in his eloquent speech touched upon all the leading events of the past four years, and made them appear as arguments for the continuation in power of the present administration. All allusions to the Spanish war, of the Philippine questions and other leading characteristics of the administration were received with prolonged applause. The scene in the spacious hall during the progress of Senator Wolcott's speech was impressive in the extreme. The orator had evidently completely caught and swayed his audience, and the vast multitude answered to his glowing periods with the greatest enthusiasm.

The forenoon had produced nothing new in the Vice Presidential situation, and when the convention had settled down to business the question was still in a condition of as much uncertainty as it was forty-eight hours before. It was evident, though, to even a casual observer, that Gov. Roosevelt, of New York, was still the hero of the hour, and that it would be as easy to stampede the convention for him as to start a conflagration by the commingling of fire and tow. A significant thing in this connection was the fact that when reference was being made to the Spanish war and the bravery of American arms was being extolled by Senator Wolcott, there were frequent cries of San Juan intermingled with great outbursts of cheering for Roosevelt.

The arrangements for transporting the great multitude from downtown to the hall were admirable, many lines of electric cars giving ready conveyance. That splendid avenue, Broad street, leads to the most direct route, that on South street, and all of the early cars along this line were crowded with those wishing to secure points of vantage in or around the building. The throngs weer good-natured and intensely earnest.

The day opened auspiciously for the event. The sky was slightly overcast and there was none of the sweltering of many former national gatherings. The air was cool, the temperature being below 70. After being up half the night with the demonstration of 30,000 marching men, fireworks, bands, final caucus and earnest conferences, the army of delegates and the conspicuous figures of the convention were slow to make their appearance. But the staid old Quaker city was early astir with preparation and by 8 o'clock the streets took on an air of animation and anticipation as the crowds began to converge toward the convention grounds.

Out at the convention grounds the officials were early on hand with their corps of doorkeepers, sergeant-at-arms, ushers and pages, putting them through final drills in anticipation of the crush soon to come. The first squad to put in an appearance was that of under Organizer Owen, 300 strong, having charge of seating the delegates and spectators. After them came the 400 assistants under Sergeant-at-arms Wiswell, more particularly to care for the interests of the delegates. Chief Doorkeeper Kercheval had an early drill, both at the outer gates and at the entrance doors, which gave promise of an avoidance of the confusion and delay which often attend admission to conventions.

During the early hours the inside of the convention hall presented the appearance of a vast sea of pine, overhung with a wealth of festoon, bunting and historic portraiture. It was very light, very airy, and so arranged in the gradual rise of seats from a common center to give full opportunity for the demonstrations of enthusiasm which were soon to come.

The women showed their interest in the event by making up a considerable percentage of the moving hosts, and the fair weather permitted all the color of bright parasols and midsummer dress to be blended with the blaze of bunting.

Outside of the hall the approaches began to congest with the crowds during the early hours. The cars added hundreds every minute, and as the outer gates were not opened until 10 o'clock, the early arrivals were massed on the walks and streets awaiting the signal to get in. The street venders did a thriving business in buttons and badges and a lively trade was carried on in seats for the convention at rates varying from $5 for a single session up to $60 for the three sessions.

While these scenes were being enacted about the convention hall, the political managers and the delegates were holding their final conferences and caucuses and preparing for the work before them. Illinois, Ohio and a number of other delegations held morning meetings for organization, and felt the pulse of the delegates on the vice-presidential situation. Most of the State delegations arranged to go to the hall as bodies, many of them being escorted through the streets by their marching clubs with bands and banners.

To the leaders, however, these outward demonstrations had little interest, and they continued to spend most of their time in the privacy of upper chambers at the hotels, trying to figure out the perplexing questions presented.

At Dolliver headquarters the feeling was strong that if Roosevelt should put himself out of the race the Iowan would receive the nomination. With an open field and the San Juan hero not a starter, the Iowa people believed that Dolliver would win.

WEDNESDAY'S SESSION.

It was almost 11 o'clock Wednesday when the advance guard of the great army of visitors crossed the Schuylkill and besieged the doors of the convention hall. Every road led toward the Exposition building. In street cars, carriages and afoot the people streamed thither. There are thirty entrances to the hall, mere keyholes into the vast amphitheater, and through these tiny apertures the populace flowed unceasingly, gradually spreading over and blotting out the great waste of unpainted pine chairs.

As on Tuesday, the delegates were slow in arriving, but the distinguished guests were on hand somewhat earlier. Shortly after 11 o'clock the big municipal band of Philadelphia took its place in the gallery opposite the stage and a few minutes later the strains of one of Sousa's stirring marches crashed out.

Some of the women of the national legislative league of the woman suffragists were busily engaged while the delegates were assembling, distributing appeals for a declaration by the convention favorable to woman suffrage.

At 12:30 o'clock, when the convention was called to order by Temporary Chairman Wolcott, the band played "The Star-Spangled Banner" and the crowd arose to join in the song. During the prayer by Rev. Chas. M. Boswell seven delegates who had been at the birth of the Republican party in 1856 marched to the chairman's platform waving a faded flag, bearing the date 1856 on a streamer attached to Old Glory. Behind the standard bearer was an octogenarian carrying the banner of the Fremont Association. Senators Hanna and Cullom met the distinguished veterans of Republicanism, and, leading them forward to Chairman Wolcott's side, waved their arms as a signal for applause. The convention cheered, delegates arose and waved their hats and the faded flag was kept in sight of the demonstrative spectators while the band played "America." This was the signal for renewed enthusiasm. The banner bore the legend "National Fremont Association of Republican Clubs of Pittsburg."

This incident over, the chairman recognized Representative Sereno E. Payne of New York, chairman of the committee on credentials, who mounted the platform and read the exhaustive report of the committee. The settlement of the Delaware contest in favor of "Gas" Adicks, announced by the chairman, was greeted with considerable applause from the friends of the Delaware crowd. In behalf of the majority of the delegates from New York Mr. Payne asked the previous question and the motion prevailed. Chairman Wolcott put the motion for adoption of the report. This was passed without a dissenting voice. The convention, which evidently felt relieved as this quick disposition of the contests signified its approval with applause.

Gen. Grosvenor of Ohio, chairman of the committee on permanent organization, then presented that committee's report. This report was also put through with a whirl. Henry Cabot Lodge, United States Senator from Massachusetts, was made permanent chairman of the convention. Senator Lodge made a scholarly speech in accepting the gavel from Senator Wolcott, who retired as temporary chairman. Charles W. Johnston of Minnesota succeeded to the secretaryship.

At 3:15 o'clock the convention adjourned until 10 o'clock Thursday morning. This action was taken when the order of business reached was the call of States for nominations for President. Plans of the leaders were changed almost at the last moment. The platform and the reports of the credentials and rules committees, however, had been adopted.

The Platform.

The platform declares against improper trusts, but commends combinations of capital which result in the extension of business. The maintenance of the gold standard is insisted upon. A plank pledges the party to give the people of the Philippines and Porto Rico as large a measure of self-government as the circumstances justify, and the party reiterates the pledge made by Congress to give Cuba independence as soon as possible. On the expansion question the conduct by the administration of the recent war with Spain is praised, and attention called to the fact that as a result of that war the country finds itself with responsibilities which did not exist before. It is stated that these responsibilities must be met, and commends the course which President McKinley has so far pursued in the matter. Porto Rico is grouped with the Philippines in the general statement that the Republican party is in favor of giving both countries the largest measure of self-government that it is demonstrated the inhabitants are capable of receiving. The proposed canal to connect the Atlantic and Pacific oceans is called the isthmian canal, in order to avoid binding the party to either the Nicaragua or Panama route, and advocates the building of such a canal when the route is determined by the United States, said canal to be "operated, owned, controlled and protected" by this Government. The plank on the labor question advocates such legislation as will secure the greatest amount of employment at the best wages, and favors some plan of arbitration on labor disputes. Convict labor is denounced. A plank is also incorporated favoring legislation which would tend to an extension of the merchant marine interests of the United States. Sympathy is expressed for the Boers, and the present situation in China is referred to in a paragraph suggesting it to be the duty of the United States to protect the interests of its citizens wherever they may be.

Hawaiian Delegates Seated.

The delegation from Hawaii reached Philadelphia Monday morning. There were four in the party—Samuel Parker, A. N. Kepoikai and W. R. Castle, delegates, and C. H. Wilson, alternate. It was decided by the national committee that the Hawaiians would be allowed two delegates in the preliminary organization of the convention. These were Samuel Parker and A. N. Kepoikai, both of whom are natives and ex-royalists.

OPENING OF THE REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CONVENTION IN PHILADELPHIA.

THE REPORTERS AT WORK.

TICKET IS NAMED.

McKinley and Roosevelt the G. O. P. Standard-Bearers.

CHOSEN BY ACCLAIM.

Vote of the Convention Unanimously Cast for Both Candidates.

Foraker Presents the Name of the President to Succeed Himself, and Lafe Young of Iowa Nominates Governor Roosevelt—Philadelphia Assemblage Completes Its Work Amid Great Demonstrations.

Philadelphia correspondence:

McKinley and Roosevelt is the Republican ticket as named by the national convention Thursday. The nominations were unanimous. The official announcements of Chairman Lodge were followed by a scene seldom witnessed, and in point of enthusiasm never surpassed by any national gathering of the party. The demonstrations bore all the details of stampedes, with waving standards of States and a procession of delegates, which were repeated in all their exciting details, and for over fifteen minutes reigned a tumult of the wildest character.

It was nearly forty minutes after the scheduled time for beginning when Senator Lodge asked for quiet while Archbishop Ryan invoked divine blessing on the convention. After the full report of the committee on rules was adopted, Chairman Lodge announced that the next order of business was the nomination for President, and called on Alabama. This State yielded to Ohio, and Senator Foraker placed Mr. McKinley's name before the convention in a speech which was one of the greatest oratorical efforts that well-known speaker has ever made. He was repeatedly interrupted by the plaudits of his audience and at the conclusion of his address there was a wave of applause that required ten minutes to subside. Gov. Roosevelt, the choice for vice-president, seconded the nomination in an oratorical effort, which captured the convention. Senator Foraker was also followed by John W. Yerkes of Kentucky, George Knight of California and Gov. Mount of Indiana. Then the delegates became restive and responding to the vociferous demands Senator Lodge ordered the roll-call, which resulted in every vote being cast for McKinley.

PRESIDENT M'KINLEY.

Gov. Roosevelt Named.

Then came the call for nomination for Vice-President and Col. Lafe Young of Iowa advanced to the platform. He withdrew the name of Dolliver and in a ringing speech placed Gov. Roosevelt's name before the convention. The scenes attending the renomination of President McKinley were re-enacted with equal enthusiasm. Gov. Roosevelt announced that the nomination was so spontaneous he could not decline, and he in a brief statement accepted the nomination for Vice-President.

GOVERNOR ROOSEVELT.

President McKinley received the entire 926 votes, while Roosevelt lacked only one of that number and that because he himself refused to have his ballot recorded. Committees were appointed to notify the nominees, and at 2:15 o'clock the convention of 1900 adjourned sine die.

Brisk Trade in Buttons.

The street venders did a thriving business in buttons and badges. A lively trade was also carried on in seats for the convention at rates varying from $5 for a single session up to $60 for the three sessions.

Image of Oom Paul Kruger.

One of the delegates to the convention from Michigan is the image of Oom Paul Kruger of the Transvaal. His name is W. H. C. Mitchell, and he is 75 years old. He has never been in Philadelphia but once before. That was in 1856, when he came to attend a convention of the American party.

WHEAT PRICES BOOM.

ADVANCE OF 16 CENTS A BUSHEL IN TWO WEEKS.

Heavy Demand for the Cereal by Shorts and Speculators—Northwest Reports Continue Bad—Predictions that the Price Will Reach $1.

Wheat advanced with giant strides on the grain exchanges of the country Wednesday. On the Chicago Board of Trade prices advanced nearly 4 cents, and the July delivery touched the high point at the close, 81⅝ cents, and later sold up to 83 cents. The close showed a jump of 16 cents in two weeks. At Minneapolis prices advanced 4¾ cents. There was only 8¾ cents between prices in Chicago and in Liverpool, while the cost of shipping and selling is 16 cents. Frantic efforts on the part of those who were short to purchase the advancing cereal and a marked increase in the number of buying orders received from the country were phases of Board of Trade dealings.

There has been no such excitement on the Board of Trade in ten years, says a dispatch. The pit was the scene of a struggling mass of shouting humanity yesterday, so crowded that it was difficult to get in. It became so large a market that individual operations cut no figure, and the big traders were lost sight of.

Hot, dry weather in the Northwest, temperatures in some places being reported at 100, is seriously affecting the spring wheat crop in the Dakotas and Minnesota, and well-posted men, who two weeks ago estimated the yield of the three States at 100,000,000 bushels, now say that there will not be over 75,000,000 bushels. This makes the large holders more confident of their position, and they are talking $1 wheat with much unconcern. Minneapolis and Duluth exchanges experienced a rising market and the daily crop reports from the Dakotas and Minnesota showed that the conditions were worse even than former bulletins had reported. Correspondents in those regions said that instead of half a crop there was a strong probability that the yield would be less than one-third. Flour felt the influence of the advance in wheat and sold in Chicago at $4.40 a barrel. Conservative men who have studied the crop bulletins carefully did not hesitate to say that they would not be surprised to soon see dollar wheat.

NOTICE OF AMNESTY.

Filipinos Have Ninety Days to Accept United States Sovereignty.

The War Department has made public the notice of amnesty which was issued by Gen. MacArthur at Manila. By direction of the President, Military Governor MacArthur announces amnesty, with complete immunity for the past and absolute liberty of action for the future, to all persons who are now or at any time since Feb. 4, 1899, have been in insurrection against the United States in either a military or a civil capacity and who shall within a period of ninety days formally renounce all connection with such insurrection and subscribe to a declaration acknowledging and accepting the sovereignty and authority of the United States in and over the Philippine Islands. The privilege is extended to all concerned without any reservation whatever, excepting that persons who have violated the rules of war during the period of active hostilities are not embraced within the scope of the amnesty.

IS BLIND AND POOR.

BARONESS JENNO VAN RAHDEN DYING IN AUSTRIA.

She Has Had a Career in Which the Romantic and Tragic Were Strangely Blended—Infatuated Husband Killed Four Admirers.

Wealth and splendor have gone; the man who killed four others for her love lies moldering under ground with his victims; the world that bowed before her beauty has forgotten her, or, if it remembers, remembers only to pity for a passing moment; the beautiful eyes that once were watched eagerly by hundreds for a glance are sightless. It is the end of the glory of the Baroness Jenny von Rahden. She lies in Nizza Austria—blind, miserably poor and dying. The magnificent trained horses which she loved passionately, and with which she won applause from all of Europe, have been sold long ago for debt, and she does not know who owns them now. She has made with barely one step the voyage from magnificence to bitter misery.

It was as an equestrian that Jenny Weiss first became one of the celebrities of Europe. Many wooed her. Of them all none wooed as did the big, handsome, dashing, prodigally rich Russian, Baron von Rahden. He won her, and became as fierce an adorer of his wife as he had been her adorer during courtship. He showered upon her love and wealth and watched over her with jealous care.

For this man, with his savage love, there came torment. His wealth was swept away in a night, and he faced life as a beggar. Unfitted for work, he struggled bitterly, until sheer necessity forced him to let his wife return to the circus arena with her horses. Faithfully she labored for him and herself, and her work was rewarded excellently with both fame and money. But the life was mortal agony for the Russian. Night after night he stood where his fierce eyes could watch the audience, and every glance that seemed to lack respect, every word that seemed to imply admiration, even the applause that was lavished on her, bit into him as acid into a wound.

Soon Vienna was startled by the news that a duel had been fought between him and an officer of high rank, and that his opponent had been killed at the first fire. It was proved that the dead officer had attempted to force his attentions on the equestrian, and the baron was not prosecuted. The tragic affair cooled neither the baron's blood nor that of the admirers of the baroness. A second duel in the south of Europe soon followed the first, and another dead officer was left on the field to testify to the prowess, this time, of the baron's sword. Again, in France, a civilian, one of the sichest men of the day, tried to send a note to the baroness. The baron intercepted it, and the next morning it became known in the town that the baron's deadly record had been increased by another victim.

This third duel sufficed to frighten the most daring, and for a considerable time even this insanely jealous man found something like peace, for there was no man in any of the crowds that watched the beautiful woman ride who did not keep himself in rein, well knowing that the Russian's sharp eyes were roving over each face in turn with fierce watchfulness in every glance. But finally, in France, a Danish naval officer became infatuated with the graceful rider. Perhaps he was reckless; perhaps he did not know the record of her husband. At any rate, he took no pains to hide his admiration of the Baroness Jenny. His friends hastened then to acquaint him with the truth, but he only laughed at them. It was a pretty romance and it amused him.

One day the officer stared at the baroness with open insolence. The next instant a great form towered over him, a voice thick with rage addressed him and he fell, shot dead. As this killing was not in a duel the baron was arrested and tried. The end was that he was acquitted. There followed a few years of comparatively serene life. Through it all ran the strain of a perfect love between these two. And then the baron died.

That was two years and a half ago. In that time the baroness appeared with few interruptions and earned the admiration of all. Last January she appeared in Nizza. For some time before that she had suffered from pain in the spine, but she insisted on appearing. She rode all evening, and her acts were even more brilliant than usual. But even while the applause was ringing through the place she fainted and slid helplessly to the ground. She was carried to the hotel burning with fever. When she awoke the next morning she begged her attendants to open the shutters. But the shutters already were wide open. She was blind. Physicians consulted and consulted, to arrive only at the same verdict—hopeless. The circus folk did what they could until the show had to depart from Nizza. They left her behind them in the hotel, whence later she was taken to a hospital and where she is now dying. All of her horses were sold for her maintenance.

A Trade in Itself.

Able-bodied Beggar—I have learned one, sir; I'm a re-toucher.—Life.

Every one reaches a day when he tells something he has always kept a secret.

SECRET DEBATE FOR INDEPENDENCE

THE great independence debate was held with closed doors and no record of the speeches made was kept, because it was felt that in case of the capture of any one of the members of the body that King George would have him strung up speedily in case there was written evidence that he had spoken against the supremacy of the crown.

For many months the colonists had been carrying on a brave, unequal struggle with the mother country. But that struggle had been as loyal subjects of the English king, in arms only as against certain acts of injustice. Now that other conception, at first passed in hushed whispers from man to man and later set ringing through the colonies by the eloquence of Patrick Henry and the logic of Thomas Paine, that glorious conception of American nidependence was being finally weighed in the balance against the claims of George III.

And yet all knew there were grave difficulties in the way of independence. Many would have known it better could they have stood within the east room of the old statehouse through the long hours of that hot July day. There sat the Continental Congress, now pale faced, grim and careworn.

Up to 2 o'clock in the afternoon of that Fourth of July, 1776, American independence hung in the balance. How eyes and thoughts were turned that summer day to the old statehouse at Philadelphia! Would the body of men gathered there take the step? Would they dare to do it?

At the east side of the chamber on a dais sat the presiding officer in his red leather chair. Before him was a large mahogany table, on which a massive inkstand of silver held a bunch of fresh quills. A document then under discussion lay beside it. The men who were to use the quills that day in making that document, "America's Magna Charta," were grouped about in a semi-circle.

They were not men of the same nationality, for among them were two Englishmen, three Irishmen, two Scotchmen, one

Welshman; the others were born in the colonies. Not of the same occupation, either, for 24 lawyers, 14 farmers, 9 merchants, 4 physicians, 1 gospel minister and 1 manufacturer were there. Not representing the interest of a single State, but of thirteen separate little governments, torn by longings, fears and dissensions. On the right of the chairman sat Benjamin Franklin, with his soft hair flowing down his shoulders. Farther on was Thomas Jefferson, the writer of the document on the table, now busy taking notes of the proceedings. Directly in front sat young Richard Lee, who had risen days before to read to the hushed assembly the daring resolution, "That these united colonies are and of right ought to be free and independent states, and that all political connection between us and the state of Great Britain is and ought to be totally dissolved."

Here, in their quaint attire, with powdered hair in "cues," knee breeches and buckles, broad flapped coats and bright hued waistcoats, sat the men who were to be known as the signers of the Declaration of Independence.

Inch by inch the ground was gone over, the chamber now ringing with applause, now hushed in awe, as fiery words pictured the triumph of liberty or warning voice foretold humiliation and defeat. Then came the moment when the last word had been spoken. Even the plea for postponement because "the people are not ripe for a declaration of independence" had been finally crushed by the answer in the broad Scotch accents of Dr. Witherspoon: "Not ripe, sir! In my judgment we are not only ripe, but rotting. Almost every colony has dropped from its parent stem, and your own province, sir, needs no more sunshine to mature it."

It was 2 o'clock when the vote was taken. Secretary Thomas arose and announced to the assembled Congress the final decision and sat down. Suddenly the chamber, but now so full of words, of gestures, of flashing eyes and of impassioned figures, is hushed, and those within it motionless, almost the rapid heart beats can be heard. Then, in geographical order, the members signed the paper.

The big bell that had been muffled to toll on the passing of the stump act (which the people declared was the "death knell of liberty") now rang the joyous proclamation of "liberty throughout the world, unto all the inhabitants thereof." So plain July 4 came to be the great Fourth of July. And though the event took place a little late in the day for a full celebration, yet good use was made of the hours that remained, and of several days that followed, too, for joyful recognition of Independence day.

Philadelphia had the start in all this and showed her rejoicing in illuminations, the ringing of bells and firing of cannon. But slowly the glad tidings crept over the colonies. So slowly it seems to us in this day of rapid communication. Copies of the declaration had to be sent out by riders—men tearing madly through the colonies upon loam bespattered steeds, yet unable to do in days for this great message what a moment will accomplish for a prize fight report to-day. But it was rapid work for those times, and a rider stopping on his way to deliver one of those precious copies would be, as an old chronicler tells us, "at once furnished with a fresh horse and dispatched on his way." How the discomforts of the body must have been forgotten by such a news carrier! Here and there, where the "express" stopped, he broke up grave assemblies, whose members, putting all else aside, gave themselves up to the great document. Then would follow great meetings in the square where to the sound of fifes and drums all the king's arms, his pictures and all signs of his tyrannical majesty would be hurled into the leaping flames amid cheers and ringing of bells.

OUR FLAG.

Erstwhile we loved our starry flag, and stood beneath it, fain
To kiss its folds, as wide unrolled it waved o'er hill and plain;
Erstwhile, with lips that smiled, men died to keep that flag on high—
That flag that ever seemed to us far less of earth than sky,
With morning's white, and evening's red, and noontide's cloudless blue
Repeated in the glory of its colors; tint and hue
As strong as are our mountains, as deep as are our waves,
Great flag, that floats above our homes, and o'er our soldiers' graves.

Erstwhile we thought we cared for it, our banner of the stars,
And probably conned that galaxy and those pellucid bars;
But now we love it better, and are thrilled with dearer joy,
And sweeter songs we're learning, and we count it brave employ
To tell our children of the men who in the battle's van
Have borne our flag for freedom and the lifting up of man;
To tell them of our sailors who have once again at sea
Shown all the world how fearless our mariners can be;
Erstwhile we loved our starry flag, to-day from shore to shore
We stand beneath it reverently, and love our God the more.

"Westward the star of Empire," was what we used to say.
But we are learning now to frame that text another way.
For eastward drifts our commerce, and eastward sound our guns,
And eastward we are sending our most heroic sons.
Our liberty beneath the law we'll send the ancient East,
And the strong spirit of our West, to work live heaven's yeast;
Our flag shall mean the breaking of the age-worn fetters there,
Our flag shall carry love and hope for hatred and despair.

Erstwhile we loved our country's flag, baptized in blood and fire,
To-day we almost worship it—flag of the world's desire!
Jehovah guard it evermore, and keep it pure of stain,
Jehovah give us wisdom still, right counsel to maintain.
Let every little child to-day, and every gray-haired man,
Be swift for that dear flag of stars to do whate'er he can;
And young and old, and rich and poor, and South and North together
Join hands, to hold that banner high through all the world's rough weather;
God bless it, wherso'e'er it floats, from mast-head or from spire,
God guard it evermore, our flag!—flag of the world's desire.

WORLD-WIDE FESTIVITIES.

The Glorious Fourth Is Celebrated Over the Whole World.

The glorious Fourth is celebrated the world over. It is not confined to the United States alone, by any means. It is often said that the sun never sets upon the British empire. It is equally true that it never sets upon the American Fourth of July. Even beyond our territorial limits the day is honored all over the world, wherever there is an American consular officer or naval ship. The latter particularly are the scenes of celebration well up to the importance of the great holiday. Early in the morning the ship is dressed with many colored flags, all unnecessary work is stopped, national salutes are fired at noon, and the day is largely devoted to athletic sports, such as rowing or sailing matches, games of baseball, etc., on shore, if practicable, and to the men as well as officers it is a day of good cheer, the tables being spread with as bounteous repasts, fore and aft, as the markets will afford. The naval regulations are relaxed and it is generally a day of enjoyment equalled by no other day of the year save Christmas.

Whenever ships of foreign nations are in port at the same time as the American, they are officially notified of the com holiday, and requested to participate in its celebration. This they invariably do, decorating and saluting with the American vessels. In this connection may be mentioned a curious thing, well known to all navy men. As may easily be imagined, the day is not one calculated to give sensations of unalloyed pleasure to the British, as it celebrates the declaration of independence from the British yoke. Still, it would be very discourteous for Englishmen, now that they are on friendly terms with the United States, to refuse to participate in the gayeties of the day, so, to obviate all embarrassment, in nearly every case it is customary for British ships to contrive to be away from ports where there is an American warship on the Fourth of July. Ordinarily, this can be managed by adjusting the vessels' movements to this end, but when, as often happens, the American ship happens in unawares, the British ship makes an excuse for being away that day, as, for example, on the pretext of going out to sea for target practice. It very seldom has happened that a British ship has had to join the celebrations of the Fourth, but when they have done so, it has been with good grace.

Similar honors to the day are paid at every military post of the United States. The day is given over to amusements, sports and formal ceremonies, such as salutes, parades, etc. Soldiers, though, do not as a rule get so much unadulterated pleasure out of the day as sailors, as one of the time-honored traditions of the day is a long parade, which is anything but pleasurable in the hot July weather, especially when, as is often the case, the paraders have to stand for long periods and listen to the words of the orators, before taking up the hot, dusty, wearisome march homeward.

In most of the large cities of the earth there is a goodly American colony, and these always unite in their deference to the day. This is especially so in London, Berlin and Paris, where the American colonies are both large and influential. The American legation or embassy is the scene of a banquet in the evening, upon which occasion the sentiments of the anniversary are ever extolled, and patriotism is the reigning emotion of the occasion.

Year after year, the respect shown the Fourth of July is made manifest, and it is a pleasing, comfortable fact to know that this respect shows no sign of abatement as the years roll by. The spirit of the day is as strong this year of grace 1900 as it was a hundred and twenty-four years ago, and it is interesting to note that within the past ten years numerous patriotic societies have sprung into existence and are now growing in both strength and influence, the aims of which are the cultivation of the spirit of '76. The Sons of the Revolution, the Daughters of the Revolution, the Colonial Dames, and numerous others of the kind, are now breathing the same patriotic atmosphere, and imparting it to their offspring, that animated the men who brought the Revolution to a successful close.

SAM'S MISTAKE.

He Wanted to Know How Big His Pa Was.

"We was on our way down to Bristol," said the old man as we sat smoking on a log at the door, "when my son Sam turns to me and sez:

"'Pop, ar' yo' a bigger man than the Fo'th of July?'

"'Mebbe I ar',' sez I, lookin' at him outer the co'ner of my eye an' wonderin' if he'd got one of his cantankerous fits on.

"'It's a powerful big day,' he goes on arter awhile.

"'Purty powerful,' sez I.

"'An' yo' ar' a purty powerful man?'

"'I reckon I am. Did yo' want to say anything beyond that, Sam?'

"'Jest a word, pop. Fo'th of July is a powerful day, an' yo' ar' a powerful man, but I am feelin' that I kin down yo' both. Yere's a level spot, with soft sile to fall on, and I'm gwine to tackle yo'.'

"'Better keep on yo'r side of the road, Sam. I ain't feelin' any too balmy this mawnin'.'

"'Don't crawfish, pop, but throw down yer hat and gimme the best you've got.'

"Well, I seed that he was cantankerous," continued the old man, "and that I'd got to take it outer him, and so I throwed down my hat and drawed a long breath and got ready.

"'Pop,' sez he, as he spits on his hands and dances around. 'Yo' needn't worry about mam, as I'll take good kper of the widder. Yere I cum.'

"With that he pitched in. I was waitin' fur him. Sam was a purty hefty feller, but he didn't weigh no ton, like he thought he did. When I pulled him out of the sile I thought he was dead, but bimeby he opened his eyes and sez:

"'Pop, has thar bin any wah around these yere parts?'

"'Juts a leetle wah, Sam.'

"'Did the Continental army git knocked into a cocked hat?'

"'No, my son; the Continental army cum out on top the heap.'

"'Then I reckon I was mistook. I reckoned I was a bigger man than my ole pop, Fo'th of July and the Continental army all mixed up, but I bit off too much and hev got to spit it out. Help me up, pop, and next time I feel cantankerous I'll tackle a mounting!'"—C. B. Lewis, in St. Louis Republic.

The Fourth in the Village.

Fourth of July in the city is matter of sport and sound and fury. Your true Fourth is celebrated in the smaller towns. The Declaration of Independence is not a "back number" in the village celebration. It is listened to devoutly. When the school teacher or the prettiest girl or the best elocutionist reads the long recital of the wrongs and usurpations of the "present king of Great Britain" the old patriotic thrill goes through the hearts of the old men and the women and the children. To them it is still an axiom that "governments are instituted among men, deriving their just power from the consent of the governed." And when the conclusion is reached, that grand climacteric of the sublime state paper, "And for the support of this declaration and a firm reliance on the protection of divine providence we mutually pledge to each other, our lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor," a great and genuine cheer goes up. To the accompaniment of the church organ which is on the platform the choir sings patriotic songs.

The singing is genuine and hearty. Then the orator. Whose soul would not swell within in him in this patriotic environment? If he is from the artificial life of the city the genuineness of the occasion must move him to genuine utterance and his soul flies to his lips. He surprises himself with the true eloquence that moves him. It is called a "great speech." The man who could not make a great speech under such influences is fit for treason, strategem and spoils. If there is any love of country within him it must come out.

There are sports and firecrackers and fireworks of course. The "new boy" is there as he is everywhere. But there is an honest and sincere celebration of the day. God bless the village celebrants. They are the salt of the earth.—Des Moines News.

Old Ladies Are Privileged to Wonder.

"How long does the train stop here?" the old lady asked the brakeman.

"Stop here?" answered the functionary. "Four minutes. From two to two to two-two."

"I wonder," mused the old lady, "if that man thinks he is the whistle?"—Indianapolis Press.

Polly's Change of Mind.

"OF course," he was saying, "if the question concerned only you I should not ask you for more than a simple answer, but I am involved too deeply myself to be shelved lightly, and I feel that I have at least an honest right to be answered more lengthily than by a short 'No.' However significant that word may be, it is at best insufficient."

"I might be angry with you for what you have said," she replied.

"Well, yes, but I am willing to run the risk," he said, with a short, mirthless laugh. It had to her ears a little pathetic ring, and she turned and looked curiously at him.

"Does it really hurt you so much, Dicky?" she asked.

"Ah, Polly," he broke out, roughly, "you women little know how stinging even your softest words are sometimes. And the sting does not always go away quickly," he aded bitterly.

"Poor Dick," she said softly, "really I didn't mean to hurt you so. I didn't know that you cared so much."

He raised his head and looked at her eagerly, but he saw only pity, and the drawn, tense look came again over his face.

"I thought that we were merely good friends," she continued. "I never dreamed that you would have been so foolish. We have been such jolly comrades, and now you have spoiled everything. No, don't interrupt me," she said, quickly. "You need not get angry. You have, you know well, spoiled all. We shall never be on really good terms again. There will always be a constraint."

"Polly," he interrupted gravely, "do you know how you are hurting me?"

She turned upon him, startled at his words. Surely the man sitting opposite her was not her old Dick.

"Forgive me," she said, contritely; "I was heedless, dear." She really pitied him, yet somehow she hardly knew how to take him as he appeared now.

"Poor Dicky," she said again, "I ought to have seen the drift of things, but I have been unkind. I see it all now, but you will forgive? It was simply unintentional."

"Dear Polly," he said, "you weren't to blame. I, not you, was blind. I should have known that you could never have cared for such as I. I am unworthy of you. I have always felt, but," he added, "I chose to dream, I chose to play with fire, and I have got the usual punishment."

"Poor Dicky," she said, softly, and even as she spoke a look of wondrous pity came into her eyes. All her former ideals seemed to totter and to be on the verge of falling.

The other rose unsteadily and held out his hand. "Dear little Polly," and his voice trembled, "you were not to blame. I think I had better go. I am in—good-by. I shall go away for a while. I don't know when I shall return."

He remained for an instant waiting for some answer, but none came. He tried to scan her face, but there was a haze before his eyes and he could see only the blurred oval outlines. Her lip was quivering, too, and her eyes were full of tears, yet he did not see them. Then he turned and walked mechanically toward the door, opened it and went out of the room.

The other remained standing, looking apparently at the floor, but in reality saying nothing.

"Poor Dicky," she murmured, "poor Dicky," and in her eyes a newer light still shone through the tears. Then running swiftly to the door she opened it and called his name.

The sound of her voice startled him, and he turned and looked wonderingly at her. The haze seemed suddenly to lift from before him, and he noted for the first time the little, tear-stained face. The new light in her eyes stirred him strangely. The smile that hovered around her still quivering lips tantalized him, and at the same time raised a wild hope in his breast. He ran rather than walked to her, grasped her hands roughly and searched her face eagerly. Neither spoke for a few seconds, and then it was she who broke the strained silence.

"You foolish boy," was all she said, but he understood.

QUEER FISHING IN JAMAICA.

You Pound on the Boat with a Club and They Jump Aboard.

A gentleman who has returned from Kingston, Jamaica, tells how they catch "red snappers." All you need in the way of tackle is a club, with which you beat a tattoo on the side of your boat. This seems to charm the fish so that they leave their native element and jump aboard in schools, almost swamping the boat sometimes. Here is his account:

"I have just returned from Kingston, Jamaica," said he, "where I saw many interesting things, chief among them—to an ardent fisherman like myself—being the method of taking the red snapper, a large fish common to the waters around that island. Soon after my arrival I heard how the natives caught these fish with clubs, which seemed either to attract or alarm the fish so much that they jumped out of the water in all directions and many fell into the boat.

"In order to prove the truth or falseness of the account to my own satisfaction I made arrangements with one of the native fishermen to take me with him on one of his midnight excursions, all the fishing there being done at night on account of the heat.

"The moon was high when we started for the fishing grounds, a couple of miles outside Kingston harbor. As soon as we got there my boatman ceased rowing and peered round for signs of the fish. Suddenly he whispered and pointed to a spot where the otherwise calm surface was ruffled, as if by a sudden squall.

"Squall or fish, it was gradually approaching, and presently the ripples were all round the boat. Now, massa Buckra, start de racket,' cried my boatman, at the same time commencing a loud tattoo on the side of the boat with his club. I followed suit, and in an instant the air seemed to be full of fish, coming from all points of the compass.

"One big fellow struck me in the chest and knocked me flat on my back in the bottom of the boat, where I lay floundering among the fish that had fallen aboard.

"It was some moment's before I could scramble to my feet. When I did so, the school had passed on and the flight was over. At least a score of the snappers had fallen on board. They were large fish, resembling a sea bass, except in color, which, instead of being black, was red.

"During the night we ran into several more schools, and the same performance was repeated, excepting that I kept my seat and did not again mingle with the fish in the bottom of the boat.

"On the way back to Kingston I asked the darky fisherman how they first discovered this method of taking the red snapper. He could tell me nothing about it; all he could say being: 'Him take dat way long time, massa.'

"I heard later that a Chinaman was the first to discover that a red snapper could be persuaded to leave its native element at the sound of a club applied to a boat's side, but how he found it out nobody seemed to know."

SHE GOT HER BOTTLE OF INK.

But the Parcel Was Big Enough to Contain a Safe.

One woman who lives in Pine avenue went shopping. This happened last Monday. She left her home with purple plumes in her bonnet, and she lost not one of them in her trip downtown.

She had read an advertisement in a Sunday newspaper. It told her that she could buy a bottle of ink for 1 cent. The woman bought the ink for a penny and asked that it be delivered to her home. The clerk said nothing. Neither did the man in the parcel-room. He worked by himself. Delivering a penny purchase was ripe walnuts to the man.

Next day a wagon with a silk hatted man on the driver's seat and a freckle-faced boy as a tiger on the rear step rolled up in front of the house in Pine avenue.

The freckle-faced lad ran up the steps and crushed the electric button with a thumb which he had used but a few moments before in "shooting craps." This game, by the way, is one of chance. He held in his arms a box of goodly size. The woman of the house opened the door.

"Mrs. So and So?" asked the boy with the freckles.

"Yes," was the woman's reply.

"Kindly receipt this slip."

"Why, I have nothing coming in such bulk," the woman said.

"But you are So and So?" the freckled boy inquired.

"Yes," declared the woman, "but there must be a mistake."

However, the box was taken to the kitchen and opened with sledge and hammer. Excelsior was strewn upon the floor in the woman's wild endeavor to solve the secret of the inclosure. It clung in yellow strands about the pipes of the sink, puffed its way into the door leading to the wild roses in the back yard and clogged the passage to the dining-room.

Then the woman in Pine avenue found her 1-cent bottle of ink. It was in the center of this great wad of shavings.

The man in the parcel-room was one of jest and merriment. He rolled nonsense into a joke and enjoys the fun, even if it did cost a penny or two more to the firm.—Chicago Chronicle.

Snake Imprisoned in a Tree.

The Rev. S. S. Crain, in the city today from Emberson, reported a peculiar incident. He had W. M. Fears, living on the Jesse Caviness place, cutting posts for him a few days ago. At the end of one of the pieces of post timbers was a hollow fork. When the cut was split open a little black snake about two feet long was found in the hollow. It was alive and writhed and squirmed, but could not escape. It was discovered that an inch and a half of the tail projected through the wood on the outside of the bark. The fork of the tree had completely grown around it. The supposition is that the snake crawled into the hollow to hibernate, that its tail got caught in a crack of the fork and that it grew over him while he remained in the torpid state. The wood had so thoroughly grown around the snake's body that when the chip was split open in which it was encased the snake stuck to one side of the chip. The snake must have been held in its peculiar prison for years.—Dallas News.

A Fin-de-Siecle Church.

The rector of St. Mary-at-Hill Church, Monument (the Rev. W. Carlile), in whose church the electrophone has for some time been installed, is now arranging for the introduction of a large gramophone, to be used at the 1:15 o'clock daily limelight service in the church. By means of the gramophone the congregation—wholly composed of city merchants and clerks—will hear brief addresses from the leading dignitaries of the church and from a number of prominent laymen.—London Globe.

Hanna, and Other Bosses.

Four years ago, at St. Louis, Boss Hanna announced the temporary chairman, and instead of putting it to vote called the man to the chair. He did the same thing last week at the republican national convention at Philadelphia. He himself as chairman of the national committee called the great meeting to order. Then he announced Senator Wolcott as temporary chairman. Someone should then have seconded the nomination and a vote should have been taken, and then the chairman could take his seat, make his speech, etc. Of course much of this is mere formality, as the man announced is always voted in as a matter of courtesy. But Hanna did not wait for any mere formality. He had picked out a man and that ended it. A democratic convention would have rebelled at such a high-handed proceeding. But republicans have got so used to having the bosses control everything that they don't kick. On a line with this act of Hanna's was the course he took to get Roosevelt nominated. He wanted the latter, but there were some who had expected to get a showing for a friend of their own and had worked up quite a boom for several good men. Hanna saw he must use a little strategy, so he pretended he did not want Roosevelt. At once two or three leaders who do not like Hanna concluded Roosevelt was the proper man. and they worked for him. At the proper time Hanna gave in gracefully to the prevailing sentiment and Roosevelt went in unanimously, just as the boss wanted him to. Hanna is the whole party.

White Man Uncertain.

The uncertainty of national politics is shown by a study of results of the past twenty-eight years.

1. In 1872 the republicans elected Gen. Grant for the second time by an immense majority.

2. In 1876, the democrats carried the country by three quarters of a million on popular vote, and if Tilden could have held but one of the twenty or more disputed electoral votes, he would have been president.

3. In 1880, the republicans carried the country, electing Garfield.

4. In 1884, the democrats carried the country, electing Cleveland.

5. In 1888, the republicans succeeded electing Gen. Harrison.

6. In 1892, the democrats again won, giving Cleveland his second term.

7. In 1896, the pendulum swung back and the republicans swept the country for McKinley.

8. In 1900 if the above regular changes are kept up, the democrats should win. This, however, remains to be seen.

Are in England.

Mr. and Mrs. Feagler had a letter from Wilson and Lester Saturday and another today. The boys had a nice passage over, taking eleven and one-half days to reach Liverpool. They were a little seasick the first two days, but after that were all right. After a two-days stop at Liverpool, they bought a tandem wheel and started across the country for London. They found nice roads and abundance of flowers, but some hilly country that compelled them to walk up hill and down. They visited several noted points including the castle and parish church at Lancaster, and one of the old druid circles. If the circle they saw was the famous Stonehenge circle near Salisbury, it would seem as if the boys had passed London and were heading for Southhampton, which in fact is their shortline to Paris.

A Day Well Spent.

The following persons were guests at the pleasant country home of Mr. and Mrs. Owen Hensinger, south of town, last Sunday: Theresa Gusler, Dayton, O.; Mrs. Anna Wells, Wendell and Germain Wells, Garrett; Freman Hensinger, wife and two children, O. Baker, Mrs. Jennie Dickinson and daughter Hazel, Miss Ollie Beatty, Mr. and Mrs. Elias Cartwright and two children. After supper of ice cream, lemonade and cake, the young people were shown through the sugar camp and then taken to the beaver dam near by. It is neeless to say that all enjoyed the visit although tired with their long walk to the woods.

BEAT SHERIDAN'S RIDE.

A Lucky Horse that Outclassed Tam O'Shanter's Mare, "Meg."

A saloon man at Stroh, the new cement town, gave a treat Saturday evening, same as he did two weeks before. It was a lunch and drinks at 15 cents per her capita and we suppose they had a high old time. At all events, it must have been lively, to scare away a well disposed horse. This horse was found Sunday morning near Frank Frederick's between Helmer and Ashley. Attached to the horse was the front half of a buggy which bore the appearance of hard luck. The horse looked as if he had been wrecked some where at sea, but was not materially damaged. Investigation showed the poor animal had broken loose at Stroh, probably being tired of waiting for its master, who was having a gay time and had started off on a wild run. It got rid of the rear half of the buggy, but seems to have followed the track of the new road all the way to Helmer. Then it turned east on the Wabash track and kept it till it reached Mr. Frederick's, where it was found. It had run on the railroad track about eight miles in all, crossed two good sized bridges and jumped bodily seven cattle guards. As it cleared the cattle guards with one bound, it was easy to see why it was not hurt. But it is hard to see how it escaped injury as it crossed the bridges on the bare cross ties and going on a run at that. If the poor thing could speak, it would no doubt give a thrilling experience and promise never to do it again. At last reports they were not certain whose horse it was.

Court Notes.

Saturday the court was engaged on the case of Wm. Brand vs L. J. Miller being the settlement of old accounts. The jury decided that Brand was entitled to balance due him of $48 50.

On Monday, the case of Ross vs. Lung came to trial before the jury. It appears that several years ago, Charles Ross lent Dan Lung $50. When payment was demanded, Lung claimed he did not owe that much, as Ross owed him grocery bills. The jury found that Lung owed the $50 and nearly that much more of interest on it. They also found that Ross owed a grocery bill to Lung. After this bill was deducted, Lung still owed Ross $64.94. And this was the judgment in his favor. McKennan & Mounts were attorneys for Ross, while Sharpless was for Lung.

The jury were dismissed for the day, and were called together again this forenoon, Tuesday, to try several cases.

The first was Blair vs. Fusselman, tried by the court. Blair got a judgment of $25 and his costs. We believe this was for legal services rendered Fusselman.

The case of Wapluski vs. Sherman, the plaintiff got $111.69. Mountz was for plaintiff and Sharpless for defendant.

OBITUARY.

Nellie R. Baxter was born at Auburn, Ind., November 30, 1884. When but four years of age she was bereft by the death of her devoted mother, Nellie Wheelock Baxter, and again at the age of thirteen by the death of her father, James B. Baxter.

She lived for some time at the home of W. T. Bope Esq., of Bad Axe, Mich., where she contracted lagrippe, followed by a decline which terminated her life. Her death occurred Sunday morning, June 17, at the home of her uncle, John W. Baxter, at Auburn. Nellie was greatly beloved by a large circle of friends. Her devotion to duty and her sweet, patient spirit endeared her to all who knew her best. The funeral services were conducted at the Baptist church of which she was a devoted and loyal member. Rev. W. P. Pearce of Goshen preached to a large concourse of sympathizing friends and relatives, using as a text the words: "He giveth His beloved sleep." The sermon which was full of comfort to the sorrowing, closed with the following poem:

God saw when her footsteps faltered, when her heart grew weak and faint;
He marked her strength was failing, and listened to her complaint.
He bade her rest for a moment, for the pathway had grown quite steep,
And folded in fair green pastures, He gave our Nellie sleep.

He gave it, oh, so gently! as a mot her will hush to rest
The babe that she softly pillows so tenderly on her breast,
Forgotten are now the trials and sorrows that made her weep;
For with many a soothing promise, He gave our Nellie sleep.

He gave it, for the dearest could never this boon bestow;
He touches the drooping eyelids, and placid the features grow;
He called her in from her labors, e'er the shadows around her crept,
And silently watching above her, He saw that Nellie slept.

All dread of a distant future, all fears that oppprest today;
Like mists that clear in the sunlight, have noiselessly passed away.
No call nor clamor can rouse her from slumber so sure and deep,
For His voice can reach her, who gave His Nellie sleep.

Weep not that her toils are over, weep not that her race is run;
God grant we may rest as calmly when our work like hers is done.
Till then we would yield with gladness, our treasure to Him to keep,
And rejoice in the sweet assurance, "He gave His beloved sleep."

REV. WILLIAM P. PEARCE.

Club Notes.

The L. L. C. met with Mrs. Mollie Robbins last Saturday with a good attendance. The first exercise on the program was an exceedingly bright little paper by Mrs. Nettie Eckhart entitled, "In Veranda Chairs," she gave an imaginary coversation of several ladies' seated on a veranda on a pleasant summer afternoon. Many funny things and some wisdom combined to make the paper enjoyable to all present. This was followed by "An Original Story" by Mrs. Ford. This story was founded on facts and personal experiences, and was entitled "Sunshine and Shadow." The pathos and joyousness of the story were delightfully intermingled and made the story one of sweetness and purity and left many pleasant memories.

After these two papers came some back work by the members. Washington state by Mrs. Husselman was a descripitive paper and containing much valuable information. Mrs. Emmuel followed by a paper on International Marriages, giving in a short but clear manner the advantages and disadvantages of such marriages.

Mrs. Ralston gave something new to the Club by bringing to the notice of the members the subject of the "Consumer's League" about which so much was said at the recent biennial. This subject is of great interest to Club Women as it realates chiefly to the working women and children of the "sweat shops" and is intended to do away with this great evil.

Miss Hague gave an interesting paper on "Chemical Experiments. She had intended to give the actual experiments but was unable to do so for lack of suitable material. She however gave an excellent paper on Yeast and Breadmaking. The Club decided several weeks ago to take Ethics and Literature next year and a committee was appointed to order the necessary books. The club decided to take up some line of work outside the regular literary work and decided to take the work of bettering the condition of the public school rooms by way of pictures and such other things as may be necessary for the comfort and pleasure of the children. A committee of five was appointed as follows: Miss Buckley, Mrs. Tillie McCord, Mrs. Emanuel, Mrs. Ralston and Mrs. Barns. The closing exercise was a conversation, "What have I gleaned during the club year?" This was a particularly pleasant exercise and was in fact an experience meeting in which everyone took part as her name was called.

Mrs. Lewis the president closed this part of the program with a short paper in which she commended the work of the past year and yet had "somewhat aught against" the members for neglecting to bring their work up on time in many cases and allowing trifles to interfere with their club duties. She also gave many suggestions for the conduct of the club for next year. The program was read for the next year's work. Club adjourned to meet next week with Mrs. McCord.

G. A. R. Important.

Auburn and DeKalb county G. A. R. people have an important meeting in preparation.

The reunion of the DeKalb Battalion G. A. R. will take place at Auburn, August 16. This reunion is growing in interest each year and this year will exceed all others in number and interest. Delegates will be present from adjoining counties of Lagrange, Noble and Steuben, and extensive arrangements will be made to attend the National encampment to be held in Chicago the last week in August. The commander of the state encampment and other well known speakers will attend the battalion meeting. DeLong Post has charge of all these arrangements and no stone should be left unturned to make the meeting one to be proud of. Every citizen of Auburn should take a pride in the success of this meeting, all the more as we are to have no other meeting or reunion this year. It will close with a camp-fire and be in all ways a complete soldiers' reunion.

On July 9, there will be the preliminary meeting at G. A. R. hall in Auburn, at which all arrangements of committees and other matters will be made. This meeting is especially important and every member should attend and assist.

Wheelman Badly Hurt.

Daniel Rorabaugh of Waterloo, who is employed in the Kiblinger faciory, met with quite a serious accident while going home on his wheel last evening. In company with his two brothers he was going up main street at a fast pace and when near the Adams residence the frame of the wheel broke just above the front fork. Rorabaugh went up in the air and then struck fairly on his face on the hard road. When picked up by his brothers the young man was unconscious. He was taken to the office Drs. Swarts, where it was found that his face was badly cut, both lips being split through, but fortunately no bones were broken. His wounds were dressed and later in the evening he was able to go home in a buggy.

An examination of the broken wheel showed that there had been a crack of at least half the circumference of the tubing at the point of breaking, so weakening the frame that an accident was inevitable. Under the circumstances the young man can consider himself fortunate that the results were no worse. He will probably be unable to work for several days.

FOURTH OF JULY CELEBRATION
at Auburn, Indiana.

Greatest Ball Game of the Season at the New Park, beginning at 3:15 p. m. Foot Races, Bicycle Races, &c.

Grand Band Concert and Lawn Fete.

Stupenduous Spectacular Illumination and Magnificent Fire Works in the Evening.

Owing to this being the busy time of the year for the farmers, it has been decided to celebrate only in the afternoon and evening, but Auburn intends to keep up her reputation for giving the people their money's worth.

COME, YOU WILL NOT REGRET IT.

Gould Remembered Them.

Some time ago, the two sons of John Stonestreet, Willie and Wilber, discovered a broken rail down near their home in Butler township and knowing that the fast train was almost due, they ran up the track and flaged it thus saving a fearful wreck. Now the boys are off on a trip to Oklahoma and Kansas, President Gould having sent them passes for the long trip. It pays better to save a train than it does to wreck one. In other words it always pays better to do right than it does to do wrong. We hope the lads will profit by their experience.

—Mr. W. S. Whedon, Cashier of the First National Bank of Winterset, Iowa, in a recent letter gives some experience with a carpenter in his employ, that will be of value to other mechanics. He says: "I had a carpenter working for me who was obliged to stop work for several days on account of being troubled with diarrhoea. I mentioned to him that I had been similarly troubled and that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy had cured me. He bought a bottle of it from the druggist here and informed me that one dose cured him, and he is again at his work." For sale by H. B. McCord.

—You may as well expect to run a steam engine without water as to find an active, energetic man with a torpid liver and you may know that his liver is torpid when he does not relish his food, or feels dull and languid after eating, often has headache and sometimes dizziness. A few doses of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets will restore his liver to its normal functions, renew his vitality, improve his digestion and make him feel like a new man. Price 25 cents. Samples free at McCord's drug store.

—For two years Ira W. Kelly of Mansfield, Pa., was in poor health on account of kidney or bladder trouble. He consulted several physicians and spent considerable money for medicines without obtaining relief until he tried Foley's Kidney Cure, and now writes: "I desire to add my testimony that it may be the cause of aiding others."

A New Remedy.

Stomach and Liver Troubles Now among the Easiest to Cure.

One by one the diseases once dificult to cure are yielding to scientific treatment. Skilled physicians here and there are receiving the reward of years of study and experiment. Dr. Stone is one of these. He has been content to work in a limited field, devoting his attention for almost thirty years to the treatment of stomach and liver trouble. He is now an acknowleged master of these troubles, and the two remedies with which he has accomplished nearly all his cures and now offered to you under the name of Dr. Stones New Dyspepsia Cure. This is a double remedy in one package. One tablet for the stomach, another for the liver. The two are a positive cure for indigestion, debility, nervous prostration, billiousness, constipation, headache, and all other ills arising from a disordered condition of the stomach or liver.

Sone's New Dyspepsia Cure is guaranteed to do all this. It is guaranteed to help you promptly and to cure you thouroughly. Stubborn cases of indigestion are frequently relieved from the first dose. Your money awaits you at your druggist's if the remedy fails to benefit. Price 50 cents. Sold by H. B. McCord.

—The lumber and other equipments used for the big Dunkard camp meeting at North Manchester was sold for $3,000. Lincoln, Neb., gets the next meeting.

—It will pay you to read the large bills about July 7.

—If you are going to paint see Culbertson & Boland. d&w

—How many can tell you about July 7? Ask them before you see large bills.

—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ashelman are happy in the arrival of a 10-pound girl baby today.

—Tell your neighbors about July 7, and take them a large bill which tells you all about it.

—The Hudson Banner has entered upon its third year of publication, and deserves success.

—Imitation is sincerest flattery, don't be pursuaded to take any of the many imitations of Russ Bleaching Blue.

—Miss Carrie Turner has lost a cuff pin, diamond shape, enameled, Finder please return to her at express office.

—Mrs. Sam Gibson and Miss Della Wagner drove to Newville this morning to visit in the family of John Hablawatz.

—Haven't enough American missionaries been murdered to permit Uncle Sam to claim a piece of China as indemnity?

—A fossil animal has been found in New Jersey, and we should like to know whether Senator Hoar has reached home safely.

—An exchange says the new disease, "lint on the lungs," is caused by "chewing the rag" and is liable to become epidemic in this presidential year.

—LOST:—East of Auburn, white cloth satchel containing overalls, shirts, shoes, etc. Finder will please leave at this office and receive a liberal reward.

—The first thing China knows, someone will propose to lift that open door off its hinges and let in some outside air. And they'll do it too, if she says much.

—Frank Rohm who has been employed at G. H. Yeshera's store for some time, has severed his connection. We have not learned to what he will turn his attention.

—Oscar Hoffman has on hand at his machine shop east of the opera house, all kinds of pipe and brass fittings for boilers, engines and mill machinery. Call on him for repairs. j4tf —Of course Dewey has retired. When Ohio instructed for Bryan, it was evident that Mrs. Dewey couldn't control her own state and of course she had to withdraw her candidate.

—Mr. Gessman of Fort Wayne was here Saturday adjusting the matter of annuity policy held by the late James Griswold on the life of his second wife. The proceeds go to her children and grandchildren.

—Rilla, daughter of John Strouse, was thrown backward out of a wagon yesterday by the horses starting suddenly. She was somewhat bruised about the head and sholders, but not seriously injured.

—There will be a hot time in Auburn July 7.

—E. E. Grogg of Keyser is the latest new subscriber to the Weekly. He was here Saturday to have the paper of his brother B. S. Grogg changed to his present location at Stella, Wash.

—Engineer Lantz was over from Garrett Saturday. He goes to Baltimore in a few days in the interest of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers whose committeeman he has been for many years.

—Mrs. J. P. Schrier of Aurora, Ill., will arrive this evening over the B. & O. for an extended visit with Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Lochner. Before returning to her home she will also visit her parents in eastern Ohio.

—J. W. McKay, at Lima, while sending his subscription to 1901, adds that he and Mrs. M. are pretty lonesome now, as both George and Ethel are now located at Somerset, Ky. But all are well and prospering.

—Fatal mistakes are made by those who do not heed the earlier symptoms of kidney or bladder trouble that often end in Bright's disease or diabetes. When Foley's Kidney Cure makes the kidneys well, how foolish it is to delay. H. B. McCord.

—The Fort Wayne-Butler railroad seems to be an assured thing as a company has been organized to build the line. The company is composed for the most part of Fort Wayne capitalists and the charter has been issued by the secretary of state.

—Married at the Lutheran parsonage last Saturday at 5 p m., by Rev. J. D. Brosy, Frank W. Hull and Miss Jennie S. Dickover, both of this city. They left for Cedarville where they spent Sunday with friends. They will commence housekeeping in a few weeks. We wish this couple a happy future.

—It's July 7, 1900. See large bills.

—Miss Madge B. Yeagley returned home to Ohio today after a three days' visit with her cousin, Mino Hendershot. She was entertained on Sunday by Miss Maud Hosack at the home of Mrs. Ella Allen. The little city of Auburn impressed her as a lively business center and full of enterprise, with what is called in common parlance "plenty of hustle," comparing favorably with Ohio towns of similar advantages.

—A number of Northern Indiana newspapers which get their telegraph service through a plate house at Chicago, last Wednesday afternoon printed a detailed report of the re-nomination of President McKinley. Senator Foraker's speech presenting McKinley's name was pronounced a masterful effort and the convention was reputed to have gone wild when the nomination was made by acclamation. McKinley's nomination, as is well known, was not made until Thursday.

—The corn prospect is reported as being fine throughout the state. In bottom lands in some places the floods have ruined the crops, but that complaint is not general.

—Our dealers are displaying fireworks of all kinds from the midget cracker to the big sky-rocket. Auburn will have plenty of noise on the Fourth and we will have a big blow-out in Auburn.

—At the Morrow meeting at the Baptist church Sunday afternoon Orval Kuhlman and Leila Warrick will give a bottle and organ duet. There will also be singing by a ladies' quartet.

—Somebody imformed Miss Edith Rickel's bird dogs that they had been advertised in the COURIER as lost, and they at once came back home. The owner is happy, the dogs seem to be contented, and again we are permitted to point to the fact that the COURIER is a good advertising medium.

—A letter from S. Z. Dickinson at Tecumseh, Mich. says he is there on a visit with his sons. All are well. Charlie just left for Cripple Creek, to visit Bird for a short time. The wheat and hay up there will be a light crop, but corn, oats and potatoes look well, and fruit bids fair for a good crop.

—A Roann boy was playing in a box car on the Wabash track there the other day when a playmate shut him in and he was carried to Churubusco. The little fellow started to walk back home and on reaching Columbia City was given a ticket to Roann by the Wabash agent. This is a pointer to Auburn boys who play about the railroads.

—An exchange tells of a plan for increasing the attendance at lodge meetings. Place in a deep sack as many beans as there are members present, all white except one, that one black. Each member then puts in his hand and draws out one bean. The member getting the black bean has his assessments paid by the lodge for that month.

BEST KIND OF A GIRL.

THE home-loving girl—the home-keeping-home-blessing girl—the girl who cares nothing about a career, who is contented, her school days being over, just to stay for awhile in the household, adding to the happiness of the dear ones there.

She may never see her name in print, nor paint a picture for the world's admiration, nor shine in any conspicuous way outside the narrow limits of her own town, where everybody knows and loves her, but she is none the less a sweet, winsome and useful young woman, this girl whose distinction it is that she is the daughter of the house, taking cheerfully upon her whatever duties fall to her lot. Her bright face, her trim figure, her light step as she goes from room to room, her merry laugh and ready jest are part of her lovable nature, and her father is proud when he escorts her to a concert or party, rejoicing in her beauty and her charm. Her mother speaks of her as "such a comfort," and the younger children in the family simply adore her. If she has brothers, they are kept from many temptations, and cling more closely than they otherwise would to the home where the sister diffuses so pure and sweet an influence, says the Toronto News.

It is something worth living for, the being of so much value to a group of people, helping the mother with her friends, her poor, her correspondence, and her housekeeping, uplifting the father when his spirits droop and the cares of the world press heavily upon him. Successful and delightful any girl may be even though she cannot stay all day in the home. If it be her duty to be away, teaching in kindergarten or primary school, writing in an office or selling good in a shop, she loses not a bit of her true worth in the household through her brave independence and her endeavor to relieve her parents of her support.

I know girls who not only support themselves, but contribute generously to the family exchequer—girls whose earnings are poured regularly into their mother's lap when the week reaches its end; mothers counseling about their spending; mothers telling them what they may keep for their car fare and their luncheons, and what they may lay aside for the new gown or hat. Splendidly loyal and true-hearted are these dear young working girls, and all who know them honor them for their worth, while in their homes they are tenderly loved, because of their unselfish devotion to those who need their help.

Home-Made Hall Chair.

There is nothing like carpentering for a healthy boy, or girl either, to expend his or her energies upon, and any number of useful articles may be made by home talent, especially as at the steam turning mills legs for chairs and tables may be made after any pattern. For instance, the accompanying cut shows a simple design for a hall chair in a country house, which was made by a clever young woman out of a barrel, a broken chair and two back supports made out of ash. The staves were fastened on the latter with antique nails, and formed the back, the round top, the seat, and the front legs, new crosspieces being procured from the broken chair. The whole was scraped, stained and polished to imitate old oak.

Breaking Engagements.

In discussing the subject of broken engagements, Sarah Grand says: "It does not seem to me that there can be any doubt that it is justifiable to break off engagements only under special circumstances which may threaten to bring unhappiness on the pair should they marry. At the same time I do not think that an engagement should be broken off for any but the most serious reasons, and I believe the contempt we feel and the stigma which attaches to the man of many engagements and to the girl who has broken off one after another are the involuntary outcome of a knowledge of character. We know from experience that people of that kind, with no proper sense of responsibility, are mere froth on the surface of society, undesirable as acquaintances and not worth counting as citizens.

"But, if engagements were to be irrevocable, the chances of misery in marriage would be double what they are now, and, unhappily, they are only too numerous as it is. Of course, no honorable person will enter into an engagement without the honest intention of fulfilling it, and therefore when such people become engaged and afterward break it off it is pretty certain to be for good and sufficient reason."

Colors for Marriage.

Married in white,
You have chosen all right,
Married in gray,
You will go far away.
Married in black,
You will wish yourself back,
Married in red,
You'd better be dead.
Married in green,
Ashamed to be seen.
Married in blue,
You'll always be true.
Married in pearl,
You will live in a whirl.
Married in yellow,
Ashamed of the fellow.
Married in brown,
You'll live out of town.
Married in pink,
Your spirits will sink.

The Passing of the Piano.

Lists in petticoats have been so numerous the past twenty-five years as to escape recognition. It was the girl who did not play that was singled out as an oddity. For one Sonia Kovalesky and her supreme mastery of mathematics there were a million slaves of the ivory. Not even the sewing machine routed the piano, though it dealt it a dangerous body blow. Treadles and pedals are not so far asunder, and a neat piano technique has been found quite useful by the ardent typewriter. So some good has resulted. What this present generation of children has to be especially thankful for is its immunity from useless piano practice. Unless there is a sharply defined aptitude a girl is now kept away from the stool and pedals. Instead of the crooked back—known in Germany as the piano back—and relentless technical studies, our young woman golfs, cycles, rows, runs, dances and fences. While she once wearied her heart playing Gottschalk, she now plays tennis, and I am free to admit that tennis is a greater game than Thalberg.—James Huneker, in Harper's Bazar.

A Pioneer Missionary.

Miss Mary G. Burdette, sister of Robert Burdette, is devoting a great deal of time to Baptist missionary work. She is Corresponding Secretary of the Woman's Home Mission Society, which has headquarters in Chicago. Miss Burdette was a prominent figure in the Detroit, Mich., convention. She told of the work her society is accomplishing among the Indians, negroes of the South and Chinese of San Francisco. Miss Burdette joined the society the year after its organization.

MISS BURDETTE.

When You Write a Letter.

To every one outside the family circle the Christian name and surname should be written in full, says Mrs. Burton Kingsland in the Ladies' Home Journal. A married woman writes her name Mary Bruce Talbot, and in a business letter adds beneath it, in brackets, Mrs. John Talbot. An unmarried woman writes "Miss" in brackets before her full name, to a stranger when a reply is expected.

Typewritten letters are only admissible for business communications. In such epistles the signatures should be written by hand.

Speak first of the interests of your correspondent and afterward of those which concern yourself.

Never write anything over your own signature of which you might later be ashamed.

Never allow any one to read a letter intended for your eyes alone. It is intrusted to your honor, even if not so explicitly stated.

A letter sent by hand should be left unsealed, unless a servant be the messenger.

Business letters should begin with "Sir," "Dear Sir," or "My Dear Sir," or if in the plural, with "Gentlemen;" and end with "Yours truly," or "Respectfully yours"—never "Respectfully" alone, omitting the subject of the sentence. Ladies are addressed as "Madam," whether married or unmarried.

Power of Little Things.

It is the little things that count in life. In the household, in the daily expenditures of life and in the necessary buying for personal belongings, which is every woman's lot, the large sum outlayed for an article of size does not eat into the hoard half so much as the dozen and one tiny articles which must be had, and which seem so little and insignificant by themselves that they are thought unworthy to be counted, but which end by making the entire sum laid out for the "sundries" vanish, and not infrequently take a good sized slice out of some other division.

In the same way the "little things" are the very marks of that refinement which is desired by every woman as a characteristic. The gown may be elegant, the hat expensive, but the little details, a well-fitting shoe, a neat glove, the fresh ribbons or laces, all these things tell the invariable tale of delicate taste and a knowledge of the effect of dress which is the essence of style.

How to Cure a Headache.

Take a sponge and basin of water as hot as can be used. Pass the hot sponge slowly and steadily over the face and forehead for eight or ten minutes, keeping the sponge as hot as it can be used, says the New York Telegram. By this time the face will seem as if it were parboiled. Dry it in a soft towel.

Next bathe the back of the neck as you have done the face, carrying the sponge each time well up the back of the head. Keep up the bathing for some length of time, then, if thirsty, take a cooling draught, and lie quietly for half an hour to rest. If sleep is not likely to visit you, just lie in the darkened room with closed eyes, and try to rest the brain.

A Philanthropic Queen.

Queen Marie Amelia of Portugal is generally conceded to be the most philanthropic woman in Europe. In all the principal cities and towns of Portugal Queen Marie Amelia has organized systems of dispensary and ambulance service, and has made popular the serum antidotes for diphtheria and the bubonic plague by being inoculated with the antitoxines herself. She spends the greater part of her time in the Lisbon hospitals nursing the patients suffering from diphtheria and the black death pestilence. In order to render herself more useful to the physicians in this work she has studied medicine for several years and was recently awarded a physician's diploma.

TO HANNA'S BARREL.

ALL GOVERNMENT EMPLOYES MUST CONTRIBUTE.

Quadrennial Holdup by Republican Campaign Agents—Washington Employes Are Asked for $40,000—People Are Looking to Democracy for Relief.

Washington correspondence:

A campaign fund is now the real thing with the Republican managers. No source of revenue is neglected. The latest victims—unwilling ones, too—are the Capitol employes. The late Republican Congress generously voted them all an extra month's pay just before adjournment. This meant $80,000 out of the Treasury, but it was really only a trifle compared to a good many other questionable appropriations. The Capitol employes were very grateful. But a change has now come over the spirit of their dream. They have been invited to turn over half that month's salary to one of the Republican campaign agents. Forty thousand dollars is not to be despised in this year when so much money is needed to gild the Republican idol and so little is forthcoming.

Of course the Capitol employes will pay their assessment, but they are neither so cheerful nor so grateful as they were a while ago. The agent detailed to collect this particular assessment admits very frankly that it has been levied and looks surprised and pained that the employes in question should make any objection.

But, for that matter, a raid is to be made on the salaries of all government officials and clerks. The letter of the law will be kept, but outside parties will make the assessment. The National Commercial and Industrial League of New York City will raid the postmasters of the country. The "league" has the blessing and hearty support of the Republican National Committee. Nobody who can possibly be levied upon is to escape.

Mark Hanna is not exactly popular in Washington even among the members of his own party. He is too brutal and coarse in his methods. There has been an unusual amount of grumbling about his methods lately, but Hanna only chuckles and serves notice that he has spent the last four years constructing a machine which nobody can operate but himself and his henchmen. His "campaign of education" consists in the liberal use of money to buy anybody who can be bought or bribed and the concealment or misrepresentation of the facts to those who want to know how the government has been managed. Hanna will stay right with the party. It cannot get rid of its Old Man of the Sea.

The wage workers in the big industrial centers are inclined to be very suspicious over the refusal of the Republicans to print 10,000 copies of the testimony in the Coeur d'Alene investigation. The Republicans overlooked the fact that working men, whether members of unions or not, were intensely interested in the rumors that they heard from Idaho during the year that martial law was in operation. They looked to the Congressional investigation to establish the facts.

The net result of the investigation are two committee reports. The Republican majority approves the application of martial law, and records itself in favor of forcing free men to beg for military "permits" in order to get an opportunity to look for employment. The Democratic minority of the committee severely censures the conduct of the United States troops, and denounces the institution of the "permit" system as a dangerous infringement on the constitutional rights of citizenship. Up to this time the workingmen of the large cities have not made the matter a partisan one. They have desired to know the facts in order that they might judge for themselves. But when the Republicans back up their report with a refusal to have the testimony printed, the presumption is a strong one that the facts do not warrant their report.

The Democratic minority of the committee accompanied their report with a recommendation that 10,000 copies of the testimony be printed for general distribution. The refusal to do this has put the Republicans in a bad light, and already one very large and influential trade union has pledged itself to vote against an administration that favors the "permit" system. The very efforts of the Republicans to suppress the whole matter have made it a national issue with wage workers, and their votes will largely determine the result.

As the time of the Democratic national convention draws near the indications multiply that principles and not personal or sectional differences, will control. The recent news that the Philippines are farther than ever from being conquered, makes an energetic protest against imperialism and militarism probably the leading plank in the platform. The failure of the Republicans to even attempt any restraint of trusts forces that issue to the front, and there is no doubt but the principles of 1896 will be reaffirmed.

It becomes more evident daily that the honest and law-abiding element of citizenship all over the country looks to the Democratic party to lead the way to the establishment of government upon a sound basis again. The McKinley administration has shown such an evident desire to get rid of constitutional restraint, both at home and abroad, that the people are alarmed.

The average citizen is not blinded by the glamor of imperialism and militarism, nor is he enthusiastic about trust prosperity. The average citizen realizes that he has to foot the bills for the imperialistic extravagance and trust prosperity neither warms him nor feeds him nor clothes him. When it is conceded in Washington that the drift of popular sentiment is toward the Democratic party as the party of safety and law and order, it is an indication of how strong must be the sentiment in other parts of the country. The administration is thoroughly frightened, but still tries to soothe itself by assuring the people that it will do better if it is only given another trial.

National Issues.

In 1896 Hanna made up his mind that the tariff must be the great issue of the campaign, and the Republican presses were kept busy turning out "educational" tracts on the tariff for use during the political fight. But the people didn't consider the tariff its chief issue by any means, and the literature on that subject had to be cast aside and a new line of "education" had to be taken up on the money question.

This year Hanna wants the money question to be the chief issue because he knows that that question has been practically settled by Congress for the next four years and he wants to direct attention from imperialism, trusts and militarism. But it looks as though Hanna would again be disappointed. While the money question is important, the people are thinking more to-day about the new issues which have been forced upon them by the corruption and the criminal ambition of the McKinley administration.

Recently the Democratic State convention of Ohio placed that State in line with New York and Pennsylvania in declaring that the coming fight shall be made on the issues of 1900 and not on those chosen by Mark Hanna. Reaffirming adherence to the Chicago platform of 1896, it is declared "new and grave issues have arisen, threatening the safety of free government itself, which should command at this time the most serious attention of all patriotic citizens." These issues are briefly and forcibly stated to be imperialism, announced in the doctrine the constitution does not apply to newly acquired territories, and which of itself leads directly to militarism; trusts come second, as arbitrarily controlling production and prices in the interest of combined capital as a monster evil that must be wiped off the face of the land by summary processes. The currency law of the last Congress, laying the foundation for a national money trust, is denounced as it should be. If trusts are wrongful, will not this be the worst of the brood?

It looks now as though these three great issues would command the attention of the people during the campaign this year, and assuredly they are of great and grave importance.—Chicago Democrat.

WILLIE AND HIS PAPA.

"What have you got those funny clothes on for, papa?"

"I'm getting ready to pose as the Workingman's Friend during the campaign, Willie."—New York Journal.

Not "For the People."

United States Judge Townsend has decided that Porto Rico is a foreign country. Some stupid importer of cigars thought it was a part of this one, and that the "plain duty" of giving it free trade, according to Mr. McKinley, was not a duty of 35 cents a pound on tobacco. The Judge says that the treaty with Spain did not stipulate for the incorporation of the inhabitants of Porto Rico within the Union, as there has always been in prior treaties. But Congress shall determine its relations to the United States.

Did some sharp-witted Republican foresee this and manage the treaty so as to omit this usual clause? Is it a part of the imperialistic scheme? Undoubtedly it is now, at any rate. Because the Republican majority in Congress might have made good the omission of the treaty and "incorporated Porto Rico within the Union." On the contrary, it determined that Porto Rico is to be a subject province to be governed by arbitrary outside force. That a republic founded on the principle of self-government shall establish a government without the consent of the governed. That it shall be a "government of a people by a people," but not "for a people," as Lincoln put it in the Gettysburg speech. So far as Porto Rico and the Philippines are concerned the Republican majority in Congress decided that such a government should, in Lincoln's words, "perish from the earth."

An Embarrassing Situation.

The Chinese situation creates a new embarrassment for the administration. Although it has been straining its resources to quickly re-enforce the Philippine army, at the same time it has been declaring the Luzon insurrection at an end. Now, if occasion should arise for the dispatch of say 25,000 troops to China it would not dare to send them for fear of Aguinaldo. But how would it account for the discrepancy between assertion and fact? The chances seem to be that a large force will have to be sent to Tien-Tsin if we are unwilling to have all of our missionaries butchered and lose our commercial hold on the empire. But where is it to come from?—Washington Times.

Live by Each Others' Aid.

The very existence of the Republican party depends on the aid and sympathy of the big combines of capital. Without a slush fund of millions and the active coercion of employes by the great corporations, the Republicans could no more carry this country than they could take wings and fly. And they know it. Would they kill the goose that lays their golden egg? Not when such shrewd and unprincipled men as the Hanna type control the organization. They know enough to know that is suicide.—Houston Post.

Tanner-Cullom Fight for Spoils.

Illinois Democrats should not fail to profit to the utmost from this hearty continuance of the Tanner-Cullom war. It is a merry war for the Democrats. When the bugles sing truce at the close of election day in November the ensuing count of votes should find victory perching on the Democratic standard. Which result would doubtless greatly tickle the people of Illinois, wearied to death of a factional feud for spoils in which the public interest received no consideration whatever.—St. Louis Republic.

No Need of a Gold Ticket.

The talk of nominating a "gold Democrat" Presidential ticket this year should and most probably will end in talk. There is no occasion for such a ticket. Four years ago free silver was the dominant issue in the campaign. This year, though it may be talked about in certain sections, it will not be an issue at all, because the money question is settled for at least four years to come by an unchangeable Republican majority in the Senate.—New York World.

Democratic Party and Trusts.

The trust organs of the country are congratulating themselves that Democratic opposition to trusts will be crippled by the ice trust corruption in New York City. Fortunately the New York ice trust cuts little ice with the Democratic party, except to make it more determined to suppress these evils. The Democratic party has its scoundrels, but it does not defend them, and it does not propose to let them control it in regard to trusts.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

How History Will View Them.

The distinguished Republican statesman, Mr. Boutell, expresses the opinion that the fair-minded historian will be able to frame a better defense for President Johnson than the historian, or the casuist even, will be able to offer in behalf of President McKinley. Considering the bitterness of the Republican feeling against President Johnson, this is a very strong expression.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

An Imperialistic Tendency.

There is a well-defined imperialistic tendency in this country at the present time, against which the Democratic party may well protest. It is shown in the avowed purpose to govern our new possessions outside of the constitution. Its most marked manifestation was in the enactment of the Porto Rican tariff, and in the enunciation of the Presidential theory that the constitution does not follow the flag.

Plenty of Campaign Material.

The Democrats will find all the campaign ammunition they need in the action and nonaction of the late session of congress in its assertion of unconstitutional powers, its extravagance and waste, its green-goods anti-trust amendment and its refusal to reduce oppressive and needless taxation—needless for any other purpose than to create a treasury surplus for jobbing purposes.—Pittsburg Post.

Returning to the Fold.

The action of many prominent "gold Democrats" throughout the country in attending the regular Democratic convention and allowing the Chicago platform to be reaffirmed without a dissenting vote makes it plain that most of those who left the party four years ago will be with it again in the national election this year.—Minneapolis Times.

Cost of a War that Is "Over."

For a war that is "over," as Gen. Otis says, the Philippine unpleasantness is a mighty costly affair. The sum allotted by congress for continuing Filipino pacification during the next fiscal year is $131,247,155.—Philadelphia Record.

At the Mercy of the Trust.

If Secretary Long considers whatever the trust may choose to ask for armor plate a fair price, good-by to the several millions of Uncle Sam's money that will go into the extortionate maw of monopoly.—Kansas City Times.

There Will Be Reciprocity.

The submission of the Republican majority to the will of the armor plate trust evidently means a quiet submission on the part of the trust when the man with the frying-pan comes around.—Omaha World-Herald.

A Natural Tendency.

"I guess Binx has just had a raise in salary," said the confirmed cynic."

"Has anybody told you so?"

"No; but he goes about saying he thinks the world is getting better, and that the danger from trusts is greatly magnified, and that human nature isn't so bad after all. That's the way a man nearly always talks just after he has had a raise in salary."—Washington Star.

South African Winter.

The South African winter begins toward the end of April, and lasts until September. It is a very common fallacy to suppose that it is always warm, if not hot, under the southern cross; it can be cold enough to "freeze the tail off a brass monkey," as the miners say. Here and there, but very rarely, there will be snow. It may freeze on most nights, particularly on the uplands, and at a 5,000 foot or greater elevation above the sea. During the day it is cold but clear, bright, dry and eternally sunny, with a cloudless blue sky and an exhilaration of atmosphere unequaled in any other part of the world.—Montreal Weekly Star.

HAIR HELP

So many persons have hair that is stubborn and dull. It won't grow. What's the reason? Hair needs help just as anything else does at times. The roots require feeding. When hair stops growing it loses its luster. It looks dead.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

acts almost instantly on such hair. It awakens new life in the hair bulbs. The effect is astonishing. Your hair grows, becomes thicker, and all dandruff is removed.

And the original color of early life is restored to faded or gray hair. This is always the case.

$1.00 a bottle. All druggists.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor, and am really astonished at the good it has done in keeping my hair from coming out. It is the best tonic I have tried, and I shall continue to recommend it to my friends." MATTIE HOLT, Sept. 24, 1898. Burlington, N. C.

If you do not obtain all the benefits you expected from the use of the Hair Vigor, write the Doctor about it. DR. J. C. AYER, Lowell, Mass.

The Act of Yawning.

In his "Therapeutic Aspects" Dr. H. Campbell says: "There can be little doubt that one of the objects of yawning is the exercise of muscles which have been for a long time quiescent, and the acceleration of the blood and lymph flow which has in consequence of this quiescence become sluggish. Hence its frequency after one has remained for some time in the same position—e. g., when waking in the morning. Co-operating with this cause is sleepiness and the shallow breathing which it entails. This factor, as well as muscle quiescence, is apt to attend the sense of boredom which one experiences in listening to a dull sermon Hence it is that the bored individual is apt to yawn. As in the case of sighing, the deep breath compensates for the shallow breathing which is so apt to excite it."

Weight of a Bee.

Careful weighing shows that an ordinary bee, not loaded, weighs the five-thousandth part of a pound so that it takes five thousand bees to make a pound. But the loaded bee, when he comes in fresh from the fields and flowers, freighted with honey or bee-bread, weighs nearly three times more.

A Masculine Accomplishment.

Base Apathy.

"Say, Thompson, did you ever notice that I was brutally indifferent to my children?"

"Certainly not. You're quite the contrary, Holmes."

"Well, do I look like a miscreant who would be only too glad to abandon them to the mercy of strangers?"

"Of course not. What ever put such an idea into your head?"

"Or have I the reputation of being so selfish that I would not disturb or expose myself in the slightest to secure their safety from the most desperate danger?"

"No, indeed. Who's been accusing you of such things?"

"My wife."

"Your wife? Why?"

"Why, little Johnny got himself lost for a couple of hours the other day, and all I did was to notify the police, hire every private detective in town and rouse all the neighbors to help hunt for him."

"Wasn't that enough?"

"No. She still insists that I am a brutal, selfish miscreant and several other things because I refused to do all she wanted me to."

"Why, what more was possible?"

"Make the Governor order out the militia to help hunt."—Harper's Bazar.

Cut Both Ways.

In an interval in the drilling one of the volunters belonging to a crack regiment stepped out from the ranks to light a cigar from that of his officer.

The latter took this evidence of the democratic spirit of freedom in good part, but said by way of a hint: "In the regular army you couldn't have done this to an officer, Brown."

"Right you are," responded the private, "but in the regular army you could not be an officer."—Collier's Weekly.

World to End This Year.

This is the recent decision of one of the societies of the world, and while there are few people who believe this prediction, there are thousands of others who not only believe, but know that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will cure dyspepsia, indigestion, constipation or liver and kidney troubles. A trial will certainly convince.

The Longest and Shortest Livers.

It seems that clergymen are, on the whole, the longest, and medical men the shortest, livers. A well-known authority gives the following conclusions on the subject: The average age of clergymen is 65; of merchants, 62; clerk and farmers, 61; military men, 59; lawyers, 58; artists, 57; medical men, 56.

What Do the Children Drink?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called GRAIN-O? It is delicious and nourishing, and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee, but costs about ¼ as much. All grocers sel lit. 15c and 25c.

Miss Susan Wymar.

Miss Susan Wymar, teacher in the Richmond school, Chicago, Ill., writes the following letter to Dr. Hartman regarding Pe-ru-na. She says: "Only those who have suffered as I have, can know what a blessing it is to be able to find relief in Pe-ru-na. This has been my experience. A friend in need is a friend indeed, and every bottle of Pe-ru-na I ever bought proved a good friend to me."—Susan Wymar.

Mrs. Margaretha Dauben, 1214 North Superior St., Racine City, Wis., writes: "I feel so well and good and happy now that pen cannot describe it. Pe-ru-na is everything to me. I have taken several bottles of Pe-ru-na for female complaint. I am in the change of life and it does me good." Pe-ru-na has no equal in all of the irregularities and emergencies peculiar to women caused by pelvic catarrh.

LOSS IS TWO MILLIONS.

Bloomington, Ill., Visited by a Destructive Conflagration.

A wild conflagration swept over the business portion of Bloomington, Ill., Monday night and Tuesday morning, leaving in its trail the charred and blackened ruins of more than half of the city's finest business blocks, together with the court house and other public buildings. Conservative estimates by insurance agents place the loss at not less than $2,000,000.

In the block northeast of the court house square the fire broke out at 12:30 o'clock, and, borne by a strong southwest wind, cut a diagonal swatch across the court house square into the blocks on the south and west. Both the north and east sides of the court house are in ruins; two other blocks cornering on the square and one-half of the block west of the square are destroyed. In the vicinity of the court house the path of the fire is nearly two blocks wide and its area was confined to that portion of the town only through the most strenuous efforts of the Bloomington fire department, aided by re-enforcements from Springfield and Peoria. Dynamite proved a powerful agency in fighting the conflagration, and some fine buildings were sacrificed to save the blocks to the southwest of the court house.

The court house stands a blackened shell, gutted from dome to basement, but the records were removed and saved. The clock in the tower of the court house struck the hour of four before the roof fell.

Originating in the Model Laundry, on Monroe street, the pillar of flame traveled with marvelous rapidity across the intervening block to the court house square. In less than an hour the entire block was destroyed, with the exception of the Government building, in which was the postoffice. This structure of fireproof material escaped unharmed, but the old Durley Theater and several buildings being remodeled were destroyed with the rest of the block.

From the rapidity with which the fire spread it was soon apparent that the Bloomington department was powerless and messages were sent to the surrounding towns for aid. Responses were quick, but steam could run no race against the conflagration. Before the special trains carrying aid from Peoria could arrive the fire had encompassed the court house. In the block west of the square the western branch of the fire was checked by the combined efforts of the departments and with a liberal use of dynamite.

It seemed that the court house square split the conflagration into two wings, one circling to the blocks east of the square and the stronger gathering into its maw the blocks west and northwest. As soon as the western branch was rendered safe the departments hurried across the burned district to the front of the eastern wing burning fiercely southeast of the court house. At the critical stage of the fire the water pressure was deficient and the departments were powerless. Business men were compelled to sit with folded hands and see their merchandise destroyed with nothing to check the onward march of the fire. Dynamite was used with telling effect and the fire was checked more through this agency than with water.

SOME AMUSING SIDE LIGHTS

One Delegate Wanted a Hall Boy and Got a Physician.

Philadelphia hotels have some new-fangled conveniences that some of the delegates had trouble in getting along with. For instance, at the Walton they have a taleseme system. If you want anything you turn a handle and push a button. A Southern delegate wanted to call a hall-boy, and he got his dates mixed. By vigorous repeated punches of the button he drew two gin rickeys, the house physician, and the head laundress, the fire department and his mail.

But it is not only this machine that bothers the delegates. Most of the hotels are fitted with electric lights. A Montana man landed in a room where an electric globe was tied by a wire to the head of his bed. It had been placed there, of course, to enable him to read after he had retired. The Montana man wasn't used to electric light. He could not find any way to stop that thing shining in his eyes. He tried hiding it under the bed. Finally he got up and put it away in the bureau drawer, and then shut the drawer on it. The chambermaid found it there when she made up the room, while the Montana man went down to the clerk and swore that he was going to change his hotel.

RECORD OF THE WEEK

INDIANA INCIDENTS TERSELY TOLD.

Rich Oil Discovery in Pulaski County—Flora Man's Desperate Deed—Verdict Against Former County Treasurer—No More Strike Assessments.

The Jasper County Oil and Gas Company has struck a gusher in its territory that has a capacity of seventy-five barrels a day of such an unusually high grade of lubricating oil that it is quoted at $7.50 a barrel and can be used for lubricating purposes in its natural state. The well is a six-inch one, and is the first flowing oil well to be found in that territory. The flowing well just discovered was struck at a depth of about 120 feet near Medaryville. Besides this one the company has ten wells, one of which produces 100 barrels in sixteen hours.

Kills Former Wife in Street.

At Flora Perry Barnard shot and instantly killed Jennie Davis, his former wife, who had recently secured a divorce, and her mother and 3-year-old daughter were dangerously wounded. The dead woman was preparing to leave the town, and Barnard, who was noticeably attached to the child, had heard of it and was determined they should not go. He met them face to face and fired. It is known he had been practicing shooting at a target for some time, and it is believed the shooting had been carefully planned. After the shooting Barnard was not seen again.

Former Official Found Guilty.

At Shelbyville the jury in the case of the State against ex-County Treasurer Wilson returned a verdict of guilty and he was placed in custody of Sheriff Schoelch. Wilson was arrested on the charge of having presented a false claim of $1,600 against the county, the penalty being two to fourteen years in prison The claim was not paid.

Strike Fund Called Off.

President Van Horn and Secretary Kennedy of the Indiana Mine Workers have called off the assessment for the strike fund. For the first time in several years the relations between men and operators are so harmonious that there is no need of an assessment fund.

THE REPORT OF A MAN OF EXPERIENCE.

What He Found in Western Canada to Induce Him to Settle.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Feb. 20, 1900.

To whom it may concern, especially to those who are desirous of obtaining health and wealth for themselves and families, I wish to state a few facts in regard to the Canadian Northwest, where I went, leaving Sault Ste. Marie on May 2, 1899, for the purpose of seeking a better home for my family in the future. I got a special rate ticket for Ft. McLeod, Alberta. Through Manitoba and part of Assiniboia the farmers were busily employed ploughing and seeding. I found the farmers very kind and friendly, willing to talk and assist in giving me the particulars of the country. At McLeod I spent a few days looking over some ranchers' stock, which I was surprised to see looking so well; they were in better condition than any stock I ever saw in Michigan, even those that had been stabled, and most of these had never seen the inside of a shed or received any feed from the hands of man. But as I was looking for mixed farm land, I found McLeod no place for me; it is only fit for ranching purposes.

Retracing my way back to Winnipeg, I stopped off at Lethbridge, where I found some of the greatest horse ranches I ever had the pleasure of looking at; it is a fine, level country and lots of water and good grazing. At Medicine Hat, which is located in a valley, there were lots of sheep, cattle and horses in the surrounding country and all looking well.

On July 14 I went on to Regina. There I began to see mixed farming lands in abundance, and the crops looking remarkably well, and as long as daylight lasted I saw the same all along the line, and on the 15th day of July I arrived in Winnipeg, just in time for the exhibition. There I met with one of the most beautiful pictures of the world's records, for as soon as I entered the grounds my eyes met with all kinds of machinery, all in motion, and the cattle, grain and produce of the country was far beyond my expectation, in fact it was beyond any industrial exhibition or agricultural fair I ever visited, and I have seen a good many.

From Regina to Prince Albert, a distance of 250 miles, it is all good for mixed farming, and well settled, with some thriving little towns. In some places the grain, just coming into head, would take a man to the waist, and the wild fruit along the line was good, rich and in great quantities. From Saskatoon on the south branch of the Saskatchewan river, to Prince Albert on the north branch of the Saskatchewan river, is one of the best farming districts, without any doubt, that ever laid face to the sun, and everything to be found there that is necessary to make life comfortable, all that is required is labor. There is lots of wood, good water and abundant hay land, and the climate is excellent.

Prince Albert is a flourishing little place, situated on the north Saskatchewan river, having a population of about 1,800, with good streets and sidewalks and churches of nearly every denomination, three school houses and another one to be built at once, also a brewery and creamery. Here I stayed for about four months, working at my trade of brick laying, and met with farmers and ranchers, with whom I made it my special business to talk in regard to the prospects. I also visited several farmers for some distance out in the country while crops were in full bloom, and I may say that I never saw better crops in all my travels than I saw along the valley towards Stoney creek and Carrot river. In the market garden there is grown currants, both red and black, and as fine a sample of roots and vegetables as ever went on a market. The soil in and around this district cannot be beaten for anything you may wish to grow, and besides the season is long, giving time for everything to mature. The cattle were looking as good as I saw anywhere, good pasture and hay land, and plenty of water wherever you go; the country is dotted all around like islands with timber fit for fuel and building purposes, and within a day's walk of lumbering woods, where lumbering and tie-making is carried on in winter. Both large and small game is plentiful. There are two good sawmills in this district, with a good supply of all grades of lumber all the year round, and also two good brickyards with an excellent quality of brick. There is no scarcity of building material and at a reasonable price; clothing and living are no higher than I find in Michigan, and furthermore I wish to say that there is a great demand for laboring men all the year round, and good wages, ranging from $1.75 to $2 per day, and from $25 to $35 per month with board.

I wish to say that I am perfectly satisfied with the country, and I intend to return to Prince Albert early in the spring of 1900. Any reasonable man can go there and in from five to ten years make a good comfortable home for himself and family, and if any person into whose hand this letter should fall desires more information, please write to me and I will freely give them my best opinion. I am writing this for the benefit of those who may want to make a better home for themselves and families or friends.

Trusting that this statement may be useful to you in the publication of your next pamphlet and be the means of guiding at least some of those who are in search of a home, I remain your humble servant,

(Signed) WILLIAM PAYNE.

The above letter was written to Mr. J. Grieve, Canadian Government agent, Saginaw, Mich. Information as to lands can be had from him or from Mr. M. V. McInnes, No. 2 Merril block, Detroit.

The Missing Line.

Bobby was writing his regular weekly "composition," for it was in the old days when compositions and declamations formed a part of the school exercises every Friday afternoon.

The subject of Bobby's essay was "True Manhood," and he wished to end it with a poetical quotation. He gnawed his penholder, scratched his head, and looked at the ceiling, but the quotation would not come.

Then he turned to his elder sister.

"Rachel," he said, "what's the line that comes after this: 'Honor and fame from no condition rise?'"

"I know," spoke up his younger sister, and she promptly quoted:

"'Vinegar never catches flies.'"

Mrs. Pinkham

The one thing that qualifies a person to give advice on any subject is experience—experience creates knowledge.

No other person has so wide an experience with female ills nor such a record of success as Mrs. Pinkham has had.

Over a hundred thousand cases come before her each year. Some personally, others by mail. And this has been going on for 20 years, day after day and day after day.

Twenty years of constant success—think of the knowledge thus gained! Surely women are wise in seeking advice from a woman with such an experience, especially when it is free.

Another About Gilbert.

Gilbert, the librettist, met Liebling, the pianist, not long ago, and they say the following interchange occurred between them, says Lew Rosen. Liebling, you must know, has an inordinate vanity, and Gilbert, as you do know, has a caustic wit. Liebling was introduced to Gilbert, and Gilbert said:

"Sir, I have heard Liszt——"

Liebling bowed his head in acknowledgment at what he supposed was the coming compliment.

"I have heard Henry Hertz," continued Gilbert.

Liebling bowed still lower.

"I have heard Paderewski."

Liebling made a genuflection even unto the ground.

"Well, sir," continued Gilbert, in abrupt tones, "not one of them—not one of them, sir, perspired so profusely as you do!"—Washington Post.

TOO MUCH TAPE.

A Live, Crawling Thirty-foot Man-Eater.

Human Lives Destroyed by Tape-Worms—Thousands of Weak, Debilitated People Are Worm-Eaten.

Lots of people are eaten alive without knowing it.

Thousands of invalids suffering from weakness and debility, wasting away in a slow death without apparent cause, are turning out to be victims of tape-worms.

Cascarets Candy Cathartic are found to be perfect eliminators of tape-worms, those destroying parasites that are eating up human lives by thousands.

There was no way of telling the presence of tape-worms until Cascarets began killing them. The records of cases come in daily. Here is one:

Lima, Ohio, Feb. 25, 1899.

Gentlemen—After suffering for two years and spending a great deal of money trying to be relieved from a tape-worm, I was induced to try a box of your Cascarets. After taking four tablets between nine a. m. and five p. m., at seven o'clock in the evening I passed a worm about thirty-two (32) feet long, head and all. I take great pleasure in recommending Cascarets to any one suffering from tape worm trouble. Yours truly, SAMUEL WEINFELD, Traveling Salesman, Henry Diesel Cigar Company.

If you feel bad, and don't know why, take Cascarets. They are absolutely harmless, make the liver lively, open the bowels and kill the disease germs in the body.

Buy and try Cascarets to-day. It's what they do, not what we say they'll do, that proves their merit. All druggists, 10c, 25c, or 50c, or mailed for price. Send for booklet and free sample. Address Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago; Montreal, Can.; or New York.

CCC This is the CASCARET tablet. Every tablet of the only genuine Cascarets bears the magic letters "CCC." Look at the tablet before you buy, and beware of frauds, imitations and substitutes.

Nothing Unusual.

Intimate friend—"After taking into consideration your different stations in life, don't you think it strange that your clerks all persist in dressing better than you do?"

Merchant—"No, sir. They are earning from $8 to $18 per week, and my business is in such shape at present that I'm not earning a cent.

A Noted Doctor

Once said "most women lose their freshness and good looks much earlier in life than necessary because of inatention to nature's requirements. Because of their peculiar habits all should make a practice of using some simple laxative." There is no laxative so simple, so pleasant to take and yet so potent as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Get a 10c bottle (10 doses 10 cts.) of H. B. McCord

Too Much.

The tired totterer knocked at the back yard entrance, leaned up against the side of the house, and waited until the woman opened the door.

"Lady, could yer give me—"

"Will you beat carpets?" she interrupted.

He drew himself up.

"Lady," he said, "I've beat ev'ryting on eart' from a freight train to me best pal, but dere's a limit. I cuts carpets out."

Stands Without a Rival.

Mr. Jno. N. Wilkie, of 36 Adams Ave. West Detroit, Michigan, writes:

"I have been troubled with very severe headache for years and have taken a great many different remedies, but have never found anything to give me as speedy and permanent a cure as Krause's Headache Capsules. In my opinion they stand without a rival; they have cured me every time." Sold by H. B. McCord.

DOES IT PAY TO BUY CHEAP?

A cheap remedy for coughs and colds is all right, but you want something that will relieve and cure the most severe and dangerous results of throat and lung troubles. What shall you do? Go to a warmer and more regular climate? Yes, if possible; if not possible for you, then in either case take the only remedy that has been introduced in all civilized countries with success in severe throat and lung troubles, "Boschee's German Syrup.' It not only heals and stimulates the tissues to destroy the germ disease, but allays inflammation, causes easy expectoration, gives a good night's rest, and cures the patient. Try one bottle, many years by all druggists in the world. Sample bottles at O. P. RABER'S, Corunna.

Ladies, Why Don't You?

EDITOR COURIER:—Is there anything at all that we can do to convince all your lady readers that we are actually giving away to every married lady in the United States who writes for it, an elegant sterling silver plated sugar shell, like jewelers sell for 75c each? There is no "catch" about this offer. There is nothing to pay, nor any requirement to buy anything in order to secure this beautiful souvenir gift. It is our way of advertising the merits of Quaker Valley silverware. A copy of the Home Furnisher, our own publication, will also be sent free. Surely this beautiful sugar shell gift is worth asking for. Then it seems to us that we should hear from every lady who reads your paper. Quaker Valley Mfg. Co., Morgan and Harrison Sts., Chicago.

BISHOP & BEIDLER,

AUBURN, INDIANA.

Club Notes.

The L. L. C. met with Mrs. Tillie McCord last Saturday for the last session of the club year. There was a good attendance and after considerable attention to business in regard to the coming year's work, several papers were read, all being work that had been delayed from various causes. A fine paper entitled, "Beauty as a Moral Agent" was given by Mrs. Keeran, an honorary member, who lives in Fort Wayne, and who was gladly welcomed by her sister members.

"A Visit to Honolulu" by Mrs. Mary F. Rose was a fine description of that interesting city now belonging to the United States. This was followed by an interesting paper on "Tenement House Life and Recreation." After hearing a description like this one ought to feel very grateful that she lives where trees and grass abound. Several others had their work with them but the time could not be given to them as the real business of the meeting must be attended to, namely, the election of officers. The election resulted as follows. President, Mrs. Tillie McCord; vice president, Mrs. Rose Husselman; secretary, Mrs. Alicia Barns; treasurer, Mrs. H. J. Ralston; critic, Mrs. Mollie Lackey.

The club then adjourned to meet with the newly elected president the first Saturday in October.

Horse Thieves at Work.

Fremont Smith, after taking a hack load of A. O. U. W.'s to and from M. S. DeLong's last night, drove home and put his horses in the barn. This morning he discovered that the team was gone and with them his surrey and two sets of harness. Mr. Smith at once came to town and notified Sheriff Hathaway who sent messages by telegraph and telephone to surrounding towns as well as using printed postal cards describing the stolen property. So far as we have learned there is no clue to the thieves, but it is hardly probable that they can escape with so much property without detection.

Low-Rate Excursion.

In order to gives its patrons an opportunity to visit the seashore at a nominal cost, the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company will sell low rate excursion tickets to Atlantic City, Cape May and Sea Island City, N. J., and Ocean City, Md., on Thursday, August 2, 1900.

Atlantic City has acquired such fame as a summer resort that a description of its varied attractions is superfluous. Thousands are annually attracted to this delightful resort for the enjoyment of magnificent surf bathing, and to avail themselves of the unequaled opportunities for sailing, fishing, etc

Tickets will be available on all regular trains, and will be good for return twelve days. Including date of sale, thus giving ample time for an enjoyable outing. Stop-over within limit of ticket will be allowed at Washington, D. C., Baltimore, Md., and Philadelphia, Pa., in either or both directions.

To secure the stop-over privileges conductor should be notified prior to reaching stop-over point and tickets should be deposited with depot ticket agent immediately upon arrival.

Further information will be given upon application to nearest B. & O. ticket agent, or B. N. Austin, Gen'l Pass. Agent, Chicago, Ill.

A New Wrinkle.

The postoffice department has under consideration a plan whereby the names of postoffices shall be placed on stamps where sold. This idea is to prove means for identification where stamps are stolen from any postoffice, and also to prevent the boycotting of postmasters, a practice in some of the smaller towns of the country. It will be possible under the new rule of the department to keep accurate account of all the stamps sold and render justice to the boycotted postmaster.—Portland Review.

IT WAS A DECIDED SUCCESS.

The Christian Endeavor Convention at St. Joe Well Attended.

ST. JOE, IND, June 27, 1900.—The C. E. district convention at St. Joe is a decided success. About a hundred delegates arrived Tuesday and many more are expected today. The meetings are held in the new hall, the seating capacity of which is fully 600. This hall though not completed was kindly loaned by Mr. O. H. Widney. Gorgeous decorations in red and white adorn the hall, churches and homes while C. E. mottoes and flags greet the visitor's eye, adding further expression to the generous welcome extended by the citizens of St. Joe.

The exercises were opened Tuesday afternoon with a song service conducted by Mr. C. A. Woodcox, who has charge of the large choir. After the devotional exercises there was a discussion on "The Secrets of Success of the Local Societies." The result showing that self-denial, devotedness and intelligence of committee work were the secret elements of success. Miss Maud Link of Auburn presented an able paper on "The Secret of Good Committee Work." An address was then given on "The National Conscience," by Prof. T. G. Alford of Purdue University, the state citizenship superintendent. He thought an effort should be made for the education and direction of the public conscience, that Christian Endeavorers aim to have men elected who are sound on temperance questions regardless of party and to arouse an interest in christian citizenship.

An enthusiastic audience greeted the speaker of the evening session, every seat in the large hall being taken. Mr. Sol. Barney gave an address of welcome in behalf of the citizens and Rev. Shrock on behalf of the churches. Responses were given by representatives from each county, Lagrange, Steuben, Noble and DeKalb. The principal feature of the evening was the address, "The Progress of Christianity in the Nineteenth Century," by Rev. Allen B. Philputt of Indianapolis. He proved himself to be a man of strong personality and magnificent speech.

Wednesday morning's program is taken with an address by Miss Applegate, the state secretary, symposium by Prof. Alford and addresses by Rev. Brosy of Auburn and Rev. Holp of Angola. As a whole, this convention is the most successful one ever held and St. Joe is to be congratulated on the excellent talent of the speakers and the close attention of the delegates.

ST. JOE, IND., June 29.—Wednesday was red-letter day at the convention. Every seat in the great hall was taken during the entire day. Enthusiasm and closest attention was given the talented speakers who honored the convention with their presence. Seldom do we find such a program presented at a district convention. Miss Applegate calls it a "young state convention," while Dr. Hunter pronounces it the best district convention he has attended this year. Dr. Hunter of Indianapolis is the president of the State Union of Christian Endeavor. He delivered the address, "A Vital Question." At first his witty remarks created much merriment, soon changed to solemn thoughts as the great questions were presented that are puzzling our government today, asking Endeavorers to realize new duties both in missionary and temperance work. Are we as christian workers, willing to undertake these new duties?

The convention sermon was preached by Rev. Philip E. Holp of Angola. To hear him once is never to forget him. His burning words thrill the heart and incline the mind with reconsecration for "Christ and the Church." Rev. Brosy was complimented for the deep thoughts presented in his address, "Secret of Success in all Great Reforms."

Miss Applegate, the state secretary, spoke of the International convention of C. E. at London in July. She also announced the state convention at Lafayette next Thanksgiving time. Prof. Alford, the president of that meeting, also urged a good attendance, promising a most excellent program.

On Thursday morning after the devotional exercises which were in charge of Rev. J. W. McDonald of Logansport, state vice-president, President Sniff of Angola gave an address on "The Outlook of the Twentieth Century," which was highly entertaining. An Open Parliament, conducted by Dr. Hunter on "What is the greatest service Christian Endeavor can render to the new century," brought out this decision that "being precedes doing," and that we need intelligently consecrated workers to do the work that Christ would if He were here.

The next convention will be held at Kendallville. Rev. Brosy of Auburn was elected the new secretary. St. Joe may well be proud of this convention and the sweet songs of the excellent chorus-choir will linger long in the memory of all.

"Peace! peace! wonderful peace,
Coming down from the Father above;
Sweep over my spirit forever, I pray,
In fathomless billows of love."

CIRCLING THE GLOBE

CONCISE HISTORY OF SEVEN DAYS' DOINGS.

Intelligence by Electric Wire from Every Quarter of the Civilized World, Embracing Foreign Affairs and Home Happenings.

Quick Punishment of Bandit.

Cheyenne (Wyo.) special: A man giving his name as Joseph Harrison and his residence as South Dakota, is convinced that it does not pay to be a bandit, and especially not when booty is sought from an express company. This view has been brought home to him by a sentence of fifteen years at hard labor, which he has just begun to serve in the penitentiary of this city. Between the time of his crime and his sentence, only four days elapsed. Disguised as an Indian, he entered the office of the Adams Express Company at Parkman, this state, and at the point of a revolver forced the agent to hand over $169.85 in cash. Officers in the employ of the Express Company were quickly on the trail. Harrison was captured two days later, and on the second day thereafter was on the way to the penitentiary.

Few Signs of the Strike.

Except for the boycott and 300 extra policmen on duty, little remains to tell of the strike of the St. Louis Transit Company employes, inaugurated May 8. Cars are in operation on all the lines without hindrance and are well patronized, except on those running north and south, where many thousand persons, because of the boycott and through sympathy with the strikers, patronize wagons and 'buses, manned by ex-street railway employes. Thursday the remainder of the force of Sheriff Postleman's posses, about 600 men, was mustered out of service, the Board of Police Commissioners having decided they were no longer need. It was at first intended that 1,000 would be required for service on July 4 to suppress any trouble that might occur, but this plan has been abandoned.

Now Crackers Cost More.

The National Biscuit Company confirms the report that it will increase its prices on special lines of goods, in order to cover the additional cost of production, due to the rise in wheat. Advances are made on all soda biscuits, with the exception of the high grades, of half a cent a pound. A similar increase is made on a few lines of sweet grades, into the manufacture of which flour and lard enter largely. On the other lines of sweet goods the box price is increased to the tin price, which is equal to one-half to one cent a pound.

Seeks Loan of Officer.

Vienna special: The selection of a German officer to undertake the reorganization of the Greek army is causing the Athens Government considerable trouble. According to reports Germany refuses to let the officer who undertakes the job remain in the German army, as it did with Turkey under similar circumstances. The result is that no officer is willing to come to Athens since it means a loss of his position at home, and Greece will probably have to apply to some other nation for the loan of a reorganizer.

Will Close Down.

A dispatch from Muncie, Ind., says: The local management of the Indiana Iron Mill announces that the plants will be closed down soon indefinitely. The uncertainty of the wage scale and desire to invoice are given as the causes of a shutdown. The mill is one of the largest controlled by the Republic Iron and Steel Company. It is rumored that other trust mills will be closed. Nearly a thousand men will be affected.

A Sail on Lake Erie.

The Northern Indiana Editorial Association, having taken a postal vote, has decided on a Lake Erie trip. The members will meet at Sandusky, July 19, and will visit Put-in-Bay, Cleveland and Buffalo. The association embraces all the newspaper editors in the State north of Indianapolis.

May Save The Wheat.

General heavy rains are reported at various points as having fallen in Wisconsin, Minnesota and North and South Dakota. Rain came in an opportune time in the last named states, and it is believed that the wheat crops can now be saved.

Fatal Family Feud.

James McElroy shot and fatally wounded Sam Stafford on Battle avenue, Steubenville, Ohio. The shooting was the culmination of a family feud. McElroy gave himself up.

Dole is Governor.

A dispatch from Honolulu says: Inauguration of the territorial form of government and the installation of Dole as governor, occurred on the 14th with elaborate ceremonies.

A Double Tragedy.

William Nahrwalt, 25 years old, shot and killed his wife, aged 18, at the home of her father, Fort Wayne, Ind., and then killed himself. Jealously was the cause of the deed.

A $70,000 Collision.

In a head-on collision near Mishawaka, Ind., between freights on the Grand Trunk Railroad, Brakeman Moon was probably fatally and Engineers McCarty and Mulvey seriously injured by jumping. The trains were double-headers each. Two engines were demolished and two damaged. The loss is estimated at $70,000.

Woman Barred from Practice.

The Tennessee Supreme Court has decided that women cannot practice law before any of the courts of Tennessee.

EASTERN.

Pauline Mathis of New York, being destitute and starving, sold her baby for $100.

Charges of conspiracy against officials of the American Ice Company were dismissed by a New York grand jury.

Mrs. Jacob W. Clute and Mrs. F. T. Rogers were almost instantly killed at Schenectady, N. Y., as the result of a runaway accident.

The acts of violence at the Fernwood colliery of the Butler Mine Company, limited, at Yateeville, Pa., which had been going on for three weeks, culminated in a riot. Over 100 revolver and rifle shots were fired and two strikers were wounded.

The Norwegian bark Serings, timber laden, bound from Mobile for Manchester, was towed into port at New York, leaking and unable to continue on her voyage. Captain Nerdrum reports having experienced a hurricane, in which the vessel sprung a leak.

John E. Hickey, who was boatswain on Admiral Farragut's old flagship Hartford, and who during the Spanish war cut the cables under fire off Cardenas, committed suicide at his father's house in Boston, shooting himself in the left temple. Ill health is the cause assigned for suicide.

Charged by his father, Dr. I. F. Everhart, with plotting his murder, Edwin E. Everhart, 34 years old, was committed to the county jail to await trial at Scranton, Pa. Dr. Everhart, who is 60 years old, is a man of wealth, having an estate worth perhaps $500,000. He is a widower and up to two months ago his son, an only child, who is also unmarried, made his home with him. Then his extravagance caused his father to turn him out. The allegation of the prosecution is that young Everhart hired one Frank Lewis for $5,000 to kill the former's father and Lewis repented and informed on his employer.

WESTERN.

Congressman Bailey of Texas has bought a ranch of 6,000 acres in Dallas County.

The residence of Mrs. Collier at Thatcher, Ariz., was burned and five small children perished in the flames.

The Continental Clothing Company of Omaha assigned to the sheriff. Creditors are all Eastern clothing and shoe houses.

The body of Maj. Schaefer, a retired army officer, was found in the cemetery of New Prague, Minn. The indications point to suicide.

Robbers blew St. Louisville's, Ohio, postoffice safe, getting $100 in stamps, a money order book and $10. They escaped in a stolen rig.

As the result of an accidental overdose of morphine Nat C. Goodwin, the actor, was made alarmingly ill at a Butte, Mont., hotel.

Joel Hunt, his wife and William Barnes, negro farm tenants, were killed at Corsicana, Texas, in a dispute over a division of the crops.

Fire in the Owens Electric Belt building, 201 to 211 State street, Chicago, caused a loss of $60,000 to the building and its many tenants.

Herbert Wigdall, aged 12 years, and Floryan Lorinski, aged 6 years, were drowned in the Mississippi at Winona, Minn. The boys were in bathing.

Arthur W. Kirk and Charles R. Bowman, prominent society men of Toledo, Ohio, were arrested and fined $100 and costs each for docking their horses' tails.

Chinch bugs are destroying all forage crops in Kansas and have attacked the corn. Oats and millet are being destroyed by bugs and the prairie grass is drying up.

Kansas and Oklahoma wheat growers are talking of forming an organization by which they may handle the large crops harvested and get the highest possible price for their output.

The Democrats of Illinois have named Samuel Alschuler of Aurora as their candidate for Governor, and the Prohibitionists have chosen Visscher Vere Barnes of Chicago for the same position.

Two masked robbers held up Louis M. Stein, a wealthy resident of South Bend, Ind., in Chicago, and after choking him into insensibility, robbed him of $4,010. The robbers made their escape.

Sheriff Neal Morrison was wounded and two of his deputies were killed near Cloud Chief, Oklahoma, while pursuing George Casey and a man named McKee, who had broken jail at Arapahoe.

Maurice Casey, manager of the Central Gas Company in San Francisco, is one of the men who made a big cleanup on the recent bulge in wheat. He is credited with clearing $150,000 on his deal.

John O'Connor, aged 55, started to cross the Big Four switch which runs alongside the Cincinnati Cooperage Company plant at Cincinnati and was run down and killed by a switch engine.

Martin J. Russell, one of the publishers of the Chicago Chronicle and for years one of the most brilliant editorial writers in Chicago and the Northwest, died at Mackinac Island, of Bright's disease.

American Derby at Chicago was won by Sidney Lucas, a 20 to 1 outsider, in 2:40¼. The favorite, Lieut. Gibson, was beaten badly, finishing third far behind James, who was led four lengths by the winner.

Miss Jessie Morrison, one of the society leaders at Eldorado, Kan., killed Mrs. Olin Castle, a bride of a week, and then attempted to end her own life. Jealousy is alleged to have been the cause of the act.

An explosion in an engine oil tank at Bakersfield, Cal., caused the death of Byrd Gilmore and Patrick Quinn and the loss of the Southern Pacific roundhouse with twelve engines, valued at $30,000 each.

At Granite, Kan., a cattle inspector named Jeff Gilmore, Bill Anderson and another man and a woman engaged in a game of cards. They quarreled and drew guns. Gilmore shot and killed his three assailants.

At Washington Court House, Ohio, Chief of Police James Skinner shot and fatally wounded Sam Brown. He was trying to take Brown's brother Henry to the police station for disturbing the peace, when Sam interfered.

William Taylor, under death sentence for train robbery and murder; Noah Willerson, under life sentence for murder, and three other convicts escaped from the jail at Coleman, Texas. No trace of the fugitives has been discovered.

A fire that started in the grocery store of A. D. Meires swept through the business portion of Huntley, Minn., destroying Meires' grocery, the postoffice, Hill's general store and Williams' implement store. The total loss amounts to $25,000.

Because his love was not returned, Martin Baker, aged 18, of Custer, Ohio, placed the muzzle of a target rifle to his temple and pulled the trigger. He lived for half an hour after firing the shot. Young Baker was the son of well-to-do parents.

The plate mill, open hearth and slab mill of the Illinois Steel Company at South Chicago have closed owing to the lack of orders. The shut-down put about 1,500 men out of employment. It has not been announced when the men will be called back to work.

Two sons of Clark Lindsey, living at Acorn Ridge, Mo., aged 6 and 8 years respectively, were playing when the younger lad becoming angered at his brother, picked up a loaded revolver and fired, the ball striking the older boy in the head, killing him instantly.

Cephus Wright, a Choctaw Indian, life prisoner from Texas for murder, cut his throat at Columbus, Ohio, with a razor and died. He lived through the night with his windpipe severed. He was 26 years old and was received at the penitentiary Jan. 18, 1896.

A special from Denver, Idaho, gives an account of a disastrous hailstorm which visited that section. Wheat fields and orchards were destroyed and small pigs and chickens were killed by the hailstones. Damage to grain and fruit crops is estimated at $50,000.

SOUTHERN.

Jealousy caused a tragedy at Tunnel No. 5, a mile north of Livingston, Ky. Oscar McPherson, unmarried, aged 25, shot Carrie Arnold, his sweetheart, in the forehead, killing her instantly. McPherson was jealous.

Capitalists have become interested in the erection at Basic City, Va., of a $27,000,000 steel plant. As soon as the company has completed its steel plant the purpose is to erect rolling mills.

The depot at Fort Garrett, Ky., on the Louisville and Atlantic Railroad, was blown up with dynamite for the purpose of robbery. The agent had removed the money and the burglars secured nothing.

Three negroes, two women and one man, were found dead beside the track of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad in Nashville, Tenn. It is supposed they stepped from one track to another to avoid a train and were struck by a passing train.

Thirty-five lives were lost in a railroad disaster at Camp's creek, Ga. Passenger train No. 7 plunged into a yawning washout sixty feet deep and 125 feet wide. Every person on the train, except the occupants of the Pullman car, perished.

A letter has been received by the Chattanooga News from Commissioner of Pensions Evans, in which he denies the story published several days ago to the effect that he would resign as pension commissioner and run for Congress.

William E. Robinson, who recently was discharged from the State insane asylum, murdered William Stessel in his own home in New Orleans. A crowd pursued him, threatening lynching, when he killed one of them, a young man named Whittaker, and shot a policeman. Robinson was captured and locked up.

IN GENERAL.

Of 1,800,000 acres under wheat in Manitoba, 1,000,000 acres will never be cut. Rains cannot now change a stunted growth six to eight inches high and a small head into a crop. The best authorities hope for seed and feed, but this is doubtful.

H. F. Gill of Philadelphia, who is in Phoenix, Ariz., from a prospecting trip in Mexico, says the Yaqui Indians have nearly all abandoned the warpath. Several hundred are still hidden in the mountains, and make an occasional descent on isolated ranches. Near Tomachio a large party raided a ranch and killed two cowboys, wounded several others, and one woman. They were driven off after a hard fight.

The postal frauds have rather swamped the scandal existing in the Havana University, which has been the milking ground for some of the best known men in Cuba, who as under professors received $24,000 a year each. There were seventy-two of these professors and twenty-four assistants, some of them having no classes at all and others only one or two students. Many of the professors drew other government salaries. The number of instructors has been largely cut down by Gen. Leonard Wood.

Bradstreet's says: "Midsummer dullness in distributive trade and industry and further reductions of prices of manufactured goods, particularly iron and steel and raw textiles, but a marked upward movement in nearly all agricultural products, are the leading features of the business situation this week. Some weakness has been noted in cotton goods, without, however, favorably affecting distribution. Retail trade in dry goods has been helped by warmer weather. Wool is lower, and the woolen goods market is rather quiet. Weakness of prices is still the leading feature of the iron trade. Wheat, including flour, shipments for the week aggregate 4,645,180 bushels, against 4,678,029 bushels last week. Corn exports for the week aggregate 2,514,593 bushels, against 3,634,205 bushels last week."

ARMIES AND NAVIES OF THE WORLD RACING FOR THE SCENE OF WAR IN CHINA.

From a map drawn by Edwin Wildman, ex-United States Vice-Consul at Hong Kong, for the New York Journal.

SEYMOUR IS SAFE.

Allied Forces Under the British Admiral Have Been Relieved.

Advices from Chefoo via Shanghai say that Admiral Seymour's expedition has been relieved, having failed to connect with Pekin. The Berlin foreign office also received news from a Russian source confirming the report that Admiral Seymour is safe and that the ambassadors and legation staffs are with him. The report says that the relief forces reached the international troops just in time. Admiral Seymour's expedition is returning to Tien-Tsin. His force suffered greatly.

The announcement that Admiral Seymour's relief force has been rescued is welcome to the western world. This international force left Tien-Tsin for Pekin when the foreign legations in the capital were threatened with attack. It appears now that Admiral Seymour did not enter Pekin, but his main object was accomplished when the foreign ministers and residents, with their own guards, had been conducted out of the capital and placed under his protection. His return march to Tien-Tsin has been slow, the Chinese mobs having harassed him greatly.

A dispatch from London says the situation in China is clearing slowly, but surely. The losses and dangers of the foreigners in Tien-Tsin are now known to have been grossly exaggerated by the rumor mongers. There has been no massacre of foreigners. The casualties have been few and dangers to property have been slight. Dispatches received from Shanghai and Chefoo agree in minimizing the peril to which the foreign quarter had been exposed, and a European who has reached the coast from Tien-Tsin reports that there has been anxiety there, but no approach to panic.

The relief column which entered Tien-Tsin Saturday night met with little resistance. The Russian losses are reported as four killed and twenty wounded, and the casualties of the other detachments were light.

Admiral Seymour's mixed force, which was retreating toward Tien-Tsin, does not appear to have been in so desperate a plight as the earliest and most sensational dispatches made out. The safety of the foreign legations is assured. The foreigners, with their own guards, were conducted out of the capital and placed under the protection of Seymour's force, which retired slowly toward Tien-Tsin with its sick and wounded. The column was harassed by Chinese mobs and compelled to move slowly, but apart from the difficulty of securing supplies it does not appear to have been in serious danger, much less in great extremity.

Dispatches from Shanghai reiterate the announcements of the massacres of native Christians in the inland districts which rival the Armenian horrors. The officials at the places watched by gunboats make a show of protecting the missionaries, but there is not even a pretense of protection for the converts in the interior, who have been butchered by wholesale.

TO ISOLATE CONSUMPTIVES.

Radical Measure Adopted by Boston Board of Health.

The Boston Board of Health took a radical step the other day when it promulgated an order to isolate consumptives. Under the terms of the order all consumptive patients who cannot be cared for properly in their homes, insuring the protection of their associates, will be removed by the board to an island hospital in the harbor, or to the State almshouse at Tewksbury, Mass. Several patients have been sent already to these institutions, but they will be treated differently from people having acute diseases, like scarlet fever, typhoflid, diphtheria or smallpox. They will be allowed to receive visitors, and life will be made as pleasant for them as the rules of the institutions will permit.

WILL BE A BLOODY CONFLICT.

German Army Officer Says the Boxer Movement Is Spreading.

Gen. Stahl of the imperial German army, who has been investigating conditions in the orient under a special commission from the German Government, has arrived at Vancouver, B. C., on his way home. On being asked if he thought the Boxers would be quickly suppressed, he said that in his opinion the powers had started in upon a long, bloody conflict. In the end, the Boxers would be disbanded, but the sacrifice of life would be appalling, for the movement was spreading like wildfire throughout China's vast territory.

The south was also about to take up arms and his information was that the uprising in the south was very grave and of great dimensions. The southern Boxers would join the north and vast mobs of fanatics would have to be contended with. They would be insufficiently armed at first, but enormous quantities of arms were being constantly smuggled to them and owing to the countless hordes of fanatics and the vast territory covered they could for some time defy the whole world.

BRITISH LEGATION ENTRANCE, PEKIN.

Gen. Stahl added that the hostility between Japan and Russia was a serious complication in the present crisis, as it would interfere with the unanimity necessary at this time.

SIX KILLED IN WRECK

FORTY PASSENGERS HURT NEAR GREEN BAY, WIS.

Wisconsin Singers Crushed to Death or Injured Through an Excursion Train Running Into a Freight—Coaches Smashed and Burned.

An excursion train carrying 600 members of the Oshkosh, Fond du Lac, Neenah and Menasha singing societies of the sangerfest at Green Bay, Wis., was wrecked near Depere at 10:45 o'clock Sunday. Six persons were instantly killed, five fatally wounded and forty others injured. The wreck occurred at Donald's curve, one and one-half miles from Depere, the excursion train overtaking a double header freight. The engine, baggage car and two smoking cars of the passenger train were completely crushed. To add to the horror the wreck caught fire and many of the injured were burned before they could be rescued.

At the time of the collision the excursion train was running at a fairly average speed, and is said to have been ten mintues ahead of time. The engineer, fireman and occupants of the baggage car saved themselves by jumping, as did the members of the freight train crew in the caboose. The passengers had no warning.

The jolly singers in the smoking car were joining in a chorus just as the crash came. The song came to an abrupt stop and was followed an instant later by the shrieks and groans of the injured. The uninjured men in the cars farther back on the train now rushed to the rescue and dragged their comrades from the wreck. But so rapidly did the flames advance that it was necessary in one instance to chop off the arm of a young man to prevent his body from being burned. The dead and injured were taken to Depere, where the school house was turned into a hospital. Some of the injured were taken later to the General and St. Vincent hospitals in Green Bay.

THIRTY-FIVE PLUNGE TO DEATH.

Fall Sixty Feet Into a Torrent Beneath the Southern Railway.

Thirty-five persons lost their lives in a wreck on the Southern Railway, one mile north of McDonough, Ga., and twenty-six miles south of Atlanta, at 9:20 o'clock Saturday night. Although a flood of rain was falling and the train was partially submerged in the bed of a raging creek, many of the victims were burned to death.

The train, running at the rate of forty miles an hour, plunged into Camp creek, and engine, cars and sleeper were piled up together. The storm had caused a torrent of water to rush down the creek, sweeping away the 125-foot trestle just before the appearance of the train, which rounded a curve and fell over a bank sixty feet high. Lamps in the coaches exploded, setting fire to the cars, and many of the victims who were pinned down were burned to death, others were drowned in the rushing water and still others were killed by the wreckage and fearful fall of the train.

A flagman named Quinlan was one of the first to get out of the wreck. He ran to McDonough, notified the telegraph operator of the wreck and fell fainting to the floor. Citizens organized rescuing parties at midnight and the work was kept up all night and the next day, with the result that thirty-five bodies have been recovered. Only three women were on the train and of these two escaped.

"Uncle Peter" is now 102 years old and his wife is 94, and neither of them is an invalid.

Abraham Stingley, an eccentric resident of northwest Missouri, who died at the age of 93 at his home near Ravenswood, Mo., was a most ardent Democrat, and had voted for every President candidate from Jackson to Bryan. Among his peculiarities it is recorded that he "never gave a note, never paid a cent of interest, never took a dose of medicine from a physician and never lost any of his teeth, although they were worn down to the gums at the time of his death."

John MacGowan of Clay County, Fla., claims to be the oldest pensioner in this country. According to papers now on file in Washington he is 121 years old. He was born in Ireland on March 15, 1779, and came to this country in 1804. He enlisted in the Seventeenth Connecticut regiment in 1863, when he was 84 years old. The pension officials are inclined to believe his statement.

THE HURRYING HOURS.

How often the thought comes home to me,
As the moments hurry away,
Of the many things I intend to do
Somehow, some time, some day.
There are promises that have not been kept,
Though I always meant to be true,
But time is too short for all the things
That a body intends to do.

I will answer a letter, or read a book,
I will write a bit of rhyme;
I will do the things that I ought to do—
Some day when I have the time.
So I look beyond, as I hope and plan
For the days that are just ahead,
While the day that is here goes into the grave
With its opportunities dead.

To-day is the only day we have,
Of to-morrow we can't be sure;
To seize the chance as it comes along
Is the way to make it secure.
For every year is a shorter year,
And this is a truth sublime;
A moment misspent is a jewel lost
From the treasury of time.

When Fortune Favors

HE was a big, awkward fellow, working with some patient skill in an old-fashioned saw-mill, and living on the far outskirts of a pretty village.

His home was a gray old farmhouse, where he dwelt with two maiden aunts, one of whom was a weak, fragile invalid, quick-tempered, and querulous; the other was stout and strong in body, but idiotic and silent. Often he was tempted to go away—to rush out into the world and leave the old place to go to the dogs and the old women to the workhouse, but a dogged sense of duty held him, so he stayed and worked on.

One of the handsomest farms in Scott County had stretched its green fields about the old house twenty years ago, but when Ralph Mydack's young wife died and left her baby boy, the husband, always reticent, had grown positively gloomy. His two sisters seldom heard him speak, but one day, when the little Ralph was 5 years old, his moody father said, in a strange, stern way:

"I'm going to sell the farm. You two girls can live here in the old house, and I will deposit enough in the bank to keep you and the boy until I can send you some more. I shall go to Australia."

Huldah, the invalid, cried out piteously, but her brother paid no heed; but Hannah, the idiot, stared stonily and spoke not.

That day the farm and the mill privilege on the little river were sold to a large corporation that had been trying for some time to buy it, in order to erect a cotton mill there.

"LAWS SAKES! THAT'S COURTIN', AIN'T IT?"

Ralph Mydack came home and packed his trunk, but his motions were unsteady, his face pale, and before night he was sick, very sick.

There was little that two helpless women could do for him; the farm hands were dismissed, all but Jared, who was to take care of the cow; so they sent him off for the doctor, but when he returned Ralph Mydack was dead.

Ten bitter years dragged slowly by. The little money in the bank was soon exhausted, and partly on charity, partly by the few vegetables neighbors helped them raise in the garden patch, the two old women and the awkward, sullen boy lived on.

It was well known that a large sum of money had been paid to Mr. Mydack for his farm, but the corporation had failed immediately after, so nothing was done about the cotton mills, and from the hour of payment, when the legal papers were signed, all trace of the money disappeared as effectually as though it had been dropped into the sea of oblivion.

Lawyers searched the old house, looked over the few papers that Mr. Mydack had evidently intended to take with him, searched his wearing apparel, and gave up in despair.

Little Ralph grew up a stout, healthy lad, and when he was 15 he asked some of the neighbors to help him rig the old saw-mill anew, that he might saw logs, and thus eke out his scanty support.

Everybody felt kindly toward him, and season after season, when the water was high, he would work night and day among the fragrant pine and hemlock logs, earning quite an independence.

It was here that Gertrude Kendennis found him one day, early in June.

He had seen her bright face about there the year before, but had turned away from her pleasant words with a moodiness that was almost rude. For what had his weary, toilsome life to do with beauty or kind words?

What, indeed? And yet she would not let him be. She went every day and watched, as by a resistless fascination, that pitiless, great saw tearing its slow way through the logs making them useful while seeming only to destroy them.

He was 20 years old at last and she was 19.

She had been fussing about the old house, making gruel for Aunt Huldah, and trying to coax a smile on Aunt Hannah's stolid face, but really only waiting for Ralph to return from the village.

He came in soon, and seeing her standing alone in the clean, poorly furnished room he went straight to her, and, taking both her hands in his, he said:

"Now, Gertrude—Miss Kendennis—you must not come here in this manner. People are talking of it down in the village, and if your uncle should hear of it he would send you to a nunnery and kill me outright."

"Oh, you do not want me here," she said, trying to speak playfully, but with a little moan in her voice.

"I do—I do," he answered, putting his arm about her, holding her close, and touching her hair with a quick, caressing motion. "God knows it is worse than death to send you away, but, my darling, see the long, weary life stretching before me. See the work to be done here and you hovering like some bright bird just out of reach. Could I drag you down to share this poor old nest? No, no, it would not be right. I have served duty too long to dare desert her now."

"But you are so young," she murmured, leaning her face on his shoulder; he could feel her breath against his cheek.

His heart beat so fast he thought it would strangle him, and that moment of rapture paid him for the suffering of years.

"So young and so ambitious—and there is the invention down at the mill I am sure that is going to work well."

"Yes; but I have been to the village to-day for the last time trying to raise even $50 to pay for the patent, and I can not do it. Nobody has any faith in it; they think it is a boy's scheme, and I'm quite discouraged."

"Oh, if I only had my money——"

"Yes, but you have not, my darling; nor would I touch one penny of it if you had. No, you must go back to your relatives. I shall never marry, dear, but I shall cherish your memory as my one blessedest gift. Now, don't feel badly—don't."

They were both sobbing together by this time; she put her arm up around his neck, and their two tear-wet faces nestled against each other like two grieved children.

Aunt Hannah put her white, flabby face in at the door to say that dinner was ready, and, seeing the young people standing together there, she started nervously and exclaimed:

"Laws sakes! that's courtin' now, ain't it?" And as they neither moved nor spoke she went softly across the floor and whispered: "Ralphie, boy, are you goin' to be married?"

"Yes, auntie," answered Gertrude, "and we want your blessing."

"But you want your money, too, don't you?"

"Yes, certainly; the marriage portion," said Ralph, bitterly, brushing the tears from his eyes and trying to face his lonely life once more.

"Then come upstairs," she laughed out, in her queer, wild fashion.

"What does she mean?" asked Gertrude, wonderingly.

"I do not know," Ralph answered. "I have not heard her speak so many words at a time in ten years."

Beckoning them to follow her, she climbed the worn old stairs up to the dusty garret, where broken chairs and long-idle spinning wheels made up the furniture.

Down behind the big chimney crept the daft woman and drew out a large, loose bundle of rags, in which was slyly hidden rolls of strong parchment.

They opened them there in the changeful light that flitted through the time-stained window.

There was $4,000 in gold—the price of the farm lands. Not a great fortune, it is true, but a fabulous sum for the young people, who were married ere long, to the great wonder of the village folks.—New York News.

THE BRONZE BUTTON

RUSSIA'S NEW SEA FIGHTER.

Cruiser Varing Is the Fastest War Vessel in the World.

The Russian cruiser Variag, which successfully completed her builders' trial trip, has shown herself to be the fastest cruiser of her class in the world. She represents the most modern ideas in warship construction, and her armament is superior to that of any other cruiser of her class afloat. The required speed is twenty-three knots an hour, but her builders declare she can make twenty-five knots on a pinch. The men who sailed aboard of her on her recent trip from Philadelphia say that our own navy boasts of nothing that is any better from either the standpoint of sailing or general availability.

The crew of the Varing consists of twenty officers, fifteen petty officers and 500 men. The vessel is a protected cruiser, 400 feet long, 52 feet beam and 19 feet 6 inches draft. Her displacement is 6,500 tons. The indicated horse power is 20,000, and steam is generated by boilers of the Niclausse type. She has twin screws. All the vessel's armament was made in Russia and consists of the following: Twelve 6-inch guns, twelve 75-millimeter guns, six 47-millimeter guns, two Baranovsky guns, two 37-millimeter, four broadside torpedoes, each at bow and stern, sixteen Whitehead torpedoes, thirty-five floating mines and six small torpedoes for steam launches. The Variag has four funnels and two military masts, resembling the Columbia of our own navy, and an after bridge on the plan of the cruiser New York.

A Cuban Milkman.

"How many cows there are about the streets!" somebody exclaims, and then he is calmly informed that the morning's milk is simply being delivered. A bunch of cattle and their driver stop before a house, and the portero comes out with a cup for the morning's supply. It is seen then that the cows are being milked from door to door by the dairymen, for this is the way the acute Cuban housewives have taken to assure for their tables a lacteal supply which is entirely fresh and absolutely pure. Otherwise the guile-loving vender might dilute the milk before delivering it to his customers, and craftily stir into the watery fluid the juice of the sweet potato to color it up to a duly rich and creamy cast. Even with the cows milked before the door one must continue to watch the milkman, for I have even heard of their having a rubber bag of water concealed under their loose frocks and connected with a rubber tube running down the inside of the sleeve, its tip being concealed in the hollow of the milking hand. Only a gentle pressure upon the bag of water within is needed to thus cause both milk and water to flow into the cup at the same time. The milk venders of Italy and India have also learned their trade to perfection, for they practice this identical trick.—Woman's Home Companion.

The common housefly is said to be provided with 16,000 eyes; that is to say, his two compound eyes have each 8,000 facets. By this singular arrangement he is enabled to see in every direction, and to elude with great skill and success the many dangers that threaten his daily exercise.

Famines of Modern Times.

The worst famines of modern times were the famine in Ireland in 1846-47, in which 1,000,000 people perished; the Indian famine of 1866, which claimed 1,450,000 victims; the Indian famine of 1877, in which 500,000 people perished; and the great famine in China in 1878, in which 9,500,000 died.

ROMANCE IN A TRIAL.

McKinley Lost His First Case in Court, but Won a Bride.

President McKinley, as a young attorney, lost his first case in the Common Pleas court of Stark county, as shown by the records, but he won a bride. He was elected prosecuting attorney during the trial. This case was first heard before Justice Philip Loew, of Navarre, Stark county, in 1869. Loew is a rock-ribbed Democrat. He is still a justice of the peace in the village of Navarre, and has held the office in an unbroken line all these years.

John Rosetter, a farmer of Bethlehem township, Stark county, brought action against Philip Sheets, his tenant, to recover damages of $213.20. The farmers had a quarrel over some horse breaking into a wheat field. The plaintiff caused an attachment to be issued to satisfy his claim, should he win the suit.

Summons was served on Sheets March 18, 1869. He demanded a jury trial. This was granted, and April 6 was fixed as the time to hear the case. The parties were not ready, and the case did not come to trial until May 8. It took three days to hear the evidence and the arguments. The jury finally gave judgment for the defendant, Sheets, amounting to $136.85. McKinley's client was not satisfied with the issue of the case and took an appeal.

During the trial of the case McKinley had become engaged to marry Ida Saxton, the belle of the town of Canton, and, while the case was pendinng between Rostetter and Sheets, McKinley was getting ready for the wedding tour. He was married in January, 1871. His interest in this important event of his life is shown in a letter written a short time before his marriage to Judge Ambler, of Salem, Ohio, then congressman from the district. The young Canton attorney sent a letter of inquiry to Congressman Ambler at Washington and informing Mr. Ambler of his approaching marriage.

The visit of William McKinley and his bride to the national capital was an eventful occurrence in the young bridegroom's life. Another important event in the life of McKinley that caused him to delay the case of Rostetter and Sheets was his canvass for prosecuting attorney of Stark county. He was nominated, partly as a joke, for the county had been strongly Democratic. The opposing candidate was William A. Lynch. McKinley won.

Here is another strange thing clustering about this period of McKinley's experience. The opposing counsel in the Rostetter-Sheets case was also this same William A. Lynch. McKinley won the election, and his bride; Lynch won the law case. Two years later McKinley and Lynch were again opposing candidates for prosecuting attorney. This was Lynch's turn, and he defeated McKinley. The presiding judge in the case, the parties to the suit, and most of the jurors are dead. The little house used as a court by Justice Loew still stands near his grocery stores and serves as a small store room.

A Young Preacher's Triumph.

An interesting incident occurred at the time of the ordination of Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis in his first pastorate. Mr. Hillis had already been examined in theology and licensed to preach by the Chicago Presbytery. But the Presbytery of Peoria insisted on a second examination. During the week following his first sermon the leading clergymen of that district gathered in his church and were about to begin the quizzing process. Hebrew was the first subject for examination. At the last moment it was discovered that the Hebrew committee had forgotten to bring a Hebrew bible. While the dismay thus occasioned was at its height the young candidate—who occupied an embarrassing seat on the platform before the divines and many of his parishioners—came to the rescue by offering to repeat in the original the first chapter of Genesis, the committee meanwhile to follow him closely and correct any mistakes. He then began, and recited verse after verse from beginning to end of the chapter. Meanwhile the faces of the committee presented a curious study. As the young minister modestly concluded and resumed his seat one of the committee was on his feet instantly, moving that the Hebrew examination be ended. The "aye" that followed was heard a block away. So the examination went on, to the continued surprise of the examiners.—Woman's Home Companion.

BRYAN'S FARM.

Where the Democratic Leader Finds Rest and Recreation.

William Jennings Bryan maintains a little farm of thirty acres just outside the city limits of Lincoln. He bought the first five acres some years ago because he liked the look of the place. He and his wife were driving by what is now his farm, or the nucleus of it, and they stopped to admire the view, with pleasant farms all around. Antelope creek, with its heavy forest, near at hand and neat country homes in their setting of shade and fruit trees all around. So charmed were Mr. and Mrs. Bryan with the situation that they bought the five acres for $250 an acre. While this price was perhaps pretty stiff, Col. Bryan explains how he got his money's worth.

"The scenery is worth $100 an acre," he says, "the climate another $100, and the soil $50."

Since that time Mr. Bryan has added to his farm in five and ten acre tracts until now he has thirty acres.

Mr. Bryan's farm is not even separated from the adjoining ground by a wire fence. At present the farmhouse is occupied by his tenant. It is a one-story and one-half frame structure in the style so commonly seen on the Western prairie. One room Mr. Bryan has reserved, and in it he keeps the effects which he has collected as Colonel of the Nebraska regiment. Some fifty feet to the rear is the inevitable windmill with the drinking cup made of a tin can. North and west of the house is the garden which Mr. Bryan planted and has cultivated, and the chicken-house is at the rear of the farmhouse.

Col. Bryan is a true Nebraskan. Although he has visited every part of the country in his campaigning tours and has had a chance given to few men of comparing the relative beauties of lake, river, mountain and prairie country from ocean to ocean, he declares that no section of the country satisfies him as Nebraska does. He likes to get out on his farm and take things easy, watch the chickens, ramble around in the fields and drink from the old tin cup.

FARM OWNED BY W. J. BRYAN.

Of course, Col. Bryan does not "work" the farm himself. Small as it is, it would take too much of the time of a man as busy as Bryan is. A caretaker lives in the little farmhouse during the greater part of the year and attends to the crops and the thousand and one duties of the farm. The garden and the chicken yard are what Col. Bryan attends to personally. The rest of the work—the fields of oats and corn, the orchard and all the wide sweep of acres—is attended to by the employe. It is but a short drive from Col. Bryan's home in Lincoln to the farm, and, therefore, he seldom, if ever, remains at the farmhouse over night.

Increasing Value.

"I have no less than a dozen complete novels which no editor would accept," said the unsuccessful author. "They are lying in my desk, and yet I believe they are growing more valuable with the passing years and that even now I might realize on them."

"I don't doubt it," replied the heartless girl. "I understand the price of paper has advanced at a tremendous rate."—Philadelphia Press.

Some men never realize how mean they have been until they run for office.

ONE MAN AND THREE DOGS.

Aided by a Gun They Hold a Wealthy Corporation at Bay.

There is an old recluse living on a little island on the flats of New Jersey, at the mouth of Newton creek, who would not give up the little shanty which he delights to call his home for perhaps any amount of money that could be offered him. Nay, when an attempt is made to take his little property from him by force, as one is now being made, this eccentric old man is willing to defend his title to the estate, if necessary, at the cost of his life. In his determination to hold onto the little insignificant estate he is being ably aided by three dogs and his trusty gun. Against the old man in the miniature war which is in progress are arrayed the minions of the law representing a great ship-building corporation with a capital of $50,000,000.

Adolph James Hutchinson, the hermit, does not really own the little plot of ground, although it has been his home for upward of twenty years. It is in the center of the tract upon which the corporation proposes to erect its great ship-building plant. On the other hand, it is the old hermit's home. He has no title other than a squatter's claim, but he is prepared to defend his rights with his life. He stands at the door of his little hut when approached by strangers and demands that they shall stay at a distance of fifty yards on the penalty of a shot from his gun. His three dogs stand ready to follow up the attack if the shot fails, so that he makes a rather formidable front. Eventually the old man must surrender to the corporation, but just how interesting he will make it for his opponents before he vacates the premises remains to be seen.

During the seventy years that have passed over old Hutchinson's grizzled head he has seen stirring scenes enough to nerve him to meet the difficulties of his present position with equanimity. He shipped on a merchantman before the mast when but a young man, and became engaged in trading in the East Indies. Encounters with Malay pirates, adventures with the head-hunters of Borneo and three experiences in shipwrecks developed a contempt for dangers. Five years' honorable service on an English man-of-war did not lessen his daring, and five years' campaigning during the civil war in this country hardened him to suffering. His mode of life since then has strengthened the effects of this early training, so that when he says he will greet any hostile visitor with a bullet it is well to respect his word. This is the way the marshals feel. It is for this reason that no attempt has yet been made to force his doorway. The course that will likely commend itself to them will be to wait until he starts to the main land for provisions, as he must do at stated intervals, and when he is gone slip quietly toward his hut, taking chances on killing his dogs that he leaves behind on guard.

When he first went to Camden twenty years ago he was despondent and disappointed. He wanted to get away from human companionship. He went down to the marshes, and finding the little island secluded and little visited he determined to make his place of abode there. He built of the rough driftwood that the waters of the Delaware swept in to him the hut in which he lives, and which he is determined not to give up, be the cost what it may.

Twelve and a Fraction.

The ruler of a small German state has discovered one way of warding off the dire calamity which must result from having thirteen sit at a table. A Berlin exchange is the authority for this statement.

His serene highness is in the habit of giving little dinners and parties to which only the social select are called. At one of these exclusive affairs held lately the prince ordered a cover to be laid for Herr L., one of his cabinet council.

Herr L. was a little late, and the rest of the guests had arrived, when he presented himself at the door.

A superstitious baroness exclaimed, as he entered, "Good gracious! There are thirteen of us!"

"Calm yourself, my dear baroness," said his serene highness. "Herr L. is not one of us; he belongs to a burgher family."

He Knew Her.

A philanthropic lady of Pacific Heights, one of the sort of superior slum-raisers shown up in "Fables in Slang," met on one of her tours a little boy who was swearing roundly over a game of marbles. She seized him at once and gave him a good shaking, adding: "You ought to be ashamed of yourself! I never heard such language since the day I was born!" The boy, into whose desolate home she had just been bringing light, pulled himself loose. "Yes'm," he said, "I s'pose dere was a good deal o' cussin' de day you was born."—San Francisco Wave.

Dangers of Generalization.

"The soil," said the political economist, "is what supports us."

"Well, I don't know," said the sea captain, thoughtfully. "The ocean supports me about eleven months in the year."—Somerville Journal.

If Opportunity knocks at every door, in most cases it is with as timid a knock as if there were a corpse in the house.

SERMONS OF THE WEEK

Love.—The foundation of all God's work for the world is love.—James R. Jones, Quaker, of North Carolina.

A Socialist.—Jesus was a socialist of a transcendental order.—Rev. Francis E. Mason, Spiritualist, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Minister of To-day.—The minister of to-day holds the greatest place for the bettering of mankind.—Rev. Dr. Harris, Congregationalist, New Haven, Conn.

Christ in Man.—There is a buried Christ in every man. Oh, that he might be discovered, released and enthroned.—Rev. J. C. Youker, Methodist, Chicago, Ill.

Bulwark of a Nation.—The purity and bliss of domestic life form the stronghold and bulwark of a nation. If this is undermined ruin is sure to follow.—Rev. Dr. Schneeberger, Hebrew, Baltimore, Md.

Christianity.—Christianity stands for the actual presence of God in this age. Men will not accept opinions formed by us from what others have told us.—Rev. A. C. McGiffert, Congregationalist, New York City.

A Co-worker.—Man is highly honored of God by being made a co-worker with him in bringing about changes, in revolutionizing the spiritual kingdom of this world.—Rev. W. H. Phillips, Baptist, Philadelphia, Pa.

Character.—The proper standard for each man is his character. If there is good where we least expect it, there is evil where we never supposed it could exist.—Rev. P. C. Yorke, Roman Catholic, San Francisco, Cal.

Service to God.—Service to God is a matter of personal and individual contract between man and the master, and measuring ourselves by others is a false standard of measure.—Rev. J. J. Tigert, Methodist, New Orleans, La.

Born Again.—We must be born again. We must be educated with spiritual life. Otherwise our dark, carnal, sinful nature can have no fellowship with the light and life of God.—Rev. F. E. Smiley, Presbyterian, Denver, Col.

Veneration for Religion.—Once religion was venerated and her mandate accepted as law. Even kings trembled on their thrones when a preacher talked. No longer is anything venerated because of age.—Rev. J. G. Slayter, Akron, Ohio.

Patience.—We need patience in working for the moral uplifting of humanity. There is nothing else that calls for so much patience as work in social reform, in political, temperance and moral reform.—Rev. John R. Shannon, Methodist, Toledo.

A Guilty Conscience.—A guilty conscience is the worm that never dies; it shortens life; it embitters every pleasure; it unfits for business, domestic and civil duties, and for the pleasures of heaven.—Rev. N. Woodside, Presbyterian, Pittsburg, Pa.

The Christian Life.—There are two circles in the Christian life—the outer, in which men work to avoid damnation, and the inner, which is characterized by fellowship and friendship with Christ.—Rev. Dr. Van Dyke, Presbyterian, Princeton, N. J.

True Development.—In all true development two forces work together, namely, the conservative, retaining all that was valuable in the old, the progressive, carrying forward the process and assimilating the new.—Rev. George H. Trever, Methodist, Milwaukee, Wis.

Essential Truth.—Essential truth not only depends on natural theology, but revelation. Every person and organism that advances the truth is a part of the church. Truth and conservatism were essential in life.—Chancellor MacCracken, New York University, New York.

Foundation.—I wish to speak to those on the threshold of life, without purpose, without a sense of responsibility, giving themselves up to pleasure, fashion, frivolity. You are laying the foundation of your future life. The older you get the harder it is to become reconciled to God.—Rev. A. Gillies, Methodist, Troy, N. Y.

Grace Be Unto You.—That prayer signifies all that is sweetest and loveliest. It does not mean so much that there shall be grace, for the grace of God is always present with us abundantly; but it means that we should be in a condition to receive it. If we are true Christians we must recognize the inestimable value of God's peace.—Rev. H. P. Dewey, Congregationalist, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Social Problems.—It is worth our while to seek to solve, as Christ would have solved, the difficult social problems of our day? How did Christ work, and along what plan? He worked on the social settlement plan. He qualified as a physician, and came down from heaven with his divine personality and came in touch with sin and social evils.—Rev. Dr. Brown, Methodist, New Orleans, La.

Christian.—If Jesus Christ were on earth to-day he would not be a Christian. He would call himself something else. Christian, as it is usually understood, savors too much of the theological controversy and not enough of Christ. I would call every man and woman who is trying to follow the teachings of Christ Christ-men and Christ-women. That means men and women like Christ. Christian has come to mean simply a controversialist.—Rev. B. P. C. Mozoomdar, Unitarian, of India, now in New York.

A Long Balloon Voyage.

Last fall two French aeronauts left Paris in their balloon at 6:15 o'clock in the evening, and on the evening of the following day, 23 hours and 15 minutes after their departure from Paris, dropped safely down near Vestervik, in Sweden. They had traveled about 825 miles, their average speed being nearly 35½ miles per hour. At one time they drifted over the Baltic Sea, and the fall in temeprature and increased humidity immediately caused the balloon to drop. By throwing out ballast, they maintained a safe elevation.

For Assessor.

I wish to announce to my democratic friends of Butler Township that I will be a candidate for Assessor, subject to the democratic caucus to be held at Butler Center this coming summer; on account of the sad accident which happened to me last spring, which put me back so with my work on the farm, I will not be able to canvas the township but I hope you will consider the matter and do as you think best. I remain your's truly, John H. Benninghoff.

Hundreds Perish.

Saturday afternoon, on the water front at Hoboken, across the river from New York City, a gasolene tank exploded on the docks of the great steamship lines known as the "German Lloyds," the "Holland American Line," and the "North German Line." The The exploding fluid caught in the big sheds filled with cotton bales, then spread over docks and caught the vessels lying there. It was all done so quickly that people on the docks and on the vessels had no time to escape. They jumped into the water and many were drowned. A part of those working below in the ships could not get out soon enough and so were suffocated or burned to death. It is believed that over 250 lives were lost, and not less than twelve millions of property. Three great ocean steamers, the Saale, the Bremen and the Maine were destroyed. Three others were greatly damaged. It was one of the worst accidents ever recorded.

The National Convention.

The Indiana delegates held a meeting Monday, at their headquarters in the court house, and elected Mayor Taggart of Indianapolis to be Indiana's member of the national committee. This was an honor properly bestowed for Mr. Taggart is not only an able man and a conservative, prudent politician, but he used to be a DeKalb boy, and that settles it.

Hon. B. F. Shively was present at the meeting and made a short speech, saying he could not consent to be a candidate for vice-president.

Leading politicians from all over the country are on hand and much interest is felt in regard to the platform and a candidate for vice-president.

Mayor Rose of Milwaukee will probably be temporary chairman.

EDITOR COURIER. After a prolonged absence with a party of topographical engineers on the Olympic forest reserve I have returned to home and friends. Our government is exploring and investigating this little known reserve, which includes about all of the Olympic peninsula, and is a wild and romantic land filled with leaping cascades and summer snowfields, great horned elks and nimble deers; fleet of foot and shy they vanish from us as the ghost of the night. The American eagle here has his home. (Republican newspapers would have us believe his home was on the head of the republican ticket.) Our party consisted of engineers, botanists, geologists, forest experts and handy men to do the hard work. It is needless to say that hard work was my part. I was engaged to supply the camp with wood and water, to build camps and pack loads over gulches and mountain sides that would discourage an Irish peddler, but for all of that it was educative and highly interesting, and will satisfy a curiosity that could be satisfied in no other way.

The geological formation is of the drift and tertiary era. Little or none of the precious metals were found, but iron and coal abound but to what extent is not known. In the mystic moonlight nights I would wander out alone over the silent and lonely mountain sides, climb the summer snowbanks that have lain here for untold years down by some brook so cold from the melting snows, drink of the crystal tide, sit on some great rock and watch the shadows play hide and go seek beneath the tall fir tops. Yes, I enjoyed the moonlight among the Olympics all alone. We surveyed many of the mountain tops and find that Mount Olympus and Mount Constance are the two most elevated points which are about 8,000 feet high. The view from the summit of either of the peaks is surpassingly grand but lonely looking down upon a land wherein dwells no man. No sound is ever heard on these great heights; all is as the silence of death, and I am glad to be back again in the busy little valley to my own beautiful home and find that all is well. Yours truly.—JOSEPH A. SHADE.

A Night Of Terror.

"Awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she could not live till morning" writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night. "All thought she must soon die from Pneumonia, but she begged for Dr. King's New Discovery, saying it had more than once saved her life, and cured her of Consumption. After three small doses she slept easily all night, and its further use completely cured her." This marvelous medicine is guaranteed to cure all Throat, Chest and Lung Diseases. Only 50c and $1.00. The Oregon on the Rocks.

Thursday last, the great warship Oregon, struck on a ledge of sharp rocks near How Ke light about 75 miles from Taku the scene of the troubles in China. She had been ordered there from Manila, though of what use a monster vessel like her, could be in the shallow river Pei Ho, no one can understand. The rocks tore holes in her bottom but it is hoped she can be got off if no storm comes on, as often does at this season.

The China Trouble.

Nothing new to be said. It is now certain that Baron Ketelor, the German minister is dead. He was attacked by Boxers, as he and his interpreter were going on horseback to the Chinese foreign office. Both were beaten, and Baron Keteler soon died. The German emperor is going to punish the Chinese for this outrage. The American, Italian and Dutch legation buildings are burned. All the other foreign ministers are in close quarters, surrounded by thousands of hostile Chinese both within and without the city walls. With but a few hundred to guard them and their ammunition nearly gone, it looks as if all foreigners would be murdered.

In the meantime, foreign forces are gathering but the process is slow, for they see a large army must be on hand when they advance from Tientsin to Pekin for the Chinese, Boxers and regular soldiers number more than 100,000.

As it is such slow work for most of the nations to get troops there, the offer of Japan will no doubt be accepted. She is close by and has a vast army, always ready to move. She says she will furnish the first big army and the others will then have time to gather their men. Great Britain is the next nearest, as she can draw in a few days, from her well drilled troops in India, and international rules allow the use of the dark skinned East Indians against the dark skinned Chinese.

Emperor William will send five large battleships and at least 20,000 men as soon as he can. The United States has sent the 9th infantry, regulars, from Manila, 1400 strong, and by today they should reach China. We are sending the 6th cavalry from SanFrancisco, but the trouble may be over, so they will not go beyond Manila.

Cold Steel Or Death.

"There is but one small chance to save your life and that is through an operation," was the awful prospect set before Mrs. I. B. He didn't count on the marvellous power of Electric Bitters to cure Stomach and Liver trouble, but she heard of it, took seven bottles, was wholy cured, avoided surgeon's knife, now weighs more and feel better than ever. Died of His Injuries.

Last Friday morning the seventeen-year-old son of Hiram Slaybaugh, residing near Indian lake in DeKalb county, while in his father's barn fell a a distance of three feet, alighting upon the handle of a pitchfork. The handle entered the body and tore the bowels in a fearful manner. Dr. Rudolph of Corunna, Dr. W. S. Williams of this city, and Dr. Barnett of Fort Wayne, performed an operation Saturday evening to releive the suffering of the young man, but on account of the torn condition of the bowels their labor was fruitless. Death relieved the sufferer this morning.—Kendallville Sun.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Don't Know it.

How To Find Out.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What to Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in 50c. and $1. sizes.

You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful discovery and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail, address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper.

OBITUARY.

Margaret L. Searight was born in Fredricksburg, Ohio, August 5, 1845, and received her education in Fredricksburg academy and Wooster seminary. On June 27, 1867, she was married to Spencer Dills who died of smallpox October 20, 1872, while serving as city physician of Toledo, Ohio.

Mrs. Dills was a more than ordinary woman. She was a member of the Presbyterian church, but there being no church of her choice in Butler she was an earnest worker in the Methodist church. She was also a member of the ladies literary society and Woman's Relief Corps of her home, both of which she worked with a will and was always ready to perform any part assigned her. She was elected president of the Meade Relief Corps at their December meeting in 1899, and was held in highest esteem by all the members until the day of her death which occurred June 27, on the anniversary of her wedding day. Thus another one of the world's most active, earnest and most worthy of women is missed from her friends. She leaves an only son, Henry S. Dills, two brothers, a daughter-in-law and a grandson to mourn her loss. We will rest upon the promises of God that He giveth His beloved sleep.

The funeral was held at her son's residence in Garrett, June 29, 1900. She was buried in Woodlawn cemetery, Auburn.

BUTLER.

John Lowe, one of Franklin township's aged and prosperous farmers and his wife visited Chicago and Milwaukee during the Fourth of July.

Peter Teutsch and wife have returned from a trip through the west. They visited points in Iowa and Missouri. Mr. Teutsch comes home with a poor opinion of Missouri. He says they are awful shiftless, just as "Ophelia" of Harriet Beecher Stowe fame claimed for them. He says their shiftlessness came near costing him a broken neck and did cause a very severe fall and a bad injury to his back, on account of a defective sidewalk that had been suffered to remain in a dangerous condition many weeks after it became so from a fire. He reports crops good except in Missouri where they are too shiftless to be busy.

Lovis Loel and wife nee Minnie Champion of Chicago, have been visiting her parents J. T. Champion's of Butler. They all met and had a sort of a reunion at the home of Mrs. J. A. Campbell last Sunday.

A Peculiar Remedy.

The Distinctive Features of the New Remedy Which is Curing so Many Stubborn Cases of Stomach and Liver Trouble.

Those who become interested in the remarkable new remedy for dyspepsia and liver trouble, Dr. Stone's New Dyspepsia Cure, and examine a package, find it be two remedies in one. The package contains a supply of both large and small tablets. They stop the fermentation of food, cause an increased flow of digestive fluids, and tone up and strengthen the stomach. The smaller tablet has a stimulating and cleansing action on the stomach, liver and bowels. One remedy restores the function of the stomach and insures the digestion of food. The other cleanses and purifies the system and expels the waste matter. You can see the need of both; but you can't realize how promptly and effectively they act without trying them. Better yet, they are soothing and gentle in their action. You would hardly know you had been taking medicine if it were not for the sense of bodily comfort and the increased vigor that so promptly results. Dr. Stone's New Dyspepsia Cure is guaranteed. Price 50 cents. Sold by H. B. McCord.

—A Dunkard meeting will be held at Butler beginning Thursday of this week.

—Mrs. W. E. Rush, who has been seriously ill for several days, is reported improving.

—FOUND:—Draughtsman's compass. Call at this office, prove property and pay for this notice.

—Greenbury Monroe came down yesterday and moved Mrs. John Blaney to his home in Richland township.

—Mrs. Aurelia Strong, who has been visiting her cousin, Mrs. William Asheiman, returned to Hudson, Mich., today.

—Mrs. D. A. Hodge returned Friday from a week's visit with Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Hartman at Wabash. She left them all well.

—Bargain hunters should read carefully the big advertisement of Bishop & Beidler on the first page. They offer some great inducements.

—Married at the residence of and by Rev. W. O. Butler, July 1, 1900, Edward C. Luce to Miss Alta M. Crooks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon Crooks.

—LOST:—Pocket-book containing sum of money, gold ring with three green sets, and several cards. Finder leave at this office or O. W. Binder's plumbing shop, and be liberally rewarded.

—HUSTLING YOUNG MAN can make $60 per month and expenses Permanent position. Experience unnecessary. Write quick for particulars. Clark & Co., Fourth & Locust sts., Phil., Pa. tf

—F. E. Kling of Newville township and Geo. Gueth of Anna, Ohio, were here Saturday in the interest of the oil well they are going to drive in the southeast corner of the county. They feel sure they can get oil.

—Ben Streifling, the Fort Wayne detective, was arrested at Defiance the other day on a charge of perjury, growing out of the arrest of several Hicksville parties for complicity in the murder of policeman Rath. Streifling gave bond and was released.

—Capt. Phillip, who commanded the battleship Texas at Santiago, died Saturday. He is the one who, when his men cheered as the Spanish ships were destroyed, called to them, "Don't cheer, boys; the poor devils are dying." When the last shot was fired he called all about him and offered prayer.

—Last week, while returning from Philadelphia, Bert Robbins came home through Washington, and spent a few hours there. He got a sight of J. R. Lameon, though at a distance, and tried to overtake him and have a little chat, but failed to find him again. He was in the city only about four hours.

—Bishop & Beidler offer some great bargains. Read their advertisement.

—More valuable gold fields have been explored in Siberia or Asiatic Russia. A strong company of American capitalists and miners have gone there. They had a train load of machinery and material.

—Court has taken a vacation till July 23, when it meets to try the case of the Morris heirs for damages against Ritter the Garrett saloon man, who it is claimed sold Morris the liquor. It will be remembered he fell out of his buggy coming home from Garrett, and was killed.

—We met Etna Kuhlman on the train at South Bend the other day. He is on the road now about all the time, in the interest of the transformer he and John Johnson have invented They are doing well with it, we are pleased to learn. Both families are in good health, except Mrs. Prosser, who is still an invalid.

—At the Steuben republican county county convention held at Angola last Saturday, the following ticket was nominated: Treasurer, George W. Willennar; sheriff, Harry Snyder, renominated; coroner, Jacob Stealey; surveyor, renominated; assessor, Frank Thompson, and commissioners, J. C. McNett and Frank Alcott.

—Yesterday was a good day at the Lutheran church. There were present at Sabbath school 246 scholars, and the offering for missions was $24 68. The communion service was the largest in the history of the church. The children's exercises in the evening were fine and enjoyed by a large audience. The offering for the whole day for missions was $40.68.

—S. Z. Dickinson writes from Clio, Mich., that he is having a nice visit and will be this week in East Saginaw. He has been with "Noe" Willard several days and found him still a J. P. after a service of over twelve years in that office. He is also an active member of the Congregational church. The secret is, he is a DeKalb man, and has set his face in the right direction.

—From Laporte county comes a strange story of a strange theft. A junk dealer from Michigan City went out among the farmers, and seeing an old looking binder in a field, went in and proceeded to demolish the machine. When caught at it and asked what he meant, he said he wanted the old iron in it. He was arrested and will probably find his old junk pretty expensive.

—YOUNG MEN WANTED:—With fair education and good character, to learn telegraphy, railroad accounting and typewriting. This is endorsed by all leading railroad companies as the only perfect and reliable institution of its kind. All our graduates are assisted to positions. Ladies also admitted. —Dr. D. J. Swarts left this morning for Montreal, where he takes the steamer Vancouver of the Dominion line for Europe. He will spend some time in London, interviewing the medical societies before crossing over into France. He expects to be away several months.

—A little motherless child was sent from Noble county some years ago to the children's home at Mishawaka. The matron found a couple in Kansas who were childless, and the child was legally adopted by them. She is now sixteen years old and has become the sole heiress of $80,000 by the death of her adopted parents.

—Trustee Ed. Kelham was here Monday and set his COURIER account way over into 1901. He and the other trustees met as required by a new law, to settle with each other as to school children transferred from one corporato another. Mr. Kelham has had to transfer some to Noble county, some to Richland, to Union, to Jackson, to Auburn and Garrett.

—During last May an infant child of our neighbor was suffering from cholera infantum. The doctors had given up all hopes of recovery. I took a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy to the house, telling them I felt sure it would do good if used according to directions. In two days time the child had fully recovered. The child is now vigorous and healthy. I have recommended this remedy frequently and have never known to fail.—Mrs. Curtis Baker, Bookwalter, Ohio. Irishman Defines a Bull.

An English paper gives a fine doublebarreled definition of a "bull." An Irishman, upon being asked by an American, "What is an Irish bull, anyway?" replied: "Well, it's like this: Supposing there were thirteen cows lying down in a field and one of them was standing up; that would be a 'bull.'"—Springfield Republican.

Topics of the Times

Of the persons who received outdoor relief in Indiana last year 48,837 were natives of the country, 1,400 were Irish and 2,852 were Germans.

Building operations undertaken during the first three months of this year in New York amounted to $16,000,000, as against $38,000,000 for the corresponding period last year. The principal cause of this large falling off is to be found in the high price of materials.

The British ironclad Warrior, which is the oldest warship of its kind in her Majesty's navy, has just been stricken from the roll of vessels in active service. The Warrior was launched in 1860 and completed the next year. She has a displacement of 9,210 tons and her iron armor is four and one-half inches thick.

Motor carriages and motor bicycles have already attracted the attention of European tax leviers and in Antwerp these vehicles are doubly taxed, first by the province to the extent of 50 francs on motor carriages and 20 francs on motor bicycles, and second by a municipal tax of 100 francs on the former and 50 francs on the latter.

The plans of a new aerostat, designed by Capt. Dubureau, have been submitted for examination to the French Academy of Sciences. Capt. Dubureau claims that a very long journey can be accomplished by means of his aerostat and proposes to attempt to cross Africa with it when the machine is completed. The plans were referred to a committee for consideration.

The Paul Coke Works of Connellsville, Pa., are now installing an electric charging and discharging system for their coke ovens, which is attracting considerable attention by reason of its novelty. A trolley line will be constructed along a row of 500 coke ovens, and instead of mules to haul the cars, as at present, electric motor cars will be used. It is expected that the electrical system will effect a considerable saving in time and prove more economical to operate.

Concrete as a building material for walls of high structures is to have a test in Washington. The permit, recently issued, is for a seven-story structure, with both the inside and outside walls of concrete. Twisted iron rods are to be used in connection with the concrete, and the thickness of the outside walls is to be twelve inches. The walls are of sufficient strength, as calculated, to resist all compressive strains without taking into account the strengthening effect of the twisted iron.

One of the most recent of the many vexatious questions existing between Japan and Russia is that in relation to the fisheries in Saghalien waters. The Japanese have been pursuing this industry unobstructed for forty years. Their fishing stations in those waters number 250 or more and 5,000 men are employed. Although practically trespassers, they have been allowed to fish for so many years without interference that they had come to believe that they had as much right to do so as the Russians themselves.

West Point military academy is 100 years old. It was opened as a United States training school for army officers on May 1, 1800. There were but two cadets, Joseph G. Swift of Massachusetts and Simon M. Levy of South Carolina. The third cadet and the first Virginian to enter West Point was Walter Keith Armistead of Upperville, who was graduated in 1804. He became a famous engineer officer and colonel of artillery, and it is stated that no place either he or Gen. Swift fortified was ever taken by the English in 1812-15.

Mrs. Bagley, mother of Worth Bagley, who was ensign on the torpedo-boat Winslow and killed off Cardenas, Cuba, during the Spanish war, has sent to the Bath iron works plans for a handsome memorial tablet, which will be placed on the torpedo-boat now under construction at the Bath iron works in his honor. The tablet will be of bronze in the shape of a shield. The border will represent cannon balls, and on it will be the name Worth Bagley. On the lower part will be an eagle surmounting a shield and sword, while in the center will be the dates of his birth and death. It will be placed on the conning tower of the boat.

"HEY, RUBE!"

The Cry Is Seldom Heard Nowadays Around Shows.

"You don't hear the cry of 'Hey, Rube!' around the shows like you used to," said an old-time circus man the other day, "but I guess it's like everything else—people are beginning to learn better. There was a time when, in order to get a job with a show, you had to be a fighter. If you were willing to crack a sucker on the least provocation, or hit a guy over the head with a stake because he tried to crawl under the tent, then you were sure to get a job. But that class of men were needed around every circus. Just as sure as you showed in a small town, just so sure you were bound to have a fight. Circus day in any small town meant a great deal. Just as soon as the first bill was put up the young fellows began to save up their nickels and dimes in order to take in everything, from the side show to the concert. They also wanted enough to get drunk. That's where all the trouble began. The show lands in town about 5 o'clock in the morning, and the first thing is to run up the tents. Even at that hour you will find crowds of country folk who have driven miles to get there on time. Most of them are young fellows, just at that age when they think they know it all. With a few dollars in their pockets they start in drinking whisky from a bottle. While waiting for the street parade they keep taking big swigs at the black bottle, which is concealed generally in the left hip pocket, because the right one is loaded down with a big gun of some kind. After the parade they all flock down to the lot, with the bottle well filled. By this time they are more than half drunk. They drop into the side show, and it's dollars to nothin' that they will insult some of the freaks before they get through. When they are called down they show fight, and, of course, are cracked over the head and thrown out. Then they fill up the black bottle and hold a council of war. All of their friends in the neighborhood are called in, and it is decided to cut the tent, dope the water or cut up some other caper of that sort. We always kept a sharp lookout, and the word was always passed along the line to watch the squad, which was always tipped off, so there could be no mistake. This gang would always remain on the lot until the last minute, waiting for a chance to do something. We never tried to do anything until the train was loaded. After everything was on the cars, then the gang would follow to the train and then try to make their bluff good. They would try some mean trick just to provoke a fight, and we were always ready for them. The 'Hey, Rube!' was sent out, and the battle would begin. If we were going to use guns we always knew it, and, safely intrenched behind wagons and cars, we would pour it into them. Sometimes we lost a man or two and routed the country toughs, but you can bet no circus crowd ever lost a fight. Sometimes we would capture one or two of the crowd and rout the others. The captives would be given a good beating and released. But it was nearly always a case of drunk that caused all the big fights with the shows. But I guess the people are getting to have a little more sense, and it is very seldom nowadays that you hear the cry of 'Hey, Rube!' about the shows."

Scrupulous Apology.

International courtesies are to be observed, even in disreputable professions. Josiah Flynt, who has shared the company of tramps in order to procure data as to their methods of living, relates an instance of true politeness from one of that unsavory brotherhood. He says, in "Tramping with Tramps":

In Glasgow, a fellow vagabond did me a good turn. We were walking along the street, when three town tramps came along and "guyed" my hat. My companion noticed it, and I told him I had suffered in that way before. Then he turned sharply about on the scoffers, and thundered out:

"Who're you lookin' at? Ef you're tryin' to guy this Yank, you'd better stop! Ef you don't there'll be a fight!"

"Let's run," said I, "if you really mean that."

"Not much! I'm English, you know, and I can knock out any Scotchman that comes 'round. I'm in the mood for it right now."

The town vagabonds took him at his word, and left. Then I said to him, "You English fellows seem to have things pretty much your own way here."

"Yes," said he, "we English fellers know how to bluff. We've been bluffin' the world now for a good many years."

"You forget the United States!" I could not help interjecting.

"Beg pardon, Yank," said he. "Beg pardon!"

Mountains of the Deep.

Many miles off the coast of Newfoundland the bottom of the ocean rises in a remarkable way and forms a comparatively shallow basin enormous in extent and surrounded by water five miles deep. This region is known as the Newfoundland Banks, and is the famous trysting place of the merciless fogs and ice-clad brotherhood of the North. As these icebergs approach the warmer climate the action of the sun and water upon them is remarkable, and does for them what the sculptor's chisel does for the block of marble. Out of shapeless masses appear forms of the finest architecture; a drifting mountain careens, topples over, and finally twists itself into a beautiful cathedral or a many-turreted fortress, set high upon an elevation of clearest marble; vast interiors formed by icy arches springing from great bits of a breaking berg; and all these forms draped with rich traceries of cream-white lace in designs undreamed of. Then, too, the melting ice on the crests of these bergs falls down the slippery sides and into the sea in streams and cascades; and, strange as it seems, this water is always fresh, despite the surrounding salt of the ocean. —Woman's Home Companion.

The Secret of Success.

When I was with the "A Mustard Plaster" company, taking the part of Lionel Effingham, I first met Bill Nye. After the performance he called on me at the hotel. I remember the conversation distinctly. "I was pleased with your acting to-night, Mr. Hamfat," he said, in his peculiar droll way. "By the way, what parts did you take last season?" "Of the hotels?" I asked. "Oh, no," he replied, smilingly, "I mean what stage part?" "I took the part of Nick O. Teene in 'The Duke's Pipe,' I answered. "Was your last season's tour successful from a financial standpoint?" he next inquired. "Well," I returned, "altogether it was fairly so, but not as good as this season. You see, 'A Mustard Plaster' draws much better than 'The Duke's Pipe' did."—From the reminiscences of Sir Irving Hamfat, now being translated in seven different languages.—Indianapiols Sun.

Optician's Latin.

Hiram had returned home from college, where he had won high honors as a student of the ancient languages, but he "fell down" one day when his sister, a demure young girl in her teens, asked him to translate a sign she had seen in front of an optician's office, which read thus:

CON SULTU SABO UTYO UREY ES.

Hiram struggled manfully with it for several minutes, and gave it up.

"It isn't good Latin," he said. "There are some words in it that are Latin, but the others are either wrong in termination or are barbarisms from other languages, and taken as a whole, it doesn't make sense."

"That's what I said," rejoined his sister, "but Keturah, out in the kitchen, translates it without any trouble. She says it means, 'Consult us about your eyes.'"

Whereupon Hiram collapsed.

Cleansing of School Slates.

At one place in England slates are washed twice a day with a disinfecting fluid. The slates of children should be carefully inspected, and great attention should be paid to the sponges with which they clean them.

THE UNITED STATES AND CHINA.

AS LONG ago as 1809 the American navy had its first fight with the Chinese; and in Japan and Corea the United States has also landed parties to demand satisfaction for injuries to American citizens. The chief role of the United States in Asia has been as the sponsor for China, Japan and Corea as nations. The United States was the first nation to make a treaty with China by which that country recognized the principles of international law, and it was followed promptly by other nations. An American naval officer secured the first commercial treaty with Japan, forced the Shogun to admit foreigners to trade, and incidentally brought about the overthrow of a usurper and the establishment of the present liberal government in control. Corea's first treaty was with the United States, as was that of the king of the Loo Choo Isles. The United States in 1894 made the first treaty with Japan that treated the Mikado's empire as a civilized nation. Within the last year this country secured the adoption of an agreement for the open door in China by the powers. Some of the most influential generals, admirals and diplomats in the service of the Asiatic powers have been Americans. It is on account of these facts that when the present trouble arose the suggestion was made in many foreign countries that the United States should settle the crisis in China and also because of the known disinterestedness of the United States, which has allowed other powers to reap the territorial advantages that have followed its action. So, too, the Chinese minister was not without reason for his suggestion that the Monroe doctrine be applied to China.

First Lesson.

The first experience of the Chinese with Americans grew out of a somewhat similar state of affairs to that in the Mediterranean, where the United States suppressed the Barbary pirates, who had been levying tribute on the ships of the great nations without hindrance. Chinese waters were also infested with pirates, against whom the Europeans had made no determined resistance. The United States ship Athualpa, under the command of Capt. Bacon, happened along in 1809. The ship entered the river at Macao and sent a boat crew in command of the chief officer ashore to get a pilot. The pirate junks stole quietly up and suddenly rounded the boat, intending to leap on board and kill the crew. When the Americans realized what had happened they turned their loaded cannon on the Chinese and fought off the boarders with their Brown Bess muskets and boarding pikes. The Chinese gave hard battle, throwing hand grenades on board. The pirates were beaten off, and the defeat of the leader was such a blow to his prestige that he was afterwards betrayed by some of his men. The mandarins put him to death by the means known as the "thousand cuts," a slow and prolonged process of hacking into little bits. Capt. Bacon's lesson, however, taught the Chinese pirates to respect the American flag, and American trade grew and prospered.

The opium war, which was declared against China by Great Britain in 1840, was responsible for the opening of that nation to the world's commerce by means of the treaty ports which were afterwards established. That war grew out of the attempt of China to suppress the smuggling of opium carried on by the British to the depletion of the imperial revenues. To suppress the trade the Chinese had recourse to force.

But after the short, sharp struggle in 1857, which resulted in the capture of Canton by the allied British and French, the United States was one of the powers that joined with England, France and Russia in securing treaties for freedom of trade.

The first foreigner employed by the Chinese for the reorganization of their army was an American, Frederick Townsend Ward, a soldier of fortune, born in Massachusetts. He adopted the Chinese nationality under the name of Hwa, married the daughter of a wealthy mandarin, and was made a mandarin of the highest grade and Admiral General in the service of the Emperor. Gen. Ward turned his attention to the reorganization of the empire's army, but found it a difficult task. He died as the result of a wound received in directing an assault on Tsekie. The Chinese paid him the highest possible honors after his death by burying him in the Confucian cemetery at Ningpo. Ward's successor in command of the Chinese forces was Major Charles G. Gordon — "Chinese" Gordon — who brought to a high degree of discipline and efficiency the army whose foundations had been laid by Ward.

The treaty made in 1868 provided for the application of the rules of international law to the conduct of war between the nations, gave China the right to appoint consuls to the United States, provided for the recognition of freedom of religion in China, and permitted Chinese to embrace Christianity, permitted the Chinese to attend schools in America and to have free right of travel here, and for all the mutual privileges which are allowed to the most favored nation. The Chinese exclusion act later excluded the Chinese, and in this again the United States was first and was followed by Australia, the only other nation where the coolie competition was felt.

When the war with Japan ended disastrously for China Li Hung Chang turned immediately to America to secure a disinterested adviser to aid in the peace negotiations and watch the interests of the imperial government. The man upon whom his choice fell was John W. Foster, who had succeeded James G. Blaine as Secretary of State. Mr. Foster went to Shimonoski and conducted his negotiations to the satisfaction of the Chinese government. In the case of Japan the United States was actually the godfather of the new nation.

Japan had been a closed nation from 1638, when the Portuguese had been expelled, until 1854, when Commodore M. C. Perry, a brother of the victor on Lake Erie, opened the country to foreign trade. The Japanese government did not permit any foreign vessel to touch at a Japanese port under any pretense. In 1849 the United States had its first trouble with the Japanese government. Commodore Gisinger, learning that some American sailors were imprisoned at Nagasaki, sent Commodore Glynn to demand their liberation. He succeeded in doing so, and the report he then made of the resources of the island was partly responsible for the determination of Daniel Webster, then Secretary of State, to open the islands to American trade.

The acquisition of a Pacific coast line by the United States suggested to Millard Fillmore and Daniel Webster that the United States should be the chief trading power in the East, and that the commerce of Japan would be profitable. Commodore Perry was, therefore, given a letter to the Mikado, signed by the President and written by Daniel Webster, soliciting a treaty of friendship and commerce between the two nations by which the Mikado's ports should be thrown open to American vessels for purpose of trale.

Commodore Perry sailed in November, 1852, with a fleet, and he carried with him many useful implements and inventions as presents to the Japanese government, including a small railway and equipments, and a telegraph line—things which were unknown to the Japanese. Commodore Perry's instructions, which he received from Webster before the Secretary's death, were to approach the Emperor of Japan in the most friendly manner, and to use no violence unless attacked, but if attacked to let the Japanese feel the full weight of his power.

Perry's Diplomacy.

Perry carried out his instructions by sailing to Yeddo and delivering his letter to the authorities with the request that it be presented to the Emperor. The Japanese, in accordance with their custom, refused to permit him to land, and Perry waited for his answer for several months, during which he surveyed the Loo Choo Islands. While in these islands he made the first treaty negotiated by them with a Caucasian power. After waiting several months Commodore Perry returned to the Bay of Yeddo, and finally by a triumph of diplomacy, aided by the sight of his seven ships, effected a landing and obtained a treaty permitting the Americans to trade. This treaty permitted citizens of the United States to trade with Japan through the ports of Simoda and Hakodade and the United States was authorized to appoint Consuls to represent its interest at these points. It was stipulated that steamers from California to China should be furnished with supplies of coal, and that American sailors shipwrecked upon the Japanese coast should be treated humanely and not killed or imprisoned, as had been the Japanese custom in their attempt to secure isolation. Thus Japan, after 216 years of seclusion, entered into the family of nations. The other powers were quick to follow the United States' example and secured similar treaties, and three other ports were soon added to which Western people might trade.

Perry's visit was the cause of the overthrow of the dynasty then in power in Japan. From the twelfth century the authority of the Mikados had been nominal. They had been relegated among the gods and their power was exercised through a Shogun, who was the real sovereign. When the Shogun yielded to the American demands it created a profound sensation in Japan. The nobles were indignant at the departure from the traditional policy of the empire. They gained the upper hand, and in 1863 ordered the Shogun to abrogate treaties of commerce. Attacks on the foreigners followed, and foreign vessel attempting to enter treaty ports were fired upon. One of these vessels was the Pembroke, a small American steamer loaded with merchandise.

Japs Learn a Lesson.

The insult was reported to Commander MacDougal, who was with the Wyoming at Shanghai. The Wyoming attacked and destroyed the Japanese fleet. McDougal sailed away in the Wyoming, which was hit twenty times. Five of his men were killed and six wounded. The American minister made a claim of $10,000 for the loss of time and freight sustained by the Pembroke, which was paid promptly.

Perry opened Japan to trade. The United States in 1878 and again in 1894 led the way for the admittance of Japan into full fellowship with the nations and to permit trade of Americans in every part of the empire.

After 1868, when the Shogun was finally overthrown and the Mikado himself began to rule under a constitutional government, the Japanese showed constant progress in peace. They became restive of being treated as barbarians and wished the removal of the stigma. The first effort was received with favor by the United States, which, by the treaty of 1887, placed Japan upon exacty the same footing as Germany, France, or any other country in relation with the United States, except that the consular courts were continued. The treaty of 1894 was the first to give Japan standing among nations. Until then the empire was closed to foreign residence and travel.

Corea was the last of the Eastern Asiatic countries to be opened the world. "The Hermit Kingdom," as it was called, excluded all foreigners until 1882, when Commodore Shufeldt of the United tSates navy opened it by much the same methods that had been employed by Commodore Perry in the case of Japan.

The first communication the United States and Corea had was one of force, and in a punitive expedition 2,000 Coreans were killed. This expedition was sent because of the treatment of the crew of an American schooner, the General Sherman, which had been chartered by a British trader.

Coreans Whipped.

When the General Sherman's disappearance became known the United States demanded redress of China, but that country denied responsibility for affairs in the peninsula. So in January, 1867, the Wachusett, under the command of Commander Shufeldt, proceeded to Corea. The local officials refused to give any information, and the Wachusett left. A similar mission under Commander Febiger of the Shenandoah, dispatched a few months later, proved equally barren.

Finally, in 1871, the American Asiatic squadron, consisting of the flagship Colorado, the corvettes Alaska and Benicia, with the gunboats Monocacy and Palos, were dispatched to Corea under the command of Rear-Admiral Rodgers to obtain satisfaction. When the fleet arrived at Seoul a boat came out to the flagship with native officials bearing a letter from the king. It was couched in insulting terms, and stated that unless the fleet left it would be destroyed; that the king desired no intercourse with foreigners; and that the crew of the General Sherman had committed piracy and murder and had been put to death. Admiral Rodgers demanded an apology and satisfaction, which was not forthcoming, and he determined to teach the king a lesson. On June 10, 1871, the gunboats proceeded up the river, landed a force of 644 men, and an attack was made upon the principal fort. Amid a hail of bullets from the enemy the Americans sprang up the steep incline to attack the citadel. They swarmed over the ramparts or through the breeches, and, in a twinkling, were at close quarters with the garrison. The Coreans fought stubbornly to the last without asking quarter, and nearly 2,000 of them were slain. After that the subsidiary forts and 481 pieces of artillery fell into the American hands. Three Americans were killed and seven wounded.

Their defeat in this battle taught the Coreans a wholesome respect for Americans, who were unmolested from that time forward. The United States was determined, however, to secure trade with the peninsula, which remained closed to all nations except China and Japan. The negotiations were put in charge of Commodore Shufeldt, who had served in one of the expedition against the Coreans.

He Put Out the Fire on Her Hat.

A curious accident took place in the Casino at Monte Carlo. A friend of mine was standing in the Atrium a few nights since, when she heard a scuffle and turning round was surprised to see a gentleman quietly but forcibly pressing his square topped felt hat down over the head of a lady standing beside him. Struck by the extraordinary action my friend approached nearer, and then she saw smoke issuing from under the hat. It appears that the lady in question had been standing near the naked gas lights, which hang unprotected for the convenience of smokers, and her tulle toque caught fire. If it had not been for the prompt, though unconventional action of the gentleman who extemporized an extinguisher, she might have suffered considerably more than she did.—Paris Messenger.

LAST OF A FAMOUS COMPANY.

Only Survivor of Christy's Minstrels a Resident of New York State.

In the little hamlet of Johnsonburg, Wyoming County, lives the only survivor of the famous old-time Christy minstrels, the pioneers in negro minstrelsy, William A. Porter by name, or, as everybody in those part calls him, "Uncle Bill." Mr. Porter is an old man now, being nearly 80 years of age, but in form he is erect and his step is firm. When he relates reminiscences of those early days, when minstrelsy was struggling for a foothold, his eyes are as bright as ever. He has a wonderful memory and the stories he tells of his eventful career before the footlights are very entertaining.

Asked where the first minstrel company was organized, he replied: "Edwin P. Christy formed the first company of negro minstrels the world ever saw. Its inception was in the city of Buffalo in 1842. The idea was a new one and the people of good society were inclined to look askance at a performance that delineated 'Jim Crow.' However, adverse opinion was gradually overcome and in 1845 the first performance in a regular theater was given in the old Eagle Street Theater, where now stands the Hotel Iroquois.

"Buffalo society gave Christy and his company the stamp of its approval and his prosperity as a minstrel manager was thereafter assured." It was at this time that Mr. Porter joined the company as a banjoist and bass singer, making his debut April 5, 1845.

Stephen C. Foster, the composer of over 100 songs, among which were "Way Down Upon the Suwannee Ribber," "My Old Kentucky Home," and "Massa's in the Cold, Cold Ground," was a member of the troupe. Mr. Porter sang "Way Down Upon the Suwannee Ribber" long before it ever saw the light in a publisher's office. In those days crowniess headgear, overalls and rag-bag clothes constituted the minstrel's wardrobe, except the quartet, always a prominent feature in every minstrel organization, who were attired in full dress, black suits and white vests.

Mr. Porter remained with the Christys nine years, visiting nearly every town and city of prominence in the United States, Canada, England and Australia, finally becoming manager of the company. Retiring from the organization in 1854, he settled on his little farm in the county of Wyoming.—Rochester Herald.

Australian Celebrities.

Some men were handling a little piece of wood about the shape of a cigar boat, and four or five inches long, with a long reed kind of tail to it.

"What odd thing is that wooden rat?" asked the guardsman.

"Wichi-wichi," replied Warrigul.

Just then a native whirled one over his head at a dangerous galt, and sent it flying out along the level ground. The little nose of it bobbed up and down, and the queer oblong thing worked its way along, with its tail as a balance, at a fearful rate. It ran along the ground for sixty or seventy yards. Others competed at the game of wichi-wichi, until the winner scored over 100 yards in the directest line to the target.

Then they swung the hulawalla. This is a fish-shaped piece of thin wood tied to a long string and swung around and around by means of a long stick. The noise of it much resembled the roar of a giant bull enraged. The hulawalla is used by the tribesmen to warn off the women during the week of the sacred bora dance. It can be heard three or four miles away, according to the wind and lay of the country. During that week, the women must not come in hearing of the dread instrument, or they suffer dire agony to a sure death.—Outing.

What Will Become of China?

None can foresee the outcome of the quarrel between foreign powers over the division of China. It is interesting to watch the going to pieces of this race. THE PUBLIC EYE

Rear Admiral Kempff, who is the supreme agent of Uncle Sam in China, with power to fight or not as he chooses, provided the best interests of Americans are safeguarded, is a native of Illinois. He was appointed to the Naval Academy in 1857, and since that time has passed through many varied experiences. He was with the steam frigate Wabash in 1861, assisting in the blockade of the southern Atlantic coast. The same year he fought at Port Royal, and the following year landed a howitzer from the Wabash and assisted in the capture of Fernandina and Jacksonville. For this he was commissioned a lieutenant. His lieutenant commandership came to him in 1866, after which time he passed to Pacific coast duty. For three years—1877 to 1880—he was in charge of the navy yard at Mare Island, after which he took command of the Adams for three years, and then returned to Mare Island. In December, 1898, Secretary of the Navy Long decided to make him the commander of the naval station of far-away Guam, but prior to his taking charge more important work was cut out for him in the Orient, and he now finds himself the commanding naval officer at Pekin, where the Boxer troubles have necessitated sharp action.

Gen. Marquis de Gallifet, who has resigned his place as minister of war in the French cabinet on the plea of ill health, is one of the most distinguished French army officers. His seventy years of life have been full of military experience. He has seen as much fighting in wars between civilized nations as in wars with savage tribes, and he has won laurels in time of peace as an organizer and disciplinarian. Gen. Gallifet has been decorated with the grand cross of the Legion of Honor.

Abbas Hilmi, the Khedive of Egypt, who has announced his intention of coming to the United States for the purpose of collecting a harem of American girls, is a dissolute young man of 26, who has no conception of Christian customs. He is the eldest son of the late Tewfik Pasha, and succeeded to the Egyptian throne in 1892 at the age of 18. Abbas was educated in Vienna, but his stay in that city did not seem to have changed his character, which is that of a crafty, heartless, selfish Oriental.

TO WOMEN WHO DOUBT.

Every Suffering Woman Should Read this Letter and be Convinced that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Does Cure Female Weakness.

"I have been troubled with female weakness in its worst form for about ten years. I had leucorrhœa and was so weak that I could not do my housework. I also had falling of the womb and inflammation of the womb and ovaries and at menstrual periods I suffered terribly. At times my back would ache very hard. I could not lift anything or do any heavy work; was not able to stand on my feet. My husband spent hundreds of dollars for doctors but they did me no good. After a time I concluded to try your medicine and I can truly say it does all that you claim for it to do.

Ten bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and seven packages of Sanative Wash have made a new woman of me. I have had no womb trouble since taking the fifth bottle. I weigh more than I have in years; can do all my own housework, sleep well, have a good appetite and now feel that life is worth living. I owe all to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I feel that it has saved my life and would not be without it for anything. I am always glad to recommend your medicine to all my sex, for I know if they follow your directions, they will be cured."—MRS. ANNIE THOMPSON, South Hot Springs, Ark.

Carried a Bottle of Poison.

There is a pretty general impression that the work undertaken by the spy is invariably disgraceful work, and that the professional military secret service agent is a more or less degraded creature—degraded, that is, for the time being by the very nature of the mission he undertakes. Of course, nothing could be further from the truth. There are spies and spies. The paid renegade, who for mere pay undertakes to pry into and betray the secrets of his friends, stands upon an entirely different footing from the officer, who, taking his life in his hands, ventures into the enemy's camp in order gratuitously to obtain information which may turn out to be of infinite value to his own intelligence department.

Lord Kitchener was a spy of this latter sort, and it was his cleverness, energy and resourcefulness in this capacity which first attracted to him the notice of his superiors. Alone and unarmed he plunged into the revolted Soudan in the autumn of 1882 and succeded in penetrating, disguised as a peddler of hurra cakes, as far as Omdurman itself. Here he saw a fellow-spy stripped naked, flogged till the flesh hung in ribbons from his body, and then crucified face downward in the blazing sun. Ever afterward, in his wanderings among the wild desert tribes, Kitchener carried with him a tiny phial of cyanide of potassium. As he tersely put it: "I did not fear death—but such a death!"

An Absent-Minded Beggar.

A firm in Liverpool, delighted that one of its employes was called upon to join the reserves, volunteered to pay half his wages to his wife in his absence. At the end of the month the woman appeared and the moiety was given her. "What," she said, "four pound?" "Yes," replied the senior partner, "that is exactly half; sorry you are not satisfied." "It isn't that I'm not satisfied. Why, for years he has told me that he only got 16 shillings altogether, and—and—if the Boers don't kill him, I will."—Argonaut.

Logic.

Mother—Didn't I tell you not to touch the preserves without my permission?

Son—Yes, mother.

"Then why didn't you come to me and ask me?"

"Because I wanted some."—Life.

Tellit—It's all right. Most of our domestic mail is foreign.—Baltimore American.

Teaching the Alphabet.

This method was employed by a bright young mother: Instead of answering her little one's eager inquiries about the symbols on her blocks by a mechanical repetition of their names, she made up a play which should familiarize the child with the letters as individuals. First, she bought a large box of blocks of all shapes and sizes; then, selecting twenty-six small cubes, she painted the letters on them, and put them all in a box by themselves. Showing this to the child, she told her that these persons all belonged to one family, called the Alphabet family. There were Mother A and twenty-five children, and a father (&c.), who was away on a voyage and would not be back for some time. The child's imagination seized the idea with avidity, and on the first day he learned with ease the names of the mother and four children. Afterward he was limited to learning two new names each day until the number was complete. Upon the introduction of each new member of the family they built him a house of other blocks, just the shape of himself, and then drew his likeness upon paper. Each letter had a tale of his own adventures to relate, and many were the evolutions he was put through. Within a fortnight the 3-year-old child was constructing new characters by putting letters together, and the rapidity and ease with which he proceeded to spell was surprising.—Woman's Home Companion.

A Bad Bargain.

The unprofitableness of some of the rush and worry of business life is neatly suggested in the following dialogue, found in one of the papers:

"Where is Jones?"

"Gone to California."

"What for?"

"To regain his health."

"How did he lose his health?"

"Earning the money to go to California."

Supreme Court Sustains the Foot-Ease Trade Mark.

Justice Laughlin, in Supreme Court, Buffalo, has ordered a permanent injunction, with costs, and a full accounting of sales, to issue against Paul B. Hudson, the manufacturer of the foot powder called "Dr. Clark's Foot Powder," and also against a retail dealer of Brooklyn, restraining them from making or selling the Dr. Clark's Foot Powder, which is declared, in the decision of the Court, an imitation and infringement of "Foot-Ease," the powder to shake into your shoes for tired, aching feet, now so largely advertised and sold all over the country. Allen S. Olmstead, of Le Roy, N. Y., is the owner of the trademark "Foot-Ease," and he is the first individual who ever advertised a foot powder extensively over the country. He will send a sample Free to any one who writes him for it. The decision in this case upholds his trade-mark and renders all parties liable who fraudulently attempt to profit by the extensive "Foot-Ease" advertising, in placing upon the market a spurious and similar appearing preparation, labeled and put up in envelopes and boxes like Foot-Ease. Similar suits will be brought against others who are now infringing on the Foot-Ease trademark and common law rights.

But He Got the Money.

William Quigley, of Brooklyn, who possesses an eye to the main chance and much more than the ordinary business acumen, is congratulating himself on the payment of a bill that girdled the earth and traveled 6,000 miles besides. It was not Quigley's bill in the first place, but he took the chance of collecting it and made a liberal profit.

Henry Darragh, a battery boatman, made a bill for $9 for running lines to the British ship Bandaneira in August, 1899, but the ship left here for Shanghai before he had a chance to present it to Captain Falk. He thought no more of it until last January, when, finding the bill in his pocket, Darragh offered it to Quigley for $1, which the latter promptly paid. He posted the bill via San Francisco to Captain Falk, in Shanghai. The latter indorsed it and returned it via London to Quigley, who sent it to the Bandaneira's agents in Glasgow. Early in April a draft came from Glasgow for the amount of the bill, and Quigley drew the money.—New York Journal.

The Best Remedy for Stomach and Bowel Troubles.

"I have been in the drug business for twenty years and have sold most all of the proprietary medicines of any note. Among the entire list I have never found anything to equal Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for all stomach and bowel troubles," says O. W. Wakefield, of Columbus, Ga. "This remedy cured two severe cases of cholera morbus in my family and I have recommended and sold hundreds of bottles of it to my customers to their entire satisfaction. It affords a quick and sure cure in a pleasant form." For sale by H. B. McCord.

—The supreme court of Indiana holds that placing a cross at the left of the names of two candidates for the same office does not necessarily make a voter's ballot illegal, if it is otherwise properly prepared as a mixed ticket, and the improper marking appears to have been due to an honest mistake. In such a case the ballot should be counted for each candidate voted for except the two who were running for the same office and rejected as to them.

You tire easily?
Your heart flip flops, you tremble,
and think you are getting old,
and fear some one will know it.
You try to look pleasant, when in fact,
you are puffing like a steam engine,
and can't throw a brick across a cow path,
without wheezing like a shingle-mill.
But you bet you are not getting old.
You have indigestion.
You have let it run too long.
You can cure it by using
Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.
It's a sure shot, 10c, 50c or $1 a bottle.

Heartburn.

When the quantity of food taken is too large or the quality too rich heartburn is likely to follow, and especially so if the digestion has been weakened by constipation. Eat slowly and not too freely of easily digested food. Masticate the food thoroughly. Let six hours elapse between meals and when you feel a fullness and weight in the region of the stomach after eating, indicating that you have eaten too much, take one of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and the heartburn may be avoided. For sale by H. B. McCord.

Krause's Little Liver Pills

are a purely vegetable, gelatine coated pill that act directly on the liver and bile. They are free from all crude and irritating matter, their action is gentle and natural and they do not cause constipation after using. H. B. McCord.

QUESTION ANSWERED.

Yes, August Flower has the largest sale of any medicine in the civilized world. Your mothers' and grandmothers' never thought of using anything else for Indigestion or Billiousness. Doctors were scarce, and they seldom heard of Appendicitis, Nervous Prostration or Heart Failure, etc. They used August Flower to clean out the system and stop fermentation of the liver, stimulate the nervous and organic action of the system, and that is all they took when feeling dull and bad with headaches and other aches. You only need a few doses of Green's August Flower, in liquid form, to make you satisfied there is nothing serious the matter with you. Sample bottles at O. P Barber's, Corunna.

Ladies, Why Don't You?

EDITOR COURIER:—Is there anything at all that we can do to convince all your lady readers that we are actually giving away to every married lady in the United States who writes for it, an elegant sterling silver-plated sugar shell, like jewelers sell for 75c each? There is no "catch" about this offer. There is nothing to pay, nor any requirement to buy anything in order to secure this beautiful souvenir gift. It is our way of advertising the merits of Quaker Valley silverware. A copy of the Home-Furnisher, our own publication, will also be sent free. Surely this beautiful sugar shell gift is worth asking for. Then it seems to us that we should hear from every lady who reads your paper. Quaker Valley Mfg. Co., Morgan and Harrison Sts., Chicago.

A Good Cough Medicine.

Many thousands have been restored to health and happiness by the use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. If afflicted with any throat or lung trouble, give it a trial for it is certain to prove beneficial. Coughs that have resisted all other treatment for years, have yielded to this remedy and perfect health been restored. Cases that seemed hopeless, that the climate of famous health resorts failed to benefit, have been permanently cured by its use. For sale by H. B. McCord.

Foley's Honey and Tar heals lungs and stops the cough.

From Auld Reekie.

EDINBURGH, SCOT., June 20, 1900.

DEAR MOTHER:—This is to let you know that we are getting along fine. I will begin where Wilson left off and describe our journey and by looking at the map you can follow us. Thursday night, June 14, we were at Keswick where we got a double bed for 2s, that is fifty cents. It was a fine place, the bed had a canopy to it and an old-fashioned fireplace in the room. About every place we stay there is an old-fashioned fireplace. We got up early and rode a while before breakfast, then got bread and milk at a farm house, we were hungry and ate quite a lot. We gave the woman a shilling. We then went through Penrith and had a glance at the ruins of an old castle beside of the road. We got an 11-penny fish dinner in Carlisle and visited the cathedral and castle. We then pushed on to Dumfries where we got got supper, lodging and breakfast for two shilling apiece. We started away early but visited Burn's tomb in the churchyard, and passed his monument out on the public square. Then we went up through Thornhill, Sangnhar, New Cumuch to Mauchline where we had a glimpse of the high bridge over the river Ayr. We couldn't get anything but milk, bread and Scotch scones in this town, but they made us a meal.

From Mauchline we went up through Kilmarnock to Glasgow, where we stayed Saturday night cheaply enough. There is nothing of particular interest in Glasgow, being like Liverpool, a large business city. After having breakfast we started north through Milngavie, Strathblane, Gartness to Aberfoyle. Between Gartness and Aberfoyle the aqueduct which supplies Glasglow with Loch Katrine water crosses the road and right there we got another bread and milk dinner of a farmer. We arrived at Aberfoyle early in the afternoon. There are only two hotels in the place and they are as fine as silk. There we had to pay four shilling for a room but we got our meals reasonable, nine pence for tea, and one shilling for breakfast.

Aberfoyle is a pleasure resort. I would like to stay there for about two months. In the evening we climbed a couple of mountains behind the town. The hills behind the town shut off the view of all the high peaks except Ben Lomond, (3,192 ft.) After breakfast we went on the coach road to the Trosachs, paying six pence for the privilege of pushing our bicycle up and leading it down two-thirds of the way through the mountains. As we came to Loch Katrine we passed the base of Ben Venue, (2,393 ft) and passed through the Trosachs. We walked along the north side of Loch Katrine under Ben Aan till we could see Ellen's Isle, made made famous by Sir Walter Scott in "The Lady of the Lake." I picked some flowers on the banks of the lake which you will find. The three with white bunches of flowers and no leaves are Edelweiss, I think. The four with pink bunches and a few leaves are Orchids of which there is any amount. The others I do not know the names of. The for get-me-not came from Bracklin Fall near Callander and the holly leaves from Stirling Castle.

Leaving Loch Katrine we passed back through the Trosachs, past Loch Achray, Ben Ledi, (2,685 ft.) Loch Vennachar to Callandar, where we visited Bracklin Falls and saw Ben Vorlich, (3,224ft) to the north. We got a lunch at Callander then pushed on to Stirling where we spent the remainder of the day visiting the castle where the room in which James II, murdered William, the eighth Earl of Douglas, is pointed out to visitors. We saw the old bridge of Stirling and the Wallace monument. In the morning we passed the battle field of Bannockburn, went down through Falkirk to Linlithgow where they were celebrating and having a fair, it being the day that they elect some officer. They have to do it on that day or lose the charter that makes it one of the royal towns. There we saw the ruins of the palace where Mary, Queen of Scots, was born. They also had a large parade that day in which were a couple of bands of Scotch bagpipers. Then we came on to Edinburgh. We got a lodging place and put our bicycle away then went to visit Calton Hill where is Nelson's, Stewart's Playfair's and the national monuments, also the royal observatory. Prince's street is simply grand.

This morning we went up on top of Arthur's seat and got caught in the rain, but it soon stopped. We had a drink from St. Anthony's well on the way up. Then we visited Holyrood palace which is mostly modern, except the chapel which is in ruins. We also visited the castle this forenoon and saw the Crown of Scotland and the royal staffs and other jewels and things. This afternoon was put in, in looking up the birthplace and houses that Scott lived in, the Dean bridge, the meadows St. Mary's church and other minor points of interest. We expect to start south tomorrow morning. Goodby for this time, from—LESTER FRAGLER.

BURNED TO DEATH.

Mrs. John Kruse Dies as the Result of a Kerosene Explosion.

A terrible accident happened at the old Kruse home two or three miles east of town yesterday morning. Mrs. John Kruse was building fire in the stove to get breakfast while her husband was at the barn doing the chores. It appears the fire did not start easily, and she took a two-gallon oil can, took off the cup and poured some oil on the fire. It must have had gas generated in it for it at once exploded with such force as to tear and twist the can, throwing the burning stuff over her and around the room. She ran out the door giving the alarm and met her husband and the hired man, and put out the fire of her blazing garments. She told her husband to run into the house and get her a dress. As he got the dress he saw the curtains were on fire, jerked them down and threw them out. He then helped her put on her dress and assisted her into the house. All her clothes except the band of the skirt at her waist, had burned off, and she was roasted more or less from her feet, even the soles, to the top of her head. Her hair was burned off and the flames had even burned inside her mouth. Dr. Hines was sent for, and did all possible for her, but had no hope from the start. She died at about noon. As the whole surface was injured it is believed she did not suffer much, though at times she spoke of internal pain. Her mind was clear to the last, when it seemed as if her heart gradually ceased to beat. She was a most worthy woman, and her tragic death has been a shock to the whole community.

The funeral services were held at the Lutheran church this afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. Brosy officiating. Interment in Woodlawn cemetery.

Sudden Death at Garrett.

The people of Garrett were pained and astonished this morning to learn of the sudden death of Harry H. Smith, a well-known carpenter and contractor of that city. Mr. Smith retired early last night and seemed to be in usual health. Mrs. Smith arose this morning and prepared breakfast and then went to call her husband. She found him lying with his face buried in the pillow and then for the first time discovered that life was extinct. The deceased, who was an industrious and popular man, had for several years been subject to attacks of heart trouble, and his death doubtless resulted from an attack of that character. Mr, Smith was about 36 years of age and leaves a wife and two children. The funeral will be held at Garrett tomorrow afternoon.

Our Saturday Evenings.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

The unusual incident of this week's national convention at Kansas City is nomination for vice-president of a man who had been vice-president already for a full term, but under a different man. This has happened but twice before.

Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois was chosen as running mate for President Cleveland on his third nomination for president at the Chicago convention in 1892. The democrats were successful, and Mr. Stevenson served his four years with great credit to himself, being an excellent presiding officer in the senate.

OTHER VICE PRESIDENTS.

It may be of interest to trace in brief, the various vice-presidents and see what foundation there is for the dislike so many have for the place, especially those who hope some day to be president, as in the case of Roosevelt. It will be seen that for sixty-four years no one has been made president after having been vice-president.

In Washington's first and second terms, his vice-president was John Adams. This covered the period from April 30, 1789, to March 4, 1797, when Adams became president, his vice-president being Thomas Jefferson, who become president for the next two terms. His first vice-president was Aaron Burr, and his second one was George Clinton.

Clinton was elected vice-president with James Madison, and died in office. When Madison was re-elected, Elbridge Gerry was the vice-president, and also died in office.

Madison went out of office in March 1817, and James Monroe became president in 1817 with D. D. Tompkins vice-president, and both got a full second term, beginning March 5, 1821, the 4th being Sunday.

In 1825 John Quincy Adams became president, and his vice-president was John C. Calhoun.

In 1829; Jackson became president with the same vice-president, Calhoun, Calhoun resigned a few months before this term closed.

In 1833, Jackson began his second term with Martin VanBurn as vice-president.

VanBuren became president the next term, being elected in 1836, and beginning in March 1837. His vice-president was Richard M. Johnson.

Harrison was the next president and dying in office, was succeeded by his vice-president, John Tyler, as provided in the constitution.

Polk became president in 1845 with Geo. M. Dallas as vice-president.

Zachary Taylor became president in 1849, with Millard Fillmore for vice-president. Taylor died and again the vice-president had to take the place.

Franklin Pierce became president in 1857, with Wm. R. King for vice-president. King died in office.

James Buchanan took his seat in 1857 with John C. Breckenridge as vice-president.

In 1860, Brackenridge was candidate for president of the southern faction of the democrats, but was defeated.

Abraham Lincoln's first vice-president was Hannibal Hamlin, and his second was Andrew Johnson, who became president when Lincoln was assassinated.

Grant's first vice-president was Schuyler Colfax, and his second was Henry Wilson, who died in office.

In 1877, Hayes became president with Wm. A. Wheeler as vice-president.

In 1881, it was Garfield and Chester A. Arthur, the latter becoming president when Garfield died.

In 1885, it was Cleveland and Hendricks the latter dying in office.

In 1888, it was Benj. Harrison and Levi P. Morton who were elected.

In 1893, it was Grover Cleveland and Adlai E. Stevenson.

In 1896, it was McKinley and Hobart, the latter dying in office.

From this list it will be seen, that only two presidents have died in office, (though two were assassinated.) Yet of these vice-presidents five have died in office; only three have been elected president; four have become president by the death of the president who had been elected.

Of the three elected to the presidency, only one was elected in the way we now do this. Adams and Jefferson were elected under the earlier method, when the electors were under no obligations to vote for any certain candidate They met and voted for anyone they pleased, and they all voted for president. Then the man who had the highest number of votes became the president. The present way of voting for both president and vice-president was put into the constitution in 1804.

An Editor's Recommendation.

Mr. W. J, Hutchison, editor Gazette, Pleasantville, Mo., writes: "I have used Krause's Headache Capsules with satisfactory results. I bought a box that cost me 25c and one capsule cured me of a dreadful sick headache. My wife and myself have also the other medicines prepared by the Norman Lichty Mfg. Co., and we recommend them to them to the public to be just as represented." Sold by H. B. McCord.

DeKalb Man's Boom.

We have a letter from C. P. Houser, at Indianapolis, containing news that will surprise and please many DeKalb people. It is the fact that Hon. W. W. Robbins is being boomed for sheriff of Marion county, by Camp Gray, the democratic veterans' club of Indianapolis. A Sentinel clipping says:

WILL SUPPORT ROBBINS.

"The members of Camp Gray held an enthusastic meeting at the court house last night. The club has decided to take an active part in aiding W. W. Robbins in his race for the democratic nomination for sheriff of Marion county, and the meeting last night was to devise means of helping the canvass and to hear reports of progress. Maj. Robbins was present and made a short speech. He has been devoting himself for some time to his candidacy and reported to the members of the camp that he has found things in good condition throughout the country.

There was some misunderstanding in regard to delegates to the county convention. Some of the members were of the opinion that the delegates were to be selected at ward primaries and to this the club is opposed. It was decided to send a committee to urge upon him the need of precinct primaries. The following men were named as the committee:

W. H. Buford, John Kiley,
J. C. Hinckley, Richard Saxton,
John McCloskey, J. J. Cassidy,
M. V. B. Spencer.

Then follows Mr. Houser's letter, which shows better than we can express it, the popularity of our friend Robbins. Here it is:

INDIANAPOLIS, July 2, 1900.

MY DEAR MR. BARNS:—I herewith enclose a clipping from the Sentinel, which will inform you that DeKalb boys are either in the lead or "push" where ever they are found. Thomas Taggart, mayor of this city was once a "DeKalb boy." Mr. Robbins and I have always been and I suppose shall ever be political opponents, for I have long since given up all hopes of converting him to republican principles.

I met Mr. Robbins first in our school days following the civil war, and as a classmate found him the same aggressive faithful friend that I find him now in our present friendly and business associations. He enlisted during the war and served in the famous Persimmons brigade until the end of its service, when he re-enlisted in the Tenth cavalry, and served until the end of the war. In my travels as a salesman, I often met Comrade Robbins, and in fact my entire business life has afforded me many opportunities to meet him and so have been in close touch with him since the war. He has demonstrated in public life, that he is an ardent friend of the old soldiers. As a representative in the legislature from Miami county, he introduced and championed some of the most important bills that passed that body during that session, and was the author of some of them; among them, a law exempting union soldiers from working on the public highways, the measure providing for the burial of indigent soldiers, the bill for the protection of the nation's battle flags, by incasing them and reimbursing the Grand Army for the construction of the cases, the laws providing that county clerks shall execute soldier's papers without cost. He championed the Bank Depositors Protective law, and was author of the bill providing for the present system of farmers' institutes. I doubt if there was a more active member in the legislature, the two terms he represented Miami county, especially in measures that affected his comrades, the old soldiers, the most favorably and directly. As an old associate and comrade, I would like to see friend Robbins knock the persimmons at the convention, and I believe if he does his old comrades will fall into line with him next November. Yours truly.—C. P. HOUSER

Low-Rate Excursion

To Atlantic City, N. J., and other seaside resorts Via the Baltimore & Ohio R R.

In order to give its patrons an opportunity to visit the seashore at a nominal cost, the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company will sell low-rate excursion tickets to Atlantic City, Cape May and Sea Isle City, N. J., and Ocean City, Md., on Tursday, August 2, 1900.

Atlantic City has acvuired such fame as a summer resort that a description of its varied attractions is superfluous. Thousands are annually attracted to this delightful resort for the enjoyment of magnificent surf bathing, and to avail themselves of the unequaled opportunities for sailing, fishing, etc.

Tickets will be available on all regular trains, and will be good for return twelve days, including date of sale, thus giving ample time for an enjoyable outing.

Further information will be given upon application to nearest B. & O. Ticket Agent, or B. N. Austin, Gen'l Pass'r Agent, Chicago, Ill. a2

Does Your Baking Powder Contain Alum?

Prof. Geo. F. Barker, M.D., University of Penn.: "All the constituents of alum remain (from alum baking powders) in the bread, and the alum itself is reproduced to all intents and purposes when the bread is dissolved by the gastric juice in the process of digestion. I regard the use of alum as highly injurious."

Dr. Alonzo Clark: "A substance (alum) which can derange the stomach should not be tolerated in baking powder."

Prof. W. G. Tucker, New York State Chemist: "I believe it (alum) to be decidedly injurious when used as a constituent of food articles."

Prof. S. W. Johnson, Yale College: "I regard their (alum and soluble alumina salts) introduction into baking powders as most dangerous to health."

In view of such testimony as this, every care must be exercised by the housewife to exclude the over and over condemned cheap, alum baking powders from the food.

Baking powders made from cream of tartar, which is highly refined grape acid, are promotive of health, and more efficient. No other kind should be used in leavening food. Royal Baking Powder is the highest example of a pure cream of tartar powder.

SALOON ROBBERIES.

One of the commonest features of the average saloon, is rarely given to the public. Pride keeps the victim from telling of the outrage that has been committed. The facts are known only to a familiar friend, or divulged to some close mouthed official. Large sums of money are stolen from men who enter the saloons expecting to take only a social drink. But in the hilarity and generaly mixed up condition either at the bar or the gambling table large amounts of money are stolen from the drunken victim, Several cases are known to have occured in this vicinity in which parties have entered a saloon with considerable sums, but on leaving, they were penniless, though they had not stacked any money on games of chance.

The state has power to destroy a still if the destiller does not pay his tax, or it can close a saloon if the saloon keeper does not pay his license, but it does not close a saloon because it is a center of murder, pauperism, insanity, corruption, degradation, lawlessness, misery, terror!

Miss Jessie Ackermann, 'round-the-world missionary for the W. C. T. U., said recently: "The main street of Manila, which, under the much denounced rule of the Spaniards, was quite a busy thoroughfare for all kinds of trade, is now dubbed "Saloon Alley," and almost every other store is a drinking hell. In one day $1,700 were spent by a single regiment of United States troops for drink. An agent for an American liquor house boasted that in one day he secured orders for a thousand barrels of whiskey."

Bishop Thoburn visited Manilla to study the situation, and in describing the effect of the canteen, said:

"Drunken soldiers meet me everywhere, and it is painful in the extreme to remember that many of them have come from christian homes and that they are thrust into the very jaws of a temptation from which only strong men can be expected to escape."

A Spring Medicine.

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 5, 1900.

DR. C. D. WARNER:—I have been taking medicine every spring for years to purify my blood, but I have not yet found a medicine that equals your Compound of Seven Cures. I recommended it to a friend of mine who had a cancer and he told me your medicine had cured him. Yours truly—JACOB BRANDON, Constable for twelve years in Detroit. F. E. Davenport.

Introduction of Automobile Cab Service in Connection with B. & O. Trains at Chicago.

The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company has sprung a surprise with the announcement of its intention to establish on July 1 an Electric Automobile Cab Service in Chicago, for the accommodation of passengers to and from Grand Central Passenger Station.

These automobiles are of the latest electric pattern, absolutely noiseless in regard to machinery and running gear.

They will carry the name of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad and will be in charge of experienced uniformed motormen.

The rates for this extraordinary service are extremely reasonable, fifty cents per passenger to and from the center of the city, and the details absolutely prohibit extortion.

It has been arranged so that passengers on incoming trains can place their orders for cabs with train-conductors before arriving in Chicago, which will be telegraphed ahead, thus insuring satisfactory service.

For outgoing passengers, orders will be taken at Baltimore & Ohio ticket office.

This is a decided innovation in Chicago and in harmony with a similar service which the Baltimore & Ohio recently established at Washington and Philadelphia, where it has met with much success, and has become a most popular feature with passengers on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. j19

Will This Scheme Work?

J. M. Wickizer, proprietor of the Plymouth fruit farm, is taking orders for a novel and practical arrangement for the cultivation of strawberries. An ordinary barrel is filled with soil suitable to strawberries and the plants are placed at regular intervals through holes bored in the sides. This arrangement economizes space, avoids weeds and insures clean fruit. By planting several varities one can have early and late berries, making the crop cover the entire season. A barrel will yield from from two to three bushels, enough for an ordinary family, and in addition to the utility, economy and novelty it is an interesting ornament as well.—Plymouth Democrat.

To Asthma Sufferers.

NEWS IN BRIEF GUSTS

BLOWN IN FROM ALL PARTS OF THE EARTH.

An Important Record of the Week As Told by the Telegraph—Latest from Foreign Shores—Crimes, Casualties, Fires, Etc.

It Shows Growth.

The treasury bureau of navigation states that during the fiscal year 1900 the total tonnage officially numbered, added to the United States merchant marine, amounted to 417,034 gross tons. About 38,000 tons of Hawaiian vessels and less than 1,000 tons of Porto Rican shipping were admitted to American registry. It is estimated complete figures will show that the actual additions to the merchant fleet during 1900 have been greater than in any previous year since 1856. The vessels built in the United States and officially numbered during the year aggregate 381,863 gross tons, a record surpassed in 1874, when 432,725 gross tons were built and documented. Of the new vessels 58 per cent are steam vessels. The most important additions of the year have been the large steel vessels built for the great lakes.

Oil On Fire.

New York had its second great water front fire within a week Friday morning. Shortly after midnight lightning struck and fired the Standard Oil Company's immense plant, at Constable Hook, N. J., and the conflagration swept over 500 acres of ground. Charles King was killed by the explosion of an oil tank, and three others were injured. Several hundred men had to race for their lives before a wall of persuing fire. Twenty-three huge oil tanks exploded. So far the loss is estimated by the officials at $2,000,000. The flames swept the harbor and endangered the shipping. Water is useless in fighting the fire and trenches are dug to divert the flaming oil from property.

Negroes Leave Glenview, Ind.

Glenview, Ind., is without a negro, every son and daughter of Ham having deserted the town. Since the shooting of Marshal Lockhart by a negro named Greathouse a few days ago the colored population has been greatly excited and has been leaving town daily. One hundred left in one morning, and a few hours later the remainder, with their families, departed. Feeling against negroes is high.

A Gift to France.

Paris special: The ceremonies connected with the unveiling of the equestrian statue of Washington, the gift of an association of American women for the presentation of a statue of Washington to France, passed off Wednesday according to program and under favorable circumstances. Sousa's Band was in attendance. The United States Ambassador, Gen. Horace Porter, presided and delivered an address.

Snakes On His Body.

For several days Charles Dunlap, of Winamac, Ind., had been missing, and his friends started out along the banks of the Big Monon Ditch to find him. His dead body, covered with rattlesnakes, was discovered. Mr. Dunlap had gone out there to fish during the day, and, as he was subject to fainting fits, it is presumed that he had one and fell in a nest of snakes.

Death in the Flames.

Fire in a crowded tenement house at Nos. 141 and 143 Adams street, in Hoboken, N. J., caused the loss of twelve lives. The building was a frame structure, three stories high, and several families lived on each floor. When the flames started they burned rapidly and the firemen could do little either to extinguish the fire or to save life.

After Revenge.

A crowd of thirty men and boys attacked a Chinese laundry on Dorr street, Toledo, kept by Lee Woo, and nearly wrecked the place, and wanted to get hold of the Chinaman to kill him. The attacking party said they were after revenge for Chinese atrocities in China. The police checked the raid.

Many Hurt in a Collision.

In a head-end collision of passenger trains on the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern Railway, near Remington, Ohio, Mrs. Agnes Evanfeldt, of Cincinnati, was seriously injured and ten others were hurt. The property damage was slight.

Judge Long Suicides.

Judge Thomas B. Long, well-known to Indiana Bar, a 33rd degree Mason and past grand master of the Indiana grand lodge F. & A. M., committed suicide at Terre Haute, Ind. Despondency is given as the cause.

No Need For Troops.

The orders for General Wade to start for the scene of the threatened Indian uprising in Minnesota have been countermanded, as the Indian troubles have quieted down.

Has Cargo of Skaguay Gold.

A dispatch from Seattle, Wash., says: The steamer Dirigo has arrived from Skaguay. She brings ten boxes of gold dust, valued at nearly $800,000. The Dirigo carried seventy-two passengers, mostly from Dawson.

A Disastrous Wreck.

A very disastrous wreck occurred on the Montana Central Railroad, a branch of the Great Northern, at Trask Siding, twelve miles from Butte, Mont., by which two persons were killed and thirty-three injured.

Million Dollar Loss by Fire.

A destructive fire occurred at Morenci, Ariz., completely wiping out the old concentrator and mammoth smelting plant of the Detroit Copper Mining Company owned by Phelps, Dodge & Co. of New York. The loss is estimated at $1,000,000, partially covered by insurance.

McLains Are Put Out.

Charles E. and Albert O. McLain of the Chicago commission firm of McLain Bros. & Co., who have been on trial before the Board of Trade directors for maintaining and operating a bucket shop, were found guilty and by unanimous vote expelled from membership.

DEMOCRATS MEET.

Opening of the National Convention in Kansas City.

RICHARDSON RULES.

Tennessee Man Chosen to Preside Over the Big Gathering.

Democratic National Convention Called to Order by Chairman Jones on Independence Day—Speeches Made by Gov. Thomas of Colorado, Ex-Gov. Altgeld of Illinois and Permanent Chairman Richardson—Preliminaries Are Cleared Away and Adjournment Taken Until the Following Day.

Kansas City correspondence:

The Democratic national convention was called to order at noon Wednesday by Chairman James K. Jones of the National Committee amid scenes of great enthusiasm. The convention hall was packed to the doors and the whole amphitheater was a cheering mass of humanity as the best-known leaders of the party came upon the platform. Cheers for Jones and Bryan greeted the chairman as he rose, and it was several minutes before he could proceed amid the uproar. Words outlining the policy of the party for the coming campaign were spoken in the address of Gov. Thomas of Colorado, its temporary chairman, and the gathering of 15,000 people listened to the solemn reading of the Declaration of Independence. After the appointment of the various committees the convention adjourned until 4 o'clock. At that hour it was found that the committee on credentials was not yet ready to report and adjournment was taken to 8:30 in the evening.

Throughout the night there had been no sleep, for the sky was lurid and the sound deafening from rockets and cannon and every conceivable device of noisy demonstration. And with the daylight the shock was increased into one long-continued roar in which the patriotism of the day and the enthusiasm of the party blended. The heat was intense.

Kansas City was one of the warmest places on earth on the Glorious Fourth. Within the confines of the city, in its hump-backed streets, in the corridors of its hotels and in the convention hall, there were no less than 100,000 visitors who helped to make the biggest noise the town had ever heard. From Kansas and Nebraska and from every corner of Missouri thousands of visitors came to celebrate. And, Kansas City let loose its own population for a holiday. The roar and rattle of the giant crackers and the snapping of fireworks almost drowned the noise made by the convention orators.

The delegates to the convention pined for a cool retreat on the Fourth, but the crowd was so great that no spot was free from jams. Kansas sent forty train loads of people Wednesday morning to witness the opening of the convention. About 25,000 visitors came from the Sunflower State. J. Mack Love, chairman of the Kansas State central committee, was besieged by hundreds of Kansans demanding tickets to the convention hall. The Missouri headquarters were also besieged for tickets. Cheap excursion trains were run to Kansas City on the Fourth from nearly every city in the State. It is rare that such a program has been offered to westerners.

OPENING OF THE DEMOCRATIC NATIONAL CONVENTION IN KANSAS CITY.

CHAIRMAN RICHARDSON.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION HALL IN KANSAS CITY.

Early Wednesday the crowds began to turn toward Convention Hall and all the approaches to the vast edifice were filled with an eager and excited throng, surging toward the many entrances, and seeking to gain early admission to the building. With them came bands, marching clubs and drum corps, and to the confusion of their crash and hurrah was added the constant crack, boom, sizz of bombs and crackers as the convention enthusiasts and the small boy vied with each other in celebrating the day.

The surrounding streets presented the appearance of a State fair under full headway, with scores of tents and improvised restaurants giving evidence that a good share of the sweltering mass which had descended upon the town was living upon sandwiches and lemonade.

Further away there was evidences of the desolation left by the great fire which swept away the convention hall three months ago—here the tall spire of a church with the chancel of mass of ruins, and there the debris of a school house, only the dignified facade remaining. The convention hall itself at first glance looks crude and imperfect, but this was only in its external ornamentation of cornice and column. The substantial elements of the structure were complete, ready to house the delegates and the legion of onlookers in one of the most perfect convention halls ever offered to the gathering of a great party. The stars and stripes floated from a hundred staffs along the gable and at intervals surrounding the entire building. There were hundreds of these flags topping the structure, giving an idea of its vastness, 340 feet long and 198 feet wide.

Squads of policemen were on the ground, keeping back the crowds and maintaining quiet. There was little disorder, however, for the crowds were good-natured and their patriotism was tempted with discretion. It was noticeable that a very considerable portion of the gathering throngs were made up of women, who profited by the warm day to put on their gayest raiment, thus adding another element of color and beauty to the blaze of bunting everywhere apparent.

Inside the convention hall the officials were early on hand to make final preparation. The sergeant-at-arms gave a closing drill to the 300 ushers under his direction, showing that they performed their duties with precision. The doorkeepers, messengers and pages were likewise drilled in their several duties, and all was made ready for the rush to occur.

Night Session.

At 8:30 Chairman Thomas rapped the convention to order. Pending the reports of the committees the convention was addressed by ex-Governor Altgeld of Illinois. The organization committee then reported the selection of J. D. Richardson, of Tennessee, as permanent chairman. The announcement was received with cheers, and upon assuming the chair Mr. Richardson addressed the convention. Shortly after he had concluded his speech a motion to adjourn until Thursday morning was made and carried.

The Democrats decided that their national convention this year should be held farther west than ever before and that it should open on the Fourth of July. The nearest the Democrats have come to holding a convention on the Fourth of July before was at the 1896 session in Chicago, which opened July 6 and nominated Bryan July 10. The next nearest was that of 1884, which opened July 8 and nominated Cleveland three days later. One of these candidates was defeated and one carried the Democratic banner to victory, both starting out in the month of July.

JAMES K. JONES.
Chairman of the National Democratic Committee.

GREAT CONVENTION HALL.

Kansas City Auditorium Has Risen Phoenix-Like from the Ashes.

The great auditorium in which the national Democratic convention met has risen Phoenix-like from the ashes. On April 4 the great structure of which it is a duplicate was entirely destroyed by fire, entailing a loss of $235,000. Firemen were still at work on the smoldering ruins when the owners of the hall met and decided to rebuild. Next day the clearing away of the rubbish began. Contracts let for the destroyed structure were duplicated, and immediately began the rush of steel structural work, lumber, brick and building material to Kansas City. The original had only been constructed in 1898, and was regarded as a model building of the kind. On June 24 the finishing touches were put upon this building and save for the lack of decoration the convention could have met next day. The rapidity of the execution of a task so monumental reflects great credit upon Western energy.

The hall occupies a space 314 by 200 feet. It is two stories high, built of Missouri stone, with cream brick and terra cotta embellishments. The first story is of the renaissance style and the second of peristyle form, with groups and Corinthian columns. It is of bridge construction, without a column, the roof being supported by great steel girders. The floor space is divided into an arena, in which the delegates and alternates were seated, an arena balcony and balcony and roof garden, with boxes skirting the arena and arena balcony. The arena alone seats four thousand persons.

NATIONAL COMMITTEE ROOM ENTRANCE.

PARADE IS NOISY AND LURID.

Marchers Wield Their Pistols and Burn Much Red Fire.

The national Democratic parade Wednesday night probably was the noisiest and the most lurid pageant that ever streaked the streets of a city with fire and detonations, vocal, musical and explosive. It was four miles of men, music, fire and brimstone. Probably there never were so many pistol shots fired in so short a time. Every man and boy along the route of the parade seemed to be occupied industriously in loading and firing pistols of all kinds. They didn't look at the show, but kept their guns hot with incessant volleys. The men in the procession seemed to be seized with the pistol mania also. The flambeau clubs shot skyrockets so fast that the faces of the men were black with powder. They exploded so many cannon crackers that their trail was like the road up Vesuvius. With roman candles they shot holes in flags and streamers, and the windows of hotels, crowded with watching faces, seemed to be a favorite target.

The Colorado band of Indians, the Montana Miners' band, the Cowboy band from Idaho, the rough riders and cattle punchers, the real whooping Indians, rounded out the carnival of thunder and fire. The rosaries of electric lights, stretched in illumination across the downtown streets, were shattered and unstrung. The only dissatisfied element in the show was the bands of music, which blew their horns till they uttered typhoons of wind without making any music.

The parade was made up of "most everything." Floats, advertising wagons, politicians, firemen, policemen, Populists, Republicans, Democrats, Odd Fellows, societies of women, of children and of boys, Modern Woodmen, Indians, cowboys, old Deadwood stage coaches, automobiles, shotguns, fine horses, donkeys, pistols and more pistols.

CLARK THE VICTOR.

Convention Seats His State Delegation from Montana.

The committee on credentials made quick work of the contests. They assembled at the Kansas City Club, and Edward Gray of Texas was made chairman. The Clark-Daly rival Montana delegations fought bitterly before the committee and the result was a victory for Clark by a vote of 32 to 15. In the contests of the District of Columbia, Oklahoma and Indian Territory each delegation was seated, each delegate to have half a vote. In the Indian Territory and Oklahoma contests the evidence was so voluminous that the committee decided it would be impossible to hear it without delaying its report indefinitely, and the testimony was therefore not considered.

Convention Notes.

One-half the Nebraska delegation are bankers.

Plenty of free literature was distributed at the hotels.

The New York Journal employed an expert kite-flyer to send up kites during the convention.

Delegates were amazed at the prevalence of nickel-in-the-slot machine gambling devices that are sure things for the owners.

Mrs. J. M. Cohen of Salt Lake, one of the alternates from Utah, sat in the delegation, occupying the place of R. C. Chambers, a delegate who was taken sick.

Indiana was represented more strongly in Kansas City than any other State in the Union. Almost all of the Democratic State candidates were there, as was most every Democrat of prominence.

PLATFORM FOR 16 TO 1

Imperialism Is, However, Declared to Be the Paramount Issue.

National Democratic Convention Nominates William J. Bryan by Acclamation Amid Scenes of Wild Demonstration—Resolutions Adopted Without the Expected Fight—Imperialism the Chief Issue—Trusts and Militarism Denounced—Convention's Dramatic Close.

Kansas City correspondence:

William J. Bryan was nominated for President by the Democratic national convention at 8 o'clock Thursday evening, after a day of immense enthusiasm. The convention had two sessions, both uproarious. A 16 to 1 platform was adopted and imperialism was named as the leading issue of the campaign. The convention then adjourned until 10:30 o'clock Friday morning.

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN.

It was after 11 o'clock when Permanent Chairman Richardson called the convention to order Thursday. Bishop Glennon of Kansas City offered the opening prayer. The weather was cooler and the great crowd that packed the hall heard the proceedings with more comfort than on Wednesday. After the prayer there was so much noise that the chairman had to appeal for order. While waiting for the committee on resolutions to report the convention listened to speeches by several orators, among whom were Gov. Hogg of Texas, Alex. Dockery of Missouri and Mayor Rose of Milwaukee. The resolutions committee being not yet ready to report a reecss was taken until 3:30 o'clock.

It was not until 4 o'clock that Chairman Richardson picked up the gavel and brought the convention to order. The resolutions committee, headed by Senator Jones, D. J. Campau, Senator Tillman and Judge Van Wyck, pushed their way to the front. Mr. Tillman read the platform in a voice easily heard. Amid a roar of cheers and applause the platform was adopted without dissent.

Nominations for President were next in order. Alabama yielded to Nebraska and W. D. Oldham presented the name of W. J. Bryan. Then followed a wild demonstration. The vote was unanimous, and the convention adjourned till Friday.

The presidential kite was swiftly flown and across it was emblazoned the name of Bryan. But as to the tail of the kite—the nominee for the vice-presidency—there were various opinions.

Friday's Session.

At 10:45 Chairman Richardson, with a sweep of the gavel, cut off the strains of the band, slowly stilled the confusion, and brought the convention to order for its third day's work. After prayer the call of States for nominations for Vice President was begun. Arkansas yielded to Illinois and Congressman Williams placed Adlai E. Stevenson's name before the convention. A burst of applause and great confusion followed. Minnesota presented the name of Charles A. Towne and the demonstration was renewed. Then Senator Grady, of New York, got the floor and named David B. Hill, and pandemonium broke loose. Hill declined the nomination, and the convention named Stevenson as its choice.

A. E. STEVENSON.

Prince from Hawaii.

The delegation from the Hawaiian Islands was headed by a real prince. The delegation consisted of Prince Daniel Kananakoa, Col. W. H. Cornell, John H. Wise, John D. Hold and Charles T. Wilder. The Republican delegation from the islands which went to Philadelphia had a native, but he was a lawyer of Honolulu. This prince was prouder of being a delegate than of anything so far in his life. "Birth," he said, disdainfully, "that is of my ancestors. To be a delegate, that is to my own credit."

Few Police in the Hall.

One of the noticeable things about the convention Wednesday was the absence of policemen. In Philadelphia there were 1,200 policemen in and around convention hall. In Kansas City the total force was seventy-eight. These seventy-eight policemen did their work well, and there was a minimum of disorder.

Decoration Delayed.

The work of decorating the city progressed slowly. This was because the merchants were loath to break out into bunting lest a windstorm, so frequent in Kansas City latitude at this time of year, would sweep the colored festoons away.

RECORD OF THE WEEK

INDIANA INCIDENTS TERSELY TOLD.

Girl Jilts a Farmer to Wed His Son—Paroled Prisoner Gets a Legacy—Important Supreme Court Decision on Pumping of Gas.

Miss Carrie Duncan, aged 19, whose marriage to Alfred Higgins, 51 years old, was announced to take place at English on the 24th of June, disappeared from home a little before that date. A few days later she called upon a sister in Louisville, Ky., and said she intended spending a short time with each of her friends in that city before marriage, as she was not likely to see them soon again. This set her people at ease till Mr. Duncan received a letter from her, dated at Great Band, Kan., telling him that she and Fred Higgins, son of Alfred Higgins, were happily married. Alfred Higgins is a well-to-do farmer; the son is a hired hand on a Kansas farm.

Indiana Is Storm-Swept.

Storms over Indiana destroyed considerable property and killed and injured many persons. At Union City the Odd Fellows' hall was demolished, and Miss Gertrude Sipe was struck by lightning. Crops were ruined in the southern part of Henry County, and several houses were destroyed by lightning. The electric light plant at Sullivan and the Methodist Church were unroofed. At Knightstown Charles Estell was instantly killed. Horace Hardin and a farm hand were struck while driving to town. Both were found by farmers unconscious beside their dead horses. Twenty houses were destroyed at Linton. George Shepman was killed at Cambridge City while taking shelter under a tree. At North Manchester Henry Brown was killed and Alexander Homan prostrated. Miss Nellie Beecher was struck while walking along the streets of Greenfield. The damage to crops will be enormous.

Happy Day for a Convict.

At New Albany, Ernest Roulet was notified that he was finally paroled from the Indiana reformatory, where he was serving a term charged with stealing a bicycle. The same mail brought the tidings that by the death of his mother in Switzerland he inherits $6,000. A draft for the amount accompanied the letter. Roulet ran away from home when a youth, and came to this country because his mother had married a second time. At Indianapolis, while drinking, he took a friend's bicycle, as he claimed, in fun, and was sentenced to prison. His good conduct secured his release.

Cannot Legally Pump Gas.

The Indiana Supreme Court in a decision in the case of the Manufacturers' Gas and Oil Company vs. the Indiana Natural Gas and Oil Company, appealed from the Grant County Circuit Court, held that natural gas cannot legally be pumped out of gas wells. The case was one of four suits brought to prevent the Manufacturers' company from pumping gas out of Grant County to towns and cities at a distance. There is some question among lawyers whether the gas companies will be allowed to use pumps along their lines or not.

Gives His Employes Stock.

The Hurrie window glass factory, a twelve-pot concern at Hartford City, independent of the trust, has been compelled to close down on account of the intense heat. The shutdown will continue until Sept. 15. Mr. Hurrie presented each cutter, flattener, blower and gatherer with a $100 block of stock in his factory, and in the future they will receive dividends in addition to their earnings.

Within Our Borders.

Sixteen cases of smallpox in Anderson. Decided decrease.

Connersville has more people than houses. Booming.

Henry G. Cartmill, 52, was drowned while seining near St. Paul.

Farmers of Stoneycreek township will improve twenty miles of roads.

L. W. Kibbey, 27, B. & O. S. W. surveyor, was struck by a train near Huron.

Philip Bullion, Goshen, fell from a load of hay, struck a pitchfork and died instantly.

Barn at the Wayne County infirmary is in ashes. Loss $4,000. Incendiary origin suspected.

James Robins, Shelbyville, while passing an alley was beaten almost to death. Cause unknown.

Geo. Green, Jeffersonville, goes to the penitentiary for from two to twenty-one years for wife murder.

Wm. Dakin, Muncie, succeeded in killing himself after six attempts. Butted the stone wall of the jail.

Albert Knight, Greenfield laborer, has received word that he is heir to $70,000 from an English estate.

Clare Hurley, 13, of Cincinnati, has disappeared in Muncie. Supposed he followed the Forepaugh-Sells circus.

George Watson, Sullivan, charged with complicity in the murder of Clara Wagoner, eight years ago, was acquitted.

Reuben DeBord, Terre Haute, was given $300 damages against the American Wringer Company for false imprisonment.

Miss Lola Truss, 18, Marion, disappeared six weeks ago. Case against a prominent married man for kidnaping her was dismissed.

George Laurch, 15, Dublin, fell from a swing, stricken with heart failure, and died. Boys with him laughed, thinking he was feigning.

Williard Gibson and his stepfather, William Gibbs, quarreled at Kokomo over Gibson's wife. Gibbs split open Gibson's skull with a spade and fled.

Police are enforcing the liquor laws in Marion. The W. C. T. U. thanks the sheriff for enforcing the gambling laws.

A rate war is on between the packet lines on the Ohio river. The fare has been cut to 25 cents from Madison to Cincinnati.

Joseph M. Dunlap, dealer in agricultural implements, coal and lime, and proprietor of grain elevators at Franklin and Trafalgar, made a voluntary assignment for the benefit of his creditors to E. F. Barder and W. V. King. The assets are thought to be $65,000 and liabilities estimated at about $32,000.

Andy Miller, 7, South Bend, was turned over to the police by his mother, who said he set fire to a barn.

Tramps are supposed to be responsible for the $40,000 fire that destroyed the Kunts lumber yard at Shirley.

William Wambaugh, a prominent farmer, 60 years old, who lived two miles south of Elkhart, fell from a load of hay, striking on the back of his head and breaking his neck.

Four persons were injured in a wreck on the Big Four Railway near Forster. The train encountered a washout, due to the storm, and the mail car, the day coach and sleeper were hurled down an embankment.

THE BRIDGE.

"What is his bridge to heaven?" they cried.
And the warriors held their breath,
As the grizzled king of a hundred fights
Went down to the river of death.

"What is his bridge to heaven?" they cried,
"Is it bastioned with buckles and spears,
And girdled strong with the iron blades
Of the battles of bygone years?

"And what are the voices he hears in his dreams?
Are they the clamors of fight,
Or the echoes of splendid victories that come
As he stands by the river at night?"

"Nay, nay," and they stand by in wonder and awe,
For all that he builds on there
Are withered blossoms, a baby's shoe
And the lock of a woman's hair.

And the only voice he hears in his dreams,
As the world dies out in his ears,
Are an old love-ballad, a baby's laugh,
And the sob of a dead wife's tears.

A School Girl Heroine.

MISS Jean Nelson had a very queenly bearing. Not that she really thought herself made of any better clay than the other members of the human family, but she was sometimes given that credit. Often had she been censured on that account by those who did not understand her. Oh! the agonies of being misunderstood! But to those who knew her, she was cordiality itself, and every girl in the dormitory worshiped at her shrine.

Jean was exceedingly pretty. In fact, she was very beautiful. Her nose was as straight as Venus' own. A Cupid's bow for a mouth, about whose corners a smile so often played. Her chin wore a mischievous dimple in it, and her eyes—words fail! The wondrous wealth of hair that crowned her high forehead might have rivaled that of Apollo. She was hardly fair enough to be called fair, nor yet dark enough to be called dark. After all, the charm of that face lay not so much in its simple beauty as in the sympathy for mankind that shone out of its eyes.

* * * * * * *

"Here at last," Jean gasped, as she fairly ran up the walk leading to the girl's dormitory at Harper's University. Inside the door she dropped grip and wraps, and started up the stairs with a bound. "Everything looks just as natural. Why, they have a new stair carpet! I wonder if any of the other girls are here yet?'

Suddenly her attention was attracted by the sight of a carriage at the entrance. Scarcely had it stopped before a head appeared, which proved to be that of a very flighty young woman. Catching sight of the group at the window, she ran up the walk, waving her umbrella about her head in windmill motions (very uncouth in a young lady), leaving her purse and box of candy behind her in the carriage, which necessitated her going back after them. Jean ran down to meet her, grasping the chubby form in her widespread arms. Oh! the thousands of kisses that are wasted in that second week of September, not to mention the extravagance of affection displayed at the leave-takings in June.

"You dear old girl! I was so afraid you would not come until to-morrow. When is Anna coming? This afternoon? We'll just go over to the train and surprise her. There are two poor little girls up in room 43, who are frightfully homesick. We must do all we can to keep them amused until they get used to things here. Julia, stand off. Let me look at you. Why, you're just the same dear girl you always were," which was flatly contradicted. "No, I'm not. I've lost three pounds. I only weigh 162 now. Here, have some of my candy. It's the good kind," just as if to her every kind were not good. Slowly up the stairs the two girls went, chatting like magpies. They were so different, yet who can account for friendship?

One day in January, the girls were assembled in one of the rooms greatly excited over two important reports—namely, the rumor of smallpox in the town, and the certainty of a German test which was to come off next day. The president had that morning in chapel insisted that all students be vaccinated immediately, and the German professor had said, "Ve vill haf von test ober die endire pook, and enypody who can not make forty perzent will haf to tudor. Did you understood?" They were indulging in a very heated discussion, a good deal being said on both sides, when some one said, "Girls, wouldn't it be just perfectly awful if smallpox should break out in this dormitory? When my aunt was in college——" she was interrupted by a girl tossing her book in the air, contemptuously crying, "Smallpox, nonsense I say, have you forgotten all about that German? The very idea of giving a test over the whole book! I positively never heard of such presumption. No, not in Israel. Haben, natte, gehat. Kommen, kam, ge-ge-geddle-sticks!! who cares, anyhow? Say, do any of you happen to have any candy about your person?" Either they had become so unused to hearing this question from her, or they did not wish to commit themselves, for she received no answer. Nothing daunted, she proceeded. "When I get rich, I'm going to live in a college town and run a candy store, and give candy to the students, especially the girls. People who live in college towns don't half appreciate what a comfort they might be to students in just such little ways as that."

They were all laughing heartily, when Alice Thompson came into the room with a dejected look on her face, and a German book in her hand (the two usually go in pairs), inquiring for Jean, saying: "I've got a German story here about a cow, and I can't get head or tail to it. Is Jean here?" One of the girls spoke up, saying: "No, she's not. She's up on the third floor helping Julia Mitchell make up the work she missed when she sprained her ankle. I'm sorry I can't help you. Alas! Ich spreche nicht Deutsch mesilf already gehaben sein, but you better guess Jean can. She took the gold medal in Dutch last year, you know. I don't blame George Lockwood for adoring her. My, but that pearl she wears is a beauty! And she's got clothes to match it. I don't see what would become of Kate Lennox if it were not for Jean. Jean can treat her nicely without being afraid of losing caste, and that is more than some of the rest of us can do. By the way, Kate is out of school to-day."

The next day the excitement ran still higher when it was rumored that Kate had a fever. The girls were sure that it was smallpox, and all kept their distance, leaving poor, unpopular Kate to lie hours alone in her little bare room. They all protested and threw up their hands in horror when Jean declared her intention of going right up to Kate's room with a glass of lemonade. As Jean entered the room, Kate rose up and gratefully said, "I just knew you would come, I am so thirsty."

Later a physician was called. And sure enough it was smallpox. The physician advised that Kate be moved from the dormitory as quickly and with as little confusion as possible. She was taken to a forlorn little cabin a mile down the river, and Jean, poor girl, went with her. This was the only thing she could do, now that she had been exposed to the dread disease.

* * * * * * *

Two months, and Jean was in school again. Changed, oh, so changed. Her once beautiful face was pitted and scarred, but she still had the same queenly bearing. As she was sitting in her artistic room after her first day at school, her elbow resting on the table and her head leaning against her hand on which the pearl still shone like a crystallized tear, a feeling of utter dejection and sadness came over her as she realized that she would never be beautiful again and perhaps George Lockwood might not care for her now, although he had been as attentive as he possibly could be during her illness. The unbidden tears were creeping slowly down her face, when a tap was heard upon the door. Sam, the colored boy, handed her a card, which bore the name, "George Lockwood."

She went down to the reception room with a feeling of dread, mingled with gloomy forebodings. As she entered the room and George came forward to meet her, she instinctively drew back, in a way entirely unlike her former frank self. And she said, slowly, hesitatingly, with downcast eyes: "George I have changed since you gave me this ring. Now I think it only just and right that I return it." George Lockwood was a born orator, but there never was more eloquence or more earnestness in his voice than when—but why attempt to tell what he said? Suffice to say that the ring was replaced and Jean never again had occasion to remove it.

TRAVELS OF THE JIGGER.

This Industrious Little Flea Is Circumnavigating the World.

The very small species of the flea, commonly known as the jigger, whose native home is tropical and subtropical America, set out in 1872 to circumnavigate the world and has now half completed his journey, says a writer in the New York Sun. His arrival in India and Madagascar is almost simultaneously reported. On his conquering way he has badly frightened many barbarous tribes by his propensity to bore through the skin and find lodgment under it, and many villages and sometimes whole districts were abandoned by the natives during his journey across Africa.

In September, 1872, a sailing vessel from Brazil dumped a quantity of sand ballast on the beach at Ambriz, a little south of the Congo. This event has historic importance from the fact that the jigger crossed the ocean in this sand, and it is believed to have been his first introduction to foreign territory. His rate of advance across Africa depended upon the means of transportation at hand, for the jigger will not hop when he may ride. It was thirteen years before he struck the caravan route to Stanley Pool, and then he journeyed quickly and comfortably with the porters in the freight service to that starting point of the upper Congo steamers, which carried him halfway across Africa. Twenty years after his arrival in Africa the jigger appeared on the shores of Victoria Nyanza, and six years later he was hopping along the sands of Zanzibar Island.

The jigger was thus established in 1898 at the busy mart whence many vessels sail for the East Indies and Oceanica. It was predicted that he would soon invade India, and sure enough his arrival at Bombay, whither he had been brought by coolies returning from Africa, is now reported. Le Tour du Monde says he may be expected in French Indio-China at any time, and that he will evidently invade the whole of Southern Asia, and letters from Nossi Be, in Northwest Madagascar, report his advent there and on the adjoining islands, where he is flourishing and multiplying in the sandy soil.

We may next expect to hear of this persevering and successful traveler among the Pacific islands, and all regions in or near the tropics seem destined to make his acquaintance.

THE ASHANTEES AND THEIR KING.

Against These Superstitious Africans England Has Been Waging War for Twenty-six Years.

WHILE interest has been centered in England's war in South Africa and page after page of war history has been made and published only occasional scraps have come to us of the trouble England is engaged in with Ashantee land, where for twenty-six years Great Britain has been engaged in war.

The King of Ashantee, who is Great Britain's implacable foe, is the most extraordinary monarch in the world. He is picturesque, powerful and a merciless despot. Twenty-six years ago England sent out an expedition at a cost of $4,000,000 to bring the King of Ashantee to terms, and since then it has cost $34,000,000 more.

THE ROYAL COURT OF THE KING OF ASHANTEE.

This King lives in the interior of Africa, several hundred miles from the Gold Coast, on the western shore. He wears a girdle of dried grass around his loins, and a "plug" hat. Where he got this hat nobody knows, but it is his only crown. He has no throne, but instead he has a stool of solid gold, which four slaves carry around for him wherever he goes. Upon this he sits and gives his orders. They are all verbal, but often they mean either life or death.

The King's name is Prempeh, and he is the absolute monarch of more than 3,000,000 savages. His emblem of authority is a giant umbrella. The spokes are of embossed gold, and on the end of each spoke is a human skull. This emblem has descended to him through a long line of ancestry.

King Prempeh has exactly 3,333 wives. Why this number should have been decided upon he does not know. Like several other things they came to him by inheritance. He takes them for granted.

The kingdom of Ashantee is rich in gold, and Prempeh is many times a millionaire. He wears earrings of solid gold. All of his personal adornments are of gold. He owns the only house in his kingdom. It is a rude structure of stone. His Royal Highness sleeps on the floor.

King Prempeh is a bloodthirsty ruler, and is in the habit of making human sacrifices. This is one of the practices which England desires him to stop, for whenever his gods are displeased he seeks to propitiate them by having a few hundred of his subjects beheaded. It was to put a stop to this that England made war on the King of Ashantee in the seventies. There was fighting again in 1895, and again in 1896. Now there are indications of more trouble. Still the King of Ashantee goes on with his barbarous practices, killing whenever he pleases and ruling with absolute power. His subjects love him because he is of their royal blood, and fear him because of his cruelty. But they will allow no other country to interfere with their affairs, if they can help it.

When, in 1874, England sent an expedition against King Koffee, the predecessor of King Prempeh, Sir Garnet Wolseley was at the head of it. He burned the King's capital, Coomasie, and forced him to agree to certain conditions, among others that he would abolish the practice of human sacrifices, but these arguments neither Koffee nor Prempeh has carried out. The consequence has been frequent trouble ever since Great Britain has undertaken the task of civilizing these black-skinned and untutored savages.

The fact that the country of Ashantee is exceedingly rich in gold, and that France controls the neighboring country of Dahomey, may have something to do with England's solicitude for the people of Ashantee and their comic opera King.

There is probably no other savage race who are capable of putting up such a stiff fight as are the people of Ashantee, for they are born warriors and love their country with a savage kind of patriotism. Besides, they would not dare refuse to fight. Refusal would mean not only disgrace, but instant death. The power of this picturesque monarch is unquestioned. Should the Czar of all the Russias even think of doing what King Prempeh does and thinks nothing of doing, there would be a vacancy at the Winter Palace. The Sultan of Turkey is a novice in tyranny as compared with the black King of Ashantee. If his breakfast does not happen to agree with him, the cook is liable to lose her head, literally. If one of his subjects should even happen to look at one of his wives, the said subject would be conducted by a subordinate to some shady grove or to the rear of the woodshed—and he would never return. Should any of his warriors refuse to fight—well, there is no telling where the gore-shedding proclivities of the monarch with the plug hat would stop!

Whenever a King of Ashantee dies a guard of 2,000 of his subjects are slaughtered to conduct him to the other world. It is said that as many as 10,000 people have been slain on such occasions.

Every time there is a national festival there are human sacrifices. In fact, blood letting seems to be one of the principal occupations of royalty in Ashantee.

Back of the town of Coomasie there is a place called by travelers the Grove of Skulls, where the bones of victims are thrown. Here is what Henry Stanley said of it when, in 1874, as a war correspondent, he accompanied the expedition of Sir Garnet Wolseley: "As we drew near the foul smells * * * became suffocating. It was almost impossible to stop longer than to take a general view of this great Golgotha. We saw thirty or forty decapitated bodies and countless skulls, which lay piled in heaps and scattered over a wide extent. The stoutest heart and most stoical mind might have been appalled."

Several officers of the exedition, although it remained in Coomasie only two days, visited this Grove of Skulls, and subsequently described it as surpassing in horror anything to be seen in the world.

The King of Ashantee is opposed to progress. He does not want any roads in his domain. When the English cut their way inland from the gold coast they left a fine road behind them. With several pistols pointed at his head, the King agreed to keep this road in repair and not allow it to be overgrown, but he knew that the rainy season was at hand and that the English would have to hurry back to the coast. The road was never touched.

The system of human sacrifices practiced in Ashantee is founded on a wild idea of filial duty, for it is believed that the rank of dead relatives in the next world will be measured by the number of descendants sent after them from this. There are two periods, called "The Great Adai" and "The Little Adai," succeeding each other at intervals of eighteen and twenty-four days after the death of some member of the royal house, at which human victims are immolated to a monstrous extent.

On the Great Adai the King visits the graves of the royal dead at Bantama, where their skeletons, held together by links of gold, sit in grim mockery of state.

HOW EXPRESSES DROP MEN.

Custom that Is a Drain on the Railroad Crew.

"While coming from Chicago last week," said a prominent business man of this city, "I noticed a peculiar railroad custom which interested me considerably. I happened to be in the last car of the limited when the train stopped in a desolate spot between stations. The rear brakeman, of course, dropped off and went down the track with a flag to warn any train that might be following us. In a moment or two we started up again, but minus the brakeman. I wondered at this, but was still more surprised later on to see the same thing repeated when we were obliged to stop on account of a threatened hot box. Upon inquiry I found that this was the custom on fast trains. 'Sometimes, if we have lots of time,' said the conductor, 'we whistle for the men to come in, but in most cases we leave them to be picked up by the next train, or to walk to the nearest station.'

"'But isn't that rather hard on the men?' I asked. 'Oh, it's part of the business,' he replied. 'I have known of cases where men dropped off in this way were frozen to death or waylaid by tramps, but the railroads have to make the time, and that's why it's done. I have seen trains running with only a conductor aboard them, at times, because the rest of the crew had been left behind in just this way.'"—New York Mail and Express.

Secured Her Hired Man.

"We ministers have many strange experiences in performing the marriage ceremony," said the Rev. W. F. Sheridan, of Pontiac, Mich., in the Pittsburg Dispatch. "One of the most curious in my experience occurred not long ago. A large and heavy woman, accompanied by a comparatively small and meek-looking man, had come in and asked to be married. Everything was regular and the ceremony was performed. After it was over the bride explained her position.

"'You see, Mr. Sheridan,' she said, 'farm hands are mighty hard to get in this part of the country and they are even harder to keep. You get a good hired man and get him well broke in to work around the farm and the first thing you know he quits the job and goes off to town or somewhere else. Last spring I had a first-class hand, about as good as I ever expect to get, but just when the season got right busy he up and quit me.

"'I just made up my mind that I wasn't going to be left in the same fix this summer, so here we are.'

"The bridegroom in the case simply stood and smiled meekly. He had nothing at all to say."

His Beginning.

Years ago there was a cold night in the latter part of December at Brattleboro, Vt. There had been many freezing nights there before, but on this one something happened.

A young man, Larkin G. Mead, attracted by the beauty of the great white stillness, went out-of-doors, and slowly, yet with much delight, modeled a figure which, in his mind, stood for the Recording Angel writing down the events of the year just dead. All night the statue grew, and the sculptor threw on water at intervals, to freeze it into hardness. He was alone and happy.

The next morning the neighbors awoke to find the snow angel, pen in hand, recording their history upon a snowy scroll.

Local history says that this bit of work decided the future of the young man who did it. He resolved to become a sculptor, and went abroad to study. Well known as his work afterward became, perhaps he took no such pleasure in it as in that little bit of modeling under the cold Vermont sky.

How Bacon Deciphered It.

"What's in a name?" growled Hon. William Shakspeare, as he and Colonel Francis Bacon were discussing things one evening in the Dew Drop Inn.

"Oh, yes. She's playing young Callowhill now."

The Same Thing.

"I'm sorry we haven't much of a dinner," said Spatts to Bloobumper, whom he had urged to stay for that meal. "You ought to have dropped in last evening. We had a stunning dinner then."

"Why, papa," chirped Sammy Spatts, "that's just what you told Mr. Taddeils at dinner yesterday."

For Resumption.

Tramp—Gimme a dime, mister?

Philanthropist (suspiciously)—You've been drinking, haven't you?

Tramp (meekly)—Yes, sir, and I'm broke. I want the dime to resume business with at the old stand."

Plenty of Elbow Room.

Ranchman's wife—Drive over and bring our daughter in. You'll have to hurry, because supper will be ready in an hour.

Ranchman—Where is she?

Ranchman's wife—She's swinging on the front gate.

A Dream that Came True.

"Talking about dreams," said Mrs. Smith, as we sat around the fire, says the San Francisco Chronicle, "I once had a very strange experience. I dreamed that I was just stepping out of my house for a walk, when a funeral passed by. A man with a cap marked nine and a red scar running across his forehead jumped from the hearse, and, approaching me, asked: 'Are you ready?' 'No,' I replied, and with that I awoke.

"A few months later I was stopping in Chicago. I was in the top floor of one of the big houses and just about to step into the elevator, when I remembered another thing I wanted to buy. I stopped and looked through my notebook. 'Down!' exclaimed the elevator boy, and then asked me: 'Are you ready?' 'No,' I answered and the door closed.

"The next instant a great crash was heard, and the occupants of the elevator were dashed to an untimely death.

"The cap of the boy bore the number nine and he had a red scar running across his brow."

THURSDAY.....JULY 12, 1900.

For Assessor.

I wish to announce to my democratic friends of Butler Township that I will be a candidate for Assessor, subject to the democratic caucus to be held at Butler Center this coming summer; on account of the sad accident which happened to me last spring, which put me back so with my work on the farm, I will not be able to canvas the township but I hope you will consider the matter and do as you think best. I remain your's truly, John H. Benninghoff.

Franklin Caucus.

The democrats of Franklin township, and all who will unite with them in the struggle of the common people against the trusts, are to hold a township caucus at the Center on the first Saturday in August at 1 o'clock p. m., to nominate candidates for trustee, assessor, two justices of the peace, two constables, five supervisors and three members of the advisory board.

ALLEN SHULTZ, Chairman.
EDSON BEARD, Secretary.

Bryan and Stevenson.

From all over the land comes word that the two men at the head of the democratic ticket are satisfactory to the party and to more than the party. There are evidences that they will receive the votes of thousands of independent thinker in all classes of society Men who oppose imperialism, trusts, the gold standard and useless tariffs will find a welcome reception in the democratic household, and help to put the grand old democratic party again into power. Yesterday, the three leaders of the parties now united spoke from the same platform at Lincoln, Neb., Bryan for the democrats, Weaver for the populists and Towne for the silver republicans. It looks hopeful from all standpoints.

Condition of the Treasury.

County Treasurer Hines furnishes us with the following statement of funds in the county treasury, July 1, 1900:

County fund	$11,351 71
Cong. School Principal	312 91
Common School Principal	1,590 99
Cong. School Interest	755 01
Common School Interest	160 00
Agricultural Fund	40 00
Gravel Roads	365 22
Redemption of Land	112 32
Liquor Licenses	400 00
Permanent Endowment fund principal	462 63
Permanent Endowment fund interest	19 10
Circuit Court Docket Fees	20 00
Special Dog Tax fund	102 00
Ditch fund	2,885 71
Clerk's fund	539 45
Sheriff's fund	27 99
Recorder's fund	568 65
Auditor's fund	196 60
County dog fund	4 88
Ex-Sheriff's fund	45 21
Balance cash in Treasury	$19,960 38

F. M. HINES, Treasruer.

We have obtained this brief statement from Treasurer Hines for the reason that in spite of the several times we have stated that the county is out of debt, yet every little while someone jumps up and says we are not out of debt. The above statement shows we have on hand over $11,000 of county funds alone, and sums of various sizes in other funds, after disbursing to trustees, etc., the money belonging to them. It should be noted that besides what we show here, a total of nearly $20,000 on hand, there is also in the treasury a large sum of money for the various townships, which trustees are expected to come and get any day. Look at the ditch fund and see the money waiting to cash ditch orders Look at the endowment fund, and see how well and closely it has been loaned out, so that instead of the county being obliged to pay interest to the state on a part of this, as it has often had to do, it now has on hand to its credit $19.10 of interest. See also the money still left for clerk, sheriff, auditor, etc., to draw on. When we say the county don't owe a dollar, it is true, and anyone can find out by presenting an order to the treasurer. We presume a part of this talk was caused by one or two funds having been short, the county council not having set aside enough to meet the needs of that fund. Thus, the fund they set aside for the use of the board of health, proved too small and an order on that fund could not be paid though the county has on hand a large sum. But when the council meets and makes an appropriation for board of health, the order will be paid. The money has been in the treasury a long time, but cannot be drawn out till appropriated by the council.

Have You Heard It?

Have you heard the great commotion
Louder than the cannon's roar,
Rolling onward toward the ocean
And resounding from the shore?

That's the democrats convention
In Kansas City 'tother day.
Where they nominated Byran,
He is peer of all we say.

He's the man whom all men honor,
For he honors them you see,
He believes all men are equal
And all nations should be free.

Join the rank for Colonel Bryan,
Let cheer ring after cheer;
But turn your cheering into voting
When election day draws near.

And Stevenson shall have his share
Of all the honor due;
For in the white house he was tried,
And found faithful, brave and true.

Latest From China.

There is hope that the worst is over. It is understood that the better element has risen against the Boxers, and will yet save the forign ministers and other foreigners. Still we get no news from within the walls of Pekin.

Latest News of the Day.

No very definite news from Pekin, though well founded rumors that the Chinese within the city are fighting among themselves. It appears tha Prince Ching has organized the friends of order and is fighting the Boxers. A bloody battle is reported to have taken place in the strees. If he can stand off the Boxers, who are in reality rebels against their own government, he may yet save the foreign people, unless they have already been slaughtered.

Russians and Japanese have landed heavy forces and are marching toward Pekin. Other nations will send along such forces as they have near enough.

Our own government has ordered 750 more marines to be gathered up at various navy yards here and sent directly to China. But as it will take six weeks to get them there, it looks as though they will not reach China in time to do much good in saving the lives of those in danger.

In addition to sending our Ninth regiment from Manila to China, we will probably send two or three more. Then we will have to send more regiments from the United States to take their places.

—The Boxers say their great grievance against foreigners, is that the latter have kept rain from falling, so there are no crops and many suffer.

There has been some fighting in the Philippines for a week past, small battles or skirmishes in which the Americans had the advantage.

In South Africa the movements of various bodies go on quietly, much being done in the way of re-locating the troops. There is not much fighting.

Taking a Long Tramp.

Mark M. Lester, a prominent club man of Troy, N. Y., was in the city a few hours yesterday on his return trip from a long walk on a wager. December 26, 1899, he left Troy to walk from that city to Indianapolis and return within a year, starting penniless with a paper suit and agreeing to come back with $1,500 in cash. The route laid out for him by the club which made the wager was a long one, passing through Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, and Michigan, then back through Ohio, Pennsylvania and on to Troy. His route book, which was shown to a COURIER reporter, contains not only the postmarks of the several hundred towns and cities he has visited, but the signatures of the governors of three states as well as those of prominent state, county and city officials. Lester is not allowed under the wager to beg, borrow or steal, but has himself several times been robbed by footpads on lonely roads. Notwithstanding this he has secured a large part of the $1,500 through contributions along the route and is in the best of health and spirits. He left for Waterloo last evening and will go direct to Lansing, Mich. After procuring the governor's signature there he will start on the homeward journey, every mile of which he will walk over country roads and city streets. He is evidently possessed of more than the ordinary amount of grit, and barring accidents will doubtless be able to claim the wager on Christmas day.

Letter from Manila.

Jack Towne, engneer at the Kiblinger factory, is in receipt of a letter from his son Will, in the Philippines, part of which we are permitted to publish. The letter reads:

MANILA, P. I., June 1, 1900.

DEAR FATHER:—I suppose you begin to think I am dead, but I am still on top of Mother Earth and enjoying good health. Well, I have seen a good deal of fighting since I came over here, and have been from one end of the island to the other. We expect to stay over here a year or more, and perhaps durin the rest of my enlistment. I think I will know enough when I get out of the army to stay out. We are not allowed to go very far from quarters. No soldier is allowed to leave and go so far that he cannot hear the bugle call. But the reason for this is, they are looking for an outbreak in the city any night, and when it does take place there is going to be a hot time in Manila. If they start in on one of the hospitals the soldiers will not stop until every native is killed. The largest forces of insurgents are broken up and they are in small bands all over the island. About two weeks ago they had a fight in the northern part of the island, and Aguinaldo said that just as soon as the rainy season sets in they are coming to Manila and kill all the American soldiers. Well, let them come; we are ready at any time. They may start in, but I am afraid they cannot finish it. And I will feel sorry for them.

When I get back to Auburn I think I will settle down, go to work and behave myself. I expect to stay with you the rest of my life, as I have seen all the world I care to see; it is all alike to me. It has been over two years since I have seen you and sister. But when I come back I am coming to stay. The rainy season sets in about a month from now, and then it will be rain, rain—and then more rain. Well I will close for this time with love to you and sister and regards to all the friends at home.

Your loving son,
WM. EARL TOWNE,
Light Battery F, Fourth U. S. Artillery, Manila, P. I.

OBITUARY.

James Bowman was born March 11, 1815, died July 7, 1900, aged 85 years, 3 months and 26 days.

He was a native of VanBuren, Onondaga county, N. Y., and was one of a family of twelve children, all of whom have gone to the grave, except two brothers and one sister; Ezra and Mrs. Charlotte Crego, who reside in Baldwinsville, N. Y., and Cyrus, of Waterloo.

He was married to Miss Rebecca J. Bort, Sept. 26, 1839. One week after the marriage day they started upon the long journey to seek a home in the west, and after the tedious weeks of travel, they arrived in DeKalb county, Ind., and entered a section of land and erected log a cabin and began the pioneer struggle of life. The home was located on the farm owned and now occupied by his grandson, James Hodges. In the spring of 1851, he moved to his late home in Waterloo, and engaged in the sawmill business. Heavy timber then covered the most of the present site of the town, he was successful and thrived. He was a man of enterprise and contributed to everything that tended to the public good, helping to build every church in town. For nearly twenty-nine years he has been sadly incapacitated by paralysis, to such an extent as to be completely chair bound, faithfully cared for by his patient wife. But amid all the long and tedious years he has been patient and cheerful, keeping in touch with the affairs of the times, and successfully managing his own affairs. There was no abatement of his disease, and at last he succumbed to encroaching age, coming calmly to the close, in the full possession of reasoning faculties.

He and his faithful wife had born to them eight children, five of whom are living; thus he leaves to mourn his death, his wife, Mrs. A. J. Sinclair, Mrs. Jas P. McCague, Mrs. C. E. Montavon, Charles and Frank, nineteen grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Cottage services were conducted by Rev. W. O. Butler at the old home, and the remains were tenderly laid to rest in the Waterloo cemetery. The pall-bearers being six of his oldest grandsons.

No Right To Ugliness.

The woman who is lovely in face, form and temper will always have friends, but one who would be attractive must keep her health. If she is weak, sickly and all run down, she will be nervous and irritable. If she has constipation or kidney trouble, her impure blood will cause pimples, skin eruptions and wretched complexion. Electric Bitters is the best medicine in the world to regulate the stomach, liver and kidneys and to purify the blood. It gives strong nerves, bright eyes, smooth velvety skin, rich complexion. It will make a good-looking, charming, woman of a run-down invalid. Only 50 cents at H. B. McCord's Drug Store.

Kilmer Plant Burned.

The fire which destroyed the immense Swamp Root medicine plant of Dr. Kilmer & Co., July 1, was the most disastrous which has ever occurred in Binghamton, N. Y. However, the Kilmers resumed business next morning, though not at the old stand, which is a heap of smouldered ashes. While the firemen were yet pouring water on the burning Chenango street establishment the Kilmers were arranging to do business somewhere else.

That this great industry might not be crippled for a moment, through the courtesy of other prominent firms and citizens, the large factory and adjoining buildings on South street were vacated for the benefit of the Swamp Root people, and possession was taken immediately, and here, by Monday, July 8, this new temporary factory will be turning out Swamp Root, the great kidney remedy, in quantities of about 60,000 bottles per day, and in two or three weeks time the full capacity of more than four times that amount will be produced. The immense demand for Swamp Root will thus in no way be infered with.

On the old site, with adjoining property which has just been purchased will be erected immediately an absolutely fireproof six-story structure, plans for which have been nearly completed.

OBITUARY.

Eli Bensinger was born in Schuylkill county, Pa., Aug. 11, 1813; departed this life at his home in DeKalb county, Ind., July 6, 1900, aged 86 years, 11 months and 26 days. Mr. Bensinger lived with his parents until he was nineteen years of age. He then united in marriage with Miss Susannah C. Foust, about the year 1832. To this union were born five children, three preceding him to the better world. His wife departed this life August 31, 1878. He united with the German Reformed church at the age of nineteen and was always a faithful member and attended church when he could. His second marriage was with Mrs. Eliza Ball, December 23, 1886, who survives him.

He leaves a wife, one son, Solomon Bensinger, and one daughter, Susan Shrayer; four grandchildren; four great-grandchildren and a host of friends to mourn his loss.

Campbell-Spruck.

A very quiet wedding was that which took place this morning at Tiffin, the principals being Mr. Will Campbell, formerly employed by the Peabody Buggy company, but now in charge of a department of a carriage works at Albion, Indiana, and Miss Rose Spruck of Summit Street, who until a few days ago was employed in the office of the Carbon Company. Mr. Campbell arrived last night from Albion and this morning, with Miss Spruck, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Shafer, they went to Tiffin on the nine o'clock car, where they were married by Justice B. D. Ramsburg.

They returned here at twelve o'clock and proceeded to the brides home where a wedding feast was served to the immediate members of the family, Mr. Howard Hallman and Miss Ada Hallman. Mr. and Mrs. Campbell left this afternoon for Auburn, Indiana, where they will spend Sunday with Mr. Campbell's parents, and later they will go to Albion, where they will reside, Mr. Campbell already having a home furnished ready to move into. Both the young people have a great many friends here who will be pleased to learn of the happy marriage.—Fostoria Review-Dispatch.

Mr. Campbell has many friends in Auburn who will join the COURIER in extending congratulations and in the hope that "Billy" and his estimable wife may live long and prosper.

Cured Bronhcial Trouble.

Chas. E. Davis, 1071 W. Congress St., Chicago, says: "I suffered for years with bronhcial trouble and tried many kinds of medicines without relief, until I began taking Foley's Honey and Tar which cured me.—H. B. McCord.

DYSPEPTICIDE

The greatest aid to DIGESTION.

NOW YOU ARE SICK.

In a Little Time You Can be as Well and Vigorous as You Ever Were.

We don't always call ourselves sick when we suffer from indigestion or liver trouble. But we are sick. We are often perilously sick. Dr. Stone says, and a host of authorities support him that the beginning of every serious organic disease can be charged to the failure of the stomach to keep up the repair and vitality of the body. Rheumatism, heart disease, kidney disease, cancer, insanity, etc., can often be traced back to a simple case of dyspepsia, Dyspepsia has not always been curable, but it is now. When the dyspepsia dissapears, other troubles that you thought separate ailments will go too. Headache, palpitation of the heart, debility and many affections of the bladder and kidneys, are entirely due to the imperfect workings of the stomach or liver. Dr. Stone's New Dyspepsia Cure promptly restores these organs to normal condition. It will help you at once and cure you quicker than you now believe possible. Your druggist will refund the money if the remedy fails. Price 50 cents. Sold by H. B. McCord.

CEDAR.

An attempt was made to celebrate at this place on the evening of the 4th. A few fire works were exploded, such as rockets, roman candles, fire crachers etc. But the balloon ascension was a flat failure as it only ascended about 12 feet and lodged on a house root.

Jno. E. Lung claims to have sold 100 bushels of new potatoes this week at 50 cents per bushel.

S. Haag and wife picked 36 quarts of whortleberries one day this week.

We understand that the church here will soon be given a new coat of paint. Something very much needed.

We understand that a reunion of the Gump family will be held at this place in the near future.

Wm. Knott of Kendallville, Ind. Sundayed with his son-in-law's family at this place.

W. W. Jackson has a new thresher and is prepared to do the best of work.

It is reported that one of our citizens went into a barber shop in Garrett one day last week and told the barber he wanted a hair cut. The barber upon close examniation found so few hairs that he politely asked the fellow which one he wanted cut.

The saw mills here are both closed this week on account of harvesting and haying.

His Life Was Saved.

Mr. J. E. Lilly, a prominent citizen of Hannibal, Mo., lately had a wonderful deliverance from a frightful death. In telling of it he says; "I was taken with Typhoid Fever, that ran into Pneumonia. My lungs became hardened. I was so weak I couldn't even sit up in bed. Nothing helped me. I expected to soon die of Consumption, when I heard of Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle gave me great relief. I continued to use it, and now am well and strong. I can't say too much in its praise." This marvelous medicine is the surest and quickest cure for all Throat and Lung Trouble. Regular size 50 cents and $1. Trial bottles free at H. B. McCord's Drug Store: every bottle guaranteed.

For sale by F. E. Davenport.

Monday's Daily.

—Arthur and Frank Nelson spent Sunday in Fort Wayne.

—The semi annual clearance sale of Bishop & Beidler is a great success.

—Rev. Conrad Richards, of Mt. Angel, Oregon, is here the guest of his nephew Jacob Richards and family.

—Augustus Mead has taken up his residence in Auburn and is acting as janitor of the Presbyterian church.

—Mrs. Henry Lochner and children went to Butler, Saturday, for a two weeks' visit with Mrs. Lochner's mother.

—Don't forget to buy hollow foundation blocks of the Auburn Lumber Co. They keep your cellar cool in summer and warm in winter.

—Geo. K. Otis has sold the Hicksville Independent to D. E. Kriebel & Co. and the name of the paper has been changed to the Tribune.

—Samuel Teeters and family, Prof. J. C. Teeters and family, Mrs. Teeters and daughter Lydia, have gone to Lake Gage for a week's outing.

—Campbell & Son have just completed a fine single surrey for their own use which is one of the neatest vehicles in town and substantially built.

—Wm. Wyatt, out in the country, had his fingers considerably cut in the reaper last Friday. Dr. Buchtel who dressed his wounds says he is getting along nicely.

—Mr. Barns came home today noon from a visit at Wabash over Sunday. He left all well over there, W. C. Hartman is on a business trip to Milwaukee and the northwest.

—Mrs. Alice Grogg has sold her property north of town to Frank Dawson who will occupy the place soon. Mrs. Grogg will come to Auburn and take up her residence in her property now occupied by Will Eckhart.

—Two of the Butler men accused of illegal fishing at Hamilton were placed on trial at the latter place today. The third man, a Lake Shore detective, has not been arrested but will doubtless be taken in if he returns to Indiana.

—Landlord Kelley of the Locke hotel at Waterloo accompanied his brother-in-law, Rev. Richard Locke, to this city yesterday. Rev. Locke delivered an excellent sermon at the Presbyterian church in the morning.

—Mrs. Dr. Baxter and little daughter Marjorie came home Friday evening from a visit of several weeks at the old home in Harrison county. The little girl had been sick a part of the time and was still suffering some when they got home.

—The Auburn Lumber Co, has just received another large car of the famous Washington red cedar shingles. They always carry the best brands that come over the Rocky mountains, and are guaranteed to be the best thick butt shingle on the market.

—CASH AND COMMISSION:—Reliable men wanted to sell wind mills, pumps, tanks, etc., in your own county. We pay our agents cash weekly salary and commission. Steady employment. Send references with application to Perkins Wind Mill Co., Mishawaka, Ind. j19w

—The following marriage licenses have been issued during the past week: Frederic D. Hipp and Nora Belle Shoemaker; George W. Freeman and Susie Harnish; George T. DePew and Grace Myrtle White; Henry H. Roan and Jessie Rishel, and one "don't publish."

—George T. DePew and Miss Grace Myrtle White were united in marriage at 8 o'clock last evening by Rev. Meese at his rooms on West Ninth street. Both are residents of Jackson township and estimable young people who will have the best wishes of a large circle of friends.

—Subscriber asks how matches are made. We supposed everybody knew that it was by taking a young man and woman, equal parts, and let them sit up about six months, telling them a few times in the interval that they should never have each other. Still there may be other ways that we have not heard of.

—The services at the Lutheran church yesterday were well attended. Just before the close of the Sunday school Prof. H. E. Coe gave a practical talk to the children. "The power of small things" was the C. E. topic and the meeting was very interesting, as reports of the district convention at St. Joe were given there. Rev. Brosy's cermons were both very interesting and helpful.

—Unclaimed letters remaining in the postoffice, week ending June 7, 1900. Mrs. Ella A Orr, care of G. B. Parkman Mrs. Ellie Sternburg, Della Gardner, Miss Jennie Baily, Dan Mickmine, W. L. This is endorsed by all leading railroad companies as the only perfect and reliable institution of its kind. All our graduates are assisted to positions. Ladies also admitted. Write for free catalogue. Fall term opens August 15th.—Globe Telegraph College, Lexington, Ky. tf

—We have an item of interest in Saturday's Waterloo, Iowa, Daily Courier. It reads; Mrs. T. M. Guild, wife of one of Indiana's best M. E. ministers, comes to Waterloo this evening as the guest of Willis B. Brown and family while her husband is making a tour of Europe and visiting the Holy Land. We admire her judgment. Neither the Paris exposition nor the Holy Land are a comparison to Waterloo and the Chautauqua, not even mentioning the difference in the people.

Tuesday's Daily.

—Mrs. Lizzie Baxter has returned from her visit at Kansas City.

—George Wagner has a horse which he will trade for a good buggy.

—Cuttler & Maxwell sold two fine Forand & Votey organs at Spencerville yesterday.

—Your dollar will stretch like rubber doing double duty at Bishop & Beidler's semi-annual sale.

—Mrs. R. H. Weamer and daughter Sadie were down from Hudson today visiting the relatives.

—The best Portland cement, as well as the cheaper kinds, are always kept by the Auburn Lumber Co.

—Persons knowing themselves indebted to Trentman Sisters will please call and settle their accounts. j11

—Call at Davidson's jewelry store and interview E. R. Woodruff regarding music lession. It will pay you.

—Ice cream 5 and 10 cent dishes at the Maccabee Hall Saturday evening. Every one come and help catch the rats.

—The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hilkey was taken quite sick with spasms last night, but is better today.

—There is but one Russ' Bleaching Blue. Three times within a year the courts have suppressed fraudulent imitations.

—Until further notice my store will close at 6 o'clock p. m. except Monday, Thursday and Saturday evenings.—G. W. Lackey.

—The Ladies of the Maccabees will give a Rat social at their hall Saturday evening July 14. The one catching the largest rat gets a prize. j14

—You take no chances when you buy Russ' Bleaching Blue. This famous article makes clothes whiter than snow. Refuse imitations.

—Good news spreads—one friend tells another what he bought at our semi-annual clearance sale and we have one more customer.—Bishop & Beidler.

—Be on the lookout for the opening of the new music store in the room formerly occupied by the mission A fine free musical entertainment will be given.

—Remember the Auburn Lumber Co. is always headquarters for all kinds of shingles. The best grades are all cut from green timber, and guaranteed to give satisfaction.

—Oscar Hoffman has on hand at his machine shop east of the opera house, all kinds of pipe and brass fittings for boilers, engines and mill machinery. Call on him for repairs. j4tf

—A coupling on a B. & O. train broke at Teagarden one day last week and a piece of the iron flew out and struck Hiram Wilhelm, a grader, who stood near the train, and crushed his skull.

—John Hill, a farmer living near Warsaw, tried to climb a fence yesterday while carrying a loaded shotgun. His head was blown off, but this lesson will probably go unheeded by others.

—A revenue officer got after Thomas Hilbush, a private banker and merchant of Bristol, Elkhart county, for evading his revenue tax. It cost him $200 to square matters with Uncle Sam.

—Frank Hoover and wife of Ashley and his brother, Eli Hoover, and wife of Chicago, are here visiting the families of Chas. Raut and Isaac Hague. Mrs. Raut and Mrs. Hague are their sisters.

—Thirty-six couples were united in marriage at St. Joe, Mich., last Sunday. One pair from New York called out the county clerk and minister at 3 a. m. and an hour later were on their way east.

—This must have been a great year for strawberries. We have a full report from but one of our berry growers however. Mr. Lodewick brought in his last stock July 3, and reported that made him over 8700 quarts this season.

—In making his rounds this morning the COURIER reporter met a man who was driving a double team to a carriage built forty-eight years ago. The present owner uses it as a berry wagon, but with a few repairs it would be good for many more years of service. The vehicle was manufactured in Fort Wayne.

—A horse belonging to Lewis Hite, living east of town, got out onto the Wabash railroad track, Sunday morning, and was struck by the Continental west-bound train. Mr. Hite had the trouble of burying the animal and as the gate leading to the track had been left open the railroad company will escape any claim for damages.

—Father Bartels one of the old pioneers of DeKalb county had the misfortune yesterday to fall and injure his hip badly, the limb being totally paralized. Owing to his advanced age his recovery is doubtful. Dr. Buchtel was called and made the old gentleman as comfortable as possible under the circumstances. He is the father of Chas. Bartels on West 5th street.

A Chicagoan who has just returned from Paris says that on most restaurants there are signs announcing "All languages spoken here." He remarked to the manager of one of these places: You must have a great many interpreters in your establishment." "Not one," was the surprising reply. "Then who speaks all the languages?" asked the Chicagoan. "The customers," said the Frenchman, blandly.

—At the G. A. R. meeting last night the following committees were appointed for the reunion of the DeKalb Battalion, August 16: Finance—A. P Green and Joseph Rainier. Seats and grounds—J. N. Wilson and Henry Wolf. Prominent speakers from abroad will be here for both the afternoon exercises and the campfire in the evening. The committees are hustling to make this the best meeting ever held by the battalion.

Wednesday's Daily.

—Judge Hench of Fort Wayne was in town last evening.

—For the latest thing in a lawn swing, see Culbertson & Boland. tf

—Steele & Son are doing the interior decorating of Karl Husselman's new house, north of the city.

—Miss Nettie Hoff returned yesterday from a week's visit with friends at Toledo and Perryburg, O.

—Harold Blair of Laporte was here yesterday. He is visiting his grandfather, Gen. Blair at Waterloo.

—Clarence Cook and wife have commenced housekeeping in part of D. Z Hoffman's residence on south Main street.

—We don't pretend to sell our goods below cost all the time, but we do it at our semi-annual clearance sale.—Bishop & Beidler.

—If anyone needs Louisiana red cypress for tanks they can get it of the Auburn Lumber Co., who have just received a full car load.

—Will Palmer is temporarily located in the bowling alley where he has considerable work at sign painting on hands in addition to his outside work.

—The new brick house being built by John Kruger, sr., will soon be completed and will be occupied by his son John. Another brick residence will be erected just west on the same lot.

—Remember the Auburn Lumber Co., are unloading a car of fresh woodburt bulk lime every week during the busy season. Remember the place and always buy the best, at only 20 cents a bushel.

—If you want foot comfort you should wear low shoes during the summer months. During our semi-annual clearance sale all of our men's $1.26, $1.50 and $1.75 Oxfords in black and tan go for 98 cents.—Bishop & Beidler.

The republicans are evidently scared about Indiana. They have planned for nearly every prominent man they have to stump the state, including Roosevelt, Spooner, Dolliver, and the republican candidate for governor of Illinois. We hope some of these spellbinders will rip the McKinley administration for making and flooding the country with 16 to 1 silver dollars for the past four years.

—The regular team from the Kiblinger factory and a picked nine played a six-inning game of ball yesterday afternoon and it is reported to have been quite a lively contest, the regulars winning by a score of 15 to 11. The battery for the regulars was Weakley and Gibford, and for the picked nine Caldwell and Chas. Picker. The Kibs will work hard to secure the factory league championship this year.

THE CAFES IN VIENNA.

They Are a Second Home to the People.

Every one goes to them—men, women, priest and children. The cafe is the center of social life. It is there that the policy of the government is discussed, the latest play criticised and business transacted. At 4 o'clock in the afternoon it is with difficulty that a seat can be had in one of these popular meeting places, for at that hour every Viennese partakes of his afternoon coffee, which fills the place of the Englishman's 5 o'clock tea, says the International Magazine. These cafes are the regular reading rooms; some of them take as many as 500 different periodicals, and often 15 copies of the same paper—some popular Austrian or foreign sheet—are on file. Let a foreigner enter, and the experienced waiter immediately recognizes his nationality. If he be an American, a New York daily is brought to him; if a Frenchman, a Paris boulevard paper is laid before him, and so on. If a Russian enters, cigarettes are at once produced. Cafes are for the Viennese a second home, and they all have two kinds of clients, the stammgaste or habitues, and the laufende or transients. The habitues, commonly called wirthaus-bruder ('cafe brothers"), have tables reserved for them, and woe betide the man who ventures to take possession of this sacred property! There are many Viennese who for the past thirty or forty years have sat at the same table, in the same corner, day after day, drink the same brew of beer or brand of wine, and smoking the same sort of tobacco in the same old pipes. A stammgaste generally spends from three to four hours every day at his cafe, the natural result being a great loss of time and money. But the Viennese are not miserly. They live up to the German proverb which seems to have been written on purpose for them: "Leben und leben lassen," (Live and let live).

South American Ostriches.

It is not commonly known that there are almost as many ostriches in South America as in Africa, and yet the annual export of feathers from the former country to the United States alone is in the neighborhood of nineteen tons, representing in money $41,647.

DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM

Full Text of the Resolutions Adopted by the National Convention at Kansas City.

THE official text of the platform as adopted by the Democratic national convention at Kansas City is as follows:

We, the representatives of the Democratic party of the United States assembled in national convention on the anniversary of the adoption of the declaration of independence, do reaffirm our faith in that immortal proclamation of the inalienable rights of man, and our allegiance to the Constitution framed in harmony therewith by the fathers of the republic. We hold with the United States Supreme Court that the declaration of independence is the spirit of our government, of which the Consettution is the form and letter.

We declare again that all governments instituted among men derive their just powers from the consent of the governed; that any government not based upon the consent of the governed is a tyranny, and that to impose upon any people a form of government of force is to substitute the methods of imperialism for those of a republic.

We hold that the Constitution follows the flag and denounce the doctrine that an executive or Congress deriving their existence and their powers from the Constitution can exercise lawful authority beyond it or in violation of it.

We assert that no nation can long endure half republic and half empire, and we warn the American people that imperialism abroad will lead quickly and inevitably to despotism at home.

Denounce Porto Rican Law.

Believing in these fundamental principles, we denounce the Porto Rico law, enacted by a Republican Congress, against the protest and opposition of the Democratic minority, as a bold and open violation of the nation's organic law and a flagrant breach of the national good faith.

It imposes upon the people of Porto Rico a government without their consent, and taxation without representation.

It dishonors the American people by repudiating a solemn pledge made in their behalf by the commanding general of our army, which the Porto Ricans welcomed to a peaceful and unresisted occupation of their land. It doomed to poverty and distress a people whose helplessness appeals with peculiar force to our justice and magnanimity. In this, the first act of its imperialistic program, the Republican party seeks to commit the United States to a colonial policy, inconsistent with republican institutions and condemned by the Supreme Court in numerous decisions.

Demands Good Faith with Cuba.

We demand the prompt and honest fulfillment of our pledge to the Cuban people and the world that the United States has no disposition nor intention to exercise sovereignty, jurisdiction, or control over the island of Cuba, except for its pacification.

The war ended nearly two years ago, profound peace reigns over all the island, and still the administration keeps the government of the island from its people while Republican carpetbag officials plunder its revenues and exploit the colonial theory, to the disgrace of the American people.

We condemn and denounce the Philippine policy of the present administration. It has involved the republic in unnecessary war, sacrificed the lives of many of our noblest sons, and placed the United States, previously known and applauded throughout the world as the champion of freedom, in the false and un-American position of crushing with military force the efforts of our former allies to achieve liberty and self-government.

The Filipinos cannot be citizens without endangering our civilization; they cannot be subjects without imperiling our form of government, and as we are not willing to surrender our civilization or to convert the republic into an empire, we favor an immediate declaration of the nation's purpose of give to the Filipinos first a stable form of government; second, independence, and third, protection from outside interference such as has been given for nearly a century to the republics of Central and South America.

Scores Philippine Policy.

The greedy commercialism which dictated the Philippine policy of the Republican administration attempts to justify it with the plea that it will pay, but even this sordid and unworthy plea fails when brought to the test of facts. The war of criminal aggression against the Filipinos, entailing an annual expense of many millions, has already cost more than any possible profit that could accrue from the entire Philippine trade for years to come. Furthermore, when trade is extended at the expense of liberty the price is always too high.

We are not opposed to territorial expansion when it takes in desirable territory which can be erected into States in Union and whose people are willing and fit to become American citizens. We favor trade expansion by every peaceful and legitimate means.

But we are unalterably opposed to the seizure or purchase of distant islands to be governed outside the Constitution and whose people can never become citizens.

Holds Imperialism Paramount.

We are in favor of extending the republic's influence among the nations, but believe that influence should be extended not by force and violence, but through the persuasive power of a high and honorable example.

The importance of other questions now pending before the American people is in no wise diminished, and the Democratic party takes no backward step from its position on them, but the burning issue of imperialism, growing out of the Spanish war, involves the very existence of the republic and the destruction of our free institutions.

We regard it as the paramount issue of the campaign.

The declaration in the Republican platform adopted at the Philadelphia convention, held in June, 1900, that the Republican party "steadfastly adheres to the policy announced in the Monroe doctrine" is manifestly insincere and deceptive.

This profession is contradicted by the avowed policy of that party in opposition to the spirit of the Monroe doctrine to acquire and hold sovereignty over large areas of territory and large numbers of people in the eastern hemisphere.

Must Uphold Monroe Doctrine.

We insist on the strict maintenance of the Monroe doctrine and in all its integrity, both in letter and in spirit, as necessary to prevent the extension of European authority on this continent and as essential to our supremacy in American affairs.

At the same time we declare that no American people shall ever be held by force in unwilling subjection to European authority.

We oppose militarism. It means conquest abroad and intimidation and oppression at home. It means the strong army which has ever been fatal to free institutions.

It is what millions of our citizens have fled from in Europe. It will impose upon our peace-loving people a large standing army and an unnecessary burden of taxation and a constant menace to their liberties.

A small standing army and a well disciplined State militia are amply sufficient in time of peace. This republic has no place for a vast military service and conscription. When the nation is in danger the volunteer soldier is his country's best defender.

The National Guard of the United States should ever be cherished in the patriotic hearts of a free people. Such organizations are ever an element of strength and safety.

For the first time in our history and coevil with the Philippine conquest has there been a wholesale departure from our time-honored and approved system of volunteer organization.

We denounce it as un-American, un-democratic and un-republican, and as a subversion of the ancient and fixed principles of a free people.

Trusts Are Scored.

Private monopolies are indefensible and intolerable. They destroy competition, control the price of all material, and of the finished product, thus robbing both producer and consumer.

They lessen the employment of labor and arbitrarily fix the terms and conditions thereof, and deprive individual energy and small capital of their opportunity for betterment.

They are the most efficient means yet devised for appropriating the fruits of industry to the benefit of the few at the expense of the many, and unless their insatiate greed is checked all wealth will be aggregated in a few hands and the republic destroyed.

The dishonest pattering with the trust evil by the Republican party in State and national platforms is conclusive proof of the truth of the charge that trusts are the legitimate product of Republican policies; that they are fostered by Republican policies; that they are protected by the Republican administration in return for campaign subscriptions and political support.

Pledge War on Monopoly.

We pledge the Democratic party to an unceasing warfare in nation, State and city against private monopoly in every form.

Existing laws against trusts must be enforced and more stringent ones must be enacted, providing for publicity as to the affairs of corporations engaged in interstate commerce, and requiring all corporations to show, before doing business outside of the State of their origin, that they have no water in their stock, and that they have not attempted, and are not attempting, to monopolize any branch of business or the production of any articles of merchandise, and the whole constitutional power of Congress over interstate commerce, the mails, and all modes of interstate communication shall be exercised by the enactment of comprehensive laws upon the subject of trusts.

To Amend Trust Laws.

Tariff laws should be amended by putting the products of trusts upon the free list to prevent monopoly under the plea of protection.

The failure of the present Republican administration, with an absolute control over all the branches of the national government, to enact any legislation designed to prevent or even curtail the absorbing power of trusts and illegal combinations, or to enforce the anti-trust laws already on the statute books, proves the insincerity of the high-sounding phrases of the Republican platform.

Corporations should be protected in all their rights and their legitimate interests should be respected, but any attempt by corporations to interfere with the public affairs of the people, or to control the sovereignty which creates them, should be forbidden under such penalties as will make such attempts impossible.

We condemn the Dingley tariff law as a trust-breeding measure, skillfully devised to give the few favors which they do not deserve, and to place upon the many the burdens which they should not bear.

We favor such an enlargement of the scope of the interstate commerce law as will enable the commission to protect individuals and communities from discriminations and the public from unjust and unfair transportation rates.

The 16-to-1 Plank.

We reaffirm and indorse the principles of the national Democratic platform adopted at Chicago in 1896, and we reiterate the demand of that platform for an American financial system made by the American people for themselves, which shall restore and maintain a bimetallic price-level, and as part of such system the immediate restoration of the free and unlimited coinage of silver and gold at the present legal ratio of 16 to 1 without waiting for the aid or consent of any other nation.

We denounce the currency bill enacted at the last session of Congress as a step forward in the Republican policy which aims to discredit the sovereign right of the national government to issue all money, whether coin or paper, and to bestow upon national banks the power to issue and control the volume of paper money for their own benefit.

A permanent national bank currency, secured by government bonds, must have a permanent debt to rest upon, and if the bank currency is to increase with population and business the debt must also increase. The Republican currency scheme is therefore a scheme for fastening upon the taxpayers a perpetual and growing debt.

Demand Retirement of Bank Notes.

We are opposed to this private corporation paper circulated as money, but without legal tender qualities, and demand the retirement of the national bank notes as fast as government paper or silver certificates can be substituted for them.

We favor an amendment to the Federal Constitution providing for the election of United States Senators by direct vote of the people, and we favor direct legislation wherever practicable.

We are opposed to government by injunction; we denounce the blacklist and favor arbitration as a means of settling disputes between corporations and their employes.

In the interest of American labor and the uplifting of the workingman, as the corner stone of the prosperity of our country, we recommend that Congress create a department of labor in charge of a secretary, with a seat in the cabinet, believing that the elevation of the American laborer will bring with it increased production and increased prosperity to our country at home and to our commerce abroad.

We are proud of the courage and fidelity of the American soldiers and sailors in all our wars; we favor liberal pensions to them and their dependents, and we reiterate the position taken in the Chicago platform in 1896 that the fact of enlistment and service shall be deemed conclusive evidence against disease and disability before enlistment.

We favor the immediate construction, ownership and control of the Nicaragua canal by the United States, and we denounce the insincerity of the plank in the national Republican platform for an isthmian canal, in face of the failure of the Republican majority to pass the bill pending in Congress.

We condemn the Hay-Pauncefote treaty as a surrender of American rights and interests, not to be tolerated by the American people.

Pledge to Territories.

We denounce the failure of the Republican party to carry out its pledges to grant Statehood to the Territories of Arizona, New Mexico and Oklahoma, and we promise the people of those Territories immediate Statehood and home rule during their condition as Territories, and we favor home rule and a Territorial form of government for Alaska and Porto Rico.

We favor an intelligent system of improving the arid lands of the West, storing the waters for purposes of irrigation, and the holding of such lands for actual settlers.

We favor the continuance and strict enforcement of the Chinese exclusion law and its application to the same classes of all Asiatic races.

Jefferson said: "Peace, commerce and honest friendship with all nations; entangling alliances with none."

We approve the wholesome doctrine and earnestly protest against the Republican departure which has involved us in so-called politics, including the diplomacy of Europe and the intrigue and land-grabbing of Asia, and we especially condemn the ill-concealed Republican alliance with England which must mean discrimination against other friendly nations and which has already stifled the nation's voice, while liberty is being strangled in Africa.

Pro-Boer Plank.

Believing in the principles of self-government, and rejecting, as did our forefathers, the claim of monarchy, we view with indignation the purpose of England to overwhelm with force the South African republics.

Speaking as we do for the entire American nation except its Republican office-holders, and for all free men everywhere, we extend our sympathies to the heroic burghers in their unequal struggle to maintain their liberty and independence.

We denounce the lavish appropriations of recent Republican Congresses, which have kept taxes high and which threaten the perpetuation of the oppressive war levies.

We oppose the accumulation of a surplus to be squandered in such barefaced frauds upon the taxpayers as the shipping subsidy bill, which, under the false pretense of prospering American shipbuilding, would put unearned millions into the pockets of favorite contributors to the Republican campaign fund.

We favor the reduction and speedy repeal of the war taxes, and a return to the time-honored Democratic policy of strict economy in governmental expenditures.

Believing that our most cherished institutions are in great peril; that the very existence of our constitutional republic is at stake, and that the decision now to be rendered will determine whether or not our children are to enjoy those blessed privileges of free government which have made the United States great, prosperous and honored, we earnestly ask for the foregoing declaration of principles the hearty support of the liberty-loving American people, regardless of previous party affiliations.

A Quite Out-of-the-Ordinary Cat.

A San Francisco fisherman has a cat that is said to love water as much as other cats love a rug in front of a grate fire. When he goes fishing the cat lies quietly in the boat and does not appear to mind how wet he gets. When the seine with its load of live fish is hauled in, the cat seizes the largest one, trying to shake it as he would a mouse. He does it entirely for sport, as he never attempts to eat the large fish, and lives almost wholly on the smaller ones used for bait.

Mme. De Stael's Quick Wit.

A gentleman not famed for wit and tact found himself seated at dinner between Mme. De Stael and Mme. Recamier, equally well known for her beauty and foolishness. With a polite bow right and left he said: "Here I am between Wit and Beauty," whereupon Mme. De Stael, seeing Mme. Recamier's flush of vexation at this back-handed hit at her lack of intelligence, quickly soothed her down by exclaiming: "Well, this is the first time I have ever been complimented upon my good looks."

WILLIE AND HIS PAPA.

"Yes, Willie, he is for you. Nursie and I have trained him."—New York Journal.

Hard Luck with Their Platform.

The Republicans are having hard luck with their platform. It fails to please the ultra imperialists and it receives the condemnation of the more conservative members of the party. Between two stools it has fallen to the ground and the tumble has served to disorganize its system and brought on a severe, perhaps fatal, attack of indigestion.

The New York Tribune calls it a product of a "driveler," although it was adopted by unanimous vote of the 1,020 delegates. As a matter of fact the platform is a hodgepodge of sham and evasion pleasing to nobody and denounced on all sides. It is "roasted" hotly by Republican editors in all sections of the country, and the Boston Advertiser, a Republican paper of high standing, takes it to task in the following vigorous fashion:

"Whether the Republican party is in favor of the permanent retention of the Philippine Islands the platform does not say. Whether the Republican party does or does not believe that Porto Rico, for instance, is American territory in such a sense that the constitution is applicable to the government of the island, the platform does not say. In other words, the platform is silent on the tremendous questions whether we are to keep the territory, excepting Cuba, over which by the treaty of Paris the sovereignty of Spain was brought to an end, and whether, if we are to keep that territory, it is to be held as an integral part of the republic, as other territory, e. g., the Louisiana purchase, has been held, or is to remain in a condition of vassalage, having no representation at Washington and the inhabitants no rights of American citizenship. In a word, the question whether, if Porto Rico and the Philippines are to be retained, our policy toward them is to be one of 'expansion' or of 'imperialism,' is a question which the platform does not so much as touch."

Virtually the Republican party goes before the people without any platform. What pretends to be such is a cowardly and dishonest evasion of the points at issue. The result is going to be disastrous to the G. O. P., and the Democrats are not only going to have the right kind of a platform this year, but they are going to elect the men who stand on it.—Chicago Democrat.

Republican Party Record.

If the Republican party has failed to make a good record during McKinley's term of office it has not been because of lacking power and opportunity.

Controlling the executive and both branches of the legislative power of this nation, the Republicans had absolute freedom to carry out any plans for benefiting the people which they might have devised or desired to promote.

But the record made has been bad instead of good. No anti-trust legislation was proposed that had any sincerity in it, and none was passed. The armor plate trust was given free hands to loot the United States treasury and Attorney General Griggs refused to enforce the laws already on the statute books.

No measure to promote the building of the Nicaragua canal was passed, for the measure proposed by the Republican House was killed by the Republican Senate. Porto Rico was robbed of the rights promised by Republican leaders, and the constitution has been trampled upon to accomplish this robbery. As to the governmental construction of a Pacific cable the matter was muddled by both houses and left in such a shape that the whole matter could be turned over to a boodling combine after the Presidential election. No Philippine policy was adopted and the President was allowed to retain the unconstitutional authority he had usurped.

Surely the Republican executive and legislative bodies ought in truth to put on sackcloth and contritely confess: "We have done things which we ought not to have done; we have not done those things which we ought to have done, and there is no health in us."

The People's Last Chance.

The Republican party is committed squarely to imperialism—to the policy of grabbing everything in sight and governing conquered peoples wherever any administration may choose to make conquests, subject to no constitutional restraints. This is a radical and vast departure from the doctrines, traditions and practices of our national life. It is a complete repudiation of the principles of the Declaration of Independence and an utter renunciation of the character which the American people have been establishing and jealously defending for a century and a quarter.

Are the people prepared for this radical departure from principles which have been distinctively their own, and which they have held to be sacred and inviolable? If not, they must say so now. If they elect McKinley in November the final plunge into world politics and imperialism, with all the denial of the right of self-government necessarily involved, will have been taken. There will then be no retreat.—Chicago Chronicle.

The National Campaign.

The Republicans never before entered a national campaign so miserably equipped to put up an offensive battle. Since McKinley has been President, his administration has made little campaign capital—except for its political opponents. The Democrats will be in a position to place the McKinley advocates on the defensive. They can hurl at the devoted head of Mark Hanna's little Willie all kinds of bitter and telling things about trusts, army frauds, postal frauds, Porto Rican tariff outrage, etc., etc., etc. And what can Mark and his cohorts say in reply? There's the rub. Up to date, they have been unable to say anything of moment. Their present stock in trade consists of far-fetched cartoons and stale jokes aimed at Mr. Bryan, of Nebraska. That is all—the sum total.—Indianapolis Sun.

The Commission Humbug.

The Industrial Commission, so called, has provided itself with a pleasant summer junket, all of the expenses of which will be paid by the "dear people." It has decided that industrial conditions must be investigated during the summer and has arranged for meetings of the Commission during the next three months in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York and New England States. One of the first duties of a Democratic administration and Congress will be to abolish the Republican Government commission humbug, which has become so rampant and so expensive under the McKinley administration.—Johnstown (Pa.) Democrat.

Republicans Ostracize Negroes.

The Republicans carried Oregon by 10,000 majority, but a proposed amendment of the State constitution repealing that section of the instrument which forbids "any free negro or mulatto to come, reside or be within the State or hold any real estate or make any contracts or maintain any suit therein" was rejected. Theoretically the negro man is a fine fellow, a desirable citizen on election day and good material with which to diversify the politics and the industry of the nation. But the practical opinion of the theorizers is expressed in the Oregon vote of continued ostracization.—Philadelphia Record.

Self-Abnegation of a Boss.

The Hon. Mark Hanna refused to let himself follow his announced intention of retiring from the Chairmanship of the National Committee. What arguments he used with himself to cause him to reconsider his purpose, we do not know. But he at last prevailed upon himself, and had himself re-elected. He can feel now that the party is safe, as he will continue to run it. Probably pity for its forlorn condition if the lord master retired had much to do with his persuading himself to continue his splendid role as a national boss.—Indianapolis News.

The Republican Love Feast.

From beginning to end there was not a word of vital discussion of party principles or policy, only a succession of bloated panegyrics. It was not intended that any delegate whose fidelity to boss rule was not assured should have an opportunity to open his mouth in the expression of opinion on dangerous questions. The bosses were afraid of free debate, and they suppressed every possibility of the appearance of a difference of opinion.—Boston Herald.

An Appalling Imperialism.

When we send the army and the navy to make war upon China because of internal disturbances, we are making imperialism, in its most appalling feature, the policy of the great republic that claims to be a "government of the people, by the people and for the people." Let the halt be prompt and imperative, for the peril is great alike to the nation and to President McKinley himself.—Philadelphia Times.

He Needs to Explain.

While Mr. Roosevelt is dilating on the New York ice trust he should also explain his failure to show up the canal frauds. If he did not sell himself body and soul to the Platt rascals in that matter he ought to exonerate himself in the minds of the people.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

Its Only Day of Enthusiasm.

The McKinley and Roosevelt ticket, amid the cheers which greeted it in Philadelphia, has witnessed its only day of enthusiasm, and from now on must fall into that mediocrity of estimation which attaches to the insufficient and the bungling.—Atlanta Constitution.

SAID BY RICHARDSON.

THE PERMANENT CHAIRMAN REVIEWS ISSUES.

Finance the Leader—Trusts and Imperialism Are Warmly Denounced—Administration's Attitude in Cuba, Porto Rico and Philippines Criticised.

The speech of J. D. Richardson of Tennessee, permanent chairman of the national Democratic convention, was as follows:

I am deeply sensible of the great honor you have bestowed upon me in calling me to preside over this great Democratic convention. We have been clothed with the authority to name formally the candidates who at the next election are to be chosen President and Vice President of the United States, and to lay down a platform of principles upon which the battle is to be fought and the victory won. With your permission I will address myself to some of the issues of the impending campaign.

The last great national contest for supremacy was fought mainly upon one issue; that is to say, one issue was paramount in the struggle. That issue was familiarly called "16 to 1." It involved the question of the free coinage of gold and silver at a ratio of sixteen parts of silver to one part of gold, with which all of us are familiar.

The momentous issue this year is again 16 to 1; but the sixteen parts to the one part of this campaign, which I will briefly discuss, are wholly different from those of 1896. I will refer to the sixteen parts and then to the one part. These sixteen parts are:

1. We have the issue fraught with indescribable importance to our people native born, and those who have for patriotic reasons cast their fortunes with us—namely, that of the republic against the empire. On this part alone of the sixteen, if there were no other, we confidently expect to win a sweeping victory in November. The Republican party stands for empire. The Democratic party stands for the republic, for the declaration of independence, and the Constitution of our country.

Trusts a Leading Issue.

2. The paternal and fostering care given by those with whom we contend to the combinations of corporations and companies into powerful organizations familiarly known as trusts. Under three years of Republican rule, while they controlled the Presidency, the Senate, and the House of Representatives—that is, the law-making power of the government—trusts have been propagated and fostered by legislation until they not only dominate all markets, both the buying and selling, but defy the very power of the government itself. The farcical efforts put forth by the Republican party in an alleged attempt to restrain them in the dying hours of the late session of Congress only excited ridicule and contempt and served to emphasize their inability and disinclination to grapple with the monsters and regulate their conduct and actions. No matter what their excuses may be, the fact is their policies have created them, and, though clothed with all power, they refuse to enact legislation to control them.

3. Called to power March 4, 1897, under a pledge to reform the currency, they seized the first opportunity to fasten upon the land the highest protective tariff law ever put upon the statute books of any country. This law was enacted, not to raise revenue, but to give protection to favored manufacturers. It failed to raise sufficient revenue for the government, but answered the purpose of enriching the favored few, while it robbed the many, and at the same time brought forth trusts to plague us as numerous as the lice and locusts of Egypt. Their high protective tariff is the mother of trusts.

4. This administration came into power with a solemn declaration in favor of bimetallism and a pledge to promote it. It has failed to keep that pledge. It has erected in its stead the single standard of gold, and has endeavored to destroy all hope of bimetallism. In doing this it has built up a powerful national bank trust and has given us a currency based upon the debts and liabilities of the government. We stand for bimetallism and not for a monometallic standard of either one or the other metal.

Attitude Toward Monroe Doctrine.

5. The dominant party has recently made the fraudulent declaration that it favored the Monroe doctrine, and yet their President and Secretary of State have done all in their power to nullify and abrogate that famous and much-revered Democratic doctrine. In the name of its Democratic author, James Monroe, I denounce their vaunted advocacy of this truly American doctrine as false and hypocritical. We stand for this doctrine in its essence and form, and demand its rigid enforcement.

6. In order to obtain place and power they pledged themselves, in the interest of an expanding commerce, to construct a waterway to connect the two great oceans. They have repudiated this promise. They have negotiated the Hay-Pauncefote treaty which, while it virtually abrogates the Monroe doctrine, renders it impossible to build an American canal. Under the terms and provisions of this treaty, which is English and not American, the canal can never be constructed. We stand for an American canal, owned, constructed, operated, and fortified by America.

7. They declared in their platform that their party was responsible for the merit system, that it was their creature and that the civil service law should be protected and its operations extended. Their protection of this law has been such as the wolf gives the lamb. They did not dare openly repeal the law or to modify it by an act of Congress, but they have insidiously, by an order from the President, extorted from him to aid them to obtain and hold political power, greatly impaired the efficiency of the law. By the President's order many thousand lucrative offices regularly covered by the civil service law were taken from under its protection, and these places turned over to his partisan followers in a vain effort to satisfy their political greed.

8. They declared in their platform in favor of the admission of the territories of Arizona, New Mexico and Oklahoma as States of the Union, yet, after nearly four years of full power, they are still Territories. Under the wicked rule of law as now applied by the Republican party to some of our Territories they may at an early date find erected between themselves and the balance of the Union a tariff wall which will serve to pauperize them while it enriches others.

"Plain Duty" in Porto Rico.

9. When Congress last assembled the President, in his first utterance addressed to the representatives fresh from the people, solemnly urged upon them that it was their plain duty to give free trade to Porto Rico. His party leaders, quick to obey his injunction, made ready to comply with his recommendations. But in a night—almost in the twinkling of an eye—the mighty magnates of the trusts swept down upon Washington and interposed their strong arm, and plain duty vanished like mist before the rising sun. The President wheeled into line, the Republican party reversed its policy, and set up a tariff wall between the island of Porto Rico and the remainder of the United States. It is not at all surprising that in the recent somewhat lengthy declarations of principles enunciated by the party in convention assembled, while they enlarge upon almost every political question, they could not find the space to point with pride to their achievements of their party in its dealings with that unhappy island. The Democratic party stands for equal taxation, equal rights and opportunities to all who come under the folds of the flag.

10. They wholly failed by their legislation and by the cheaper method of platform declaration to tell the country what their policy is in respect to the Philippine Islands. For two years, by their equivocating policy, and no policy at all, they have continued in that archipelago a war, expensive in human blood, as well as in money. Incompetent to deal with this question, and too cowardly to avow their real purpose of imperialism and militarism in dealing with these and kindred colonial questions, they should be retired from power, and the control should be given to a party honest, bold and patriotic enough to apply American theories and precepts to existing conditions, and thereby solve them in harmony with the underlying principles of the declaration of independence and the Constitution of our country.

11. Another part of the issue of the campaign this year is the scandalous dealings of a high cabinet officer with private banks of the country. These scandals are notorious, and are based upon the earnest and repeated written demands of the officers of some of these banks that they should be favored by this administration because of money contributed by them with which to buy the Presidency of 1896. Correspondence submitted to Congress shows that, in one case at least, an appeal from an institution in New York City to the Secretary of the Treasury for financial assistance, because, as it was claimed, the officers of the bank had contributed liberally to the election of the present chief executive, was not made in vain, and the asked-for assistance in this case from the government was freely, if not corruptly, given.

"Embalmed Beef" for Soldiers.

12. The scandals which surrounded the War Department in feeding embalmed beef to the soldiers, in its purchase of old yachts, tugs, ocean liners, ocean tramps, barges, scows, etc., for use as army transports constitute an important chapter.

13. So also the scandals in connection with the postoffice matters in Cuba, and the scandals in connection with the expenditure of the funds of the Paris exposition. Time will not permit an amplification of all these scandals.

14. They loudly proclaim that theirs is the party of liberty, and in their vainglory boast of their very name, Republican, yet they are caught coquetting and forming secret entangling alliances of the most detestable character with the old mother monarchy. They stand supinely by and refuse even an expression of sympathy with the Boer republics in their heroic and unequal struggle for existence as against the gross oppressions and brutal efforts at enslavement of the same old tyrant who went down in defeat when he sought to prevent the establishment of our own liberty-loving republic. They thus permit a brave people in love with their free republican institutions to perish from the earth, lest by one word of sympathy and comfort they might offend the delicate sensibilities of their new found ally, Great Britain.

15. An important chapter is the oft-repeated promise, made to be broken, that when the war ceased the oppressive, burdensome and vexatious war taxes on many articles of prime necessity should be repealed or reduced. Though the war closed two years ago, and notwithstanding there is a large and growing surplus in the treasury, not one dollar of reduction in these taxes has been made. It is known that delegation after delegation of citizens, suffering from these burdens, crowded the committee rooms at Washington, and literally begged for some relief. It is true that those of us who constitute the minority of Congress joined in that appeal and declared our readiness to support any and all measures that might in some degree remove these burdens of taxation. But a deaf ear was turned by the Republicans to all such efforts for relief, and none came. It is well known, also, that no relief will be given by the party in power, and it is vain for overburdened people to look to them while present policies are attempted to be enforced. The only hope for relief lies in hurling from power the Republican party and the restoration of the party which believes in simple and economical government.

Cost of "Imperialism."

Sixteenth and Last—The cost of Republicanism and its twin monster imperialism. This is neither the time nor the occasion to discuss in detail the increased appropriation made necessary by the Republican policy of imperialism. Briefly, however, I will mention that the average of appropriations per year for all purposes of government for the two years immediately preceding the Spanish-American war were about $475,000,000. The average expenditures per annum for each of the three years since that war, including the fiscal year upon which we have just entered, show an increase of nearly $300,000,000. The total increase for the three years will be nearly $900,000,000. And in like proportion it will go on. This shows the difference in cost of the empire as against the republic. These figures refer alone to the money cost of the change, and do not include the expense of the blood of the American boys, the price of which is far beyond computation. In the Republican Congress just closed not one dollar could be had for much-needed public buildings throughout the country at home, but many millions were promptly voted to prosecute a war in the far-away Philippine Islands. Not a dollar for necessary improvements of our rivers and harbors at home, but millions to be stolen and squandered in Cuba and our new insular possessions. Nothing for the Isthmian canal, and many other enterprises and objects, but more than $200,000,000 was freely given for the army and navy, for imperialism and military, for gold and glory.

I said at the outset that the issue this year was again 16 to 1. The foregoing are briefly the sixteen parts of the issue. What is the one part?

We have seen that platform pledges are made and broken; that good intentions of men are many times set at naught; that plain duty clearly set forth and understood is disregarded; that some men are weak and vacillating and may change their solemn opinions in a day. It is apparent, therefore, to all that in this supreme exigency of the republic a demand goes forth, not for a false-hearted declaration of platform platitudes, but for a man. Yes, a man who stands like a mighty rock in the desert; a man who, knowing the right, will dare do the right; a man who, "rather than follow a multitude to do evil," will stand, like Pompey's pillar, conspicuously by himself, and single in integrity.

Such a man, as the one part, this convention will tender to the nation as their candidate for President—a man who is unsurpassed as a citizen, unequaled as an orator, courageous as a soldier, conspicuous in every element that constitutes the typical and the true American, William J. Bryan, of Nebraska.

WAS HIS GREATEST TREASURE.

Modest Choice Which an American Made of a Sword.

Somebody was telling just the other day, of a wonderful eastern relic, which is in the possession of an ex-minister to Siam, says the Washington Post. It was when the ex-minister was a full-fledged representative of the majesty of a free people that he was invited out of his legation to visit a prince, or a subking, or some other provincial ruler under the dominion of the king of Siam. He was right royally entertained, and when the time for his departure drew near his host desired to load him down with costly presents.

The American minister refused, again and again, to take the valuable gifts pressed upon him, but at last, seeing that to go away empty handed would be mortally to insult his princely host, he decided to take the smallest and least valuable of all the things shown him. He looked about the treasure room and saw hanging on one wall a perfectly plain old sword. Its scabbard was not jewelled, and its hilt was quite plain. Surely he might take so small a gift as that. He signified his desire to possess the weapon, and it was given him.

When he went back to the capital his majesty expressed a royal curiosity to know what the prince had given him. The sword was shown him. His majesty fairly bubbled with excitement. That sword! Why, he had been trying for years and years to get possession of it. He had offered the prince its weight and double its weight in gold and precious stones, but the prince had always refused to part with it. It was a historic sword, a sacred sword, and scarcely less precious to the prince than his crown itself. It was hundreds of years old, and the king would have given his eye teeth for it.

The American had asked for something vastly more precious than any of the gorgeous jewels he had refused to accept, and Oriental politeness had granted his request. He had brought away with him something that all the power of the mighty monarch himself had not been able to obtain.

No Choice of Evils.

Some people are never satisfied; or rather, perhaps, their troubles are of so general a nature as to admit of no particular alleviation.

Sir Algernon West says that he was one day lingering in an English country road, when an old man shuffled along, and then, sinking on a bank, looked up pathetically, saying:

"I mostly 'as a fit goin' up-ill!"

"Where are you bound?" asked Sir Algernon.

"Down there toward Cobham."

"That's all right," said the gentleman, encouragingly, "for it's down-hill all the way."

"Ah," groaned the pilgrim, "that's the worst of it! I always pitches on my 'ead goin' down 'ill!"

PASSING OF GAS LIGHTERS.

Increasing Use of Electric Lamps Is Leaving Them Without Work.

They are getting after the nimble young man who trots around the streets in the gloaming with a torch on the end of along pole, touching off the gas lamps one by one and leaving a trail of more or less light after him, says the Chicago Chronicle. The irresistible march of science and progress and the other things which are making changes in the world is sweeping the lamp-lighter out of the way.

In 1887, before there were any municipal electric street lights in service in Chicago, about 400 young men, old men and barefoot boys trudged nightly through all the city streets lighting the gas lamps. In the chill dawn they made the rounds again, putting out the lights.

Now a handful of employes in the electrical department of the city throw a few switches in the electric light stations every evening and instantly 3,500 electric arc lights spring to life along the streets which the boys formerly paced so laboriously, and in the morning the switches are thrown back once more and the lights die out. It is all done by a simple turn of the wrist.

But the lamp-lighter has not been entirely superseded as yet, notwithstanding City Electrician Ellicott's anxiety to extend the electric lighting system until it includes the entire city, which is to be done as soon as machinery can be installed to use the water power of the drainage channel at Lockport.

There are still those 18,500 gas lamps in nightly operation, and, as each lighter cares for an average of 100 of these, there are still nearly 200 lighters making their rounds nightly.

Just how many boys and men are employed it is difficult to learn accurately. They all work for the gas company, as the city pays $20 a year for each gas lamp and the company "maintains" it—that is, pays for lighting, extinguishing, cleaning and repairs.

But while the company allots an average of 100 lamps to each lighter, and pays a fixed rate per lamp for their maintenance, the lighters sub-let the contracts in some cases, hiring little lads for almost nothing to do part of the work, of which, of course, the company has no record.

Some old men who, for many years, have been employed as lamp-lighters, swear their sons into the service and make a family affair of it. Therefore, it is probable that more than 200 people are employed to care for the 18,500 gas lamps which are still in service.

Although the electric lighting system of Chicago was inaugurated only thirteen years ago and has grown slowly, few people realize that the city has the largest municipal street lighting system in the world, including 3,502 arc lamps, each of 2,000 candle power.

In addition to the gas lamps, there are approximately 10,000 gasoline lamps in service in outlying districts not touched by the mains of the gas companies, and these are rented by the city from private corporations. These, too, are being displaced gradually by the extension of the electric lighting system.

FOUND AT LAST.

The Ax with Which Charles I. Was Beheaded.

The vexed question, so much in evidence in the papers recently, "Where is the present location of the ax with which King Charles I. was beheaded?" has finally been answered. The famous relic now reposes in the Museo Borbonico, at Naples, Italy. One who has rummaged much among the archives of the British Museum furnishes these particulars regarding it: The executioner of Charles (Giles Dekker) survived the monarch 36 years, dying in 1685. His claim to the ax, which he appears to have regarded as his perquisite, was, after considerable discussion, granted by Parliament, and it remained his until his death. He always refused to make an exhibition of the instrument, but his son, however, devoid of such scruples, placed it on show at the tavern in Lambeth, and this coming to the new King's ears, a raid was made, the ax was confiscated and James II. became its custodian. When compelled to fly from the kingdom in 1688 he took it with him to France, and at St. Germain it remained until his death, in 1701. Louis XIV. became its next possessor, and later on the Regent Duke of Orleans, who parted with it for a "consideration" to Ferdinand, King of Naples. Treasured by that family for upward of 60 years, it was finally deposited in the Naples Museum.

Did Not Want the Horse.

Willie Woodard tells the following story at the expense of one of the now well-known turfmen of the Middle West racing circuit: "A few years ago," said Willie, "our friend came down from Central Kentucky with a few home-bred horses to the Louisville track. His first starter was put in a selling race, which he won. After the race was run the horse was led up in front of the stand. The track auctioneer went through the routine with $300 the owner's bid. The trainer and owner rushed up excitedly and yelled: 'Here, hold on. I didn't bid on that "hoss." Just give me the purse and keep the horse, 'cause I don't want him about the barn.'"

COMMERCIAL AND FINANCIAL

New York—Reports of declines in commodity prices continue to come in, and there has been some falling off in the volume of business. The months of July and August always have been a comparatively dull season in nearly all lines of trade. The fiscal year of the Government has ended, and advices from Washington state that experts estimate that exports of merchandise will reach the enormous total of $1,400,000,000, an increase of $173,000,000 as compared with the preceding year. In the stock market the situation is still one that tends to conservatism. Buying orders are being held back because of the presidential campaign, the reports of crop damage and the Chinese complications. The prevailing idea now is that the market will continue dull and rather narrow for several weeks.

Chicago—The speculative fever in the wheat market gave no sign of abatement during the week, although the trend of prices was reversed and the previous week's advance all but obliterated. The pace had been too fast, and, alarmed over the probability of future scarcity, the operators figuring on a rise lost sight of the present plenty. Because of the latter condition the speculators lacked the assistance of the millers and shippers, who on the eve of deliveries from the new crop were naturally desirous of awaiting the effect upon the market of the early movement before buying more than was necessary for their immediate wants. There would appear to be no remedy for the shortage of spring wheat except such economy in its use as must come from higher prices. But it is not likely that speculation will do much more toward the application of this remedy until the test of experience from diminished supplies has been applied and shall give clearer indications than at present exist of their actual necessity. Unless the present information concerning the crops of Europe proves to be wrong, the importing nations will require as much wheat from this side as they took during the crop year now about to close. That such a quantity can be supplied at any such prices commanded for the previous crop is out of the question. Corn hung in the balance between the influences of reported small reserves of old corn and a favorable week for the growing crop.

VON KETTELER CUT TO PIECES.

Brutal Butchery of the German Minister by Chinese.

Official dispatches received by the consular body at Shanghai, a cablegram says, confirm in the fullest manner the report of the butchery of Baron Von Ketteler, the German minister, June 18. The ambassador was riding in Legation street when he was attacked by Chinese troops and Boxers, dragged from his horse and killed. His body was hacked to pieces with swords. The German legation and six other buildings were burned and a number of servants of the legations were killed and their bodies thrown into the flames. Official confirmation of this ghastly business has created the utmost consternation among the consuls general of the powers. The consuls entertain little hope that any foreigners are left alive in the capital.

BARON VON KETTELER.

Two secret imperial decrees have fallen into the hands of foreigners, according to a special dispatch from Shanghai, which says the first, dated June 20, recites events around the capital, and attributes the trouble to religious fanaticism against Christians, leading to violent outbreaks which the Government is unable to suppress. Foreign troops are between Taku and Pekin, and the foreign relations have reached a desperate point. The Government, therefore, calls upon all the viceroys and governors to show their loyalty to the throne and to raise armies and funds in defense of Pekin and to defeat foreign dictation. The second, which is dated June 21, eulogizes the Boxers as loyal, true men, who, though not soldiers, have defeated the foreigners advancing on Pekin, and commands the officials to co-operate heartily in the patriotic work.

FILIPINOS KEEP ON FIGHTING.

Fifty Rebels Killed in Numerous Battles They Started.

A week's scouting in northern Luzon resulted in fifty rebels being killed and forty wounded. One American was killed. Troops operating in North Ilocos burned six of the barracks belonging to Gen. Tino's forces and captured Tino's correspondence. Gen. Tino with 200 of his men armed with rifles escaped. Near Manguiris the Americans attacked and defeated a large body of bolomen.

At Angeles Gen. Aquino surrendered to Gen. Grant. At Tarlac three officers and fifteen Filipinos armed with rifles surrendered to Lieut. Burns' scouts. At Pampango the rebels liberated a prisoner named Aiken, who was sick. He reports that Capt. Charles D. Roberts of the Thirty-fifth regiment is well. The Filipinos attacked the town of Bengued twice. The garrison succeeded in driving off the insurgents.

The American Philippines commission is studying the approaching necessity for the substitution for army officers performing civil functions of civil service men, and has asked the Washington Government to send examiners to the Philippines to hold civil service examinations there at the same time as in the United States, with the idea of creating a Philippine civil service board.

OUTRAGES BY BOXERS.

Bloodshed and Fiendish Cruelty Mark the March to Pekin.

Details received at Victoria, B. C., by the Empress of China, which arrived from Yokohama, of the Boxer outrages on their warch toward Pekin, and the horrors enacted by the way, reek with stories of bloodshed and of atrocious cruelties perpetrated by the rebel hordes. Some of the unfortunates who fell into the hands of the Boxers were tied to trees, some with their thumbs and toes tied together, and after being horribly tortured were disemboweled. The Belgian engineers who were captured in that heroic running fight, briefly described in cable reports, from Fengtai to Tien-Tsin, were literally hacked to pieces. Native Christians suffered particularly, village after village was ravaged, and the natives known to be converts to the foreign religions were cruelly done to death.

PEKIN A SHAMBLES.

FOREIGNERS SAID TO HAVE BEEN BUTCHERED.

Massacre of Every European in the Chinese Capital Reported—Fanatical Hordes Advance Against Tien-Tsin—Emperor a Suicide, Empress Insane.

Three Chinese servants of foreigners have, it is rumored from a good source, escaped from Pekin. They report that all the foreigners, 1,000 in number, including 400 soldiers, 100 members of the Chinese customs staff and a number of women and children, held out till their ammunition was exhausted, in the British legation. The legation was finally burned and all the foreigners were killed. The Pekin city gates have been closed and rioting is rampant. It is reported that Kuang-Hsu and the dowager empress have been poisoned. Missionaries and all foreigners have been driven from Tientsin.

The international movement for the relief of the foreigners penned in by murderous fanatics at Pekin is paralyzed. It is officially admitted in London that the allies at Tientsin are wholly unable to advance, and, indeed, it appears that large numbers of Boxers imperil the safety of the troops themselves. They showed themselves at the north Saturday, threatening to take the town, and a late dispatch from Shanghai says they did take Tientsin, but this was rejected in London.

The attempt to relieve the hard-pressed European garrison in Pekin has been formally abandoned. The admirals have met and decided that the weakness of the allied forces left no other course open. The experiences which befell Admiral Seymour's force practically decided the question of relief. It was pointed out that the Chinese had at that time in the field only a fraction of the large force which now cuts off Tientsin from the capital. Now this amounts to at least 200,000 men, nearly all of them well armed. There are, in addition, no real means of transport, and no food in the country around, for it is being laid waste by flood and fire. The drinking water is of the worst kind. Even if any small force ever reached Pekin, it would simply have to cut its way back with the rescued garrison, if alive. It would probably find this task too great in addition to the approach to Pekin.

Emperor Kwang-Su committed suicide June 19 by taking poison under compulsion of Prince Tuan. The empress dowager also took poison, but was still alive, although reported to be insane from the effects of the drug.

KAISER'S BLOOD IS UP.

Relations Between Germany and China Reach a Crisis.

The murder of the German minister at Pekin, Baron von Ketteler, has brought the relations of Germany and China to a crisis. The Emperor, in his speech at Kiel, voiced the indignation of Germany when he said that the German flag had been insulted and that the outrage demanded exemplary punishment. The Emperor has decided to send a division of 12,000 men to China. The Berlin foreign office says that the first shot at Taku was fired by the Chinese.

Chaos seems to prevail in Government circles in Pekin. Rumors represent the empress dowager as bereft of power and Prince Tuan attempting to wield the imperial scepter, while Gen. Yung Lu is alleged to have declared that his soldiers refuse to obey him. Other reports assert that the empress dowager and the emperor, fearful lest they lose their heads, have fled westward. Little credence is placed, however, in any of these reports. The only reports from Pekin which are regarded as trustworthy are those from numerous sources affirming that the German minister, Baron von Ketteler, has been murdered, and all the legations, except the British, German and French, destroyed.

Admiral Kempff's dispatch confirming the report of the murder of the German minister and declaring the situation at Pekin desperate, with provisions nearly exhausted, has aroused the officials at Washington to renewed efforts. Secretaries Hay, Long and Root discussed at length the situation and a decision was reached to increase promptly the American forces in China.

A dispatch estimates the total of the Boxers' force at 50,000. According to the statement of the Chinese general staff, the imperial army can be raised to a wartime strength of 1,752,000 men

All the provinces south of the Yellow river, whose viceroys and governors maintain friendly relations with the powers through the consuls, have been informally constituted into a confederacy, with Nankin as the capital. According to a cable from Shanghai, the southern viceroys wholly disavow Prince Tuan's government. They have practically constituted an independent state, extending from the Hoang-Ho to British and French frontiers.

SIXTY HURLED TO DEATH.

Crowded Street Car Goes Down Steep Embankment at Tacoma, Wash.

A street car, heavily loaded with passengers from surrounding towns and running at a high rate of speed, left the tracks while rounding a sharp curve at 26th and C streets, Tacoma, Wash., rolled 100 feet down an embankment, killing sixty people and injuring as many more.

It was a most appalling accident, and strong men whose humane instincts told them to lend aid had to turn away from the sickening sight utterly helpless. As the car shot from the tracks it turned over and over as it descended an almost perpendicular incline.

Tacoma citizens, old and young, hastened to the scene of the catastrophe to give their aid. Victims of the wreck were extricated with the greatest difficulty. They were strewn along on the grass and later drawn to the top of the gulch with the aid of lowered ropes.

Hacks, express wagons and even private carriages were pressed into service to convey the dead and wounded to morgues or hospitals, as the cases indicated. When at last all had been removed from the debris the places where bodies had been taken for temporary care were besieged by thousands of people in search of dear ones who were on the ill-fated car. In some cases countenances were so badly mutilated that other means of identification had to be resorted to.

The car which dashed into the ravine was No. 116 of the Union Traction Company's system, operating on the Edison line, which serves a large patronage in near-by towns. The car is a box-like affair and was so crowded that men were hanging to the railings. All went well until Apexa Hill, just beyond Tacoma avenue, was reached. At this point it is said that the motorman, instead of shutting off the current before attempting to descend the hill, turned the current on. When the car with its unusually heavy load reached a high momentum and threatened to get away from his control he quickly turned off the current, but it was too late. As the curve was struck the car leaped from the rails and went to destruction. Pasengers on the front platform who saw danger in the curve ahead jumped with only a bare chance of saving their lives. Some were badly injured, while some reached the ground in safety.

FIRE'S AWFUL FURY.

Five Hundred Acres Near Bayonne, N. J., Swept by Flames.

Imagine 500 acres of oil-fed flame, roaring tornado-like and shooting skyward 300 feet; great reservoirs of crude petroleum exploding with fearful reports; a river and a bay on fire, a thousand men putting forth pygmy efforts to fight the conflagration, and you have some idea of the awful blaze that swept from the earth's face the works of the Standard Oil Company at Bayonne, N. J., Thursday. The loss is $3,000,000 and several lives.

The fire started during a terrific thunderstorm, just after midnight, when a bolt of lightning struck a tank in the center of the 600-acre plant. The reservoir burst and another close to it followed a moment later. Then another and another exploded, with crashes that were heard miles distant. The oil swept down the hillside, a Niagara of flame, igniting tank after tank and spreading to the right and left. With each explosion the fire grew angrier, with the added fuel. In fifteen minutes there was a swirling, twisting, seething mass of blaze, covering an area of half a mile and reaching into the sky nearly as high as the eye could see.

CHINESE PUNISHMENTS.

The Chinese authorities have various methods of punishing criminals, all more or less peculiar. The simplest—and the one most generally employed—is the process of slicing off the culprit's head with a huge knife. Punishments of minor degree are varying systems of torture, and the one here pictured is considered the mildest one of the lot. The board the men wear upon their necks is known as the cangue, and they are sometimes compelled to carry it for months.

CARRYING THE CANGUE.

MAY SAVE THE OREGON.

A Press Dispatch from Che-Foo Encourages the Navy Department.

A press dispatch from Chefoo encourages the Navy Department in the belief that the battleship Oregon, which grounded on uncharted rocks near Chefoo, will be saved. The dispatch states that the pumps are holding the water down, which indicates that the holes in the ship's bottom are not of much importance. The work of lightening the battleship has proceeded with all posible haste.

The fight to save the battleship is being earnestly made by the men and the machinery of the big ship. Admiral Kempff's favorable report of the condition of the Oregon is believed by Secretary Long to be based upon the report of the commander of the Japanese vessel which generously offered assistance.

Jim Ham Lewis as a Criminal Lawyer Wins with Queer Defenses.

"One of the cases which attracted great attention to Jim Ham Lewis for his daring defense was that of a young man named George Williams, who brained the superintendent of the Port Blakely Lumber Mil with a fragment of iron pipe. The deceased was shown to have been a tyrannical superior. Lewis defended Williams on the ground that the superintendent, though a man in form, was a beast in character; that it was the indirect order of God some man should kill him; that Williams simply performed a duty to society. An acquittal followed, to the utter consternation of the county, the jury going to the extent of inquiring if there was no way in which Williams could be indemnified for the two years and a half he spent in jail awaiting trial.

"Paul Page, son of the ex-Mayor of Milwaukee, while on his way to Alaska, killed the proprietor of one of the principal hotels at Seattle over a dispute growing out of a poker game. Page had been educated in Paris, where he had formed the absinthe habit. Lewis' defense was that Page had been given Cannabzis indica, or what is known as hasheesh, and his vision had become so distorted that he was unable to distinguish between the man who was robbing him in the game and the proprietor of the hotel; that having a just cause to kill the player who was robbing him, he killed the proprietor under a mistaken sense of identity. Page was acquitted. The case was discussed in the medical journals of the world, not one of them agreeing with Lewis' theory, though he had persuaded the jury to do so."—Ainslee's Magazine.

What Deserts Are Like.

The general idea of a desert is a sandy waste where not a living thing can flourish. In reality nearly all deserts are visited occasionally by severe rainstorms, after which a gorgeous vegetation springs up. The grass is rank, flowers bloom everywhere and the trees send forth most beautiful leaves and blossoms. Of course this state of things lasts but a short time, a month or six weeks, after which the place is sandy and dry again and presents but a waste of trackless sand.

Sometimes the rains follow each other so closely that a desert teems with animal life, birds abounding and herds of animals wandering over the ground. Small lakes and ponds may be found also. In the west of the Sahara there are copious showers three or four times a year, which so change the face of the country that the traveler would not believe the scene to be the Sahara of his geography.

Civil engineers say almost all deserts could be reclaimed by a modest expenditure of time and money and that Sahara could be easily made into an inland sea. Some time in the future it is probable that human ingenuity and science will have completely transformed the waste places of eart

SUN POWER IN WELL DIGGING.

Machine for Making the Heat of the Sun Pump Water.

Many inventors have experimented with the sun's heat, with various objects in view, and some have succeeded in making it produce steam and electric power, but not to much profit. Now, however, it appears that William Calver of Washington has invented a machine for doing practical work in the arid districts. He is about to set up one of his sun power machines in Arizona, near Phoenix, and dig wells there.

His plan is to make the intense heat of that hottest part of the United States develop the power to pump up water enough to irrigate all the barren land.

Everybody knows what a transformation a little water makes on a desert, producing an oasis of tropical verdure, while all beyond this watered space is desolation and death. It is usually so expensive to drill wells and pump the water on a desert that it does not pay to reclaim the waste land. But if the overabundance of sunshine on the desert can be utilized the problem is solved.

Mr. Calver's machine consists of a set of big mirrors and lenses, by which he focuses the sun's rays as a boy does with a burning glass. The heat which can be generated by Mr. Calver's machine is said to be equal to a furnace for a 500-horse power boiler.

With such a power as this available wherever one sees fit to set up his plant it is easy to see how well-drilling and water pumping can be done on a large scale. Geologists have found in recent years that our southwestern deserts have almost numberless subterranean streams flowing at depths varying from twenty-five to 250 feet below the dry, parched surface of the earth. So there need be no lack of water if the borings are intelligently directed.

The amount of arid lands which lie in Arizona, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Texas and Colorado is estimated to be at least 500,000,000 acres. This is rendered useless by the need of water, and the reclamation of this land would add billions of dollars to the wealth of the country.

In many sections of Colorado and other States in which irrigation is used the best farming lands in the country are those which were formerly worthless and are now artificially watered, and the very finest crops in the land are grown there.

What Do the Children Drink?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called GRAIN-O? It is delicious and nourishing, and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee, but costs about ¼ as much. All grocers sel lit. 15c and 25c.

You Look Cross

What makes you look that way? There certainly must be some good reason for it. If your tongue is coated, if you are bilious, if your head aches, if your food rests heavy on your stomach, and if you are constipated, then the whole trouble is with your liver.

What you need is a good liver pill, an easy liver pill, a purely vegetable liver pill. You need a box of Ayer's Pills, that's what you need. These pills cure constipation, biliousness, dyspepsia, and sick headache.

25 cents a box. All druggists.

Ellen Terry's One-Line Part.

This story is related of Ellen Terry: One evening a company of amateurs were about to give a performance for the benefit of some charity. There was one very small part, that of maid-servant, and each one of the amateurs softly said that she would not play it. Very much provoked, Edith Wardell, daughter of Miss Terry, who was one of the company, startled everybody by announcing that she would get her mother to do it; and, sure enough, she did. On the night of the performance the little theater was crowded, and when the maid appeared in her pink clothes it was a wonder the applause that greeted her did not lift the roof off the house. It was with the greatest difficulty she finally succeeded in getting silence enough to say the one line that was her part: "Please, ma'am, did you say you were hout or din?"

—WOOD WANTED:—10 cords of good dry wood, 16 or 18 inches long, split fine or judggles that can be split. Cash paid. Inquire at this office.

—Indiana territory was organized one hundred years ago yesterday at Vincennes and the centennial anniversary was appropriately observed in that city.

—The funeral of Mrs. John Kruse, whose tragic death is noted elsewhere, was largely attended this afternoon, many of her neighbors and friends being present.

—The national democratic convention in session at Kansas City this week is the eighteenth for that party, and the second to convene on the Fourth of July.

—Any advertised dealer is authorized to guarantee Banner Salve for tetter, eczema, piles, sprains, cuts, scalds, burns, ulcers and any open or old sore. —H. B. McCord.

—The Waterloo Press says Hon. Free Keelley has a large drove of sixty hogs ready for market from which he expects to realize about $800. There is good money in pork these days.

—G. T. Abbey, for a quarter of a century cashier of the DeKalb bank at Waterloo, has resigned on account of failing health and is succeeded by L. R. Hatch, formerly of Milan, Mich.

—Messrs. and Mesdames Will Eckhart, "Teat" Ashelman, Geo Kuhlman, Harry Brown and Oscar Hoffman spent the Fourth at Hamilton lake. Quite a number of Auburn people were there for the day.

—Morris Curie of St. Joe is the first DeKalb county boy so far to secure a pension for disabilities incurred in the Spanish-American war. The pension was granted Tuesday at the rate of $8 per month.

—When you want a modern, up-to-date physic try Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They are easy to take and pleasant in effect. Price 25 cents. Samples free at H. B. McCord's drug store.

—Mr. Alex F. Johnson of Decatur, Ala., says, "I have used two bottles of your Barnes Kidney and Bladder Cure and the pain which I had in my back has ceased and I feel greatly benefitted in many other ways."

—E. C. Foltz is doing a big job of fine painting in the residence of Samuel Culver, on South Cedar street. Mr. Culver has a nice home and he is going to keep it up in a fine condition. Mr. Foltz reports a big lot of work still ahead of him, —Quite a number of strangers sat down on the grass south of the walk on the square last evening. In the dim light they thought it was cool sod. Fortunately the young grass was not much injured. We have not heard as to the white dresses.

—Sheriff Hathaway was called out of town yesterday by a message announcing a clew to the whereabouts of the horses stolen from Fremont Smith Friday night. We did not learn his objective point, but understand it was quite a distance from Auburn.

—FOR SALE;—Two short-horn bulls ten months old, color red, weight about 900 pounds, good individuals. Farm about 4½ miles southeast of Butler, Ind. Correspondence and inspection invited. Joseph Wilson, breeder of fine registered short-horn cattle, Butler, Ind.

—Mr. A. Cunningham of Nashville says, "I used a number of things, but did not get the satisfaction that I got from Barnes' Kidney and Bladder Cure. I believe one-half dozen bottles would cure anyone."

—The National Co.'s hoop and stave plants at Wabash and Roann are running steadily, and manufacture over three cars of high class stuff every ten hours. Messrs. A. C. and E. L. Robbins and S. C. Snyder are associated with Mr. Hartman in these large factories.

—Mrs. D. S. Cochran writes that they are now going into summer quarters, so to speak, Dave will spend the summer in the mountains, while she and Mary will take in the pure sea breezes at Los Angeles. We trust they will enjoy their summer, and will do our best to get the Daily to them on time.

—Waterloo Press:—The owner of the lady's watch which was lost in Waterloo about three weeks ago, has not yet called, and if the owner does not call within a reasonable length of time the watch will be turned over to the finder. Exchanges will please copy, as perhaps the watch does not belong to parties in Waterloo.

—S. W. Guthrie of Sedan was in town today. He was smiling through his tears as the poets say, for on Sunday the blessed storks brought him and his good wife another pair of twins. The first pair were two years old last Friday. As all four are boys he thinks of moving to some place where land is cheaper, so he can give them work later on.

—Married, at the Lutheran parsonage, July 4, at 11 o'clock by Rev. J. D. Brosy, Frederick Hipp and Nora Belle Shoemaker. Mr. Hipp is a coiler at the Greenler factory and an industrious young man, and has selected a worthy helpmate. They will make their home in Auburn, occupying the Shoemaker homestead on South VanBuren street.

—Wm. Maxwell has given up his western trip and has engaged in the organ and piano business with F. V. Cutler. Mr. Maxwell has had an experience of twenty-five years in the sale of these instruments, and probably no man in this part of the state has sold as many organs and pianos as he has. Purchasers will do well to rely on his judgment and experience when they want a good organ.

—Our readers will be interested in the experience of Mr. Will H. Slepp, publisher Altoona (Pa.) Mirror, who says: "I have been a sufferer from headache for many years, and can cheerfully recomend Krause's Headache Capsules as the only preparation that has given almost instant relief. Have been using them for about six months and have never yet been disappointed in them." Sold by H. B. McCord.

—The little three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Warstler of Jackson township awakened and left her bed early Wednesday morning, and while walking about fell down a flight of stairs. The little one's cries aroused her parents who discovered that she had been badly cut about the face. She was at once brought to town and Dr. Stamets dressed the wounds and the little sufferer is rapidly recovering.

—During last May an infant child of our neighbor was suffering from cholera infantum. The doctors had given up all hopes of recovery. I took a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy to the house, telling them I felt sure it would do good if used according to directions. In two days time the child had fully recovered. The child is now vigorous and healthy. I have recommended this remedy frequently and have never known to fail.—Mrs. Curtis Baker, Bookwalter, Ohio. Sold by H. B. McCord.

—A. L. Kuhlman has received a commission from Governor Mount as Major of the new Third Regiment of the Indiana National Guard. This is one of the regiments lately organized to replace the old National Guard who were mustered out of the state service at the begining of the Spanish war and mustered into the United States service as volunteers. The COURIER is more than pleased to see Maj. Kuhlman take his old place in the Third Indiana. Now if we could get back "Company K, Third Indiana" we would have our old organization all right.

Friday's Daily.

—Mrs. T. C. Ford came back from Hicksville last evening.

—The population of Grant township outside of Waterloo, says the Press, is 555. Wonder how the Press got its information.

—Mr. and Mrs. E. Zimmerman and daughter spent the Fourth at St. Joe and the 5th at Spencerville returning last evening.

—The pay of free rural mail delivery carriers has been increased to $500 a year, but hereafter they must carry the mail on all holidays, which was not required before.

—Samuel Lige, a pioneer of DeKalb county, died at his home in Jackson township Tuesday night. The funeral services and burial took place at Cedar chapel this afternoon.

—Mr. C. R. Hall of Tullahoma, Tenn., says, "I used every remedy for my kidneys I could hear of, but they did me no good until I found Barnes' Kidney and Bladder Cure and it proved perfectly successful.

—A young fellow named Morgan at Elkhart thought it would be a good Fourth of July joke to throw a cannon firecracker between the feet of Wilber Bender, a farmer boy. The latter's legs were badly injured by the explosion and Morgan is in jail to answer for his joke.

—For quickly relieving that distressed feeling after eating, a single dose of that gentle acting Krause's Little Liver Pills is all that is required as a certain cure for constipation, that prolific cause of so much suffering. Krause's Little Liver Pills are warranted. Sold by H. B McCord.

—There is a law providing for cutting weeds along the country roadsides. The farmer who mows the weeds on his side of the road within the time prescribed by law is paid for the time required to do the work by receiving credit for it on his road taxes. This is a matter that ought to engage the attention of every farmer in the country.

Wilmington, Ill., Sept. 21, 1898.
W. B. Caldwell.

Dear Sir:—I take great pleasure in adding my testmiony as to the efficacy of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin as used in our home. We use it in all cases of constipation and indigestion.

Respectfully, Eva J. Sweet, Nurse.
Soldiers' Widows' Home.

Saturday's Daily.

—The fountains for the public square have been ordered by the county commissioners and will be here in a short time.

—Editor J. E. Buchanan of the Albion New Era was here today. He went with his father out to the old home.

—J. J. VanAuken has been at work at Ashley this week establishing and marking grade lines for the principal streets.

—Major W. W. Barnett has been elected commander of Heny W. Lawton post, Spanish-American war veterans of Fort Wayne.

—Ex-Congressman Henry U. Johnson has returned from St. Louis to Richmond and will resume the practice of law in the latter city.

—John Smith of Fremont is in jail at at Angola awaiting trial for criminal assult upon a little girl at that place. Smith is about seventy years of age.

—Miss Minnie Valentine of Kendallville has joined the Red Cross society and sailed for Manila with a party of nurses on board the transport Grant.

—The season at Winona Assembly is now fully opened and a large number of people have arrived. It promises to be the most successful assembly yet held.

—The Steuben county jail now contains but three inmates, of whom M. F. Wright, the defaulting trustee of Salem township, is the most prominent and conspicuous.

—The blood is strained and purified by the kidneys. No hope of health while the kidneys are wrong. Foley's Kidney Cure will make healthy kidneys and pure blood.—H. B. McCord.

—The appellee's brief in the case of David Benninghoff vs. the Evangelical church of Cleveland, appealed from the DeKalb circuit court, has been filed in the supreme court by P. V. Hoffman, attorney for the appellee.

—It is probable that a two-days' meeting of the Lincoln League of Republican Clubs will be held at Winona some time this month. Senators Fairbanks and Beveridge will be invited to attend and make addresses. An invitation will be extended to Gov. Roosevelt.

—The cool nights of June were somewhat against the ice cream and soda man, but his time is here now. Hicks says that July will be a very hot month and there will be but little rain. During the month there will be three storm periods central on the 1st, 11th and 26th.

—It is reported that Hiram ("skip") Barnhart of Waterloo was killed by a tree falling on him in Arkansas. He left Waterloo several months ago to work for E. E. Bookmiller on his big timber-cutting contract. We have not learned what disposition will be made of the remains.

—Owing to the increase in business during the past two or three weeks the Lake Shore is re-employing some of the firemen who were laid off at Toledo and other points, a couple of months ago, and a number of firemen have been promoted. The Elkhart shops have been put on a ten-hour schedule.

—Dr. Cameron of Hamilton was arraigned before a justice at Angola last Thursday on a charge of failing to report births as required by law. He was discharged by the court for the reason that the publication of the state board of health rules was not formally ordered by the county commissioners.

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., Feb. 14, '99.
I am taking Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm. I am now on the first bottle, and it has a good effect on me. I am satisfied my liver and kidneys are out of order, and your medicine is doing wonderfully in my case.—CEPHAS T. DIBBLE, Justice of the Peace. Davenport, the druggist.

—The Shelbyville cases against ex-county officers and others still attract attention. Though the sweet scented Geo. M. Ray got off on a technicality, others did not escape so easily. J. M. Wilson, who made a fraudulent charge on the county of $1,680 when he was treasurer, was sentenced to the pen 2 to 14 years. His son got the same for forging $125.

—Will Wood, who gained considerable notriety several years ago on account of his conection with the Pearl Bryan murder case, eloped with the daughter of A. C. Daily, ex-auditor of state, this week. The couple were married at Danville, Ill. Wood was for a time a seaman on the battleship Iowa, and since his discharge has been doing newspaper work.

—Three young hobos, none of whom has reached his majority, were arrested at St. Joe, Tuesday charged with breaking into a house near that place and stealing a watch and other articles. They were given a preliminary hearing before the justice there and bound over to await the action of the grand jury. The young fellows are a pretty tough lot and claim to hail from Cleveland.

—Avilla News:—The viewers of the Bliger or Black Creek ditch, a joint ditch between DeKalb and Noble counties, have made their report, but it will not be acted upon until next term. This is a big ditch, the largest commissioners' ditch ever asked for in the county. The estimated cost is about $20,000; in lenghth it is thirteen miles and there is a total of 387 descriptions of land affected.

OH, WALTER!

Don't Run Horses; Wait Till Some Other Time.

Friday's Daily.

That's what a frightened girl yelled out last evening, and if we were that girl we would never ride out with "Walter" again. Walter is a fool, and no sensible girl, such as this one appeared to be, will have anything to do with such a fellow after she once sees what a fool he can make of himself. And the other young man in the other rig is another. The two rigs, each contained a young lady and her escort. We shall not call him a man. They had been in town to listen to the band. When the music stopped, they started to go home. The girls must have suggested this, for we don't believe their fellows knew enough to go home at 9:30. Be that as it may, they had turned north around the M. E. church and on VanBuren street at once whipped their horses into a wild run, going side by side, each seeming anxious to get around the other. The girls screamed. The fellows lashed the horses and the people going home that way fled for their lives, to avoid the oncoming race. The left hand team being crowded out and the horse beyond control, dashed among the trees and onto the lawn in front of the Albert Robbins residence. Mrs. Hayden and her niece, Mrs. TenEyck were sitting on the porch at the very point the horse was dashing for, and loud cries went up from passers by to warn them. Mrs. Hayden sprang up and threw out her arms at the horse, who with his nose almost touching the flower bed, turned short around, cleared the eastern chestnut tree, just grazed the maple beyond, then onto Fifth street and around onto VanBuren heading north after the other rig. All this while, the fellow was either helpless or was plying the lash. The girl was screaming, "Oh, don't, Walter, don't run horses here: wait till some other time." But "Walter's" blood was up, or some other fluid, and they disappeared up North VanBuren. It was a most dastardly piece of business. It was putting the lives of foot passengers in danger, and at one moment it seemed impossible that the two ladies on the porch could be saved. But for the frightened waving of her hands by Mrs. Hayden the horse would have landed on the porch where they sat. If "Walter" and his fellow driver will give us their full names, we will do them ample justice. The two unfortunate girls have our sympathy provided they choose better company next time.

Boom for East Auburn.

This popular subdivision of our city is to have a big boom. Charles McClellan is making arrangements to have at least five dwellings put up on the lots he owns over there. They will be for rent at reasonable rates and possibly for sale. They will all be modern and comfortable, be provided with sewer and water connections, have good cellars, and be altogether up-to-date. We believe they are to be the size and general plan of the two houses John Lochner has built near the Presbyterian church. These are greatly admired for their convenient arrangment. As we understand it, Mr. Lochner will be in direct charge of the building of these houses, which will insure good construction and material. He has already had experience in putting up several houses besides his own, and being an energetic man, the work will be pushed. The contracts will call for work to begin at once, and we shall soon see a boom in East Auburn, greater than any year since the time we had the gas boom. Keep your eye on East Auburn.

Another Pest.

E. H. Scott has just returned from a trip to the eastern states where he reports the caterpillars have created great havoc with the foliage of the trees. In central New York even the forest trees are stripped bare and every clump of trees looks as bleak as they do in winter. The fruit trees have been swept clean and there will be no fruit this season. In Massachusetts where the state passed spraying laws a few years ago the trees have not been injured and the country looks beautiful. The caterpillar which has created so much havoc in New York will probably make its appearance here before long and our farmers and citizens generally should prepare themselves to fight it from the start. Anybody who has information to give on this subject should lose no opportunity of spreading it abroad.—LaPorte Argus.

Case in Court.

Yesterday the three boys accused of stealing a watch and other articles from a house near St. Joe, were called up for trial before Judge Hartman. Mr. Pomeroy represented the state and Mr. Welsheimer defended the boys.

The first one examined, was Clifford Howarth, who said his home is in Cleveland, Ohio. His father is a ship calker, and has some property. The boy graduated from the grammar school and then went to work in a machine shop, and later in an ice cream factory. About two weeks ago he and the other two boys, with whom he had been acquainted some years, being out of work went to Benton Harbor, Mich., to get work picking berries. They found, as one of them says, "six men to every bush," and got no work. They went to South Chicago and about a week ago started homeward over the H. & O. They got to Garrett with a big hobo crowd, about twenty in all, and then started east. At the Inverness siding the train men found them and ordered them off, a brakeman telling them he would "cuff the tops of their heads off if they did not get off". Being thus overpersuaded they got off, but got into another car. A trainman came along to the car just before it started and fired his revolver into it, and ordered them out. They hustled out then. Later on they walked down the track going east. At Concord they bought a lunch as they had a little money. As they neared St. Joe they went to a farm house for a drink of water which it now appears was at Mr. Wasson's. Here they got a drink and then went to a cherry tree and got some cherries, then rested on the grass; then got more cherries. Then they went to the barn and asked a man how far it was to the next water tank, for it seems they knew that would be a good place to get onto a train. They soon found there was no one in the house, and the other two boys wanted to go in and see what they could find. Young Howarth refused to go in. So the other two boys raised a window and went in. When they came out all started for St. Joe. The alarm had been given and a crowd was waiting to receive them. They were arrested and searched. No stolen goods were found on Howarth, but the other two had got a silver watch and some watch chains. He said he will be sixteen in the fall.

The oldest of the other boys, George Carter, was sworn. He said he would be twenty soon. Lives in Cleveland. Told about the same story the other boy did and admitted the stealing. In his story it came out that he had served twenty-one months as a soldier in the Spanish war, had been over in Cuba, landing among the first at Guantanamo, took part in the fighting about Santiago, was sent sick to Montauk Point, back to Tampa, then to Cuba again, where he was later on discharged. "When we were searched at St. Joe," he said, "the watch was found in my pocket."

The third boy, John Went, was less than sixteen. He told the same story about the stealing. Both the boys said Howarth did no stealing.

Howarth seemed a fairly good boy and the Judge will probably write his father to send him a ticket home. The others he has taken under advisement.

Low-Rate Excursion

To Atlantic City, N. J., and other seaside resorts Via the Baltimore & Ohio R R.

In order to give its patrons an opportunity to visit the seashore at a nominal cost, the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company will sell low-rate excursion tickets to Atlantic City, Cape May and Sea Isle City, N. J., and Ocean City, Md., on Tursday, August 2, 1900.

Atlantic City has acvuired such fame as a summer resort that a description of its varied attractions is superfluous. Thousands are annually attracted to this delightful resort for the enjoyment of magnificent surf bathing, and to avail themselves of the unequaled opportunities for sailing, fishing, etc.

Tickets will be available on all regular trains, and will be good for return twelve days, including date of sale, thus giving ample time for an enjoyable outing.

Further information will be given upon application to nearest B. & O. Ticket Agent, or B. N. Austin, Gen'l Pass'r Agent, Chicago, Ill. a2

First New Wheat.

P. L. Bishop at the Wabash elevator received the first new wheat marketed here, today. It was 100 bushels brought in by Mr. Dulany, Wm. Carr's son-in-law and was of the finest quality. The average weight was 62 lbs. to the bushel. This shows that what wheat we have will likely be of good quality.

EQUAL TO THE SACRIFICE.

She Told Him to Remove His Arm But Fainted When He Did.

"Cyrus Barker, remove your arm!"

For in an apparently careless manner he had placed it upon the back of her chair.

Stung by the tones of her voice no less than by her words, the young man flushed deeply.

"Is that the greeting you give me Angeline Ashcraft—you who protested to be so sorry when I went away to the war—who wept upon my neck and said you would never have a moment's peace or happiness until I arrived safely home again—who gave me a photograph which I have carried next to my heart from that day to this!" he exclaimed. "Do you remember how you said you would be true to me, though thousands of miles of ocean might roll between us?"

"O, yes, I remember all that."

"Have you forgotten how you said at parting, 'O, Cyrus, it breaks my heart! I cannot give you up!'"

"I think I do recollect some such remark."

"I think you did. Have you forgotten now you bade me think of you, in camp or on the battle field, when the bullets of the enemy were flying thick and fast around me, and let the thought that you were praying for me cheer me in that dark hour?"

"I think I do recollect saying something of the kind."

"You think you do! Ha! And when I was wounded you wrote to me to get well as soon as I could and come back to you! Do you have a dim recollection of doing something like that?"

"Now that you mention it I believe I did."

"You have changed then," he said, scowling darkly. "You are not the same girl."

"You have changed more than I have, Mr. Barker," coldly she answered. "You are not the same man."

"You still insist," he went on, with exceeding bitterness, "that I remove my arm?"

"I do."

"So be it, then."

Calmly the young man arose, unscrewed his wooden arm, placed it at her feet and turned to go.

"I hope, Miss Ashcraft," he said, "you are satisfied."

But Miss Angeline Ashcraft had fainted.—Chicago Tribune.

Fire at Garrett.

Yesterday about 4 p. m. Garrett had another blaze resulting in the destruction of three good barns and as many good wood houses, and some valuable contents. The barns, we believe, were owned by Sam Teeters, Frank Elson and C. Snyder. In one of them, Mr. VanFleit had some horses and buggies. One horse was burned to death and several others considerably scorched and injured. Two buggies were burned up, and other property lost. The origin of the fire is not known. The alarm was given too late to save much, but when it was given the department reponded promptly and did excellent work.

Our Saturday Evenings.

CHAPTER XI.

In a late copy of the Laporte Argus we find an article recalling the worst railroad wreck Indiana ever had, an incident which the writer distinctly remembers, as he lived about thirty miles from the scene. It was the sudden washout of a short embankment on which the Lake Shore road crosses one of the deep gullies between Mishawaka and South Bend. There are several of these that carry the water from the range of hills south of the road into the St. Joseph river a little ways north.

It happened forty-one years ago the 27th of June, a little before midnight, after an unprecedented rain, which had amounted almost to a cloud-burst, and had followed the meeting of two great rain clouds from opposite directions. The Lake Shore east bound night express left South Bend with Conductor Osgood in charge and T. Chulp of LaPorte as engineer.

There were about 150 people on the train which was made up of a baggage car, two second class and three first-class cars, and the train felt its way carefully owing to the flood and gloom. No one had expected that the little rivulet which one could have jumped across before the flood, and which was located at what now is Springbrook, would ever be the scene of one of the worst accidents in the history of the Lake Shore road; and after passing the more pretentious Wenger creek, just east of South Bend, more speed was given but the train was running less than twenty miles an hour.

South of the railroad track at Springbrook, says the South Bend Times, which was then known as Denslow's creek, a great mass of water had backed up owing to accumulations of drift wood in the narrow culvert where the Lake Shore then had a crossing. The bank which had dammed back the water, had gotten thoroughly water soaked, and it seemed that all that was needed to loosen the same was the jar of the train to turn loose and backed up flood. And it went as the train struck it, track and all, and into the great seething, swirling gulley, formed by the sudden breaking away of the embankment, leaped the engine and train, drowning and crushing to death about sixty people and many who escaped being badly injured. The engineer, fireman, baggageman and expressman were killed at their posts.

The great gap in the earth now so apparent and once so much wider before the immense stone culvert was put in was passed by the resistless flood and then began the work of rescuing the uninjured and those that had been hurt, and the recovery of the bodies of the dead.

Willis A. Bugbee tells how the morning of the 28th, a derrick was kept busy lifting out the dead and mangled, and how they lay in rows, side by side on the grass, a particularly large number of children being killed. Some of the dead were found 200 yards from the wreck, and about fifteen years later when the culvert replaced the long wooden bridge considerable of the wreck was taken out from its deep burial in the sand. Barclay I. Kimble of this city, dived down the next morning and helped to bring up the $60,000 of express treasure carried by the train, the safe having been broken open in the crash.

Most of the dead and injured were taken to Mishawaka and from there were sent to their various destinations, though some are probably buried here. There were many laid out in the old Springbrook barn.

The event with all its horror will ever linger in the memory of the older inhabitants.

Another Opinion.

Justice W. H. Eiler, of this city, wrote Attorney-general Taylor some time ago as to whether a justice of the peace was required to pay another officer for administering an oath in the swearing of their reports when such report was required by statute. Attorney-General Taylor answered as follows: "The county auditor is not entitled to compensation for swearing you to your report. That is one of the duties of his office. In other words, one officer is not entitled to compensation from another officer for administering an oath to him where such oath is required by statute."—Warsaw Times.

Foley's Honey and Tar heals lungs and stops the cough.

True Economy

The difference of cost between a good and a poor baking powder would not amount for a family's supply to one dollar a year. The poor powder would cost many times this in doctors' bills.

Royal Baking Powder may cost a little more per can, but it insures perfect, wholesome food. In fact, it is more economical in the end, because it goes further in leavening and never spoils the food.

Royal Baking Powder used always in making the biscuit and cake saves both health and money.

You cannot, if you value good health, afford to use cheap, low-grade, alum baking powders. They are apt to spoil the food; they do endanger the health. All physicians will tell you that alum in food is poisonous.

The Potato Crop.

While the Indiana wheat crop is a sad and dismal failure, there seems to be nothing the matter with the potato yield. In some parts of the state the potatoes crowd each other out of the ground. They are so thick that they grow on the stems of the vines; and it is reported that one farmer in the southern part of the state was obliged to remove his fences in order to give room for the rapidly growing tubers. Whenever Indiana is shy on one commodity, it makes up for it on something else.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

MUCH APPRECIATED.

After the Morrow lecture at the Baptist church July 1st, a generous collection was given by the appreciative audience. A friend of the cause, believing that the large attendance had been secured by the efforts of the local W. C. T. U., immediately donated twenty dollars to the treasury. This generous gift is much appreciated by our Auburn Union and we are very grateful to the kind donor.

The Island Park Calendar says of Aaron Worth: "His addresses are the spice of every occasion where he appears."

Would there be stolid indifference on the part of the people if a pestilence would break out in this country that would cause the death of three hundred persons daily? There would be a general uprising of the people everywhere, and a demand that something be done to destroy this destroyer of men. The average daily deaths in this country from drunkenness is fully that number, to say nothing about its train of accompanying evils, but instead of demanding the extermination of this enemy to man, we have thrown around it the protection of law, and are thus perpetuating the greatest curse of the race this side of Hades.

The amendatory ordinance adopted by the council of Faribault, Minn., raised the license of saloons from $500 to $800.

A Spring Medicine.

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 5, 1900.

DR. C. D. WARNER:—I have been taking medicine every spring for years to purify my blood, but I have not yet found a medicine that equals your Compound of Seven Cures. I recommended it to a friend of mine who had a cancer and he told me your medicine had cured him. Yours truly—JACOB BRANDON, Constable for twelve years in Detroit. F. E. Davenport.

The Discouraged Lover.

Daphne is a summer beauty, but her grace my poor heart mocks,
For I know I could not buy her such a lot of fluffy frocks.

EVENTS OF INTEREST

THAT OCCURRED DURING THE PAST WEEK.

Tersely Told Telegraph Tales in Brief Paragraphs—Many Casualties—A Few Crimes—Some Fires—Political and Religious News.

Devoured By Cannibals.

Victoria (B. C.) special: Bushmen from Cape Oxford, according to a letter received by the Miowera from Sydney, were killed and eaten by cannibals on the coast of New Britain. The German government is taking steps to punish the cannibals. The natives who were made victims had been trading, and when they reached the landing in their cannoes they were fired on. Many were killed and their bodies carried ashore. But the most horrifying part was when several men were captured alive and dragged to the actual scene of the feast their bodies were to provide. They were clubbed and afterwards roasted or baked and eaten. The victims were not all killed at once, some of them witnessing the killing of their comrades.

The Death of Von Ketteler.

The Japanese Legation at Washington has received a dispatch from Tokio giving briefly the details of the assassination of Baron Von Ketteler at Pekin and the fighting around Tien Tsin. The dispatch was sent from Tokio July 4, but was in some way subject to great delay around the Siberian route. It states that the German minister was killed by a shot and that it is not known whether the mob element or the soldiers is responsible for the shooting. The Japanese report of the fighting around Tien Tsin is similar to that already conveyed in the press dispatches.

A Wagon Load of Plunder.

Burglars entered the general store of J. W. Wheeland, at Arcadia, Ohio, and took a wagon load of plunder away. Two weeks ago thieves broke in the same place and got a gold watch and a bunch of keys, the latter they used on this last raid, in unlocking the front door. The burglars blew open the safe with nitro-glycerin, but the safe contained only a lot of old notes and one coin, a three-cent piece, which they left.

Held for Murder and Arson.

J. W. Morrison, former proprietor of the Morrison hotel, at South Bend, Ind., held on a charge of murder and arson, had a preliminary hearing before Judge Whitcomb the other day. After a seven hours' session he was held to the grand jury on $5,000 bonds. At several stages of the hearing Morrison's statements were flatly contradicted by other witnesses.

Strike Ordered.

The general officers of the Tin Plate Worker's Industrial Protective Association of America, have ordered the 400 employes of the Independent plant at Washington, Pa., out on a strike. The Washington mills are owned by W. H. Griffiths, and the cause of the strike is said to be the fact that the proprietor refused to sign the wage scale.

Shag Rock Removed.

The work of removing the Shag Rock, which has been such a menance to shipping in San Francisco harbor, is completed. A survey of the bottom of the bay at the spot where the rock had shown its head above the water shows thirty-seven feet of water. A guarantee of only thirty feet of water was required of the contractors.

Perry S. Heath to Resign.

Perry S. Heath, First Assistant Postmaster General, is expected to announce his resignation within a few days in order to accept a position as secretary of the Republican National Committee to succeed Congressman Charles Dick, who retired to take charge of the Ohio state campaign upon the advice of Senator Hanna.

Continuance Denied.

Georgetown (Ky.) special: A Motion of the defense for a continuance in the case of ex-Secretary of State Caleb Powers, charged with being accessory to the Goebel murder, came up before Judge Cantrill and was overruled. The court declared it was the fault of the defense that witnesses were not present.

No More Troops to Go.

Secretary Root says the Government does not intend to send any more troops to China than those now ordered there. The United States will have 11,000 men there when all arrive. President McKinley thinks this is enough.

Trouble Threatened.

Three hundred miners at Flemington, W. Va., struck against a 20 per cent. cut in wages. The company has asked for protection, trouble being threatened.

Three Drowned.

While attempting to change seats in a rowboat two young women and a young man were drowned in the lagoon at Washington Park, Chicago.

Fifteen Badly Hurt.

An empty car on the Dayton, Springfield & Union Traction line collided with one filled with Sunday school excursionists at the bottom of Sugar Grove hill, near Dayton, O. Fifteen persons were badly injured. Frank Rolfe's injuries may be fatal. Mortorman Armstrong had a leg broken.

Child Crushed to Death.

At Springfield, Ohio, Irene Warren, 11 years old, was crushed to death by a pile of pig iron falling on her. She was carrying her brother's dinner to the piano plate works when the fatality occurred.

Court Rules on Marriage Law.

Judge Hubbard, of the Superior Court in San Francisco, decided that the marriage of persons in Nevada who had been divorced in California within one year was valid. This decision is diametrically opposed to the one rendered by Judge Belcher a month ago.

Lightning Strikes Two in Bed.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Guest, living four miles from English, Ind., were struck by lightning, both being completely paralyzed and he stricken blind. The bed upon which they slept stood by a window, through which the lightning flashed.

PLANS TO SEARCH FOR ANDREE.

Several European Expeditions Have Been Fitted Out.

Evelyn B. Baldwin of Kansas, of arctic fame, says to a press representative that Captain Ernest Andree, brother of the polar aeronaut, had just written him that several European expeditions have been fitted out to look for traces of his missing brother and his companions, Strindberg and Fraenkel. Baron E. von Tolt will head the Russian expedition which is to search the arctic coast of Europe and Asia. It will start from Norway, proceed by way of Nova Zembla, pass the ensuing winter at Cape Chelyuskin, Taymir Peninsula, and, searching the Siberian coast during the summer of 1901, endeavor to reach Bering Strait. This dangerous passage has not been attempted since its accomplishment by Baron Nordenskjold in 1871-3. Captain W. Bode will take a party of Germans this summer to Franz Josef Land and communicate with the Italian expedition under the Duke of the Abruzzi. A Swedish and a Russian expedition will operate in Spitzenbergen. Three expeditions—a Swedish under Prof. Vatthoff, a Danish under Prof. Amdrup and an English under Captain Robertson—have already started for the east coast of Greenland.

FAILURES RISE TO $100,570,134.

Commercial Agency Reports on Business for First Part of 1900.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: "Failures in the first half of 1900 were 5,362, with liabilities $100,570,134. There were thirty failures of banks and financial corporations for $25,822,682, leaving 5,332 commercial failures, with liabilities of $74,747,457. The Fall River committee has decided to close their cotton mills for a time, and some of the largest woolen works have been closed or much reduced in force. There is more cotton than the world will want, in all probability, if the crop matures fairly, and the shrinkage of demand for goods here and abroad helps, especially the uncertainty as to Chinese demand. The crop year for grain is over, and the outward movement of wheat has not been stopped, although somewhat diminished by the vagaries in prices. While exact figures for the year will not be known for some days to come, they differ very little from 400,000,000 bushels of wheat and corn together, which was almost exactly the quantity exported last year."

BRIDE IS SOLD AT THE ALTAR.

Best Man Pays Groom $65 and They Exchange Roles.

After coming from Austria to marry Christopher Schmidt Miss Lillian Meier changed her mind at the altar and married the best man, Joseph Kunz. The original ceremony was to have taken place in the little coal town of Stockett, Mont. The wedding guests assembled. Then the bride said she had decided not to marry Schmidt. She loved Kunz more, she declared. Moreover, Kunz loved her and was ready to take her. Schmidt was angry at first, but for $65 he finally agreed to give up his role of groom and act as best man. Then the ceremony proceeded.

RELEASE FOR SIPIDO.

Belgian Court Lenient with the Prince of Wales' Would-Be Assassin.

The assize court in Brussels returned a verdict of guilty of attempt to kill the Prince of Wales, against Jean Baptiste Sipido, who fired at the prince on April 4, as the train bearing his royal highness was leaving the northern station in that city for Copenhagen. The court considered that Sipido acted without discernment and released him. Meert, Penchot and Meire, the instigators of the attack upon the prince, were acquitted on the ground that they considered the plot a joke.

Embezzler of Funds Is Dead.

Samuel T. Paisley, the former superintendent of the bureau of highways and sewers of Pittsburg, against whom there was a charge of embezzlement of over $50,000, is dead at Newport News, Va. He was in the service of the city in different capacities for twenty-five years previous to the discovery of his shortage in May last.

Duelist Is Held for Murder.

Charles H. Eastman, who shot and killed his brother-in-law, R. H. Grogan, Jr., at Cambridge, Mass., was arraigned and was held without bail for murder. Grogan eloped with one of Lensmaker Clark's daughters, a younger sister of Eastman's wife, and there was for some time a breach in the family. Eastman claims that the shooting was accidental.

Six Persons Are Injured.

The roof over the covered walk at the western entrance to the union station at Pittsburg collapsed and injured six persons. The framework for a distance of 125 feet fell on the pavement and completely buried the Fort Wayne and Pittsburg & Birmingham traction works.

Pekin Legations Are Safe.

Minister Wu, Chinese minister at Washington, has received a reassuring message from the Sheng, the Chinese director of telegraphs, stating that the legations were safe and that Chinese imperial troops were fighting the "Boxers."

For an Old Murder.

The trial of Alex Jester, the aged prisoner accused of the murder of Gilbert Gates, a brother of John W. Gates, the steel magnate, began in New London, Mo. It is thirty years since Gilbert Gates was killed.

Fire Throws Men Out of Work.

The Standard Wheel Company's plant at Sandusky, Ohio, was destroyed by fire, the fire originating on an adjoining factory. The loss is over $100,000. Two hundred men are thrown out of employment.

Gives Wellesley $100,000.

Wellesley College is a principal beneficiary by a will of Capt. George F. Towle, U. S. A., retired, of Newcastle, N. H., who recently died in London, leaving an estate of about $100,000.

Business Houses at Windom, Minn., Burned

Fire, supposed to have been started by a drunken man, destroyed all the business houses on the north side of Main street, Windom, Minn. The loss is $60,000; insurance not known.

$30,000 Pink Resold.

The Mrs. Thomas W. Lawson pink, which was sold to the financier by a Boston florist for $30,000, was recently sold again, this time to the Khedive of Egypt.

Big Cut in Mill Men's Wages.

Notices were posted in the plate mill of Moorhead Brothers at Sharpsburg, Pa., announcing a 20 per cent. reduction of wages throughout the plate mill.

Killed by a Relative.

Douglas Walker was shot and killed by his brother-in-law, Albert Boyle, at Kingman, Kan., as the result of a family quarrel.

Oregon at Che-Foo.

The navy department at Washington is informed that the Oregon has arrived at Che-Foo. She will go to Kure, Japan, to dock for repairs.

Six Lives Lost in Lake Erie.

The schooner yacht Idler was lost in a terrific storm sixteen miles off Cleveland, and six persons, all members of the family of James Corrigan, a wealthy vessel owner of that city, were drowned. Mrs. John Corrigan was the only passenger aboard who was saved. C. H. Holmes, the captain; Samuel Biggam, the mate; four sailors, two cooks and the ship carpenter were also saved.

FLAMES TAKE FOUR LIVES.

Second Disastrous Fire in Pittsburg Within a Week—Property Loss of $100,000.

For the second time within a week Pittsburg's downtown business district was ravaged by fire, and as a result four men are dead and six others lying in hospitals, some of them so badly injured that it is likely they will not recover. The property loss will reach $100,000, believed to be covered by insurance. The victims of the fire were all firemen. The fire originated in the basement of T. G. Evans & Co.'s china and glassware establishment in Fifth avenue, and was one of the most stubborn the department has ever had to contend with. The cause is supposed to have been a spark from a steam roller at work on the asphalt street in front of the store falling through the basement ventilator into a box of excelsior.

YOUNG MOTHER ENDS TWO LIVES.

Poisons Her Daughter and Dies in Bed with the Child.

The dead bodies of Mrs. Elizabeth Shants, 27 years old, and her 5-year-old daughter Irene were found by neighbors in their home at 2044 Orianna street, Philadelphia. The mother lay on the bed, with her child alongside her. The little one had been poisoned by her mother, who, after watching her baby die, had turned on the gas and ended her own life. Mrs. Shants' husband was accidentally killed a year ago. She became melancholy and avoided her neighbors and friends. Since the previous day she had not been seen by the neighbors, so in the afternoon the strong odor of gas caused an investigation, which led to the discovery of her double crime.

VESSEL HAS A LIVELY VOYAGE.

Mutiny, Hurricane and Riot Among the Incidents of the Trip.

The steamer Dolphin, which has arrived at San Francisco from New York, had a sensational trip, according to Capt. O'Brien. The steward assaulted the fireman and had to be put in irons. The crew was kept from mutiny only by a show of arms. At Montevideo the ship was nearly wrecked in a hurricane, and in the Straits of Magellan man-eating natives tried to fire the vessel. At Coronel, Chili, the coal passers threatened to kill everybody on board, and troops had to be sent to restore order.

Strike Renewed at St. Louis.

The big strike and boycott against the St. Louis Transit Company is in full force again. Nearly 3,000 members of the Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employes of America met to discuss the charges made by the car men that the company has violated its agreements with them. The vote to declare the fight on again was unanimous.

Alleged Plot Is Discovered.

Plot to murder President McKinley is alleged to have been discovered and the President's residence at Canton, Ohio, is guarded closely. Cubans and Spaniards, with headquarters in New York, are said to be chief conspirators.

Kills One and Himself.

At Seattle, Pete Peterson, formerly of Chicago, a worthless character, shot and fatally wounded his sweetheart, Annie King, sent a bullet into a crowd of officers, and killed himself. None of the officers were injured.

Three Boys Are Drowned.

Three boys from 9 to 15 years old were drowned while playing on a raft in a clay pit at Sanborn's brick yard, Somerville, Mass. Just how the accident occurred is not known, but the police think the raft capsized.

Unpopular Negro Is Beaten to Death.

Henry Jefferson, a negro living at Green's bayou, Texas, was beaten to death by a mob of unknown men. He was unpopular and had been made to leave the settlement once, but returned.

Insult to Women Ends in Death.

In resenting an insult to two young women by three hilarious men who were celebrating four well-known young men were shot at Dover, N. H., all fatally.

Stevenson for Vice President.

The Democratic convention at Kansas City completed its work by nominating Adlai E. Stevenson, of Illinois, for Vice President.

Silver Republicans Nominate Democrats.

At Kansas City Bryan and Stevenson were indorsed by the silver Republicans, but not without a hard fight over the Vice Presidential nomination.

Fire Guts a Box Factory.

The box factory of Thomas B. Rice & Son at the Mifflin street wharf, Philadelphia, was almost destroyed by fire. Loss, $50,000.

Russia Gives Free Hand to Japan.

The Russian government announces that it will give Japan a free hand to apply military force in China.

SCENES FROM THE HOBOKEN DISASTER.

ON THE THREE VESSELS SHOWN ABOVE MOST OF THE VICTIMS PERISHED.

EMPRESS DOWAGER STILL ALIVE

Surprise Over the Latest Reports as to Chinese Authority.

Chinese official sources furnished another surprise Tuesday in announcing that the dowager empress, who had been reported within two weeks dead, fled, poisoned and hopelessly mad, has resumed the reins of power. A telegram from Sheng, the administrator of telegraphs and railroads, to the Chinese minister at Washington, Wu Ting-Fang, said the imperial government is protecting the legations. The dowager empress not only lives but is reported to be making frantic efforts to save the foreigners. She is said to have wired the central southern viceroys, thanking them for their loyalty and urging them to protect the Americans and Europeans at any cost.

PRINCE TUAN.

Other reports say that the empress has set on foot negotiations for the preservation of her own life and authority when the allies enter Pekin. It is believed that her anti-foreign predilections have passed away and that she has come to realize the folly of such feelings and now wishes to insure the support of the powers against the rebel Prince Tuan.

The Chinese legation in London has steadfastly maintained that the empress dowager's views relating to foreigners have always been distorted and lied about by correspondents in Pekin. The officials of the legation declared the present trouble is entirely the work of Prince Tuan and that the government, the dowager empress and the Chinese generally are against the Boxers.

The officials also say they have reason to hope that the situation at Pekin is improving and that Prince Ching will succeed in protecting the foreigners. They scouted the stories of the massacre of the people in the legations and the poisoning of the emperor and dowager empress and express the opinion that Prince Ching and the loyal viceroys could best be assisted by the promised dispatch of international re-enforcements and the promise of help in the formation of a strong government.

Dispatches from Port Arthur say that one of the first acts of the Boxers in Pekin was to liberate 8,500 notorious convicts, who were confined in the prisons there. They were granted liberty on condition that they should murder the Europeans and native Christians in the city.

It is reported at Tien-Tsin from Chinese sources that the foreigners at Pekin have taken possession of one of the princes' palaces, opposite and commanding the British legation, and that the native Christians have been installed therein.

Colorado has sold sixty acres of timber near Devil's Head Mountain, where it is estimated there are 30,000 gray squirrels, which have lived and multiplied by public sentiment. The squirrels will be evicted by the wood cutters.

NINE NATIONAL TICKETS.

Silver Republican.
President—William Jennings Bryan, Neb.
Vice-President—Adlai E. Stevenson, Illinois.

A BIG EVENT.

The Great Rough Riders' Reunion at Oklahoma City.

Oklahoma City, Okla., with a population of 12,000, very successfully entertained 50,000 during the Rough Riders reunion, which was in session from Sunday to Wednesday. The reunion was undoubtedly the greatest event of the kind in Oklahoma's history. Cots had to be placed in long rows in vacant stores and new ones yet unplastered, in order to accommodate the vast army of visitors. Every street was tinted by the khaki uniforms worn by Rough Riders and others who were their sympathizers. Emblematic of their welcome to the city, the Rough Riders all wore golden keys on the left breast. Even ladies wore the khaki dress, in a modified way. Scenes of the early days of the G. A. R. reunions were repeated. There were stories to tell, and even wounds to show, among the heroes of San Juan hill. The Rough Riders, however, were as modest a set as ever graced a reunion camp. Nearly 4,000 of the hardy fellows were present. The reunion was the outgrowth of the efforts of the members of the troops that were taken from Oklahoma and the Indian Territory. The association raised $15,000 for the occasion. One of the best features of the entertainment was the reproduction of the battle of San Juan. The association bought outright the production for three nights at a cost of $7,500.

THE FOREIGN CONCESSIONS IN TIEN-TSIN.

In Peru another cabinet crisis has arisen.

The Chinese revolt against foreigners continues to spread.

There have been eighteen deaths from the plague at Port Said.

Cholera has attacked forty-five famine camps in one Indian district.

Turkey has contracted with the Kruppa for sixteen quick-firing batteries.

Padua's pilgrims to Rome for the jubilee will make the journey on bicycles.

In the private schools of China a teacher is paid one cent a day for each pupil.

BIG JAPANESE ARMY.

MIKADO WILL SEND 50,000 MEN TO CHINA.

Gen. Nieh Reported to Have Defeated Prince Tuan—Suffered a Loss of 250—Rescued Prince Ching, Who Was Sorely Beset by Boxers.

Yokohama advices say it is certain that Japan will send nearly 50,000 troops to China. The press agrees that the dispatch of so large a force is a duty in the interests of humanity, but asserts that a large measure of responsibility for the troubles rests upon Russia and Germany because of their arbitrary action in China. It was reported from Shanghai Thursday that Gen. Nieh had made a detour and entered Pekin with 9,000 men. In order to force his way into the city he had to fight Prince Tuan's army. In the course of the fighting he is said to have lost 250 men. He is reported to have rescued Prince Ching, who was sorely beset by Prince Tuan's army and the Boxers.

Despite the assurances of the Chinese officials that all is well with the foreigners at Pekin, intense uneasiness prevails throughout Great Britain. Grave rumors come from Chefoo respecting the case of affairs in Tien-Tsin. It is said that the allies are holding their own with extreme difficulty and that it is becoming more and more difficult to resist the attacks of the enemy and maintain communication with Taku. In consequence of the movements of the rebels toward Tsin-Tau the Germans have withdrawn some of their troops from Taku to protect Tsin-Tau.

The Russian legation at Pekin, which is now believed to have been massacred, consisted of fourteen members. The mob pillaged the legation and burned the official archives. They also destroyed the Greek church attached to the legation and stole a large sum of money they found in the legation building. The Cossack Guards were all slaughtered. The Chinese legation in St. Petersburg is protected day and night by the police. It is understood that the Russians have sent a large force to New Chwang, where the Boxers are destroying property and committing all sorts of excesses. It is reported that the insurgents have carried their campaign of arson and plunder to the very gates of Port Arthur.

GOEBEL TRIAL BEGINS.

Famous Kentucky Case Is Now On at Georgetown.

A Georgetown, Ky., dispatch says that interest in Kentucky's greatest crime promises to be almost as intense as the trial of the accused persons as it was shortly after the deed was committed. The prosecution still claims that it will spring damaging and surprising testimony which will convict all of the accused.

JUDGE CANTRILL.

When court convened Tuesday morning everybody was searched for weapons. The whole town turned out to watch Col. Chinn's encounter with the deputy sheriffs, who searched everybody who entered court. There was grave debate on the point of the person that made Kentucky famous. They expected him to resist, but he did not. The list of witnesses for the defense was called, and at the conclusion ex-Gov. John Young Brown stated that but twenty-nine had answered out of 117. This brought Commonwealth's Attorney Franklin to his feet with a plea for an immediate trial, and the defense asked for time to prepare an affidavit for continuance. The jurors were chosen Thursday.

GEORGETOWN COURT HOUSE.

NOTIFIED AT CANTON.

President McKinley Formally Told of His Renomination.

At Canton, Ohio, Thursday, William McKinley was notified formally of his nomination by the Republican convention to succeed himself as President of the United States. The address of notification was made by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, chairman of the committee, and the President made a careful response. Both addresses were intended to be more than formal; to a certain extent they defined the basis upon which the campaign is to be carried on, and for this reason especial attention was paid the speakers by the prominent Republicans who were present.

The second notification of McKinley that he had been selected as the nominee of the Republican party for President was made at the same place as the first and all the accessories were similar to the occasion four years ago. Then the chairman of the committee was Senator John M. Thurston of Nebraska, who had been permanent chairman of the convention. Thursday Senator Lodge of Massachusetts stood upon the same porch and announced to President McKinley that he was the unanimous choice of the Republican national convention for President.

CHINA SENDS A DECREE.

Denies Responsibility for Troubles or Death of German Minister.

Mr. Wu, the Chinese minister at Washington, presented to the State Department Wednesday an imperial decree of the 29th of June, which was sent on July 3, by the board of war to the treasurer of the Chili province and which reached Mr. Wu from Shanghai. The decree is accepted by the State Department as authentic.

Briefly summarized, the decree, while purporting to be a news dispatch of events in Pekin shortly before and after the arrival of the international marine guard, says in substance that the Chinese were provoked to resistance by the conduct of the guard in Pekin; that the commandant of the forts at Taku was joined in his refusal to surrender the forts at Taku; that the demand for surrender was unjustifiable, and that the death of Baron von Ketteler is not to be charged to the Tsun-li-Yamen, as it had not consented to an interview sought by him with that body.

Diplomats in Washington regard the imperial decree as notice of China's plea in justification for the present troubles and as an answer in advance to the demands for indemnity.

CORN WILL BE KING.

Thirty-five States Show Increased Acreage Over Last Year.

Preliminary returns to the statistician of the Department of Agriculture, on the acreage of corn planted, indicate an increase of about 1,200,000 acres, or 1.5 per cent over the acreage harvested last year. Of the twenty-two States having 1,000,000 acres or upward in corn in 1899, all but Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas, Tennessee and Kansas show an increased acreage, and the total decrease in the five States named is less than 600,000 acres. The increase in acreage is, in the main, well distributed, there being only ten States and territories out of the forty-five reporting that have not a larger acreage planted than was harvested last year. The average conditions of the growing crop is 89.5, as compared with 86.5 on July 1, 1899, and a ten-year average of 90.7. The condition in Iowa is 102; in Missouri, 101; in Kansas and Nebraska, 93; in Illinois, 92, and in Indiana, 89, Iowa being 10, Missouri 12; Kansas and Nebraska, 1, and Illinois 2 points above their respective ten-year average.

The condition of winter wheat shows a further decline during June, being 80.8 on July 1, as compared with 82.7 on June 1, 65.6 on July 1, 1899, 85.7 at the corresponding date in 1898, and a ten-year average of 79.8. All the important winter wheat States except Pennsylvania, Texas and Tennessee, share in this impairment of condition, Ohio and Indiana falling to 25, and Michigan to 40.

The average condition of spring wheat is 55.2 as compared with 87.3 one month ago, 91.7 on July 1, 1899, 95 at the corresponding date in 1898, and a ten-year average of 89.5. The condition in Minnesota has fallen to 48, in South Dakota to 44, and in North Dakota to 30, these figures being 44, 45 and 60 points respectively below the ten-year averages for the States named. The Northwestern States have been visited by a special agent of the department within the last ten days, and the reports of the department's regular correspondents are fully confirmed. In Minnesota and North Dakota the condition of oats, barley, pastures and meadow lands is, like that of spring wheat, the lowest on record.

The condition of spring and winter wheat combined on July 1 was 69.8, against 76.2 on July 1, 1899 and 89.4 at the corresponding date in 1898. The amount of wheat remaining in the hands of farmers on July 1 is estimated at about 51,000,000 bushels, or the equivalent of 9.3 per cent of the crop of 1899.

GREAT REUNION OF VETERANS.

Coming G. A. R. Encampment Expected to Be a Record Breaker.

Preparations for what is expected to be the greatest Grand Army encampment ever held in the history of the organization are now under way in Chicago, although the reunion of veterans will not occur until the week beginning Aug. 26. It will be the thirty-fourth in the organization's history and it is proposed to make it really notable. The encampment will extend over five days and in this time the Windy City expects to entertain no less than 1,000,000 strangers, and to do this will spend more than $100,000. All this amount has been pledged by the citizens for this purpose and does not include the thousands of dollars citizens will expend privately in the care and entertainment of guests.

One of the special features of the encampment will be a magnificent court of honor to be erected along Michigan avenue from Van Buren to Twelfth street—a distance of nearly a mile. This is to have great arches at either end, and the whole will cost in the neighborhood of $25,000. Each of the various parades will pass through this court of honor, at a certain point of which President McKinley and other distinguished guests will review the march of the heroes.

All the men prominent in the G. A. R. in the United States are to be invited and 6,000 invitations will be sent out. In addition to the G. A. R. meetings, conventions will be held by the following associations: Grand Army of the Republic, Woman's Relief Corps, ex-Prisoners of War, Ladies of the G. A. R., Daughters of Veterans, Army Nurses' Association, Loyal Home Workers, and the Naval Veterans.

MAKE A RICH HAUL.

Robbers Hold Up Illinois Central Train and Secure $10,000.

Five masked bandits flagged the through express train on the Illinois Central between Wickliffe and Bardwell, Ky., at 2 a. m. Wednesday and looted the express car, estimates of the loss reaching as high as $10,000. The robbers made a sensational assault on the train. Two of them boarded the engine and covered the engineer and his fireman, J. J. Fryisch, with revolvers, injuring the fireman seriously. The others invaded the express car, where they covered J. F. Hickcox, the messenger, with guns and forced him to unlock the safe and turn over the contents.

In the meantime a fifth of the band had uncoupled the engine and the car from the rest of the train and joined his companions in the engine cab. The engineer was compelled to proceed forward a mile, where a stop again was made. The desperadoes met, divided the plunder and darted in different directions into the surrounding woods. Within an hour a posse of Wickliffe citizens, with bloodhounds, were hot on the trail of the fugitives.

None of the passengers on the train was aware of the hold-up while it was being accomplished. The robbers throughout their operations were as quiet as possible. It appears that they were aware that the agent on the car knew the lock and could open the safe. On other cars of the Illinois Central the agent himself is unable to unlock the receptacle and robbers are forced to resort to dynamite.

NATION'S WARDS STARVE.

Sixteen Thousand Indians in Arizona Are in Dire Need of Food.

Eight thousand Pima Indians on the Gila reservation, thirty miles from Phoenix, Ariz., are destitute, and a like number of Papagos, the human parasites of the Pimas, are on the verge of starvation. The famine is the more deplorable because the Indians, who boast their ignorance of the color of the white man's blood, and who for generations have constituted a self-supporting nation, have been reduced to pauperism and a slow process of starvation at the instance of the white settler.

For generations the peaceable Pimas raised large grain crops, and the Papagos, who roam over a vast dry section of southern Arizona, annually flocked north to work in the harvest fields with the Pimas, sharing the crops. A few years ago white settlers began diverting the water which the Pimas originally appropriated, and by degrees the flow of the Salt river has been entirely pre-empted by them.

The Pimas are enduring the present famine patiently. They are subsisting on dry beans, picked from mesquite shrubbery, and mescal, a paste of little nourishment, made from a plant. Their status daily grows worse, and the outlook for immediate relief is gloomy. The Papagos have not been reduced quite to the extremity of their kindred tribe and probably never will be.

ADAM AND EVE.

"SO I must give up my typewriting and live out of doors?" she said.

"Yes, if you want to live at all," was the doctor's answer.

"Well, really, sometimes I don't care the snap of my finger for living. It's so monotonous and so hopeless!"

"No wonder! You have made a machine of yourself. When you go back to Mother Earth (you're a country girl, are you not?) you will be in love with life again, as you were a dozen years ago, when you couldn't stay out of doors enough to satisfy your craving."

"I remember!" her eyes brightened. "I loved to work in the garden; not the flower garden, but among the vegetables, homely, useful things—like myself. No one can give me points on planting. I'm a farmer's daughter."

The doctor took up the morning paper and read: "To let, a small cottage house, modern improvements, with kitchen garden; terms easy."

"Would that suit me?" she said.

"I think so."

"I'll apply."

"Let me know the result," said the doctor as he ushered her to the door.

It was such a pretty cottage, and the owner lived next door. His name was Adam Everett. She smiled when the agent told her this, for she was Eve Sherburne. "A new Adam and Eve," she said softly, scenting a romance in this untried country.

UP THE PATH CAME ADAM.

"Your husband, madam," said the agent suavely, "will be sure to like this place; and if he has a taste for farming he will find every facility to gratify it. The former tenant was an enthusiast, and improved the place wonderfully."

"Indeed. Lost his money, run away, or died?"

"Married! It spoils a man's prospects! I beg your pardon a thousand times; I mean unless the woman is practical and a home body. Now, you and your husband will be contented and prosperous."

"A happy prophecy. Does the owner object to letting the cottage to a single woman?"

The agent raised his eyebrows. "Aren't you looking for yourself? I thought you seemed so pleased with everything that you were coming."

"I am. The husband you credited me with does not exist."

Miss Sherburne learned a few days later that she would be a welcome tenant; so, taking the doctor out to pass judgment, she engaged Hawthorne cottage.

She had lived there a week and had not caught a glimpse of the owner. She almost lived out of doors. She unpacked her violin and practiced music almost forgotten in the stress of daily mechanical work. She sang, too, and the song floated in through the open windows of the next cottage.

"I wonder if it would be wise to call," thought Adam Everett. "I hardly know the etiquette." He was a florist. He loved flowers, and their cultivation was to him a pleasure as well as profit. When he saw every available inch of his tenant's grounds being planted and sown he succumbed to curiosity and interviewed Miss Sherburne's gardener.

"What does Miss Sherburne intend to do?" he asked carelessly. "I see you are planting."

"She wants to raise and sell vegetables," said the countryman, "and, by gum, she knows more about it than a regular farmer. She can give me points. She's a worker, too; she can handle the tools as well as a man. If she were only a bit heavier, but she's gaining. Her cheeks are as red as poppies."

Eva Sherburne sat on the piazza at dusk resting. She heard the gate click and a step on the graveled walk. A voice said, "I'm Mr. Everett, your landlord. I came over to get acquainted. I have brought some flowers."

"They are lovely. Oh, thank you! The country is beautiful."

Sitting in the rocking chair in the dusk she talked and he listened, then he talked and she listened. They found much in common.

One day, returning to his 6 o'clock dinner, he found on his table some asparagus in a delicate dish, temptingly served. A card beside announced "Miss Sherburne's compliments. It will be her pleasure to supply cooked vegetables in their season."

To her door he carried every morning flowers enough to make her rooms fragrant and beautiful. The rain, the winds, the charm of woods and fields, the quiet and the freedom won Eve back to health again. She was in love with life once more. Was it because of the friendship that had grown between a lonely man and woman, she wondered, or because she was in better health.

Adam Everett, man fashion, wasted no time in wondering. At the gateway Eve stood one lonely night, resting her arms on the bars, singing softly. Up the path to the other side came Adam. She made a motion to unclose the gate. He stopped her, saying: "Keep it shut, Eve, until my fate is settled. Am I to enter Paradise? I found on my table to-night a plate of apples, a woman's gift. I have eaten. You have tempted me away from my solitary existence. The first Eve tempted man out of Paradise, you are tempting me in."

A blush suffused her fair face. She stepped back and swung the gate wide in answer. Adam entered.—Boston Post.

A MISNAMED TRAIN.

Backwoodsman Couldn't Get Anything that He Wanted.

He had driven from a backwoods hamlet to the station and after making an inquiry of the conductor boarded the train for Philadelphia, says the Philadelphia Inquirer.

When well on the way he stopped the blue-coated official and asked in all seriousness:

"I'm sorter hungry. Will ye tell me jest where the eatin'car is?"

"There is none on this train," was the answer. "Its short run does not require it."

"Huh!" grunted the questioner. "W'ich of yer keers is the one that ye jest loll around in an' turn and twist yer cheer any way ye please? Don't imagine that because I never went railroading afore I don't know all about these things."

"You probably mean the Pullman. We haven't any attached."

"Well, bu'stin' squashes! W'ere's yer cigar stand, so's I kin be buyin' a weed an lightin' up?"

"We don't have such a thing, man."

"An' ye've no place fer me ter git my shoes shined, ter be sure?"

"No, sir."

"Course, I'd be crazy ter think ye might have a barber lad aboard?"

"We haven't any."

The rural gentleman subjected the conductor to a menacing scrutiny from head to foot and back again. Then he drawled out in an angry, disappointed tone of voice:

"Well, sufferin' cornmeal! I thought ye said this wuz an accommodation train!"

A Topsy Turvy Land.

The law of the Japanese is that of inversion—least it seems so to us. Viewing things from an Oriental standpoint, we would probably think our present way of life the topsy turvy way and pity ourselves for shortsightedness and foolishness, as they do now.

In Japan white is mourning both for men and women, while women indicate their age by their costume. The Japanese has no foundation to his house, but instead the roof is ballasted, that being considered a better safeguard against the violent storms. After dinner speeches are made before dinner, and probably no custom shows the innate good breeding of the Japanese more than this last. Think of the belated guests if such a custom were ours! Think of the speeches thrown to the air!

Some of the Japanese symbols are interesting and deserve recognition, so popular are their works of art in our homes. Look closely at Japanese screen, panel, kimono, fan, and you will find the inevitable cherry blossom, the national flower; the plum, which signifies sweetness of heart; the pine, the strength of vigorous old age; a woman under a roof, charming symbol of content.

The obliqueness of the Japanese eyelid, which comes before one always in speaking of anything Japanese, is caused, it is said, by their living in high latitude, a protection of nature, accorded, too, to many animals.—New York Herald.

The Archbishop's Check.

Here is a capital story about the Archbishop of Canterbury. He wished, some time ago, to make improvements in his palace at Lambeth, including the decoration of his reception hall. He asked an architect to submit to him designs for this work. This artist was one of the most distinguished in London. He presented his plans, which were greatly admired. Some time afterwards the archbishop asked the architect what was due him for his designs. "One hundred and twenty-five pounds, my lord," was the answer. "One hundred and twenty-five pounds!" protested Dr. Temple. "You certainly have not considered that many of my clergy do not get as much as that in a year." "Pardon me," replied the architect, seriously, "all my associates will tell you that in my profession I count as an archbishop." "Indeed," replied the archbishop, "then one cannot pay you too much!" And he signed the check.—St. James' Gazette.

What an English Soldier Costs.

Small as the British army is, it costs more than the much larger one of Austria, for the British war budget for 1899 amounts to £20,000,000, the Austrian to £16,200,000. Compared with those of other countries it will be found that the British army is by far the most expensive.

Cost of maintaining per man:

Russia	48	6	0
Germany	54	3	0
France	45	6	0
Austria	43	0	0
England	77	0	0

These figures show that the individual British soldier costs twice as much as the Italian or Austrian.—London Fortnightly Review.

A GREAT INDUSTRY.

ENORMOUS BUSINESS DAIRYING HAS COME TO BE.

Seventeen Million Cows Giving Milk in the United States—Aggregate Value of Their Produce Exceeds $500,000,000 a Year—This Country Leads.

Comparatively few persons realize what an enormous business dairying has come to be in the United States. In this industry, as in so many others, this country beats the world. There are over seventeen million cows giving milk in the United States, and it takes an army of over three hundred thousand men working from ten to twelve hours a day to milk them. The aggregate value of the produce of these dairy cows exceeds $500,000,000 a year. They produce nearly a billion and a half pounds of butter, three hundred thousand pounds of cheese and over two billion gallons of milk yearly, for the Yankee cow is a good cow, an industrious cow, and works all the year round.

Dairying in other countries sinks into insignificance when compared with the industry in the United States. So fond are the Americans of dairy products that it takes from twenty-three to twenty-seven cows to each hundred of the population to keep the country supplied with milk, butter and cheese and provide for the export trade. The export trade does not amount to much. It has fluctuated much, but never rose beyond the produce of five hundred thousand cows. Nearly all the great output of the dairies is consumed at home. We are the greatest butter-eating people in the world, our average yearly consumption being at the rate of twenty pounds to the person, or about one hundred pounds annually for a family of average size. As cheese-eaters, however, we do not shine. The average consumption of cheese in this country does not exceed three and a half pounds per capita a year, which is far below the European average. As milk drinkers we average twenty gallons apiece yearly. Although we are not great cheese eaters ourselves we send about fifty million pounds a year to the peoples of the earth, who are fond of that form of food.

In Early Days.

All this great dairy industry of the United States has been built up in the last fifty years. Before that time the milch cows of the country were of the mixed and indescribable race known as "native." It was the "old red cow" of our boyhood, specimens of which occasionally are seen in out-of-the-way parts of the country living in the "old red barn." The keeping of cows on an American farm was incidental to the general work. In the fall and early winter the cow was allowed to go dry. Winter dairying was practically unknown. The care of the milk and the making of the butter and cheese were in the hands of the women of the household, and the methods and the utensils used were crude. The average quality of the products was inferior, and the supply of the domestic markets was unorganized and irregular.

In the Eastern and Middle States the milk was usually set in small, shallow earthen vessels or tin pans for the cream to rise. Little attention was paid to cooling the air in which it stood in summer or to moderating it in winter so long as freezing was prevented. The few who scalded milk had no idea of the true reason for so doing or why beneficial effects resulted. The pans of milk oftener stood in pantries and cellars or on kitchen shelves than in rooms specially constructed or adapted to the purpose. In Southern Pennsylvania and the States further south spring houses were in vogue. Milk received care, and setting it in earthen crocks or pots, standing in cool, flowing water, was a usual and excellent practice. Churning the entire milk was common. This is still done to some extent in the Southern States, where butter is made every morning, and where all the milk is buttermilk. In seasons of scarcity of milk there was no butter. In the Northern States there were some instances where families were supplied with butter weekly during most of the year, and with an occasional cheese, directly from the producers. But the general farm practice was to "pack" the butter in firkins, half firkins, tubs and jars and let the cheese accumulate on the farm, taking these products to the market only once or twice a year. Not only were there as many different lots and kinds of butter and cheese as there were producing farms, but the product of a single farm varied in character and quality according to season and other circumstances. Every package had to be examined, graded and sold upon its merits. It was usual for half the butter in market to be strong, if not actually rancid, and for cheese to be sharp. With the products largely low in grade, prices also were low.

As a rule, except in the pasture season, the cows were fed insufficiently and unprofitably and housed poorly, if at all. It was a common thing for cows to die in winter of starvation and exposure, and it was considered no disgrace to farmers to have their cattle "on the lift" in the spring. "On the lift" was a common expression in the past in some localities, indicating the actual necessity of human aid to raise the emaciated animals to their feet.

There were, of course, some farmers who took care of their cattle and who made a specialty of turning out first-class dairy products, but as a rule things were in the condition described.

Toward the middle of the century, the production of cheese being in excess of the home demand, an export trade in it began. With the growth of cities and towns the business of milk supply increased and better methods began to prevail. Then came the establishment of "creameries" and the improvement of the breed of dairy cattle. When the improvement of the native stock of cattle began, a cow that would give milk that would make a pound of butter a day for two or three months was a local celebrity. As late as 1865, when good cows sold for $40 or less, an enterprising farmer in New England advertised widely that he would pay $100 for any cow that would yield fifty pounds of milk a day on his farm for two or three consecutive days. Not an animal was offered on those conditions. Nowadays a cow that does not average from six to seven quarts of milk a day for 300 days—being 4,000 to 4,500 pounds a year—is not considered profitable. There are many herds having an average yearly product of 5,000 pounds a cow, and single animals are many which give ten or twelve times their own weight in milk during the year. The quality of the milk has improved so much that the milk of one cow now will make as much butter as did the milk of three or four of the old native animals.

Prodigies.

Though the old native stock was a pretty tough and disreputable race of cows, there would appear once in a while in it a prodigy. Such was the famous "Oakes cow" of Massachusetts, which astonished the world, in 1816, by giving forty-four pounds of milk a day, out of which was made 467 pounds of butter in one season. This ostentatious cow did this when her friends and neighbors were proud they produced sixty pounds of butter a year. It made her famous, and she had her picture painted in oil, but none of her descendants took after her, and she was regarded as a freak.

Nowadays the Oakes cow would be regarded as a good cow—nothing more. The Shorthorn breed led in the introduction of improved cattle into the United States and formed the foundation upon which many fine dairy herds were built. They were brought from England, and much of the Shorthorn blood can still be found in prosperous dairy districts throughout the United States. Soon, however, they began to breed the Shorthorns for their beef qualities, and now few full-blooded Shorthorns are classed as dairy cattle. Ayrshires from Scotland, Holstein-Friesians from Holland and Jerseys and Guernseys from the Channel Islands were then brought in, and upon animals graded and improved from these breeds the vast dairy industry of the country now mainly depends. The Ayrshires and Holsteins are great milk givers, and the Jerseys and Guernseys (often miscalled Alderneys) are great butter makers. Brown Swiss and Simmenthan cattle from Switzerland, the Normandy breed from France and red-polled cattle from the south of England have also been imported, but are in what is known to dairymen as the "general purpose class." They are pretty good in everything, but have no specialties.

It used to be believed that successful dairying could be carried on only in the United States in a belt lying between the latitude of Philadephia and the latitude of the northern boundary of Vermont and extending as far west as the Missouri River. Even in that belt it was believed that the true dairying districts were in detached sections which did not occupy more than one-third of its area. This idea has been exploded. It has been found that good butter and cheese can be made in almost all parts of Northern America. As a rule good butter can be made wherever good beef can be produced.

Mechanical Devices.

Along with the growth of the dairy business came the invention of many mechanical devices for doing by machinery what had hitherto been done by hand. One curious device is called the dairy "centrifuge," "cream separator" or "skimmer." It is a closed bowl revolving at the rate, sometimes, of 25,000 times a minute. The milk flows through a feed pipe into the rapidly whirling bowl, and from the bowl two projecting tubes discharge continuously the one cream and the other skimmed milk. A skimmer of standard factory size handles 250 gallons of milk an hour. This is different from the good wife "setting" the milk and then going around with her little tin skimmer and removing the cream for the morrow's churning.

An excellent example of the changes wrought in dairy practice is afforded by an instance in Northern Vermont, a region long noted for its butter production. St. Albans is the business center of Franklin County. During the middle of the century the country-made butter from miles around came to this market every Tuesday. The average weekly supply was thirty to forty tons. This butter was varied in quality, was sampled and classified with much labor and expense, placed in three grades and forwarded to the Boston market, 200 miles distant. All this butter was made upon 1,000 or 2,000 different farms, in as many churns. In 1880 the first creamery was built in this county; ten years later there were fifteen. Now, a creamery company in St. Albans has fifty-odd skimming or separating stations distributed through this and adjoining counties. To those is carried the milk from more than 30,000 cows. Farmers having home separators may deliver cream, which, being inspected and tested, is accepted and credited at its actual butter value, just as other raw material is sold to mills and factories. The separated cream is conveyed by rail and wagon—largely the former—to the central factory. There, in one room, from ten to twelve tons of butter are made every working day. A single churning place for a whole county!

Only one thing in dairying remains unaltered and unchanged. That is the milking of the cows. Many mechanical devices have been invented and patented for the milking of cows by machinery, but none of them has been a success. Cows are milked now as they were in the days of Abraham, and still Mary "calls the cattle home across the sands of Dee."

The Rough Rider—Yes, indeed! It's simply in-tents!"

About the Size of It.

The Youth—What is the secret of true happiness?

The Sage—To have what you want when you want it.

The Man of It.

"Poor Lot!" exclaimed a lady in the art gallery as she paused in front of a painting representing the family leaving the doomed city; "I wonder what he thought when he beheld his wife transformed into a pillar of salt!"

"I suppose," replied her husband, "that he thought he would now have a chance to get a fresh one."—Chicago News.

All He May Expect.

"So, there," said Mrs. Henpeck, concluding her remarks, "'A word to the wise is sufficient.'"

"Yes, my dear," replied Henpeck, "and to the average married man a word in edgewise is sufficient."—Philadelphia Press.

A Financier.

Browne—He's to marry Miss Sumrox, eh? I didn't think he had enough money to support a wife. What's his business?

Smythe—Banking.

Browne—Really?

Smythe—Yes; he's banking on the money her father will give her.—Philadelphia Press.

New Field of Labor.

"Work? You make me laugh. What kind of a job have you got?"

"Cleanin' horses fer an autermobile line."

Feminine Intuition.

Mistress—Jane, you may clear away the breakfast dishes and put the house in order. I'm going to my dressmaker's to have a new gown fitted.

Jane—Yes, ma'am. Are you going to take your latchkey, or shall I sit up for you?—Chicago News.

Nothing Serious.

Sweltering Passenger (on railroad train)—This window sticks so I can't get it up.

Conductor—Yes. Wood is swollen a little by the rain. It'll be all right in a few days.—New York Weekly.

Got It All.

Superintendent—I was watching you and observed that you entered but one house in the square between Upth and Blank streets, yet your report gives full statistics of every family in that square. Please explain this, sir.

Census Taker—The lady whom I saw in that one house belongs to the same card clubs as do all the other ladies in that neighborhood.—Baltimore American.

It Impressed Her.

Bob—Nan, what first attracted your attention to me?

Nan—Well, Robert, if you must know, it was your pale, silly-looking little mustache.—Indianapolis Journal.

In the Case.

Stubb—Young Stillman said that his girl always kept him waiting.

Penn—So I heard.

Stubb—Well, he has had her picture reproduced on his watch so that she will always be on time.

In Dear Old Lunnon.

Ida—Is the air very thick in London?

May—So thick that it frequently chokes the air-brakes on the trains.

From the South.

Ida—I wonder where the new boarder got those sandy whiskers?

May—I guess he got them from eating strawberries.

Many Theaters in Italy.

The population of Italy is 8,000,000 less than the population of France, but Italy has more theaters than France and twice as many as England, though the population of the United Kingdom is fully 5,000,000 larger than that of Italy. There are approximately 1,000 places of amusement in the United States. In Italy there are 448, in France 437, in Germany 390, in Great Britain 352, and in Spain 210. One explanation of the large number of theaters in Italy is to be found in the fact that the cultivation and appreciation of music are perhaps more general in Italy than in any other country, and many of the playhouses, therefore, are devoted not to theatrical, but to musical, entertainments.

Pie in Philadelphia.

"Really," exclaimed the waitress in Mrs. Starvem's boarding-house, who had seen better days, "we never furnish a knife with pie."

"No?" remarked the new boarder; "well, then, bring the ax."—Philadelphia Record.

G. W. LACKEY

AUBURN, - INDIANA.

SUPPLEMENT TO AUBURN WEEKLY COURIER.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF DeKALB COUNTY

JAMES A. BARNS, Editor.

Registered at the Auburn, Indiana, postoffice as second-class matter.

THURSDAY.....JULY 19, 1900.

For Assessor.

I wish to announce to my democratic friends of Butler Township that I will be a candidate for Assessor, subject to the democratic caucus to be held at Butler Center this coming summer; on account of the sad accident which happened to me last spring, which put me back so with my work on the farm, I will not be able to canvas the township but I hope you will consider the matter and do as you think best. I remain your's truly, John H. Benninghoff.

Franklin Caucus.

The democrats of Franklin township, and all who will unite with them in the struggle of the common people against the trusts, are to hold a township caucus at the Center on the first Saturday in August at 1 o'clock p. m., to nominate candidates for trustee, assessor, two justices of the peace, two constables, five supervisors and three members of the advisory board.

ALLEN SHULTZ, Chairman.
EDSON BEARD, Secretary.

Committee Meeting.

There will be a meeting of the democratic county central committee in the rooms formerly occupied by the COURIER in the Kiblinger building, on Thursday, July 26, at 1 o'clock prompt, for the transaction of important business. A full attendance is desired.

C. C. WALTER, Chairman.
J. C. LOCHNER, Secretary.

Presidential Candidates.

Republican—William McKinley and Theodore Roosevelt.

Democratic—William J. Bryan and A. E. Stevenson.

Populist—William J. Bryan and Charles W. Towne.

Silver Republican—William J. Bryan and A. E. Stevenson.

Prohibition—John G. Woolley of Illinois, and H. B. Metcalfe of Rhode Island.

Populist (middle-of-the-road)—Wharton Barker of Pennsylvania, and Ignatius Donnelly of Minnesota.

United Christian—Rev. F. E. Clark of Massachusetts, and Rev. Charles M. Sheldon of Kansas.

Socialist Labor—Job Harriman of California, and Max S. Hayes of Ohio.

Social Democrat—E. V. Debs of Indiana, and Job Harriman of California.

De Leon Socialist—J. F. Maloney of Massachusetts, and Valentine Remmill of Pennsylvania.

The gold democrats and anti-imperialistic republicans are yet to be heard from.

Why is This Thus?

Can anybody give a good reason why a census enumerator cannot tell what the population is? It has always been as now. They are all as silent as the grave. But as every item they get becomes public property the moment the report is printed, we see no good reason for this secrecy, If the government would hurry up a little, it would not be so bad. But they take their time to it, and it is usually several years before the book is out and in the hands of the people. We remember at least one that took six or seven years and three to five years is a common thing. There seems to us, no good reason either for present secrecy or for the long delay in printing. Let Uncle Sam get a hustle on him and keep closer up with the procession that he is supposed to lead.

Chautauqua Meeting

At Mountain Lake Park, Md. Low rates Via Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

July 30 to August 30, inclusive, the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad will sell low-rate excursion tickets to Mountain Lake, Md., account above occasion.

Tickets will be good for return until August 31, 1900.

Moore Troops Needed.

A dispatch from Manila says: Gen. Lawton's statement that it would require 100,000 soldiers to properly garrison the Philippines may yet have to be endorsed by the Washington officials. From nearly every garrison now comes appeals for reinforcements. There are about enough troops there now to garrison only half the towns. Last week three Americans were killed and two wounded. The Yankees killed 35 insurgents and captured 50.

Attention Farmers.

The Auburn Handle Factory will pay the highest cash price for ash handle block delivered at their factory on the Lake Shore tracks, cut 58 inches long. Also want ash logs cut 9½, 14½ and 19½ feet long. All timber to be smooth and sound. Will also take basswood cut 4 feet long and 8 inches in diameter and up, left round with bark on. Will pay $3 percord.—J. M. CHERRY & CO.

THE CHINESE HORROR.

All the Foreigners Murdered, Including Their Wives.

Late reports confirming those that said all foreigners had been murdered at Pekin, keep coming in and there is probably no longer a hope that any have escaped.

Several of the latest, and most reliable accounts are to the effect that June 25, the Boxers and the regular Chinese troops friendly to them, began to mass closer to the vicinity of the British legation, where the foreign ministers and their guards were defending themselves. The Chinese pressed the foreigners hard, and the latter fought desperately, knowing that it was to be a life and death struggle. At times they would drive the Boxers back a short distance. Friendly Chinese under Prince Ching were helping at outside points. Finally at 6 p. m. July 6, the Boxers, with heavy guns made a night assault. They advanced in three columns and the assault lasted two hours. Then, although they had battered down the walls of the legation, the fire of the defenders was so hot, that the Chinese broke and ran. Prince Tuan, their leader, got them to try it again On the second assault Prince Ching got near enough to help the foreigners, and it appears that the Boxers and their friends were again driven off. Later, when the ammunition of the beseiged gave out, the Boxers got bolder, and then entered the building, killing all. It is said that many of the women were killed by their husbands or friends, to prevent their falling into the hands of the Boxers, to be tortured to death.

Such is the substance of the story that all now fear to be true. If true, it is the worst crime in all history. The lives of all foreign ministers and their families and servants, as well as all dependants including native servants, are always held sacred and even in the case of war, the first step taken is to send them home to their own country in safety. Such a crime as this, even the murdering of one foreign minister, has seldom or never been known. But in this case, it includes the ministers of nearly all the countries of Europe, and our own minister, Mr. Conger, and all their families and dependants as well as their guards.

Change in Law Firm.

A change was made in a well-known Auburn law firm last Saturday, which was the dissolution of the partnership of Judge F. S. Roby and Samuel R. Harper. The gentlemen have had the most pleasant business and professional relations, but the junior partner, who is a wide-awake young man and a close student, thought he would like to "go it alone," for a while at least. He has opened an office in the second floor of the Davenport building where he will be ready to look after the interests of his clients. His professional association with Judge Roby has been of much advantage to him, and during his residence in Auburn he has gained a wide circle of friends who will join us in the wish that he may prosper in the future.

Reading Circle Work.

The examination in Teachers' Reading Circle work will be held Saturday, July 21, 1900 at the Auburn high school building. Any teacher who passes this examination will be exempt from farther examination in science of education and reading for the next year. Respectfully,

H. E. COE, County Supt.

Red Hot From The Gun

Was the ball that hit G. B. Steadman of Newark, Mich., in the Civil War. It caused horrible Ulcers that no treatment helped for 20 years. Then Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured him. Cures Cuts, Bruises, Burns, Boils, Felons, Corns, Skin Eruptions. Best Pile cure on earth. 25 cents a box. Cure guaranteed. Sold by H. B. McCord, druggist.

More Horse Racing.

Sunday evening as the people were going home from church at Hopewell in Jackson, some smart Alec whipped up his horse, and coming in behind J. N. Huston, the latter's horse became frightened and ran; jumped into Jacob Powell's rig, which was next ahead, and both rigs were wrecked. Mrs. Huston was thrown out and considerably hurt. Mr. Huston was thrown to the ground and the buggy ran over him, but he was not seriously hurt. The horse tore the shafts loose and ran home, Mr. Powell's buggy was wrecked and himself and wife thrown out. The fellow who caused the scare, whipped up and went by, without so much as looking to see whether anyone was killed or not. Of course the loss of the buggies will be considerable beside the narrow escape from death. Mr. Huston and Mr. Powell should see that the grand jury takes the matter in hands or that the offender be brough up some how and punished. It has become the regular thing to run horses on such occasions. It should be made to cost everyone that does it a heavy fine. Nothing else will stop it.

WINTER OCEAN BATHS.

Three Bath Beach Residents, One a Woman, Take Daily Plunge.

The fad of taking a plunge in the waters of the ocean and bay during the winter has, it seems, taken a firm hold on some of the residents in the suburban sections of Brooklyn, especially those along the shores of Gravesend Bay, at Bath Beach and Bensonhurst. These two hamlets now boast of three residents who never fail to take a cool dip in the bay every day in the year. All those who doubt it can go down to Bensonhurst and make inquiries for John Richmond, a good-natured Englishman, who owns a little place on Bath avenue, near Thirty-fifth street, where he conducts a florist's business. His wife prides herself on being the only woman in the city who takes the icy plunge. It has been said that a mysterious woman did make her appearance a short time ago at Bath Beach, and, after promenading the beach for a time, she plunged into the water. This woman, however, was apparently satisfied with that one dip, and has not been seen along the shore since, while Mrs. Richmond is there every day. Richmond was for years the chief gardener on the estate owned by the late Dr. S. Fleet Spier, which fronted on Gravesend Bay, between Cropsey avenue, Bay Thirty-second and Bay Thirty-fourth streets, Bensonhurst. It is directly in front of the old mansion on the beach that the unusual feat of diving into cold water is performed. The bather calmly walks off in the water as it were in July. During the last few weeks Gravesend Bay has been pretty well choked with the ice floe from the East and North rivers, and at times it was a difficult thing to see any water at all, unless it be off Sea Gate, on the ocean side of Coney Island. Mrs. Richmond, however, managed to find a vacant space, and, therefore, did not miss the bath.

Island Park.

The attractions at this ever popular resort are more varied and better than ever before in its history. There are so many new things provided for that have never been brought there before. Among these are the athletics, several noted persons being among them. The Hillsdale College Glee Club, and the North Indiana Conference Quartet, the same that sang in the Auburn M. E. church a few months ago. They are the two Naftagers, Mr. Thornburg, and Daniel Guild, a brother of Rev. T. M. Guild. There are also noted lecturers and popular specialists in music, art, etc. etc.

Write the secretary at Rome City, for illustrated catalogue. It is a beauty, full of fine portraits and of scenes about the lake and is worthy a place on the center table.

Millions Given Away.

It is certainly gratifying to the public to know of one concern in the land who are not afraid to be generous to the needy and suffering. The proprietors of Dr King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, have given away over ten million trial bottles of this great medicine; and have the satisfaction of knowing it has absolutely cured thousands of hopeless cases. Asthma, Bronchitis, Hoarseness and all diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs are surely cured by it. Call on H. B. McCord, druggist, and get a free trial bottle. Regular size 50c and $1. Every bottle guaranteed or price refunded.

OBITUARY.

Roy Elsworth Slaybaugh was born Jan. 28, 1883, and died July 2, 1900, aged 17 years, 5 months and 4 days.

Roy was a kind hearted, whole-souled boy who had made many friends as was attested by the large and sad audience at the funeral services. He was a dutiful son and the pride of the home; his untimely decease leaves many sad hearts. The funeral services were conducted by his pastor, Rev. A. E Gaff, at Fairfield Center church. May the Father sustain the bereaved parents and sister.

Queen's Present.

The Queen has presented Capt. Lambton, of the Powerful, with a gold repeater watch, in token of her esteem for and admiration of his gallant services at Ladysmith. The watch bears the Queen's monogram in brilliants, with the inscription, "Ladysmith, 1900."

Millions of Passengers.

The tramways, omnibuses, and underground railways in and around London, within a radius of five miles, carry each year about 53,000,000 passengers.

WORSE NEWS FROM CHINA.

Allies Defeated. No Further News from the Unfortunates in Pekin.

Tuesday's Daily.

The latest from China gives no hope, and to this is added a defeat for the allies at Tientsin, with heavy loss. The reports are that our Ninth infantry just landed was in the hottest of the fight and lost killed and wounded about a quarter of its force. Col. Liscum, the commander, was killed, as well as Capt. Butler of the Marines. They were attacking the Chinese part of the city, which is walled, and did not fall into the hands of the allies when the rest of the city was taken.

It appears that in the early morning of July 13, 7,000 allies stormed the walls in the face of a murderous fire from about 20,000 Chinese on the walls, well armed with rifles, machine guns and artillery.

The Russians attacked from the east, while from the west came the Americans, Japanese, French and British Our officers say it was much hotter work than at Santiago. At night, the allies had to retire. It is believed we captured four guns and inflicted heavy loss.

Wednesday's Daily.

The news given yesterday comes up a little better today. After the repulse of the allies Friday evening, they rested over night and early Saturday morning and tried it again, and finally drove the Chinese from every fort and every part of the Chinese part of the city. But the losses of the three days fighting amounted to about 800 for the allies. The Russians, Japanese and Americans suffered the worst, our own losses killed and wounded, being over 200. Reports now lead some to believe that the foreigners in Pekin have not been killed but that the Chinese have sent out lies for some purpose of their own.

OBITUARY.

Isaac H. Getts, was born in Fairfield township, DeKalb County, Ind., April 3, 1849, and after a painful, lingering illness peacefully fell asleep in the arms of a loving Savior on the 13th of July, 1900, aged 51 yrs. 3 months and 10 days. On December 31, 1873, he was married to Catharine S. Cox. This union was blessed with seven children, five sons and two daughters. In the year 1871, he made a public profession of faith and was received into the Reformed church at Hudson, by the solemn rite of confirmation under the pastorate of the sainted Rev. Henry Bair, of which church he remained a faithful constant member until death. During the last few years he was afflicted more or less, and at times was a great sufferer, but at all times he bore his affliction with Christion patience and in a submisive spirit. His prayer was—"The Lord's will be done." He leaves to mourn his departure a grief-stricken companion, five sons, two daughters, one granddaughter, one brother, two sisters and a large circle of relatives and friends. Their loss we believe is his eternal gain.

Funeral services were held at the Reformed church, Hudson, Ind., July 15, under the auspices of Hudson K. of P. Lodge No. 257 in the presence of a very large concourse of people. His pastor, Rev. J. A. Seitz, assisted by Rev. C. A. Rowe, were the officiating ministers. Interment in Circle Hill cemetery. Peace to his ashes.

Zora Fisk was born Dec. 21, 1861, died July 15, 1900, aged 38 years, 6 months and 24 days.

Zora was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Fisk, and was born is Smithfield township, DeKalb county, Ind. This being the first death to have occurred in the family for forty-five years. She grew to womanhood, and has always lived with her parents. She was married to Benjamin Kimmel, April 27, 1884, to which union one child was born. She was a comfort, an unassuming tower of strength to all with whom she had association.

The mortal shaft of death reached her while at her womanly part of duty, and in one short hour her life went out of the body which was racked with internal spasms.

A sister preceded her to the unknown world. There are left to mourn her untimely departure, her son, Sherman, the aged parents, sisters, Mrs. Daniel Shuman, Mrs. W. H. Brecbill, brothers, Frank, William, Seymour and John. Funeral services were conducted at the old home by Rev. W. O. Butler assisted by Rev. S. H. Yager. The remains were followed to the grave in the Waterloo cemetery, by the sorrowing community.

General Ordinance No. 12.

An Ordinance Concerning the Sale of Intoxicating Liquors and the Licensing Thereof.

Section 1. Be it ordained by the Common Council of the City of Auburn, that it shall be unlawful for any person to sell, barter or give away any intoxicating liquors to be used in and upon the premises where sold or disposed of as aforesaid in the residence portion of the city of Auburn; providing that all that portion of said city lying without the following described limits shall be deemed residence portion within the meaning of this ordinance. Said limits are as follows, towit:

Beginning at the center of the intersection of Cedar street and Seventh street; thence north to Sixth street; thence west on Sixth street to a point half way between Cedar and Main streets; thence north to Fifth street; thence west on Fifth street to Jackson street; thence south on Jackson street to Tenth street; thence east on Tenth street to Main street; thence south on Main street to Eleventh street; thence east on Eleventh street to Cedar street; thence north on Cedar street to Tenth street; thence east along the middle of Tenth street to a point half-way between Cedar street and East street; thence due north to Seventh street; thence west on Seventh street to the place of beginning.

Section 2. This ordinance shall apply to all sales or gifts of intoxicating liquors to be used on the premises within the said residence portion of said city, whether the seller has taken out a license from said city, or DeKalb county, or the state of Indiana, or not, and such license, if the seller has one, shall constitute no defense to any action founded on this ordinance.

Section 3. It shall be unlawful for any person to sell, barter or give away any intoxicating liquor to be used upon the premises where sold within the corporate limits of the City of Auburn or within two miles of the corporate limits of said city, without first procuring a license from the clerk of said city to sell intoxicating liquors as aforesaid.

Section 4. Any person who shall after the first day of August, 1900, procure from the board of commissioners of DeKalb county, Indiana, a license to sell intoxicating liquors within the corporate limits of the City of Auburn or within two miles of the corporate limits of said city, and who shall pay into the treasury of said city the sum of two hundred and fifty dollars ($250.00), and who shall present to the city clerk a receipt from the city treasurer for said sum of two hundred and fifty dollars ($250.00) shall be entitled to receive a license to sell intoxicating liquors for the period of one year, except that no license shall be granted to sell intoxicating liquors in the residence portion of said city.

Section 5. Any person who, on the first day of August, 1900, holds an unexpired license from said city to sell intoxicating liquors in said city, or any person who holds an unexpired license from the board of commissioners of DeKalb county, Indiana, to sell intoxicating liquors within two miles of the corporate limits of said city, shall obtain a further license from said city for the unexpired period of their said license by paying into the city treasury such proportionate part of two hundred and fifty dollars ($250.00) as the unexpired term of his said license bears to the whole term thereof, and by presenting to the city clerk the city treasurer's receipt, therefor and his said unexpired license; provided that when said applicant holds an unexpired license from said city issued under prior ordinances of said city or town of Auburn, there shall be credited to said applicant on his new city license as herein provided, such proportionate part of the amount paid for such prior city or town license as the unexpired term thereof bears to the whole term thereof, and provided further that no person holding a license to sell intoxicating liquors in the residence portion of said city shall have the right to renew his license as aforesaid.

Section 6. It is provided that any person now holding license outside the prescribed territory be permitted to continue business until the expiration of such license by complying with all other provisions of this ordinance.

Section 7. Any person violating any section of this ordinance shall upon conviction thereof be fined in any sum not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than one hundred dollars, and each sale made in violation of this ordinance shall constitute a separate act and a new and distinct offense.

Section 8. All ordinances or parts of ordinances in conflict herewith are hereby repealed.

Section 9. This ordinance shall be in full force from and after its passage and publication for two weeks in the Auburn Courier.

Passed July 16, 1900.

Wednesday's Daily.

—Nicholas Ensley is here from Indianapolis visiting old friends and looking after business interests.

—F. L. Bishop at the Wabash freight depot, shipped his first car of new wheat today. It went to Detroit.

—The fountains to be placed at the east and west sides of the public square have arrived and will be placed in position at once.

—Schaab Brothers have a big ad, the perusal of which will be of value to purchasers. Read it over carefully. It will be time well spent.

—The Bazar store is advertised today in fine shape. They are hustlers there and you will notice some fine opportunities for good bargains.

—You take no chances when you buy Russ' Bleaching Blue. This famous article makes clothes whiter than snow. Refuse imitations.

—We publish today two city ordinances that are of more than unusual interest. They fix the fire limits and the limits for the sale of liquor.

—Miss Leila Baker has returned from an extended visit with Dr. and Mrs. J. P. Collett at St. Marys, Ohio. She also visited at other points in that state.

—Mrs. Martin Marsh and daughter Inez, went up into Richland today, where she will remain a week or so, the guest of her aunt, Mrs. W. H. Swander.

—A meeting of the Twelfth district democratic committee was held at the Randall hotel, Fort Wayne today. The state committee will meet at Indianapolis tomorrow.

—The big Harvest Sale of G. W. Lackey is advertised today on a scale that gives one an idea of the vastness of the business to be done. Read the prices carefully.

—A letter from Mrs. Lottie Cochran at Los Angeles, says they are delightfully situated for the summer, and can enjoy the sea breezes all day. She and her daughter Mary are well.

—The postal clerks on the railroad are being officially notified of increases in their salaries, which were made on July 1. Clerks in Class No. 4 are increased $50 per year and clerks in class No. 5 $100 per year.

—Schaab Brothers have a timely new ad. in the paper this week. It is their "clearing and reduction sale," and great bargains are given in seasonable goods. The study of business ads. is always valuable to buyers.

—John Ferguson and John Windbaugh, two well-known Fort Wayne printers, have purchased the Butler Herald and take possession this week. Mr. Downey, who has published the Herald for several years, will probably engage in business elsewhere.

—Sheriff Hathaway was called to Butler today to take charge of a stranger enroute from Chicago to New York on a Lake Shore train who had shown signs of insanity. The man was taken from the train at Butler and kept under guard until the sheriff's arrival.

—Mr. Myron Pontius of Fairfield called here today. He has been home about two weeks, from Hiram College, Ohio, where he has been studying for the ministry. He preached at Corunna last Sunday evening and we hope to see him make a success of his chosen profession.

—Major Kuhlman has been notified that the new Fort Wayne infantry company has been assigned to his battalion and will be known as Co. D. The Second battalion is now filled and includes the companies from Fort Wayne Auburn, Columbia City and Lagrange, all county seat towns.

—John Bates of Corunna was here yesterday. Like Mr. Raub, he is interested in the skunk industry, and on his way down here, he brought Mr. Raub two nice little skunk kittens, real pets that are as loving and harmless as domestic kittens. He takes great pride in petting them and still has quite a number at home.

—A news paper should give to its party candidates the same support which it recieves from them. A man who does not contribute a cent towards the suport of a paper till he is a candidate for office, should not expect the editor to waste over fifty dollars of space in booming him for office. Yet editors are often chumps enough to do it.

—It is quite probable that state troops will be called for by the government to go to China, and Gov. Mount has tendered to President McKinley the three regiments of infantry and three batteries now organized, all of which are equipped for service. Company K. may get another chance to show their mettle, and if they do we expect to hear a good report from them.

Sheriff's Sale.

By virtue of an execution issued on a transcript of a judgment filed in the office of the clerk of the DeKalb circuit court on the 23d day of April, 1895, and to me directed by the clerk of said court, I will offer for sale at public auction and outcry, to the highest bidder, at the door of the court house in Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana, on

between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following described real estate, situated in DeKalb county, in the state of Indiana, to-wit;

Lot numbered seventy-two [72] in Ensley's second addition to the town of Auburn.

And in case the rents and profits fail to bring the amount demanded to satisfy the judgment and decree aforesaid, interest and costs, together with all accruing costs, I will, at the same time and place, and in like manner as aforesaid, offer for sale, at public auction and outcry, to the highest bidder, all the right, title, interest and estate in fee simple of Grant Owens and John C. Owens at his death and now holden by his heirs, in and to the above described real estate, or so much and such part thereof as may be necessary to satisfy the judgment and decree aforesaid, which is in favor of Solomon Shilling and against Grant Owens, John C. Owens.

Said real estate will be sold without relief from valuation or appraisement laws, and subject to the redemption laws of the state of Indiana.

General Ordinance No. 13.

An Ordinance Establishing Fire Limits.

Section 1. Be it ordained by the Common Council of the City of Auburn, Indiana, that the following fire limits be and are hereby established within said city, and the erection of any building, or addition to any building, unless the outer walls thereof are made of iron, stone, brick and mortar, or some of them, is hereby prohibited within such limits. Said fire limits are as follows, to-wit:

Beginning at the center of the intersection of Cedar street and Seventh street; thence north to Sixth street; thence west on Sixth street to a point half-way between Cedar street and Main street; thence north to Fifth street; thence west on Fifth street to Jackson street; thence south on Jackson street to Tenth street; thence east on Tenth street to Main street; thence south on Main street to Eleventh street; thence east on Eleventh street to Cedar street; thence north on Cedar street to Tenth street; thence east on Tenth street to a point half-way between Cedar street and East street; thence due north to Seventh street; thence west on Seventh street to place of beginning.

Section 2. Any building erected in violation of the foregoing section shall be taken and deemed a nuisance and the marshal or street commissioner of said city shall cause such building or portion thereof to be torn down, altered, repaired or rebuilt, and the expense thereof shall be recoverable of the owners of said building in an action to be brought by the city for that purpose.

Section 3. Any person, firm, company or corporation violating Section 1 of this ordinance shall be subject to a fine of not less than $25 nor more than $100, and each and every day of such violation of Section 1 shall be taken and deemed a separate offense.

Section 4. All ordinances or parts of ordinances in conflict herewith are hereby repealed.

Section 5. This ordinance shall be in force from and after its publication for two successive weeks in the Auburn Courier.

Passed July 16, 1900.

D. A. GARWOOD, Mayor.
Attest: C. B. WEAVER, City Clerk.

PALMY DAYS OF PICKPOCKETS.

One Who Has Reformed Tells of the Forepaugh Circus "Snap."

"Since Addie Forepaugh has retired from the show business big mit show grafters have had a hard run for their white alley," said a well-known detective as he strolled into the Palmer House bar with a few wise ones yesterday.

"Shows on the road to-day resemble a Methodist revival tent, as compared with 1880-5. During these years there were twenty professional pickpockets who followed the Forepaugh aggregation, all on a still hunt for grauch pockets. Among these experts was Windy Dick, who managed the combination. For two entire seasons Windy Dick paid $200 a day for protection. The gang had a railway coach of their own and were furnished transportation without charge. The whole lot lived in royal style. During the parade the streets and stores were looked after, and it was almost an impossibility to arrest a member of the gang. They would split up a crowd and cover the retreat of a fellow pickpocket to perfection. During five seasons not a member was left in the hands of local police.

"The richest graft was the insidetent work while the show was going on. Under the seats were each and everyone of the gang. When the boy crying peanuts or ice-cool lemonade noticed a particularly fine spark or studded chron, he would give the office to the man on the ground below, and a hundred to one the tip went. Every man, woman, and child was in reality at their mercy. Georgie Arthur, then a mere lad, would average 100 watches per day, while 125 pocketbooks have been lifted during a one-day's stand. Many a woman who thought the safest place to carry valuables was her stocking has come to grief. Any little bunch on a shapely limb was sure to catch the eye of the man who was on the lookout. A sharp razor-like knife, a quick slit, and the little bunch woud disappear as if by magic. Why it was like getting money from home.

"The old-fashioned red hip-pocketbook was all the go in those days, and the easiest thing to turn off in the business. The weather was generally sweltering and many a vest was wide open, watch hanging almost ready to fall from the pocket. A certain New York City jeweler had a soap box full shipped him every week. Fact.

"It was almost an impossibility to secure the arrest of one of these grafters. Everybody belonging to the show was on, and would help the fellow out. Suppose a man missed his watch or his pocketbook. He would drop through the seats and chase the thief, who would run and duck under the canvas. The pursuer would, the first he knew, run into a canvasman, who would seize him and make him explain what he was doing inside the guy ropes. By this time the grafter had gone. Nine out of ten chances he was inside working again, while the man who had been robbed, if he chanced to have any loose change, had to put it up at the front entrance in order to get back where he started from.

"Yes, I am pretty well posted, and why not, for in those days I was known as little Georgie Arthur."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

GOATS GOOD DAIRY ANIMALS.

Both Animals and Their Milk Growing in Popularity.

The usefulness of the goat in clearing foul lands and the profitableness of the animal for its hair, skin and even carcass is becoming pretty well understood. But the goat is valuable as a dairy animal. If the cows, for instance, are being used for supplying a city milk trade the keeping of goats for the home milk supply would be an excellent policy. The goat will live where a cow woud starve, and while it, like every domestic animal, will do best on good pasture, it will live and yield milk on astonishingly little food.

The animal and its milk are almost entirely exempt from disease; the milk is more nutritious than that of the cow and agrees with stomachs that cow's milk frequently offends. The animal requires only the cheapest kind of shelter, but it needs shelter from the storms and in winter. If by reason of drought soiling is necessary, leaves, vegetable refuse, peelings of the apple or potato, bread crusts or stale bread, if they are sweet and clean, will be all the feed that is needed.

All goats, however, will not eat the same food and the feeder will have to study the appetites of the individual animal. Frequent feeding and a variety of food in winter will be found beneficial. Roots, oil meal, oats, corn (of the latter in the whole state the goat is very fond) are proper feed, especially for the milking goat. Rock salt is greatly relished. The flavor of goat's milk cannot be distinguished from that of cow's milk if it is properly cared for. From three to four pints a day is the average yield of a good milker. The milk is so rich and of such a character that in making pastry it will take the place of eggs.—Epitomist.

The Wages of Kings and Queens.

The royal family of England costs the British government, in round numbers, $3,000,000 annually, says Information. Of this large sum, the Queen receives nearly $2,000,000 a year, besides the revenues from the Duchy of Lancaster, which amount to a quarter of a million. The Lord Lieutenant of Ireland receives $100,000 a year for his services and expenses, and the Prince of Wales $200,000 a year. The President of France receives $240,000 a year and all expenses—an enormous salary, when it is remembered that the republic is groaning under a stupendous national debt of over $6,000,000,000—the largest debt that was ever incurred by any nation in the world. Italy can have ten thousand men slaughtered in Abyssinia and still pay her King $2,600,000 every year. The civil list of the German Emperor is about $4,000,000 a year, besides large revenues from vast estates belonging to the royal family. The Czar of all the Russias owns in fee simple 1,000,000 square miles of cultivated land, and enjoys an income of $12,000,000. The King of Spain, little Alphonso XIII., if he is of a saving disposition, will be one of the richest sovereigns in Europe when he comes of age. The state allows him $1,400,000 a year, with an additional $600,000 for family expenses. We are said to be the richest nation on earth, and the nation most able to afford to pay the largest salary to the head of its government, yet our President's salary is only $50,000 a year. It was only $25,000 from 1789 to 1873.

Letter Returns After Many Years.

Thirty-seven years ago Henry Thompson, now living in Smith Center, Kan., mailed from the camp of his regiment in Missouri a letter to his brother in Iowa. Last week this letter was returned to him from the Dead Letter Office at Washington, and in a matter-of-course way, as though the letter had just been received, the department informed Mr. Thompson that his brother could not be found. Mr. Thompson is at a loss to know how the department procured his Kansas address, unless it was taken from the records of the Pension office.—Kansas City Journal.

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATES.

What Imperialism Means.

"Some of you laugh to scorn the idea of bloodshed as the result of secession, and jocularly propose to drink all the blood that will ever flow in consequence of it. But let me tell you what is coming on the heels of secession. The time will come when your fathers and husbands, your sons and brothers, will be herded together like sheep and cattle at the point of the bayonet, and your mothers and wives, and sisters and daughters will ask, 'Where are they?' and echo will answer, 'Where?'".

Such was the prophetic utterance of General Sam Houston, the hero of San Jacinto, and then Governor of Texas, to a secession meeting at Galveston, while Texas was still in the Union. It is well worth recalling at this time by those who would belittle the dangers of imperialism, and who do not perceive that the result of that policy would be to turn the United States into a camp of conscripts, and to bring mourning into countless homes for husbands and sons, fathers and brothers, sacrificed in distant lands to the Moloch of empire. Already, it is reported from Washington, the Federal Government is inquiring about the militia of the various States, with the view of raising an army for Asia, and this upon an understanding with other powers, and without Congress, in which the war making authority is vested by the Constitution, having been consulted. Pretexts will never be lacking if once a career of aggression is entered upon. We will have an army of Africa, an army to chastise the Moors, and another, perhaps, to mix up in a quarrel conflict in Europe, and so it will go until a draft becomes requisite, and we are side by side with Germany, Austria and France as a nation ruled by a military oligarchy.

The Spanish war cost us too much in blood and treasure for its dear-bought prizes to be surrendered, and the dignity of the American name and the rights of American citizens should be upheld in every part of the world, whether it be Constantinople or Pekin. But conquest for empire only—in a word, imperialism—will never be tolerated by the American people.—New York News.

Plain as Two and Two.

Mr. Bryan's proposition that every man who thinks he is prosperous should vote the Republican ticket, and every man who thinks he isn't, the Democratic ticket, has been followed by his equally clear and positive statement about the Filipinos. Their rights, like the rights of the Cuban people, existed before we undertook to recognize or defend them. Consequently their right to independence has not been in the least altered or diminished by our interference. The fact that they have fought for it does not justify our conquest of them. If they had a right to fight for their independence before, they have a right to secure it by fighting for it now. It is no more humiliating for a nation than for an individual to recognize a nation's rights.

If we had treated the Cubans as we have treated the Filipinos we would have had the same trouble. And Mr. Bryan might have added, unless we are careful about interfering too much we will have the same trouble in Cuba. If we had treated the Filipinos as we treated the Cubans, we would have had no trouble in the Philippine islands. If we intend to give the Filipinos their independence, we can avoid further trouble by saying so.

As a matter of fact, the Republican bosses have no more intention of giving the Filipinos their independence than they have the Porto Ricans. In fact, they say so. For that is what they mean when they say "the flag shall never be hauled down." They mean to carry out a scheme of military conquest, and its necessary despotism. The question before the country is whether this republic shall be converted into a despotism in Asia while pretending to be a republic in America. Mr. Bryan has made this plain, positive, logical.—Chicago Democrat.

Taxes Go First.

Trade may follow the flag, but taxes seem to get there first.—Terre Haute Gazette.

BRYAN AND STEVENSON.

Strong candidates, truly Democratic candidates, distinctly American candidates. Both represent the best class in American life. Each successful, able, simple in life, free from the modern taints of plutocracy and privilege. Mr. Bryan has received the votes of more than six millions of his fellow citizens. Mr. Stevenson has been elected Vice President of the United States. He is a typical citizen of Illinois, a Democrat of the old-fashioned kind. His brand of Democracy goes back to the days of Thurman and Tilden. He is a man respected throughout the country. His name is one to lend dignity and confidence to any campaign with which it is associated. These two men, as all must admit, are thoroughly admirable types of the successful, honest, capable American. No man would hesitate to select either as executor of his will or for any other position of trust.

If you decide to vote for them, you will put in office simple, able American citizens like yourselves. Their interests are the same as yours. They have no affiliations except with the people, and no interests outside the public interest. If you feel that a nation needs a swashbuckler as President of the Senate, you will not vote for Mr. Stevenson, of course. But if you feel that a dignified and honored citizen of this State, mature in years and thought, is fit to preside over the highest legislative body in the world, you will vote for him. Bryan and Stevenson represent the people, simply. They represent those who work for a living, in commerce, on farms, as mechanics or by daily toil. They represent those whose prosperity depends on the prosperity of the many—storekeeper, big and little, the lawyer, the merchant trying to build up his own business. They truly represent all American interests except such trust and corporate interests as are interested in getting more than their share through perversion or evasion of the laws.

Of all the powerful combinations of capital which threaten American institutions to-day, not one favors the election of Bryan and Stevenson. Of all the men interested in class legislation, in monopoly of national wealth, every one favors the election of those opposed to Bryan and Stevenson. Every one will work and contribute money to the election of McKinley and Roosevelt. You know that this is true. You know that the Standard Oil monopoly hopes for Republican victory. Will you vote for yourself or for Rockefeller? You know that the railroad monopolists favor McKinley and Roosevelt. Will you vote for yourself or for Huntington and Pierpont Morgan?—Chicago American.

McKinley's Hoodoo.

A hoodoo hangs over McKinley. His followers all feel it. Four times has the occupant of the White House been a candidate for re-election against the man he defeated four years before. Never yet has the President been successful in the second contest. John Adams defeated Thomas Jefferson an even century ago. Four years later Jefferson won easily over Adams. John Quincy Adams made Andrew Jackson taste the bitterness of defeat. Four years later "Old Hickory" larded the lean earth with Adams. Martin Van Buren defeated William Henry Harrison. Waiting his four years, Harrison defeated Van Buren and left him easily at the start. Benjamin Harrison defeated Grover Cleveland in 1888. In 1892 Cleveland beat Harrison. Four years ago William Jennings Bryan was defeated by William McKinley. This year they will face each other again.—Terre Haute Gazette.

Bright Prospects for Democracy.

The failure of the Republican party to carry out its platform pledges and principles; its wild theories of imperialism and militarism; its broken faith to the Cubans; its Porto Rican tariff outrage; its protection and fostering of all trusts; its subserviency to Great Britain and its attitude on the Boer war will be the issues that it will have to confront with a united Democracy.—Memphis Commercial-Appeal.

Trusts and the Young Man.

A level-headed Democratic leader, in atendance at the National Convention, presented the menace of the trust evil in one of its most alarming phases by indicating its bearing upon the future careers of the young men of the country.

These vast combinations of capital will cut off from the majority of the youths of the nation that degree of fair play and equality of opportunity which each of them would have, if nearly all the gainful pursuits were not controlled by consolidated corporations that throttle competition.

At the rate at which the multiplication of trusts has been going on since Hanna assumed the leadership and control of the Republican party and made Mr. McKinley nominal captain of the ship of state, it will not be long before the entire wealth-producing machinery of the United States shall be in the hands of a score or so of men who will be employers of the toiling millions of our people. The young men of the United States will be all hired men at the mercy of those men who own and control the entire business activities of the country.

Whenever it suits the greed of the soulless corporations for which they work to curtail expenses or restrict production, thousands of them will be thrown out of work, and all those who are retained in employment will hold their places at whatever wages it suits their taskmasters to pay.

The mass of our population will become industrial dependents of the trusts. In the mildest view of the outlook they will be practically a multitude of well-clothed, well-fed serfs, who will be commercially and politically without individual independence either in the matter of advancing their commercial or political careers.

There is food for serious thought in the menace which this trust evil holds for all citizens, and especially for our young men with their way in the world yet to make. They should meet the danger boldly and crush it with their ballots.—Kansas City Times.

Political Potpourri.

The latest fad is to Christianize an unwilling people by a liberal use of powder and lead. Rum and missionaries, fire and sword; no cure, no pay.—Sheboygan Falls, Wis., News.

Bishop Cranston would Christianize the Chinese even if he had to kill all the Chinese to do it. If the missionaries in China are "zealous" as Bishop Cranston it is not hard to see what has caused the trouble.—Indianapolis News.

The Cubans will cheerfully admit that it may be that they are incapable of managing a postal system, but they have every reason to believe that they could do fully as well as the Ohio men who went down there to run a postal system for them.—Omaha World Herald.

During the past third of a century New York has had six Democratic and five Republican Governors. It is an interesting and significant fact that in all that long period of time not one Republican Governor has been re-elected or promoted to higher political honors.—Albany Argus.

Mr. Bryan's position has never been any way but right on this Philippine question and he is entirely consistent with the action taken by Congress. What he is opposing is the policy of the administration to forcibly govern an alien race at the muzzle of a cannon.—Chattanooga News.

President McKinley seems to have credited himself with all the good things that came to pass during his term and to have blamed manifest destiny for all the untoward things. Most Americans are too shrewd to take kindly to a game of "Heads, I win; tails, you lose."—St. Louis Republic.

It is to be borne in mind that, campaign or no campaign, the people are entitled to know about what is going on in Cuba. If the administration is wise it will not attempt to keep from the people anything that they are entitled to know, for such action as that would be equivalent, if not to confession, at least to fear.—Indianapolis News.

FROM A GRATEFUL NATION.

Statue Presented the French Government by Americans.

Recently there was dedicated in Paris a magnificent equestrian statue of Lafayette, a gift to the French Government from the American republic.

The originator of the Lafayette monument project and its subsequent promoter is Robert J. Thompson, a scion of one of the oldest and most honorable families in the State of Iowa. Like many another American student, Mr. Thompson early developed a deep and lasting admiration for the great French champion of the revolution, and as a schoolboy first conceived the vague idea that with succeeding years has developed into so magnificent an achievement. He labored energetically until he succeeded in winning to the support of his project the President and other influential men of the nation, and Sept. 1, 1898, the Lafayette Commission was formed. In addition, he enlisted the support of 4,000,000 loyal school children of the land, and in six weeks' time had received from them $45,858.80, a most substantial fund for a beginning. On the strength of the nucleus thus established, on March 31, 1899, Congress made an appropriation of $50,000 to the Lafayette monument fund, the amount being issued in the form of a specially designed coin known as the Lafayette dollar.

The design adopted for the Lafayette monument involves two principal components, namely, the equestrian statue and the pedestal whereon it stands. The former will be one of the largest figures of the kind in the world, and without exception the richest. The group will represent Lafayette in full uniform mounted on a noble war steed and raising his sword, reversed, to the heavens. It is proposed to use an alloy of gold and silver, instead of tin and spelter, in the bronze casting to refine and beautify it, and to cast the entire figure by the lost wax process—an elaborate and expensive, though eminently artistic method. The pedestal will be of colored marble, with rich bronze architectural ornaments, elaborate exedra and extensive artistic surroundings.

One of the original ideas of the Lafayette memorial project was that the monument might be completed and ready for dedication on July 4, United States day at the Paris Exposition, and for some time the work was carried on with this end in view. It soon became evident, however, that to complete the undertaking within so limited an interval would be an utter impossibility. It was, therefore, decided to prepare a staff reproduction of the designs, which answered the purpose of dedication and will stand on the site of the permanent monument throughout the exposition.

LITTLE ONES TAUGHT MUSIC.

Apparatus for Kindergarten Use Devised by a Western Genius.

An apparatus for teaching music to kindergarten children has been devised by a Western genius. It consists of a piano keyboard, a box of lettered, figured disks, a box of vari-colored time sticks and music tablets.

The time sticks are of different lengths, and with these the children are taught to realize the various time values. Whole notes are represented by sticks of considerable length, half notes by sticks just half as long, quarter notes by sticks one-half the length of the half-note sticks, etc. The child then actually makes for himself pictures exactly representing the value of the different notes used in music. The clefs and the number of lines in the staff are taught by means of the chart and the colored disks. The children learn to place the disks properly by means of rhymes like this:

In groups of two and groups of three,
The black keys now we'll always see;
The white keys, we notice, stand in a row,
And the names of all we soon will know.

By making a sort of game out of the study the pupils soon learn the principle of piano-playing and of music in general

Grew Rich on a Private's Pay.

The most widely known character at the Presidio is dead. After thirty-one years of service in the ranks, and nearly two years on the retired list, "Paddy" Miles has closed his honorable and picturesque army record.

Joseph was Paddy's real first name, Miles, the surname, was merely the abbreviation of a long Polish name that has been forgotten even by the dead man's surviving relatives.

As Joseph Miles, the young Jewish Polish immigrant enlisted thirty-three years ago, and that has been his official name ever since, but as "Paddy" he was always addressed in the camp and at his home.

Though his pay was never more nor less than $13 a month during his thirty-one years in the army, Private Miles accumulated a fortune that the Presidio officers declare to be worth $45,000. He was a shrewd, saving man. He kept four cows, obtaining free pasturage on the Presidio reservation, and selling the milk to the army officers at 10 cents a quart. He and his wife lived nearly twenty years in the old brick building at Fort Point; there was no rent to pay, and little to provide in the way of family support. Mrs. Miles did the washing for twenty-five soldiers at $1.50 a month per man.

Miles served in the Spanish war. Returning to his home, he retired on June 17, 1898, and was granted a pension of $24 a month. It was this soldier's distinction, Presidio officers assert, to serve thirty-one years in the army without ever being sent to the guardhouse.—San Francisco Correspondence St. Louis Republic.

How the Queen Is Photographed.

When her majesty wishes to have a new photograph taken she sends a command some days beforehand to the photographer upon whom her choice may fall, to attend at the royal residence on a certain day and at a certain hour.

The photographer takes with him his apparatus and two assistants, and a room is specially prepared for the sitting. The Queen is a very good subject and displays no impatience during the ordeal, which is necessarily a tedious affair, as she is always taken in a number of different positions, proofs of all of which are submitted to her. Her majesty then makes a selection, and prints are only taken from those she approves of. No one is allowed to publish a photo of the Queen without first submitting the photo to her and obtaining her permission to do so.—London Express.

Do Not Delay.

"I have been reading about the falls of Niagara," remarked Mr. Linger to Miss Frocks.

"That is where a great many bridal couples go on their wedding journey, isn't it?" she cooed.

"Why, yes, I believe so," replied Mr. Linger.

"I should so like to see Niagara Falls," the girl said in a low, thoughtful voice.

"Yes, they are a wonderful spectacle. But what I was about to say was that the annual report of the United States Geological Survey says that in 3,500 years the falls will be no more, the bank of the river will be dry, and the great lakes will be emptying into the Mississippi River."

"In how many years?"

"Thirty-five hundred."

"So soon as that?" exclaimed Miss Frocks. "Let us go and see them at once."

"We will," said Mr. Linger, "and we will go on our bridal tour."

And they were very happy ever after.—Harper's Weekly.

English as She Is Wrote.

The following notice is displayed in a hotel in Norway: "Bath! First-class bath. Can anybody get. Tushbath. Warm and cold. Tub bath and shower bath. At any time. Except Saturday. By two hours forbore."

And this is the notice that was posted up recently in an art exhibition in Tokio, Japan: "Visitors are requested at the entrance to show tickets for inspection. Tickets are charged ten cens and 2 cens, for the special and common respectively. No visitor who is mad or intoxicated is allowed to enter in, if any person found in shall be claimed to retire. No visitor is allowed to carry in with himself any parcel, umbrella, stick and the like kind, except his purse, and is strictly forbidden to take within himself dog, or the same kind of beasts. Visitor is requested to take good care of himself from thievely."

American Nerve.

Johnson, an American art student in Paris, got into a quarrel with a Frenchman and an engagement for a duel resulted. At 7 o'clock in the morning the two duelists met at the ticket office of the railroad station whence they were to depart for the chosen spot in the suburbs.

"Give me a round-trip ticket as usual," says Johnson to the clerk in a terrible tone, giving his mustache a ferocious twist.

"I—I say, do you always buy round-trip tickets?" stammers the Frenchman.

"Always," says Johnson.

"Then I apologize."—Collier's Weekly.

American French.

They are telling a story in Paris of an American woman who tried to make use of a rather doubtful grade of American Ollendorff French in the hotel, although all the employes spoke English. Finally one of the waiters asked the manager for a leave of absence, and the maitre d'hotel himself went up to solve the mystery. After a violent tirade against the incivility of the garcon, she declared that his French was so frayed out at the edges that he did not understand what "a bottle of embonpoint" was. And it took the manager twenty minutes to discover that she had intended to ask for stout.—New York Tribune.

The Pinkham Record

is a proud and peerless record. It is a record of cure, of constant conquest over obstinate ills of women; ills that deal out despair; suffering that many women think is woman's natural heritage; disorders and displacements that drive out hope.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

cures these troubles of women, and robs menstruation of its terrors.

No woman need be without the safest and surest advice, for Mrs. Pinkham counsels women free of charge. Her address is Lynn, Mass.

Can any woman afford to ignore the medicine and the advice that has cured a million women?

CURE SICK HEADACHE.

Maskelyne's Trick.

J. N. Maskelyne, the English prestidigitateur, whose entertainments at Egyptian hall are familiar to visitors of London, appeared in court a few days ago as the inventor of a trick that can hardly be called new, but which, if performed by an American, would immediately be dubbed "Yankee." Among Maskelyne's illusions is the familiar Indian box trick, which used to be performed by Herrmann with much claptrap. A man is locked up in a box, which is then securely corded. The box is hidden behind a curtain for a minute and when opened is found to be empty, while the man appears from some unexpected place. Maskelyne offered £500 to any person who would reproduce his trick. Thereupon two ingenious clerks employed in a brass foundry at Deptford made a box with which they did the trick to perfection. They claimed the £500, but did not get it, whereupon they brought an action against the conjuror. Maskelyne's contention was extremely simple. The plaintiffs had done the trick, but they had not done it his way. Their box did not work by the same process as his, and therefore they had not discovered his trick, and were not entitled to a single farthing. The jury, with great discretion, disagreed.—New York Times.

New Material in Paper Making

It has been demonstrated that paper can be manufactured in the South at a handsome profit—the mill at Pensacola, Fla., which has been in successful operation for some months, proves the fact beyond question. This mill is using pitch pine for pulp-making. Recent experiments have shown the availability of wild cane, which grows in vast quantities throughout the Southern States, for this purpose.

The Trust Problem

To a thoughtful mind is one of serious import, for it creeps upon society before you are aware of its existence, in this respect much resembling the various disorders which attack the stomach, such as constipation, indigestion and dyspepsia. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the one reliable remedy for all such ailments.

One Happy Town in Sweden.

One of the happiest places in the world is said to be located at Orsa, in Sweden. The community has in the course of a generation sold nearly $5,000,000 worth of trees and by means of judicious replanting has provided for a similar income every thirty or forty years. In consequence of this commercial wealth there are no taxes. Railways, telephones, etc., are free, and so are schoolhouses, teaching and many other things.

What Do the Children Drink?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called GRAIN-O? It is delicious and nourishing, and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee, but costs about ¼ as much. All grocers sel lit. 15c and 25c.

INDIANA INCIDENTS.

RECORD OF EVENTS OF THE PAST WEEK.

Little Boy Burned Alive—Silks Stolen from a Logansport Store—Woman Attempts Suicide—Adamsville Boy Murdered Near Seattle.

Cyrus, the 4-year-old son of Homer Laughlin, a glass worker, was burned to death in Muncie, his flesh being cooked black. In the rear of his home children of the neighborhood had a frail structure made in which they were "camping" out. The contents of a straw tick had been emptied in the place. Cyrus went into the building alone and is believed to have lighted a match. The straw caught fire. The door became locked and he could not escape and his cries for help were taken as jests until it was too late to rescue him alive.

Store Is Robbed of Silks.

At Logansport when Eginhard Schmidt of the firm of Schmidt & Heinly arrived at the store he noticed disorder in the silk department and, after taking an invoice, found that $2,000 worth of silks was missing. Behind a counter was found a telescope grip left by the robbers. The thieves carried a key and carefully locked the door after they left, or else were concealed in the building and used a rear door on which was a spring lock. There is no clew.

Loss of Beauty Too Much.

Miss Daisy Hale, the pretty daughter of Isaac Hale of Muncie, swallowed poison with suicidal intent. Recently she lost one of her eyes and she brooded over the disfigurement. She refuses to take opiates to counteract the effects of the poison and calmly awaits death. Before swallowing the poison she addressed a note to her sweetheart telling him of her act.

Hear Their Son Is Murdered.

John J. Reed, son of David Reed, a farmer residing near Adamsville, was murdered in Seattle, Wash. Coroner Sparling of Seattle telegraphed Reed's parents, intimating that the son had been slain for his money. John Reed left Indiana seven years ago and engaged in mining in California. Two years ago he went to Washington, where he acquired wealth. His father ordered that the body be shipped to Indiana.

Steel Mills to Resume Work.

The Midland steel works will resume operations in Muncie with a full complement of 800 men. Notice was posted and telegrams calling in the men were sent to all parts of the country where they were on their vacation as a result of the settlement of the wage question. Iron workers are being called in also.

Within Our Borders.

Putnam County orchards are infested with caterpillars.

Rains did $50,000 damage to farms in Howard County.

Jack Roberts, for seventy years a resident of Manhattan, is dead.

Ray Wilson, Goodland, Panhandle brakeman, was crushed to death.

Farmers within a three-mile radius of Plainfield will have telephone service.

Many Redkey families had to move on account of overflowing of Halfway creek.

It is said that Lafayette plungers raised in more than $50,000 by the rise in wheat.

Several Muncie taxpayers will contest the recent $75,000 subsidy to the C., I. & E. Railroad.

John Miller, catcher for the Greencastle ball team, is nursing a broken jaw. Hit in a game.

Bottom lands in Warren County inundated by overflowing of Wabash river. Crops destroyed.

Reason Baker, 72, Muncie, formerly one of the most extensive land owners in eastern Indiana, is dead.

Miss Nellie McCormick walked nearly the whole distance from Chicago to Lafayette, on her way to Cincinnati.

State Gas Inspector Leach says the natural gas supply next winter will be much stronger than for some time.

James Eskew, 3, Logansport, burned to death while trying to start a fire with coal oil. Had seen his mother do it.

Jacob Eckellberger of Waltz township stepped in front of a train at Converse and was killed. He was 70 years old.

Miss Louise Bradley, Chicago, who sued David E. Studebaker, Decatur, for breach of promise, was given a verdict for $1,625.

The Indiana Paper Company, operating mills at Mishawaka, South Bend and Indianapolis, has been placed in the hands of a receiver.

Fred Paul, Lafayette, was fined $50 and costs for making illegal connections, and illuminating his house, without paying for the gas.

At Shelbyville while playfully chasing his younger brother with a revolver, Albert Metzler, 15, was killed, the weapon being discharged.

At Brazil James H. Torbert, aged 50 years, dropped dead while mowing grass in his yard. He was among the first settlers of the county.

Julius Chuedon, acquitted in Shelbyville of attempting to defraud the county, has been reinstated as a mail clerk. He was suspended pending trial.

By the resignation of a justice of the peace, Daleville is left without a single officer of the law. Justices and constables say they cannot make a living.

James Lockhart, town marshal of Grandview, was shot and fatally wounded by Cap Greathouse, a negro. The shooting grew out of attempts to lynch Grant Ross, colored, on June 20, and Theodore Gunsold, colored, two days later.

Six small boys got beyond their depth in the Mississinewa river, near New Cumberland, and one of them, Harry Thompson, aged 8, was drowned. Edward Klein, a glass blower, leaped into the water and swam out with five of the boys.

George Bender, a liveryman of Tennison, had a note of $1,000 to meet. A few days previous he had his life insured for $1,000 in favor of his wife and when the holder of the note called to see about the collection of it he found Bender hanging to a rafter in the barn, his body still warm. He was 35 years old.

John Mallet, a crazy man at Jamestown, sleeps with a corn knife in his bed. He thinks he has too many neighbors.

Harry Franz, 14 years old of Marion, died under peculiar circumstances. He had a tooth extracted, which seemed to paralyze his jaw. He retired about 11 p. m., feeling all right except a numbness of the jaw, and died at 1 o'clock.

Two thousand acres of grain along the Wabash river were swamped by the breaking of the gates in the levee six miles north of Clinton, and the community is startled by the report that the sluice was dynamited. Corn and wheat were covered with a flood twenty feet deep.

HEALTHY WOMEN.

Mary J. Kennedy, manager of Armour & Co.'s Exhibit at the Trans-Mississippi Exposition at Omaha, Neb., writes the following of Peruna, as a cure for that common phase of summer catarrh, known as indigestion. Miss Kennedy says:

"I found the continual change of diet incidental to eight years' traveling completely upset my digestive system. In consulting several physicians they decided I suffered with catarrh of the stomach.

"Their prescriptions did not seem to help me any, so, reading of the remarkable cures effected by the use of Peruna, I decided to try it, and soon found myself well repaid.

"I have now used Peruna for about three months and feel completely rejuvenated. I believe I am permanently cured, and do not hesitate to give unstinted praise to your great remedy, Peruna."

The causes of summer catarrh are first, chronic catarrh; second, derangements of the stomach and liver; third, impure blood.

Such being the case anyone who knows anything whatever about the operations of Peruna can understand why this remedy is a permanent cure for summer catarrh. It eradicates chronic catarrh from the system, invigorates the stomach and liver, cleanses the blood of all impurities, and therefore permanently cures by removing the cause,—a host of maladies peculiar to hot weather. The cause being removed the symptoms disappear of themselves.

One of Life's Sorrows.

"Were you the smartest boy in your school?" asked the very bright boy.

"Why-er-no; not exactly," answered his father.

"Did you know as much as I do when you were my age?"

"I don't believe I did."

"Are you even at this late day able to extract the cube root of a number without referring to a text book?"

"No—no. I don't believe I can."

"That's all," said the very bright boy as he turned to his books. Then he heaved a sigh, and with a look of deepest reproach exclaimed: "Parents often turn out to be a terrible disappointment to their children nowadays."—Washington Star.

A Poetic Hanzman.

In his recently published "Recollections" Sir Algernon West tells a story of Marwood, the executioner, who preceded Billington, which will bear retelling. One of the officials at the colonial office had occasion to consult Marwood as to the most rapid way of putting a man out of existence. Marwood expressed himself in favor of what he professionally called "the long drop," and drove home his argument by remarking: "There was a Mr. Peace, now, a small man; I gave him a six-foot drop, and I hassure you, sir, he passed hoff like a summer heve."—Collier's Weekly.

SUNSTROKE

The summer's awful heat will kill those not fit to resist it—those whose bodies are full of poison because they have neglected their bowels.

The victims of sunstroke, or of any of the other terrible dangers of summer—diarrhoea, dysentery, cholera morbus—are always those who have been careless about keeping clean inside, and as a result have their blood full of rotten filth breeding disease germs and their bodies ready with weakness to succumb to the hot spell. Dizziness, heat headaches, sick stomachs, sticky oozing ill-smelling sweats, restless nights, terrible pains, gripes and cramps in the bowels, sudden death on the street, all result from this neglect.

Keep yourself clean, pure and healthy inside, disinfected as it were, with CASCARETS CANDY CATHARTIC, the greatest antiseptic bowel tonic ever discovered and you will find that every form of summer disease will be effectively —Not long ago a man who had bought some red flannel shirts which were warranted to neither lose their color nor shrink in the wash, went to the store where he had purchased them and was asked by the clerk whether the shirts had lost color or shrunk. "All I can say," he replied, "is that when I came down with one of them on to breakfast my wife said to me, 'what have you got my pink coral necklace round your neck for?'"

You tire easily?
Your heart flip flops, you tremble,
and think you are getting old,
and fear some one will know it.
You try to look pleasant, when in fact,
you are puffing like a steam engine,
and can't throw a brick across a cow path,
without wheezing like a shingle-mill.
But you bet you are not getting old.
You have indigestion.
You have let it run too long.
You can cure it by using
Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.
It's a sure shot, 10c, 50c or $1 a bottle.

QUESTION ANSWERED.

Yes, August Flower has the largest sale of any medicine in the civilized world. Your mothers' and grandmothers' never thought of using anything else for Indigestion or Billiousness. Doctors were scarce, and they seldom heard of Appendicitis, Nervous Prostration or Heart Failure, etc. They used August Flower to clean out the system and stop fermentation of the liver, stimulate the nervous and organic action of the system, and that is all they took when feeling dull and bad with headaches and other aches. You only need a few doses of Green's August Flower, in liquid form, to make you satisfied there is nothing serious the matter with you. Sample bottles at O. P. Barber's, Corunna.

—During last May an infant child of our neighbor was suffering from cholera infantum. The doctors had given up all hopes of recovery. I took a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy to the house, telling them I felt sure it would do good if used according to directions. In two days time the child had fully recovered. The child is now vigorous and healthy. I have recommended this remedy frequently and have never known to fail.—Mrs. Curtis Baker, Bookwalter, Ohio. Sold by H. B. McCord.

MABEL RAY BONDY.

Granddaughter of Frances Slocum to be Educated.

Mabel Ray Bondy, the fourteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Judson Bondy, near Peoria, Miami county, who unveiled the monument erected to the memory of her great-grandmother, Frances Slocum, last May, will receive a college education. Among the numerous descendants of the "White Rose of the Miamis" who were here to participate in the unveiling ceremonies were the Hon. Elliott T. Slocum of Detroit, Mich., and George Slocum Bennett of Wilkesbarre, Pa. These gentlemen are wealthy, and like many others who met Mabel, they took a fancy to her, and she was invited to visit them. They also decided to give her a college education, but in what institution was not agreed on. Yesterday she went to Detroit on a visit, and it is thought that while she is there arrangements for her entering some college the coming fall will be made. She is a bright, auburn-haired girl, very modest and pretty.

The Chinese Liars.

There has all along, been grave doubts as to the conflicting reports from Pekin. Recently the Chinese minister at Washington, who seems to be an honest man, was asked if he could not send a message to our minister, Mr. Conger, cooped up at Pekin. So he tried. He had been getting dispatches himself. Now comes a brief answer from Conger, supposed to have been sent on Wednesday, July 18. The message reads:

"In British legation, under continued shot and shell from Chinese troops. Quick relief only can prevent general massacre.—CONGER."

This message was in the cipher code used by our state department, and being a secret, the message must be from Conger himself. The Chinese officials who forwarded this message could not forge it, for they do not know what it contained. The Chinese foreign department in Pekin sent out with this cipher dispatch, a note to the officials at Shanghai, in which they say:

"Your telegram of July 14, received and the secretary of state's telegram has been handed to Minister Conger. Herewith, Minister Conger's reply to the secretary of state, which please forward."

All this goes to show that the Chinese foreign office were in full communication with Cooger all the time. Why then did they allow him and the other ministers to be fired on day after day? It looks as if the Chinese government has been friendly to the Boxers all along, and helping them in their wholesale murders.

Low-Rate Excursion

To Atlantic City, N. J., and other seaside resorts Via the Baltimore & Ohio R R.

In order to give its patrons an opportunity to visit the seashore at a nominal cost, the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company will sell low-rate excursion tickets to Atlantic City, Cape May and Sea Isle City, N. J., and Ocean City, Md., on Tursday, August 2, 1900

Atlantic City has acvuired such fame as a summer resort that a description of its varied attractions is superfluous. Thousands are annually attracted to this delightful resort for the enjoyment of magnificent surf bathing, and to avail themselves of the unequaled opportunities for sailing, fishing, etc.

Tickets will be available on all regular trains, and will be good for return twelve days, including date of sale, thus giving ample time for an enjoyable outing.

Further information will be given upon application to nearest B. & O. Ticket Agent, or B. N. Austin, Gen'l Pass'r Agent, Chicago, Ill. a2

Horses Not Found.

Fremont Smith has not found his stolen team, as many are reporting. He has never heard a trace from them and probably never will. So sure is he of his loss, that he has bought another team to take their place. The loss, all told will figure up about $600. The two matched young horses, would cost at least $300, probably as fine a pair could not be got for that. Then there was the fine surrey, and two sets of fine harness, worth together about $200. Besides this he paid out about $100 in expenses trying to find the property, and also lost a good deal of time. No doubt the thieves knew just where to send the property to make it safe.

A Spring Medicine.

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 5, 1900.

DR. C. D. WARNER:—I have been taking medicine every spring for years to purify my blood, but I have not yet found a medicine that equals your Compound of Seven Cures. I recommended it to a friend of mine who had a cancer and he told me your medicine had cured him. Yours truly—JACOB BRANDON, Constable for twelve years in Detroit.

CHAPTER XLI.

While wars and rumors of wars in the far east fill the papers of the world, and excite the liveliest interest involving as these wars do, the destruction of life and property, there has been and still is, another cause for serious anxiety, and another source of human suffering and the loss of life, greater even, than any war is likely to cause. It has its location also, in the far east. We refer to the dreadful famine that has for nearly a year, hung like a pall over a large area in the most populous part of British India. There the population is very dense, but in ordinary years, there is plenty. But once in about fifteen or twenty years there may be a total failure of crops and that means famine and death, followed almost invariably by some pestilence that carries off many who had escaped starvation.

We append a few illustrations from photographs, which though far from pleasant, will serve to bring more vividly to us who live in a land that has never known a famine, a softened picture of the many terrible scenes found now in that country. Money is being collected from private charity all over this country and in Great Britain. Some rains have already fallen in the stricken district, and there is some hope for a crop which comes there in October.

THE CAUSE OF FAMINES.

The primary cause of famines in India, as elsewhere, is the lack of rain, and the consequent failure of crops and pasturage. The present drought is the worst for thirty-five years. But, secondly, lack of food is rapidly aggravated by lack of work, therefore of wages, not only for farmers, but in all lines of business. In one word, a famine is an immense lock-out effected by nature in the industries of the country. There is also the third fact, that the government of India, by putting an end to the old bloody intertribal wars, and by efficient measures to check pestilence and famine, has so improved conditions of life, that the population has increased under the British rule from 130,000,000 to nearly 300,000,000. The problem is, how to overtake this growth of population by corresponding agricultural and industrial develop ment. It should also be remembered that much of India still consists of semi-independent native states, ruled by Indian Princes, who, while enjoying British protection from their enemies, fail to improve all the opportunities for the betterment of their subjects.

The horrors of famine fall first and most severely on the poorer classes, who can save nothing ahead. The best and quickest way to help them is to provide work and wages for the multitudes locked out by the famine. The number thus being kept alive now by the British government on relief works, is about six millions. The British government has already expended on this famine over forty-seven millions of dollars. This is the most gigantic relief effort ever undertaken, and all that foresight, science and energy can suggest is being done. There are countless ways in which private charity should supplement government aid, as in the case of orphans, widows, the sick, naked and enfeebled, artisans and farmers who need tools, seed, etc. In Gujerat, out of 1,700,000, cattle one million have died.

HOW RELIEF IS GIVEN.

Robert A. Hume, secretary of the Interdenominational committee at Bombay, reports in addition to efforts for orphans, measures as follows: We are helping to keep up industries by supplying a market for articles. No people are so skeletonized as the Dhangars (shepherd caste.) We furnish them small capital for wool, and then receive their handwork, the rough blankets, giving them profit enough to allow for food. In the same way we do for the weavers of all castes. A large number of looms are hired at six annas (twelve cents) each per months, including all the tools. Yarn is bought, women are employed to prepare it. Weavers are paid sixteen cents for one saree or woman's dress, requiring three or four yards of cloth. This cloth is then sold to the poor, if necessary at a loss, or given free to the naked.

Twenty-five dollars will keep a starving boy or girl orphan for a whole year in a home school under American supervision. Experience has shown that such children become the intelligent and energetic leaders in the various committees to which they return. Wishes expressed by donors to the orphan work will be strictly observed. Contributions are sent to Brown Bros. & Co., 59 Wall street, New York, or to Frank H. Levering, 123 E. Vermont street, Indianapolis.

DeKalb Battalion Reunion.

On account of the old settlers meeting at Angola August 16, the same date set for the reunion of the DeKalb Battal on at Auburn, the officers of the Battalion have changed the date of their reunion at Auburn from August 16 to Tuesday, August 21, to accommodate the soldiers and citizens in both counties who desire to attend both meetings.

In making this change of the date for the benefit of all concerned it is believed by the officers of the Battalion that Steuben county will send large delegations to Auburn August 21. Making this change of date will enable the department commander, G. A. R., to be present, who had a previous appointment for August 16. Other good speakers will address the meeting both in the afternoon and at the campfire in in the evening.

Remember the date and everybody come. This reunion will be the event of the season at Auburn. Exchange please note. COMMITTEE.

An Editor's Recommendation.

Mr. W. J. Hutchison, editor Gazette, Pleasantville, Mo., writes: "I have used Krause's Headache Capsules with satisfactory results. I bought a box that cost me 25c and one capsule cured me of a dreadful sick headache. My wife and myself have also the other medicines prepared by the Norman Lichty Mfg. Co., and we recommend them to them to the public to be just as represented." Sold by H. B. McCord.

STROH, OR ELMIRA

A Town Already Big Enough to have a Double Name.

We had a talk yesterday with David Heckathorn, about the new cement town of Stroh. He says it is a wonder to see the vast machinery at work, and realize the great amount of capital that has been invested. He says the grinding and mixing of the clay and marl, when once started cannot stop, as the stuff would "set" and so the machinery could not be started again, but would be ruined. They have been fairly at work a week or two, and yesterday, July 19, they were to make their first shipment of the prepared and completed product.

In connection with his account, he adds that the town has already become great enough to be divided into two parts, each a rival to the other. The east part is the one called Stroh, while the west part is named Elmira. Whether the new city will make a second Ashley-Hudson of herself, he does not know. But one thing he says, is certain, that the marl beds appear to be inexhaustible. In parts of the territory they do not know how deep they are, but the supply must be enormous. The town is just over in Lagrange county, close to the line, and is not in Steuben county as so many suppose. This great industrial center and the similiar one now starting up at Syracuse, will add greatly to the wealth-producing power of northern Indiana.

Preparing for War.

We are to send about 10,000 more men to China, and this may be still further increased. To give an idea of the vast amount of work and great expense, we give a few of the items.

The Ninth infantry in addition to four medical officers and twenty members of the hospital corps has with it a full regimental field hospital and additional fifty-bed field outfit. The Fourteenth infantry and light battery are provided with a field hospital for twenty-five beds. In addition to this there has been already shipped a general field hospital of three hundred beds medical supplies for 5,000 men for three months and a hospital fund of $50,000.

MEDICAL OFFICERS AND SUPPLIES.

The Grant, sailing July 3, with the Sixth cavalry, and the Sumner on July 16, carried eighteen medical officers, and seventy-eight hospital corps men, while Maj. Stephenson, one of the medical officers, has been provided with a $50,000 medical fund and $1,000 hospital fund. The Meade will sail on Aug. 1, with not less than eight medical officers and a field hospital of fifty beds. The details for the Hancock's sailing on Aug. 16, are not yet complete. The commissary department has made preparations to feed a force of marines and seamen engaged in shore service in China. Fifty thousand dollars in gold for use in China has been invoiced to the chief commissary at Manila. Maj. H. J. Gallagher has been detailed to report to Gen. Chaffee as chief commissary of the troops in China. Owing to the probable scarcity of fresh supplies on shore the department has had recourse again to canned beef, but for the present campaign it has been put in the form of beef stew, corned beef and corned beef hash, and sufficient vegetables have been canned with it to obviate the difficulty experienced in Cuba where the troops were forced to eat the beef from the cans without further cooking.

Two or three ice crushing ships will also be needed for use in keeping shallow harbors free of ice in the severe winter weather of Northern China.

Troops leaving the states for China will carry a complete outfit of comfortable clothing in addition to their regular clothing and tentage. Owing to the severe weather that may be expected in northern China during the winter the expedition will carry 1,400 Sibley stoves, 800 overcoats, 6,000 pairs of arctic overshoes, 3,000 blanket-lined canvas hoods and other extra heavy winter clothing in proportion sufficient for the 5,000 men.

The quartermaster's department has already shipped all the mounts of the Sixth cavalry, two completely equipped pack trains of 100 mules each and supplies for the same for 196 days. There are now enroute to Seattle 400 mules and 285 aparecjos to be shipped whenever needed.

To secure suitable drinking water for the troops on shore 100 sterilizers, capacity twenty-five gallons per hour, will be sent to San Francisco as soon as possible. The Meade on Aug. 1 will carry two distilling plants, capacity 600 gallons per day each. It is contemplated to send additional distilling plants as rapidly as possible, having in view the supply for at least 6,000 men.

Steps are being taken by the quartermaster's department to handle troops and freight for Taku by the regular Manilla transports, which will stop at Nagasaki and transship to lighter draught transports running from Nagasaki to Taku. Negotiations are now on foot with the Japanese government to secure this privilege. Animal ships have been chartered and will be fitted up as fast as possible to carry about 4,000 animals. The chief of ordnance furnishes a list of officers and material which will be available for use in China.

ROYAL Baking Powder
Absolutely Pure

Makes hot breakfast-breads wholesome—no yeast germs, no alum. Makes cake, biscuit and pastry of superior fineness, flavor and delicacy. Makes food that will keep moist and sweet. Is most economical, because it is the purest and greatest in leavening strength. In the easy, expeditious preparation of the finer cakes and pastries, Royal is indispensable.

Care must be taken to avoid baking powders made from alum. Such powders are sold cheap, because they cost but a few cents per pound. Not only will they spoil the cake, but alum is a corrosive acid, which taken in food means injury to health.

Her sister, Mrs. Gunn is located at Kinsey, Alabama, where she has charge of a school for girls. They bring word that Charles Jackman has located at Butte, Mont., where he is in the real estate business. He is married and is prospering. Here are three more DeKalb folks in prominent places.

The Best Remedy for Stomach and Bowel Troubles.

"I have been in the drug business for twenty years and have sold most all of the proprietary medicines of any note. Among the entire list I have never found anything to equal Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for all stomach and bowel troubles," says O. W. Wakefield, of Columbus, Ga. "This remedy cured two severe cases of cholera morbus in my family and I have recommended and sold hundreds of bottles of it to my customers to their entire satisfaction. It affords a quick and sure cure in a pleasant form." For sale by H. B. McCord.

Eloped Eight Times.

A woman died of poison the other day, near Norfolk, Conn. She was married to a farmer, but had a mania for eloping with other men. She had just eloped the eighth time and it is believed the eighth man had given her poison. She came home, falling in a faint at her own door. Her husband got a doctor and tried to save her life, but in vain.

Heartburn.

When the quantity of food taken is too large or the quality too rich heartburn is likely to follow, and especially so if the digestion has been weakened by constipation. Eat slowly and not too freely of easily digested food. Masticate the food thoroughly. Let six hours elapse between meals and when you feel a fullness and weight in the region of the stomach after eating, indicating that you have eaten too much, take one of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and the heartburn may be avoided. For sale by H. B. McCord.

A Good Cough Medicine.

Many thousands have been restored to health and happiness by the use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. If afflicted with any throat or lung trouble, give it a trial for it is certain to prove beneficial. Coughs that have resisted all other treatment for years, have yielded to this remedy and perfect health been restored. Cases that seemed hopeless, that the climate of famous health resorts failed to benefit, have been permanently cured by its use. For sale by H. B. McCord.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

FROM THE MOTHER OF A MURDERED SOLDIER.

Briefly told, First Sergeant John Jay Livingston, of Company D, 12th U. S. Infantry, was shot and instantly killed by a private, crazed with canteen whiskey. If the truthful and graphic pen of your corrospondent could portray the desolation and broken hearts in the homes of the soldiers all over our fair land, caused by government poison, your columns could not contain the records.

My son was a total abstainer, a student, and fond of athletic games. When his regiment was at Fort Sulley he had a large box of reading matter sent from home for a post reading-room. The raw recruits were his greatest care—poor, homesick lads, ready for anything to assuage that heartache, whom the pull toward the canteen wouldgenerally win.

The unfortunate private, who fired the fatal shot, was just recovering from a long drunk. He is said to have been a general favorite with his company when not on a spree. What a satire on a paternal government that cannot protect its defenders from foes within when they have offered their lives to protect it from foes without. A mother's heart is too full to say more.

THE EFFECTS OF ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGES.

Let us ask the leading professional and business men of the world.

The Minister of the Gospel:—Take John Wesley as a representative. He says, "It drives men to hell like sheep."

Poets, Shakespeare:—"O, thou invisible spirit of wine, if there is no other name by which to call thee, let us call thee devil."

Statesmen, Gladstone:—"It has destroyed more of the human family than war, pestilence and famine."

Lawyers, U. S. Supreme Court:—By consensus of opinion, the open saloon causes more of crime, pauperism and misery than any other one thing in the nation.

Physician:—It renders the human system more liable to disease and less able to resist disease when taken.

Railroads:—Forty-seven trunk lines have forbidden their employes to use intoxicating liquors.

No bank or leading business house will employ a man or woman who is known to use intoxicating liquors.

In the light of the above testimony should saloons be licensed to sell such man-destroying substance?

Whenever a man will consent to shoose the least of two evils, the devil will always be ready to present a dilemma with two horns to that man.

If prayer alone could kill the saloon, it would have been dead long ago.

Give us prohibition of the liquor traffic, stop the waste of $1,200,000,000 spent every year for drink, and the biggest financial question will be settled.

HISTORY OF A WEEK.

PEOPLE, PLACES AND THINGS OF THE WORLD.

News of Crimes and Criminals, Accidents, Fires, Etc., from North, South, East and West, Sandwiched with Minor Affairs.

Cloudburst Works Havoc.

A cloudburst occurred at Herrick, between Adena and Long Run, in Jefferson County, Ohio, on the line of the Wheeling & Lake Erie Railway, and Long Run became a raging torrent, carrying off several houses and drowning three persons whose names cannot be learned. Several county bridges, railroad bridges, and sections of track of the W. & L. E, were washed out. The train service on the railroad is suspended.

A washout is reported on Buffalo creek, in Booke County, W. Va. Several frame houses are reported to have been washed away and indefinite information is to the effect that several persons were drowned.

Outlaw Shoots a Sheriff.

Tid Fisher, an outlaw who was arrested at Southwest City, Mo., on a charge of highway robbery some time ago and gave bond for his appearance at court, resented being again taken in custody, and shot and mortally wounded Richard Jarrett, sheriff of McDonald county. Young Fisher escaped, but was surrounded by a posse of citizens in a clover field, and, refusing to surrender, was riddled with bullets, dying soon after. Fisher's father was arrested on a charge of being an accomplice to the murder of Sheriff Jarrett and was taken Neosho, Mo., to jail.

Banks Must Pay Up.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has held that if any part of the surplus of a bank is set over to the account of "profit and loss" or "undivided profits" it must still be taken into account in reckoning the special tax of the bank.

Even actual undivided profits, if they are by formal action of the bank authorities ordered to be employed in the banking business instead of being divided among the stock holders, must be included in estimating the amount of special tax which the bank is required to pay.

Enormous Chinese Force Mobalized.

A dispatch from Che Foo says: "Prince Tuan has mobilized 950,000 men, divided into different corps. The northern corps has been ordered to expel foreigners from Amur. The Pekin army is divided into four corps, the first of which is to operate against Mukden and occupy the roads between Pekin and Shan Hai Kuan, the second is to cancentrate at Tien Tsin and the third at Pekin, whence a column numbering 40,000 will be sent to Wei Hai Wei and Tsin Tau, while the fourth corps will concentrate at Nankin.

Excursionists Injured

While 2,500 persons were waiting at the station, at Johnstown, Pa., to go with the A. O. U. W. excursion to Lakemont Park, near Altoona, an accident occurred in which six persons were injured, two fatally. The excursionists were boarding the first section of the train, when a westbound freight, passing at a high rate of speed, struck them.

Chaffee a Major General.

The commission of Brigadier General A. R. Chaffee as Major General in command of the Chinese expeditionary force was made out at the War Department Friday morning and sent to the White House for the President's signature. Cable notice of the appointment was sent to Nagasaki, Japan, where it will meet Gen. Chaffee on his arrival there.

The Oregon.

A dispatch from Commander Wild, of the Oregon, dated Kure, said the Oregon and Nashville arrived at that place. He suggested that the Oregon be temporarily repaired with steel plates and go back to duty immediately. Secretary Long commended the suggestion and replied to patch if safety permitted and go back to Taku.

"War of Reprisal."

The latest development in the policy of this government is to conduct a "war of reprisal" against China. This is recognized by international law and consists of enforcing demands by invading with troops without severing diplomatic relations. It is expected in this way to keep the southern provinces quiet.

Coffee Is Advanced.

An advance of one-half cent per pound in the price of package coffee was announced by Arbuckle Bros., making the net price twelve and one-half cents.

Want All Powers to Join.

Austria and England have asked Greece to send a warship to China. Other small powers, both European and American will be asked to do the same.

Odd Auction in London.

London special: During the week there will be offered for sale in a London auction room, the baby clothes worn by Oliver Cromwell. These include a cap embroidered with the words, "Sweet Bab, Don't Cry," and dated 1599, the year the lord protector was born.

Gold From Alaska.

A dispatch from Vancouver, B. C., says: The steamer Cutch has arrived here from Skaguay with $300,000 in gold and sixty passengers. A dozen cases of small-pox have broken out at Dawson.

Boys Bound by Safe Robbers.

Four masked robbers blew open the safe of Charles Y. Bussy's private bank at Hudson, Ohio, securing $400. They bound and gagged two boys who were sleeping in the room, while the night watchman was held up at the muzzle of a revolver.

Murdered Man's Body Found.

A farmer made a ghastly find on the Chattanooga dirt road, six miles south of Cleveland, Tenn. It was the remains of a white man, 60 years of age, hidden in a clump of bushes near the road. There was a large hole in the side of the head and bruises on the face and body.

CONGER HEARD FROM.

CHINESE MINISTER RECEIVES CIPHER MESSAGE.

Dispatch Reports the Legations Under Continued Fire from Chinese Troops, and Says Only Quick Relief Can Prevent a General Massacre.

"In British legation, under continued shot and shell from Chinese troops. Quick relief only can prevent general massacre."

This dispatch in cipher was received by the State Department in Washington through Chinese Minister Wu, Friday morning. It was dated July 19, and showed that Minister Conger was alive in Pekin on July 18.

The following is the statement issued by the State Department with regard to Conger's cablegram: "On the 11th of this month the Secretary of State communicated a brief message asking tidings of Minister Conger in the State Department code. Mr. Wu undertook to get this into Minister Conger's hands, if he was alive. He has succeeded in doing this. Friday morning the Secretary of State received this telegram from the consul general at Shanghai: "Your telegram was forwarded as requested. I send you the reply of the Tsung-li-Yamen as follows: 'Your telegram of the 15th day of this moon (11th of July) received, and the Secretary of State's telegram has been handed to Minister Conger. Herewith Minister Conger's reply to the Secretary of State, which please forward.'"

The following is Mr. Conger's reply: "In British legation under continued shot and shell from Chinese troops. Quick relief only can prevent general massacres."

This reply was in the State Department's hands and its contents were of course unknown to Minister Wu, who took it there. It was regarded by the State Department as genuine, as forgery seemed under the circumstances impossible.

As soon as Minister Conger's cablegram had been translated a cabinet council was called in the office of the Secretary of State and all of the cabinet ministers accessible met in session.

President McKinley's first news of Minister Conger's dispatch was handed him the instant he left the train at Canton, Ohio, by the Associated Press correspondent. Scanning the bulletin, he gave evidences of pleasure at the news. Later, when the State Department's statement first reached him, adding strength to the genuineness of the news, he was more visibly gratified.

TIEN-TSIN IS TAKEN.

Chinese Routed After Three Days of Desperate Fighting.

The powers are preparing to pour troops into China. From every capital comes the news that hosts are forming for a war of revenge. Now the attention of the nations is diverted from Pekin to Tientsin, which, according to reports, the allied forces had succeeded in taking. Actual war upon China is on, and it is feared that it will be a long and wasting war, for the Chinese, since their contest with Japan, are well prepared for hostilities.

The London Daily Mail gives the following dispatch from its Shanghai correspondent: "The allied troops resumed the attack upon the Chinese walled city of Tientsin on the morning of July 14 and succeeded in breaching the walls and capturing all the forts. The Chinese were completely routed and the allies took possession of the native city and its defenses. The total losses of the allies in the engagements of Thursday, Friday and Saturday were about 800 killed or wounded. The casualties were greatest among the Russians and Japanese."

The guns of the allies did immense damage to the native city, causing many large conflagrations, and finally silenced the majority of the enemy's guns simultaneously. Then the 1,500 Russians, assisted by small parties of Germans and French, assaulted and captured eight guns that were in position on the railway embankment and the fort, the magazine of which the French subsequently blew up. A body of American, British, Japanese and Austrian troops then made a sortie and attacked the west arsenal, which the Chinese had reoccupied. After three hours of the hardest fighting yet experienced the Chinese fled.

Admiral Remey cabled the navy department at Washington that the city and forts of Tientsin are in the hands of the allies. His list of killed and wounded is somewhat fuller than the first report. Total killed and wounded reported, 775; Russians and Japanese lost heavily. Our total loss, he says, is 215; about 40 were marines, but number believed to be exaggerated.

According to a Shanghai dispatch 100,000 Chinese troops armed with Mauser rifles and modern artillery are encamped at three points within forty miles of Shanghai, ready to besiege the town in the event of an attack by the Europeans

Never, since Xerxes' time, have the nations of the world gathered their varied armies together as is now the case at Tien-Tsin. Under the walls of that grim old Chinese town, English and American, French and German, Japanese and Russian, Austrian and Italian fought side by side, hereditary enmities forgotten, vengeance in their hearts and the great world's approval at their backs. At Leipsic, in 1813, Napoleon, with his French and Polish troops, faced Germans, Austrians, Russians and Swedes, while at Waterloo the Corsican had to meet English, Germans, Belgians and Hollanders. In the Crimean war, Russia stood against English, French, Turkish and Italian armies, but in none of these conflicts were so many or such heterogeneous forces brought together as in China yesterday. The battle of Tien-Tsin might well be called the battle of the nations.

CHINESE WARN VICEROYS.

Reformers at San Francisco Urge Them to Protect Foreigners.

The members of the Chinese Empire Reform Association of San Francisco are very much perturbed over the serious condition of affairs in the Orient and are exerting every possible endeavor to prevent the persecution of foreigners residing in China. Cablegrams are being sent daily to the viceroys of the different provinces praying them to use all their influence to prevent further slaughter of innocent persons of other nations who have not had an opportunity to leave the country for some place of safety.

SCENES AND CHARACTERS IN CHINESE WAR.

LISCUM AND DAVIS KILLED.

Colonel of Ninth Infantry and Captain of Marines Fall at Tien-tsin.

The Navy Department Monday morning received official confirmation from Admiral Remey of the reverse of the allied forces at Tien-Tsin on the morning of the 13th. The dispatch is dated Chefoo, and says:

"Reported that allied forces attacked native city the morning of the 13th. Russians were on the right, with Ninth infantry and marines on the left. Losses allied forces large. Russian 100, including artillery colonel, Americans over thirty, British over forty, Japanese fifty-eight, including colonel, French twenty-five. Col. Liscom, Ninth infantry, killed, also Capt. REVENGE IS THE CRY OF EUROPE.

Fate of Foreigners in Pekin Stirs War Spirit in England.

"Revenge to-day, mourning to-morrow," is practically the universal cry of Europe, but it is sorrowfully admitted that there can be no revenge to-day, nor, perhaps, for many to-morrows, for the incredible barbarities that are reported to have marked the last scenes within the legations at Pekin. Nothing is clearer, a London dispatch says, than that the anti-foreign conflagration is rapidly permeating even hitherto quiescent provinces, and the fate of the capital appears to threaten other towns like Tien-Tsin, Chefoo and even Shanghai. The defeat of the allied forces at Tien-Tsin seems to place that town in desperate straits, and if retreat to Taku is necessitated observers consider that it will be likely to decide the policy of wavering viceroys.

SPREAD OF THE REBELLION.

Boxer Uprising Has Taken Hold of Points in Southern China.

A dispatch from Chefoo says: "Prince Tuan has mobilized 950,000 men, divided into different corps. The northern corps has been ordered to expel foreigners from Amur. The Pekin army is divided into four corps, the first of which is to operate against Mukden and occupy the roads between Pekin and Shan-Hai-Kuan; the second is to concentrate at Tien-Tsin and the third at Pekin, whence a column numbering 40,000 will be sent to Wei-Hai-Wei and Tsin-Tau, while the fourth corps will concentrate at Nankin. There are now 23,000 Japanese troops in China.

The rebellion has taken hold of southern China. The foreigners at Chu-Chau and In-Chau have been attacked and are fleeing panic-stricken.

(1) Direction of attack by American, British, Japanese and French troops. (2) Point to which Americans retired. (3) Direction of Russian attack. (4) Chinese position reported captured July 9 by the allies.

At 2 o'clock on the afternoon of the 13th 7,000 of the allied troops attempted to storm the wall of the city. The Chinese on the walls were estimated conservatively at 20,000. They poured a terrific hail of artillery, rifle and machine gun fire upon the attackers.

The Americans suffered terribly. The chief surgeon of the Ninth infantry said a conservative estimate was that 25 per cent of the Americans were hit. Col. Wilson H. Liscum was mortally wounded, as he was walking in front of the troops

SOLDIERS FOR CHINA.

Five Thousand More Men to Be Sent to the Orient.

Washington advices say that troops originally intended for the Philippines, but given orders to proceed to Nagasaki and there await instructions, will be sent to China. These, with the troops sent to China from the Philippines, will bring the American army representation on Chinese soil up to more than 10,000 men. It was decided also that more troops should go to the disturbed empire, and, despite the fact that the Government can ill afford to spare them, several additional regiments will be sent from the United States and Cuba.

WOULD RAZE PEKIN TO GROUND.

German Paper Outlines the Course Civilization Should Follow.

In a leader on the massacre at Pekin, the Cologne Gazette says: "A certain Chinese element, if not the Chinese Government or people, has forced war upon us, and it was shown in the Pekin massacre what form this war must take. All Western civilization must now arm for vengeance. The Chinese must be treated as cannibals and Pekin razed to the ground. Then the Chinese must be compelled to rebuild it as a free city according to the precepts of Western civilization. Now is the time when the vitality of two civilizations must be put to the final test and the nations of the West must emerge victorious, be the sacrifice what it may."

Loyal to the United States.

Wong Yee Chow presided over a meeting of 150 of the Chinese merchants and residents of Los Angeles, Cal., held to give expression to their views on the present crisis in China. Resolutions were passed pledging themselves to do all in their power to uphold and assist in upholding the laws of the United States so long as they are residents of this country.

A dispatch from Nankin announces that Prince Tuan has ordered a great military movement, owing to the appearance of the Japanese in China. The viceroy of Nankin has informed the foreign consuls there that he cannot be answerable for events in Chao-Sin, Ning-Po and Chu-Chau. The foreigners are fleeing to Shanghai. The position is alarming. Sixteen foreigners have arrived at Nankin from Ning-Po, where the houses of foreigners have been burned and missionaries horribly maltreated.

SHOOTS HIS OWN MEN.

Seymour's Wounded Soldiers Prefer Death to Torture by Chinese.

The most horrible feature of the fighting at Tien-Tsin was that Admiral Seymour was obliged to kill his wounded in order to prevent them from falling into the hands of the Chinese. Bodies of some of the men who had been captured by the Boxers while still alive show that they had been subjected to the most horrible tortures. Admiral Seymour in retreat found that he was unable absolutely to longer care for his wounded. He gave a hearing to all who had any suggestions to make, but it was impossible for the force to get away and carry the wounded men with them.

CONDITION OF CROPS.

Corn Makes Favorable Progress in the Middle States.

The Agricultural Department's crop report gives the following summary of crop conditions:

Notwithstanding excessively heavy rains on the west gulf coast and in portions of the central Missouri valley, and the prevalence of drought to a greater or less extent in the middle and south Atlantic States, and over portions of Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma, the week has been generally favorable in the districts east of the Rocky Mountains. Throughout the Rocky Mountain and plateau regions there is general scarcity of water, especially in the southern districts.

The condition of corn in Kansas and Nebraska is less favorable than in the previous week, and the crop is suffering for rain in portions of Missouri, southern Ohio, West Virginia, Maryland, Virginia and North Carolina. In Indiana, Illinois, and Iowa corn has made very favorable progress, and is improved in Kentucky, Tennessee and Pennsylvania. Harvesting of winter wheat is about completed except in the more northerly districts, the weather conditions being very favorable for this work in the districts east of the Mississippi river except in portions of New York, where it has been interrupted by rains. Harvesting is well advanced on the Pacific coast.

Improvement in the condition of spring wheat is reported from Minnesota and South Dakota, and while no decided improvement is reported from North Dakota the weather conditions in that State have been propitious. In Minnesota the crop has suffered some damage from local firms. Fair to good yields are expected in the extreme southeastern counties of South Dakota.

Oat harvest is in progress in the States of the central valleys and a very fine crop generally is being secured in good condition.

Wet weather has interrupted haying in northern New England, but elsewhere hay is nearly completed in the States of the central valleys. Rains have caused damage to hay in Michigan, Louisiana and Texas.

A general improvement in the condition of cotton is reported, except in Florida and Louisiana, but the plant is small and is fruiting slowly in the central and eastern districts, where some fields are still grassy. In Texas the crop has made good growth, but is very uneven and the early planted is fruiting well, except in scattered localities.

EXTRA SESSION WAITS.

President Wants More Conclusive News to Base Call On.

No extra session of Congress at present, but a marked increase in the number of American troops to be sent immediately to China. This was the decision reached by the President and his cabinet after a session lasting most of Tuesday afternoon. President McKinley came from Canton specially to attend this meeting of the cabinet and to decide what should be done in the face of the great crisis now pending in the Orient.

While the decision not to call Congress together in extraordinary session was reached by unanimous vote in Tuesday's cabinet meeting, the question is left open to be determined according to future events. A Washington correspondent declares, however, upon what he claims is good authority, that unless unexpected disaster overtakes the allies in China, or a great increase in the number of international troops operating on the coast and along the road to Pekin should be decided upon, no extraordinary session of the American Congress will be necessary. The disposition in Washington, he says, is to avoid one unless events should make it imperative, and it is not believed that any such grave emergency is likely to arise.

Brief News Items.

Judge Denny, 62, Portland, Ore., former consul general at Tien-Tsin and Shanghai, is dead.

It is estimated that the armor for the new battleships for the German navy will cost $65,000,000.

The inspection board reported the Kentucky as very satisfactory. The double turrets performed splendidly.

Farmers of the Quemahoning valley, Pa., armed to prevent the building of a dam by the Cambria Steel Company.

The receipts of the Philippine treasury during April were $786,367.87, an increase over the previous month of $155,595.

Advices from St. Petersburg reported abnormal activity in naval circles. Ten torpedo boats were being prepared to reenforce the Russian Pacific squadron.

In Maryland a man had patented a shirt having a detachable bosom, which can be easily removed and a fresh one put in its place when soiled, the shirt having a series of buttons, to which tongues on the edges of the bosom are attached.

A packing house employe in Kansas City has invented a device for plucking feathers from chickens. It is so arranged that cross currents of air, set in motion by revolving electrical fans, completely strip a bird of every feather and any particle of down.

The Secretary of the Navy has authorized the following names for the new battleships and cruisers: Battleships—Virginia and Rhode Island. Armored cruisers—Maryland, Colorado and South Dakota. Protected cruisers—St. Louis, Milwaukee and Charleston.

There is a plan now before the Italian Parliament for providing the three southeastern provinces of Foogia, Bari and Lecce with water from Caposele, in the Apennines, by building an aqueduct 103 miles long, with branches that will bring up the total length to 860 miles.

RECORD OF THE WEEK

INDIANA INCIDENTS TERSELY TOLD.

Epworth Leaguers Elect Officers—Unusual Accident to an Express—Farmers and Others Desire Revival of the County Fairs—Killed by a Train.

At the Epworth League convention in South Bend the election of officers resulted as follows: President, O. H. Palmer, Indianapolis; first vice-president, J. S. Soyle, Bluffton; second vice-president, J. N. Walker, Greencastle; third vice-president, Mrs. Flora Kendall, Greensburg; fourth vice-president, J. S. Dougherty, Thornton; secretary, W. H. Braman, South Bend; treasurer, J. H. Brood, Covington; superintendent of junior department, Mrs. Perry Paul, Peru; presiding elders, Salem B. Towne, Greencastle; B. F. Kemp, Goshen, and E. P. Rawls, Indianapolis. The fight for the convention of 1902 was warm, Indianapolis, Fort Wayne and Terre Haute working for the honor. On the first ballot Indianapolis won by a narrow margin over Fort Wayne.

Locomotive Boiler Blows Up.

The north-bound express on the Fort Wayne, Cincinnati and Louisville division of the Lake Erie and Western Railway was wrecked as it was leaving Beeson station by the engine boiler of No. 27 exploding. The train had just left the station when the boiler exploded with terrific force, but left the cab and tender on the track. Engineer Bob Kelley had a leg broken and his head cut, but Fireman Otto Simmers escaped. The passengers were badly shaken up and a rain of flying iron fell on the cars, but no one was injured.

Hope to Revive County Fairs.

Another attempt is being made to revive the old-fashioned county fairs, which were until five years ago extremely popular with residents both of the city and country in northern Indiana counties. All the county fairs for miles around have been abandoned, they having lost money rapidly in the closing years. There is now a demand for their revival, and an effort is being made at North Manchester to get back the old tri-county fair grounds and form a new association and hold a fair in 1901.

Struck and Killed by a Train.

Jacob Dowell of Whitley County was run down and killed by a fast passenger train on the Detroit line of the Wabash road. He attempted to drive across the track and, though the engineer repeatedly sounded a warning whistle, he either did not notice it or thought he could get over. He was hurled forty feet. The body was found against a box car on a siding.

Fisherman Dies of His Injuries.

George Mattix, a wagon maker, was found three miles north of Frankfort with his skull fatally crushed and otherwise cut and bruised. He had left town on a fishing trip and it is supposed went to sleep on the Monon track.

State News in Brief.

South Bend hack lines have consolidated.

Andrew F. Hobbs, 89, Greensburg, is dead.

John Crossley, 84, pioneer of Hamilton County, is dead.

A crusade against weeds has been started in Shelbyville.

George Carlisle, 18, Anderson, fatally injured in a runaway.

Logansport Church of God has broken ground for a new building.

Earl Burton, aged 13 years, died at La Porte of lockjaw, caused by stepping on broken glass.

Four persons more than 100 years old were found by census enumerators in St. Joseph County.

Alonzo Flinn, aged 19 years, was drowned while fishing in the White river east of Bedford.

Mrs. Solomon Evans, near Richland, killed by a falling tree. Her husband was also hurt and may die.

A. C. Barnett, Logansport, has a half acre planted in Vultera leaf tobacco and a quarter-acre in peanuts.

Nelson W. Weakley, Thorntown, is dead. He was the oldest freight agent on the Big Four Railroad.

Carpenters repairing a roof at Sullivan removed nearly a wagon load of hay and straw placed there by sparrows.

Philip Devening, foreman of the late grand jury, has filed affidavits against eleven Shelbyville saloonkeepers for selling liquor July 4.

Paul Weldon, Kokomo, caught in a line shaft at the pulp mill. One arm was broken in six places, his shoulder crushed and five ribs broken.

Miss Eva Eshom, 38, near Medora, committed suicide by shooting herself through the heart with a shotgun. Thought she was demented.

As the coffin of a child was lowered into the grave at Elwood a snake looked into the grave. It caused several women to faint and great excitement was caused.

Young son of Joseph W. Mathis, Marion, is now a hero. He snatched a toddling baby from in front of a Clover Leaf freight train, and barely saved his own life.

In a runaway accident at Columbus Ed Mooney, his housekeeper, Miss Sallie Tolbott, his little son and daughter and Miss Gray were thrown from the buggy violently to the ground. Mr. Mooney died.

The 6-year-old son of H. E. Hathaway, Muncie, fell from a bridge over White river. His head was split and he will die. Just before falling he said: "If I should fall down there it would kill me, wouldn't it, papa?"

Will F. Wood of Lebanon, who gained notoriety in 1896 through his connection with the Pearl Bryan murder case, has eloped with Blanche Daily, only daughter of A. C. Daily, ex-Auditor of State. Wood and Miss Daily met in Danville, Ill., and were married.

At Shelbyville Carl C. Wilson pleaded guilty to a charge of forgery and was sentenced to from two to fourteen years in prison. His father, ex-County Treasurer Wilson, was given a similar sentence for presenting a false claim against the county and they were taken to prison together.

Lee C. Thayer, for the past thirty-five years a merchant of Greenfield, sold his store to his brother, H. B. Thayer. The new proprietor will start a big department store.

The Rev. Z. T. Sweeney of the La Porte Christian Church will leave soon for Paris to conduct American services during the exposition. Nearly $5,000 has been contributed for this work.

Earl Gross, aged 18, son of A. E. Gross, was drowned in White river at Coy's ford, near Anderson. He was wading the river and got beyond his depth and was drowned in the presence of a hundred people who were powerless to help him.

"SIGN OF THE SMILE."

We're weary a-walking the highway of life;
We're fretted and flustered with worry and strife.
Let us drop by the wayside the heavy old load,
And rest at the inn at the turn of the road—
Let us tarry a while
At the "Sign of the Smile."

Ho, the "Sign of the Smile" is a jolly inn,
With gargoyles about it that do naught but grin.
There's always a laugh and a shoulder to whack,
And an echo that ever will answer us back—
Let us tarry a while
At the "Sign of the Smile."

At the "Sign of the Smile" we will linger long there—
For the strictest of rules is the ban upon care,
And the guests must forget there are such things as years,
And never shed any but laughter-brought tears—
Let us tarry a while
At the "Sign of the Smile."

There'll be flagons of jollity for us to sip,
And many and many a rollicking quip,
Though the jokes may be old—like the juice of the vine,
They mellow with age to the richest of wine—
Let us tarry a while
At the "Sign of the Smile."

Let us tarry a while at the "Sign of the Smile"—
Forget all our griefs in the joys that beguile.
Let us pleasure the noon till it changes to night,
Then up with our loads and we'll find they are light—
If we tarry a while
At the "Sign of the Smile."

Little Marjorie's Mission.

MAY WORTHINGTON sat in her luxurious home thinking over the past seven years of her life, and, if one may judge by the expression upon her face, then her's were no pleasant reveries.

Yet they were not all sad memories, for her face would brighten up with an almost holy love light in her eyes, as if the dark clouds were almost dispelled by the strong rays of golden sunlight.

And it was so. Hers was the not unfamiliar story of old—a life begun under the most promising conditions, domestic happiness and wedded unity.

Harold Worthington, the trusted and trustworthy cashier in a large banking institution, had welcomed his bride to an elegantly appointed home. For three years theirs was a life of ideal happiness, and when little Marjorie came to bless their union they felt as if their happiness had indeed been crowned.

Then came the time when that demon jealousy had entered the breast of Harold Worthington, unfounded, it is true, and sowed by the poisonous tongue of an envious club man. But the little seed so cunningly planted grew until its thorns rankled and cut deep; and as time wore on a coldness sprang up between the once united hearts. Each was too proud to make humble concession, and Harold remained oftener and longer at his club, until finally, after an open dissension, he remained away altogether.

Hourly each had longed for the old happy days of sweet, sweet home, but pride—that barrier to so many happy firesides—pride forbade.

On this particular evening May had put little Marjorie to bed, and then she sat down, and, relaxing her self-control, threw her arms upon the table, and, burying her white face in them, cried out:

"Oh, Harold, Harold, if it had not been for your unreasonable jealousy, we might have been so happy."

So absorbed was she that she did not hear the ring at the door bell, nor the footsteps in the hall.

The man who had just entered started back as he saw the bowed form, then advancing he said gently:

"May!"

She started to her feet, and for an instant the old glad look of welcome sprang into her eyes; then, suddenly remembering, she drew herself up proudly and coldly said:

"Harold! You here? I don't understand. It has been so long."

"Yes," he replied in an equally cold tone. "I am going away for a year, two years, ten years—I cannot tell—and I have come to make settlements for your support and Marjorie's education before leaving forever——"

"Hush. She must not hear."

He paused, and his glance followed that of his wife. There, between the parted curtains, stood a little, white-robed figure, almost angelic in its purity. Then she sprang forward with a glad cry of "Papa! Papa! I knew it was my papa's voice!"

Straight into his arms she sprang, and was clasped close to the father's heart.

The almost heartbroken mother could bear no more and quietly withdrew, leaving them together.

"Papa?"

"Yes, darling."

"Where have you been so long? We have been so lonesome. It made mamma cry, and when I said my prayers, mamma said if I prayed hard God would keep you safe and bring you home, and oh, papa, He has, He has! You will never go away again, will you?" And she twined her little arms around his neck and kissed him with childish fervor.

The strong man shook with emotion, and a great sob burst from him as he bowed his head upon little Marjorie's neck and asked:

"And mamma—would she wish it?"

"Oh, yes! She will not cry any more if you stay—mamma! mamma! Where are you?"

"Here, dear," responded May, as she entered the room.

"Papa is never going away again, and we shall have him all of the time. Oh, aren't we glad, mamma?"

May, remembering her husband's words when he came in, looked at him inquiringly.

"Shall I stay, May?"

"Say yes, mamma—oh, say yes, quick!" cried the child.

"Harold," she said, and her voice rang with truth, "as my heavenly father bears me witness, your suspicions were most unjust—unfounded. From the day that I met you at the altar your honor has been as dear to me as my own, and I have been faithful to you in thought, word and deed. I can only answer your question by asking another: My husband, can you trust me?"

"Yes, May, my own true wife. My eyes have been opened, and I have longed, oh, how I have longed for this hour! Take me back to your heart, my darling one, and let us begin again. Come, May, come to me."

Half an hour later the young wife, with a happy smile upon her sweet face, pointed to little Marjorie, as she lay sleeping in her father's arms.

"Yes," said the father as he gazed upon the upturned face, "the little peacemaker's mission is finished, and she sleeps."

Then they bore her to her little white bed, kissed her closed eyes, and hand in hand they knelt down in silent thanksgiving.—Boston Post.

Unclaimed.

Every year there are picked up in the gutters of London, or taken from pawnbrokers' shops, jewels amounting in value from fifteen to twenty thousand pounds. These are duly advertised; but for many reasons even people who recognize the description of their own property in the advertisements do not care to claim it, and it thus comes about that the proportion of property left unclaimed is a large one. It is the rule, indeed, that where such valuables have not previously been reported to the police by their owners as missing they are seldom claimed afterwards. The London police keep all such property for twelve months, advertising it in three daily papers during that period. If no one claims it, and the account of the finder seems reasonable, it is handed over to the latter, the police deducting the cost of the advertisements only. If a pawnbroker has detained the article and no one claims it, the police at the end of twelve months give the pawnbroker a reward; and here let it be said that these rewards often amount in a year to a large sum. In this latter case the article is sold, and the surplus money, after the reward has been paid, is handed over, not to the police funds, as most people imagine, but to the relief and maintenance of discharged prisoners. It has been put as a paradox that a thief may in this way ultimately be led to a new way of life by his own original theft.

Hands Were in His Pockets.

There was a garden party for a charitable object out in the suburbs one evening recently, and for the space of one long minute in the latter part of the evening I thought I was about to witness what they call on the stage a thrilling situation. I went to stroll in the grounds with a young girl who wanted to ask my advice about what she had already made up her mind, and we wandered where Japanese lanterns were few. She was telling me all about Charley—or, perhaps it was Dick—when suddenly in the dim light before us we saw the young man himself. His back was toward us, and he was walking somewhat closer than was entirely necessary to a girl in a light organdie frock. The gown looked almost white in the faint light, but about the waist of it was a wide band of something dark. The girl beside me stopped short and drew a deep breath.

"Oh!" she gasped.

Just then the couple in front of us stepped into the bright light of a lantern. The wide black band was still about the girl's whist, but both Dick's hands were in his pockets. My companion drew another long breath.

"Oh!" she said again.—Washington Post.

Sarcasm About the Clergy.

"Lighter Moments" is the title of a modest little book, chiefly anecdotes of the clergy, recently published in London by the executors of the late Bishop Walsham How. He relates a couple of anecdotes of Archbishop Magee. When that dignitary was Bishop of Peterborough he was walking with the Bishop of Hereford by the Wye, and said: "If you will give me your river I will give you my see." There is this other story also in Bishop How's collection: "A lady who was a great admirer of a certain preacher took Bishop Magee with her to hear him, and asked him afterward what he thought of the sermon. 'It was very long,' the Bishop said. 'Yes,' said the lady, 'but there was a saint in the pulpit.' 'And a martyr in the pew,' rejoined the Bishop." Dr. How had the following definition: "Dr. B—— of Oswestry has three horses, which he has named 'High Church,' 'Low Church' and 'Broad Church.' The reason he gives is that the first is always on his knees, the second never, and as for the third you never know what he will do next."

The Profession of Forestry.

A comparatively new profession in America, and one that offers substantial inducements to young men of special aptitudes, is that of forestry. The fact that the Federal Government is increasing the area of its forest preserves largely every year, and that many State governments are following this laudable example suggests the ever-widening field already open to students and specialists in the science of forestry. It is now generally recognized that every large forest reservation or preserve needs for its proper care and supervision a corps of men trained for this special purpose. Germany, France and other European countries have had their schools of forestry for years, and their graduates are found in charge of forest lands in every part of the old world.

ARE HUMAN FIENDS.

CHINESE PRACTICE DEVILISH FORMS OF TORTURE.

Of All Peoples on Earth They Are the Most Cruel and Delight in Long-Drawn Out Punishment—Some of Their Systems.

Of all races on the face of the earth the Chinese are the most cruel, the most devoted to fearful torture of those in their power and the most adept in devising ever new forms of martyrdom for the objects of their hatred. In their almost simple cruelty they are lower than the animals. If they merely delighted in torturing, one might say it was a perversion. But they do not merely delight in it. They torture living creatures, from rats to man, as a simple matter of course, and the native victims accept it equally as a matter of course. There is something supremely terrible in the matter-of-fact, stolid way in which they subject a prisoner to demoniac pain with as much readiness as a magistrate would sentence a man to spend ten days in jail.

To begin with, there is the whipping and scourging with bamboo rods. This is so common a method of "preparing" a victim for trial that it is hardly considered punishment, much less torture. Yet the bamboo is laid on hard enough to bring blood at each stroke, and, especially when it is applied to the soles of the feet, the victim often faints from pain and loss of blood combined. One hardly can enter a Chinese court of "justice" without witnessing a flogging.

The mildest punishment that is known to the simple and kindly official Chinese soul is the cage or cangue. Its principle is that of all Chinese punishments—slow torture. A Chinaman would take no artistic pleasure in anything that killed quickly or that reached its culmination of pain quickly. His victim must suffer a little more, and a little more, and then a little more, each hour. In that way he makes his delight last long and can keep a whole string of wretches to charm him by their slow dying for months. If he killed them at once his fun would be over too soon.

The cangue, then, is formed to keep the agony of the penitent up for months, till madness or death end its sufferings. It is a delightfully simple thing—so simple that there is nothing at all terrifying about it at first sight.

HUNG HEAD DOWNWARD.

It merely is a large frame of wood, with a collar in the middle. It weighs about fifty pounds, and is so made that it can be locked around a man's neck. When it is so locked it rests directly on the muscles of the neck and on the bones of the shoulder, and it is so constructed that it cannot be shifted even a tenth of an inch, nor can the weight be relieved with the hands. In addition, the collar has a sharp rim underneath. At first the victim does not suffer much, except from inconvenience. He is turned loose as soon as the cangue is locked on him, and for an hour or two he waddles around in fair comfort. But gradually, as the sharp edge of the collar cuts deeply into the flesh of his neck, and all his muscles are drawn more and more tense, pain begins to conquer him, and in a week the torturers have the felicity of seeing a maddened wretch stumble and fall around blindly, weeping and yelling with anguish.

The bamboo furnishes favorite implements for Chinese legal torturers. Sharpened slivers of bamboo are used for countless purposes in countless ways. Indeed, if the reader will imagine just what he would hate most to have done to him with a bamboo sliver, he will hit something that the Chinese are sure to do. The most simple and merciful deeds are to stick tiny slivers all over their victims and to leave them there to fester. Worse still is the cheerful practice of driving wedge-shaped pieces of bamboo under the finger or toe nails of accused persons. This is done slowly with a mallet.

How They Crucify.

Crucifixion is a common form of punishment, but usually it is only a mere accompaniment of other horrors. Of all punishments involving crucifixion, the one that delights the official Chinese heart the most is Ling-Chee. Ling-Chee is such a brilliant result of ingenious thought that the executioners rarely nail the man who is to suffer this form of punishment to the cross. They fear that the pain from that might interfere with his enjoyment of the real performance, which is nothing less than slicing him to death with diabolical skill. Therefore the man who is to suffer ling-chee generally is bound to the cross. Then there arrives the executioner. An executioner skillful at ling-chee is viewed with high respect in the empire, much as a successful bull-fighter is viewed in Spain. To bungle in ling-chee and to slice so much from the victim early in the game that he faints, or, worse still, dies before he has suffered all the slicing that has been decreed, would blacken the executioner's name forever, and might even make him the next subject for ling-chee.

The executioner is received with a little murmur of approbation, for his record is as well kept in mind as is the record of an athlete in America or England. He bows to the high dignitaries and then takes one of his swords from the sword-carrier who has followed him. They are wonderful swords that are used by the ling-chee executioners. Sometimes they are hundreds of years old and have records so long and bloody that a person with nerves might well shudder to touch them. The executioner does not shudder. He knows what depends on his delicacy of touch. Swiftly he swings the great weapon around his head till it whistles. Satisfied that it is ready for business, he approaches the victim slowly. First he feints at him and withdraws. Then he makes believe again. Suddenly the sword shoots in wickedly, and one of the victim's eyebrows is sliced off so neatly that it scarcely draws blood. Now begins wonderful work—wonderful, and devilish. It may be that the condemned man has been the subject of great imperial mercy. In that case he may have been blessed beyond compare by having his sentence commuted so that he is to be killed in only twenty slicings, whereas hardened offenders might have been sentenced to die only after seventy-five cuts or even more. If the victim is very lucky, the sword will be at him so swiftly that the eye scarcely can follow it. At each stroke some part of the poor bound body will fall to the ground. Now it may be a shoulder, now a piece of the breast, now an arm. Suddenly the last cut is made. It is straight at the heart, and the weapon cuts it out and ends the sufferings of the wretched man. But the spectacle is not ended. The executioner now has to dismember the corpse, and this he does with passes of the sword, each carefully studied and done accordingly to regularly laid-out rules, till there is absolutely nothing left on the cross and only a pile of terrible fragments lies at its base.

When ling-chee is to be a long operation, and the victim is to die only after long torture, the slicing sometimes is done so slowly that half a day elapses before the condemned man dies. The executioner knows just what to cut without killing, and he goes to work as carefully as would a surgeon. Muscles and tendons and flesh are stripped from the body with the razor blade of the sword, until only a dreadful framework remains that still has awful life in it. And at this terrible spectacle the Chinese gaze stolidly, without an expression either of pleasure or loathing.

Victim bound to a cross, while the executioner with a sharp sword slices on parts of his body. The torture sometimes lasts for a day before death ensues.

WEARING THE COLLAR.

Another ingenious torture that is much used is to suspend the condemned man with his head down in a pit. At the bottom are snakes, toads and all kinds of loathsome reptiles, which writhe within a few inches of the victim's face. Here he is left until the torture of the position, hunger, thirst and reptile bites kill him.

LIVING BEYOND ONE'S MEANS.

Leads, Through the Credit System, to Loss of Money and of Hope.

Dr. George C. Lorimer, in an article on "Living Beyond One's Means," says: "Some one has said that our children desire to begin where we leave off. Consequently, if they can procure the elegancies of life in no other way they will secure them on the credit system and pay interest on a cut-throat chattel mortgage, a form of finance that would bankrupt the Rothschilds and lead to a panic on every exchange in the world. For it is a fact that the poor pay far higher for the accommodations they receive than do the rich for theirs. The not usual outcome of this kind of housekeeping is that the debtor falls behind in his payments, is annoyed by duns, borrows a trifle from a friend to ward off the evil day, and at last abandons hope, losing furniture and all that has been paid as interest and principal.

"In happy contrast was the course adopted by a bright-eyed wife in Chicago. Calling at the house, I remarked, 'Your home looks very pretty.' She replied emphatically, 'It is pretty, for we have paid for everything in it.' Then she told me that before her marriage her intended requested her to select a carpet and he would buy it on trust; but that she stoutly refused, and assured him that the bare floor was good enough for her until he could afford to pay for what he purchased. I exclaimed, 'Bravo' and I am persuaded the little woman has made a good business man of her husband by this time."

The Tone of Bells.

Many persons suppose that the varying tones of the bells in a cathedral chime depend chiefly upon the size and thickness of the different bells. But a writer in the Scientific American says that the tone is governed by the protuberant ring of metal on the flange of the bell a little back from the edge. The bell-founder who desires to impart a particular tone to a bell is very careful about the thickness which he gives to this ring, and its dimensions are calculated in advance.

A Lock of Lincoln's Hair.

Mrs. C. D. Harmon, of Emporia, Kan., is the possessor of a lock of Abraham Lincoln's hair, which was cut from his head just before his death. The lock was given by Mrs. Lincoln to her sister, and in turn by the sister to Mrs. Harmon, whose husband was an associate of the martyred President when both were young lawyers in Illinois. The lock is long and straight and black, with gray hair here and there.

HIS TEETH, THOUGH FALSE.

One Man Who Retains the Masticaters that Nature Gave Him.

Four or five traveling men around the hotel stove had been talking about teeth, when one of them got up and, saying "good-night," went off to bed.

"Did you notice what fine teeth that party had?" said a man from St. Louis. "He won't acknowledge they are false, or rather he insists that they are his own, and yet he doesn't quite tell the truth. My brother is a dentist in Kansas City, and this man lives there, and my brother does his work for him. Not that he tells me anything, but merely as an incident, for everybody who knows the man knows the circumstances.

"His teeth are his own, and at the same time they are false. You don't understand, so I'll explain. He always had unusually fine teeth, but about five years ago they showed signs of Riggs' disease, an infection which causes the gums to recede from the roots, leaving them exposed some distance down from the enameled surface. In aggravated cases or where the person is very sensitive the disease is very painful, and it is almost impossible to relieve it. To cure it is practically impossible, for the gums will not grow back again.

"This man was of the sensitive kind, and although physicians and dentists tried their skill on him they could do nothing, and he suffered so that at last he told my brother to extract every tooth in his mouth and put false ones in for him. As nothing else could be done, my brother folowed instructions and pulled every tooth. They were all in perfect condition, and as my brother looked them over, regretting that his patient was forced to give them up, a novel idea occurred to him, which he at once told to the other man, who agreed to it willingly. This was that instead of making artificial teeth, as was the usual custom, these same teeth be used exactly as if they were artificial.

"My brother, who is a first-class dentist, was more than ordinarily careful on this job, and when he had mounted the teeth in a plate measured to a hair's breadth and slipped them into his patient's mouth they fitted as if they had grown there, as it were, and now there isn't one man in a thousand can tell that they are false—if, indeed, false they are. At the same time there isn't any more Riggs' disease to trouble him."

FAN ATTACHMENT FOR CHAIRS.

Newly Patented Automatic Device for Hot Weather Use.

The picture shows a rocking-chair equipped with a newly patented automatic fan, designed by Frank J. Becker, of Hamilton, Ohio. The fans are attached in clamps, at opposite sides of the vertical rod, the fastening arrangement being such that any ordinary fan can be utilized. The rod has a spiral thread cut at the lower end, and passed through a sleeve fixed on the side of the rocker, with a spring surrounding the rod to press against the knob at the end and maintain the rod in its lowest position until the chair is tilted forward, when the knob strikes the floor, and the rod is pushed through the sleeve to impart a rotary motion to the fans at the top. As soon as the chair is tilted back the spring forces the rod down through the sleeve with a reverse motion, the pitch of the screw and the power of the spring being arranged to produce a free and rapid movement of the fans while the chair is in motion.

Rebuking a Young Pulpiteer.

Old Scotch ministers had a keen sense of humor apart from the Doric altogether. One of the best stories that could be quoted in this connection is that told of Dr. Gilchrist, formerly of Greenock, but who was minister of Canongate, Edinburgh, when he died. A rather cock-sure young man was officiating for him one Sunday, and, on going to the vestry, the doctor found his substitute robed and ready for the pulpit. In the course of a few minutes' conversation with the old minister the young sprig said, in an off-hand way: "I suppose, Doctor, you repeat the Lord's prayer in some part of the service?" "Aye, aye," replied Dr. Gilchrist quietly, "unless ye hae a better one o' yer ain."

Peru's Vast Mineral Product.

The soil of Peru contains the largest number of mineral species—at Piuria, in the north, petroleum and sulphur; silver, lead, copper and coal in the great mining basin of Cerro de Pasco, in central Peru, and phosphate, quicksilver, auriferous grounds and borax at Arequipa, Carabaja, in the south. At the present time the number of mines in exploitation is 2,500, employing 70,000 workmen. The value of ore has increased by more than 50 per cent. within the last two years.

Mosaic Court in London.

There is a Jewish court in Great Britain known as Beth Din, which is presided over by Very Rev. Dr. Adler, chief rabbi of England. Its decisions are not, of course, legally binding, but all who come before the court are asked to sign a form accepting the decisions as final. It was in this way that Moses used to adjudicate upon the differences of the children of Israel.

SERMONS OF THE WEEK

True Sphere.—It should be the aim of each to search diligently for his true sphere of action.—R. B. Gruelle, Spiritualist, Indianapolis, Ind.

Air Castles.—The man who spends his youth and middle life in air castles will spend his old age in the poorhouse.—Rev. Dr. Vosburgh, Baptist, Denver, Colo.

Sanity and Light.—What this world needs to-day, and what each individual in it needs, is sanity and light.—Rev. William T. Brown, Congregationalist, Rochester, N. Y.

Selfhood.—To cherish selfhood, which ignores obligation to help others, means to lose the joys of available beneficence and possibly to die "unwept."—Rev. George Adams, Methodist, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The Beauty of Holiness.—All lovely forms and objects are the offspring of lofty and pure thoughts and minds, and they are the natural order when undisturbed by sin.—Rev. S. P. Cadman, New York City.

Living for Great Things.—Living for great things is living in the spirit, the thoughts, feelings, motives that make all living noble. Our age is full of false ideas, false standards.—Rev. Dr. Thomas, Chicago, Ill.

Our Friendships.—Our friendships in life are among our greatest blessings. When they are what they ought to be and what they may be, they grandly enrich life.—Rev. Dr. Gregg, Presbyterian, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Inattention.—The mistakes and blunders and disasters and defeats come from inattention, and proper attention comes from a daily morning interview with God in prayer.—Rev. J. J. Tigert, Methodist, New Orleans, La.

Noiseless Forces.—Noiseless forces are sometimes the most mighty. Blow and bluster are but synonyms for blather and blame; the quiet Christian is not the indolent Christian.—Rev. E. M. Wood, Methodist, Pittsburg, Pa.

Universalism.—It is hard to believe in universalism, that is, that all men are at last to be saved through a process of purification. Character has a tendency to perpetuate itself.—Rev. Dr. Ward, Episcopalian, Pittsburg, Pa.

Praying and Working.—All Christian people are praying and working that all may be saved. If the good people of Christendom keep on praying and working long enough all will finally be saved.—Rev. M. Crossley, Universalist, Indianapolis, Ind.

Man.—In his ignorance man has divorced himself from the highest, noblest and truest elements, and has assigned them to remote realms and to conjectural times. This is the one fatal mistake of man.—Rev. F. E. Mason, Spiritualist, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Success.—Every man who succeeds must first meet with obstacles and discouragements, but there is nothing for us to do but keep going ahead. It is by keeping at it, driving away, that we achieve success.—Rev. Dr. McDowell, Methodist, Baltimore, Md.

Man's Character.—Man's character is the highest product of the creative power of God. It is invested with the mighty power of choice and endowed with the exercise of judgment between right and wrong.—Rev. F. M. Bristol, Methodist, Washington, D. C.

Immortality.—We receive splendid glimpses of immortality when a great life closes at the time of its greatest influence. While our life gives us but these glimpses, God has given us the full revelation in Jesus Christ.—Rev. Geo. P. Perry, Baptist, Troy, N. Y.

Thy Kingdom Come.—For the new year the motto of this church will be "Thy Kingdom Come." To this end we ought all to work. God has not failed us in the past. He stood by us when we were standing by him.—Rev. Dr. Holderby, Presbyterian, Atlanta, Ga.

Service.—Instead of a little position in this world exalting a man to honor, it is service that exalts man and makes him worthy of any position in this world. Away from the idea that some have that you must have position to be great.—Rev. H. C. Johnson, Methodist, Memphis, Tenn.

Goodness.—Society does not care to know what you think about imperialism, socialism or the trusts; but it does want to know whether you will add to its stock of goodness. It is eager for men who are on the side of righteousness.—Rev. E. W. Donald, Episcopalian, Boston, Mass.

The Jews.—The Jews have been foremost in the ranks of thinkers, philosophers and scholars. We implore for justice, that our standard may be taken from the best that we have given, not from the lower types that have sprung from the race.—Rabbi Isadore Philo, Hebrew, Akron, Ohio.

The Sabbath.—How many men there are who toil month after month and year after year until the frame is bent and the brow wrinkled, while all the time the soul is neglected. The Sabbath is God's design to draw us back from this whirlpool of time.—Rev. J. D. Rankin, Presbyterian, Denver, Colo.

The Work of Christ.—In all lands the work of Christ has molded the characters of true believers, has created hearts so pure and lives so peaceful and homes so sweet that it might seem as though those angels, who had heralded its advent had also whispered to every depressed and despairing sufferer.—Rev. A. G. Bakewell, Episcopalian, New Orleans, La.

A Compliment on Ice.

Mrs. Gadd—You do not show your age at all.

Mrs. Gabb (delightedly)—Don't I?

AUBURN WEEKLY COURIER.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF DeKALB COUNTY

JAMES A. BARNS, Editor.

Registered at the Auburn, Indiana, postoffice as second-class matter.

THURSDAY.....JULY 26, 1900.

For Assessor.

I wish to announce to my democratic friends of Butler Township that I will be a candidate for Assessor, subject to the democratic caucus to be held at Butler Center this coming summer; on account of the sad accident which happened to me last spring, which put me back so with my work on the farm, I will not be able to canvas the township but I hope you will consider the matter and do as you think best. I remain your's truly, John H. Benninghoff.

Franklin Caucus.

The democrats of Franklin township, and all who will unite with them in the struggle of the common people against the trusts, are to hold a township caucus at the Center on the first Saturday in August at 1 o'clock p. m., to nominate candidates for trustee, assessor, two justices of the peace, two constables, five supervisors and three members of the advisory board.

ALLEN SHULTZ, Chairman.
EDSON BEARD, Secretary.

Current Politics.

There have been only two presidents Lincoln and Grant re-elected, in sixty-eight years. Jackson in 1832 was the last one before that. If democrats give a pull altogether this fall, McKinley will not be re elected.

At least nine in ten of the Gold democrats, are now supporting Bryan. Those who are still fighting their old party are men who have some "protected interest," some office, or a hope of some office, or are already in some lucrative position with wealthy republicans or corporations, and do not wish to lose their jobs.

Leroy Templeton, former leader of the middle-of-the-road populists is out in favor of Bryan. So is former representative, Henry U. Johnson of the Richmond district, this state, an able republican.

New York leaders that opposed Bryan in '96, or kept out of the fight as Hill did, are all working for Bryan now.

Robert Mitchell of Princeton, Ind., is said to be for Bryan. He has been a leading republican and was many years a prominent member of the State Board of Agriculture.

County Institute.

The Teachers' County Institute will convene in the M. E. church, August 20. President W. W. Parsons of the Indiana State Normal, and Dr. Andrew Stephenson of DePauw University will be the regular lecturers. Their subjects will be Pedagogy, Literature and History.

Dr. Andrew Stephenson who is to give a series of lectures on history before the teachers of DeKalb county, is spending the summer in the Bodlean Library, Oxford, England, where he has been doing special work in his line. His return ticket is for sailing from Liverpool, August 9, and he comes by Montreal and hopes to reach Auburn August 20, thus coming to us fresh from his summer's work.

Will Make Active Fight.

The prohibition party are going to put unusual vigor into their campaign this year. Begining about the middle of September, they will have a special train fitted to go over the country. This will be provided with accomadations for all on board including a lunch car or buffet, and speaking will be done from the rear platform or from platforms arranged at the stopping places. The candidates for president and vice-president, Mr. Woolley and Mr. Metcalf, will go through all the central and eastern states, and in going over a giv-state, their candidates for state offices will go along. Their national chairman and secretary, their editors and toe associated press reporters go also.

Latest From China.

The Chinese minister at Washington, Mr. Wu, still insists that the foreigners in Pekin are safe. But no nation but our own seems to believe him. He claims his government has fed and defended the foreigners and saved their lives from the Boxers, except the German minister, who was killed by a mob of anarchists. He asks the United States to interfere and ask the European powers to stop the war, and not to gobble up any Chinese territory. This we have agreed to do, if they will first send the foreigners safe out of Pekin and out the country. If this plan succeeds, then the trouble will soon be over. But the chances are, that some nations will insist on territory; Germany is entitled to heavy damages for the murder of her minister. In a few days we may know the truth and whether China is acting in good faith or not.

Matters in the Philippines and in South Africa remain about the same. The fighting now is by small bodies of men. The other day, a force of Boers surprised and captured 100 British. At other points they lost small fights.

Off for Indianapolis.

Monday's Daily.

The early hour of the departure of Wabash fast train west this morning caused the members of Company K to hustle out long before their usual time of rising to leave for Indianapolis, but with one or two exceptions all were at the armory in good season with the necessary equipment for their week's stay at the state capital. A car had been side-tracked here for them, and when the train arrived this car was attached and the start was made with but slight delay. In addition to the members of the company several regimental and battalion officers took the train here, including Chaplain Medbury, Lieutenant-Colonel Bowman, Major Kuhlman, Adjutant Hine and Sergent Major Lochner. Joseph Williamson, I. N. Turner and Charles Picker, jr., also accompanied the party to look after the culinary department, an important adjunct to camp life.

The boys will spend the week at Fairview Park, as this is the first encampment since the reorganization of the Indiana National Guard will doubtless have a pleasant and profitable meeting. Much attention will be paid to drill work by companies, battalions and regiments.

Brave Men Fall

Victims to stomach, liver and kidney troubles as well as women, and all feel the results in loss of appetite, poisons in the blood, backache, nervousness, headache and tired, listless, run-down feeling. But there's no need to feel like that. Listen to J. W. Gardner, Idaville, Ind. He says: "Electric Bitters are just the thing for a man when he is all run down, and don't care whether he lives or dies. It did more to give me new strength and good appetite than anything I could take. I can now eat anything and have a new lease on life." Only 50 cents at H. B. McCord's drug store. Every bottle guaranteed.

Boy Killed at Waterloo.

While standing on the Main street crossing at Waterloo last evening, watching a Lake Shore freight crew doing some switching, Emmett Brown, the fifteen-year old son of Isaac Brown, was struck by the fast train which passes through there shortly after six o'clock, and instantly killed. Those who witnessed the accident say the unfortunate lad evidently was so engrossed in watching the freight that he did not hear the approaching train. He was thrown about 150 feet but not badly mangled.

Dr. Frederick Humphreys.

The world has lost one of its most famous and successful physicians in the death of Dr. Frederick Humphreys, the originator of the well-known "Humphreys Specifics," a set of family remedies that are now in extensive use all over the country. His greatest fame, however, will rest on his discoveries of the value of several medicinal plants, that had before that been comparatively unknown. Some of these have gone into general use. He was also greatly interested in religious matters and in animals. He was born at Marcellus, N. Y., March 11, 1816.

The Oregon Safe.

In the exciting news from the far east, we had almost forgotten the grand old Oregon, that stuck fast on the rocks off the coast of China, a few weeks ago. With the assistance of other vessels, she was got off and the Cruiser Nashville kept with her till she reached the port of Kure, in Japan. Here she was patched up and at once started back to China and may be at Taku by this time. The holes made in her bottom by the sharp rocks, had been stuffed and covered with canvas, so she could be floated safely.

The Boys in Camp.

HEADQUARTERS 2D BATTALION
THIRD REGIMENT I. N. G.
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 24, 1900.

Indiana's soldiers that are now in camp at Fairview Park are enjoying the most satisfactory meeting ever participated in by that body so far as beauty of grounds, excellence of equipment, etc., is concerned. With but one exception, that of scarcity of straw for ticks, there could not possibly be any just complaint. The tents are pitched in the grove of monster trees, affording an abundance of shade. Water is piped to all parts, and kitchens are supplied with choice beech wood, a few bundles of splints and handy ranges, besides an abundance of new utensils. The headquarters of colonels, majors and captains are supplied with a new office desk which for convenience in camp life cannot be surpassed; new cots, blankets, chairs and tents, and at regimental headquarters we have floors for the tents, gasoline torches and a five-gallon can of gasoline. These are conveniences which are so home-like that the encampment has no discouraging features save the news from China. The Indianapolis News, which has demonstrated its superiority, has two tents on the ground where free stationery and telephone accommodations are had. This paper is making a feature of company news and will be a souvenir worth preserving. The entire week's edition is mailed for ten cents.

Company K, under command of Capt. Lahnum, reached camp at noon yesterday, not much fatigued. Chaplain Medbury of Angola, Major Kuhlman, Adjutant Hine and Sergeant-Major Lochner also accompanied them. The tents of privates and non-commissioned officers were pitched at once, while those of the captains, lieutenants, and the major and staff were not put up till late last evening, owing to delay in getting them to camp from the arsenal. We are now, however, most comfortably situated.

The trip enroute was uneventful and the Wabash hurling us through to Peru in an hour and a half where our coaches were attached to the Lake Erie regular. The Rochester company was also on this train and at Tipton a company was picked up. There was a noticeable absence of drinking on the train notwithstanding there was several dozen bottles found their way to Company K's baggage. Our train brought in the last companies of Infantry and at 7 o'clock the Fort Wayne battery arrived. The hours of service prescribed during camp are commencing with reveille at 5:30 a. m. and continuing up to taps at 10:15 p. m. Orders are also given that no man will be given passes to go to the city, and any officer or private found in the city will be subject to arrest. Chaplain Medbury is in charge of the mail for the Third regiment, Mail is taken up daily at 8 a. m. and 2 p. m. and mail received is delivered at 12 m. and 6 p. m. Adjutant Hine and Sergeant Major Lochner are the only regular battalion officers of the regiment and consequently are called upon to do considerable work at headquarters of the regiment. Daily COURIERS arrived at 11 a. m. today and were eagerly read. At 12 noon today a threatening storm is brewing.

Fined for Fast Driving.

Two men who had imbibed too much red liquor were arrested by Marshal Hilkey Saturday evening for fast driving and as a result of their smartness were assessed $10.55 each in Esquire Walters' court. The marshal stopped the fellows at Ninth and Cedar, and when he took hold of the horse they jumped out of the buggy and started east. Turning the rig over to a bystander the officer overhauled them and conducted them to the office of the justice. While the necessary documents were being made out one of the fellows, who lives at Garrett, walked out of the room, but with the aid of Billy Philips, Mr. Hilkey captured him on West Ninth street. The men both plead guilty and after they had arranged for the payment of the fines were allowed to go. We understand the same two men saw the ball game without paying and the windup of their day's fun was probably just about what they deserved. They will get the same dose the next time they get "funny" in Auburn.

Lake Wawasee.

The Chicago Sunday Tribune has a fine article on Lake Wawasee, with several illustrations. This lovely resort is so easy of access, we wonder our people do not go that way more, and northward less. There are now about 300 cottages around the lake and a number of good hotels. The lake is the largest in the state, and the steamers are much above the average. Besides they have a number of fine yachts, something not found on any other of our lakes, and enough to have fine regattas which they indulge in now and then. But with the exception of Garrett citizens, the people of DeKalb seem to forget this fine resort.

Court News.

Monday's Daily.

The jury came in this morning, at 9 a. m. Several cases were called to take steps by the court before the jury began.

The two boys who stole the watch and other things at Wasson's near St. Joe, Geo. Carter and John Went, were brought in and given each 30 days in jail, in addition to the three weeks they had already been confined there. It had originally been the opinion of the Judge that he would have to send them to the penitentiary for house-breaking, but he had since written to the chief of police and to several business men at their home, Cleveland, and all gave the boys a good word, also agree as to the truth of the story the boys had already told. In view of this the Judge gave them a good lecture and only a jail sentence. The third boy, who refused to go into the house or have any of the things taken, was then called in and discharged. It is believed none of them are vicious, but had got away from home and were tramping.

The case of Mrs. Margaret Dennis, the mother of Mrs. John Rickel of Waterloo, was then called. It was to show she was of unsound mind and should have a guardian to care for her property. Pomeroy acted for her, and Phillips for Rickel. Rickel testified that she lived with him. She has had a stroke paralysis. Spoke of her picking green apples and green corn and hiding them. Saw her take green grapes from his neighbor at 9 o'clock at night, and many other things that showed a weak mind.

The result was that Eli Walker was appointed her guardian. It appears she has property enough to support her. It was also made plain that though she and the Rickels could not get along together, they had not abuse her.d

At the meeting at 1 p. m., Mrs. Sylvia Uran was examined and then granted a divorce from her husband, Charles Uran. They are from Butler, Mr. Brink having charge of her interests.

At a little before two the jury were sworn in the case of Morris vs. Ritter. John W. Baxter for Mrs. Morris, stated his case and examined the jury. He reported that he was satisfied as the jury now stood. Judge Roby and Mr. Mountz of Garrett are Ritter's counsel. Mountz examined the jury on Ritter's behalf. He took off Phil. Noel and accepted Eli Walker in his place. He took off Obe Leas and put on E. N. Cheney. Baxter then excused Bates and S. U. Tarney took his place. A. B. Walsworth objected off and John Koons put on. He was set off and Cormie Gibford put on. Mr. Moody is assisting Mr. Baxter.

Tuesday's Daily.

After our report closed yesterday, they began taking testimony in the case of Morris vs. Ritter. The jury as now made up is:

E. C Potter, Cormie Gibford, Abram Sherck, J. Y. W. McClellan, Charles Reesch, Alva Brandon, S. U. Tarney, E. N. Chaney, Franklin Gregg, L. D. Nelson, M. V. Heffelfinger and Eli Walker.

Baxter opened the case for the plaintiff. It is the case growing out of the death of Mr. Morris. On the sixth day of December, 1899, he had gone to Garrett to sell some stock. He soon became intoxicated, having been at several saloons. He then started out to get a job, and going to railroad grade, was told to go home and come back next day sober and he could get a job. He drove off and went back through Garrett and called at Whirledge's saloon. Soon after he was seen at another saloon a few blocks away. Next he was seen in the saloon of the defendant, Ritter, where he and another person got drinks. The plaintiff expects to show that both were at this time, intoxicated. After that he was seen two miles out of Garrett, his horse standing by the fence and Morris helpless. His rig was headed for home, but was soon after found farther along, still helpless. Again the horse was started homeward. He was next found a mile or so farther east, and was on the front part of the road wagon, his feet projecting out at one side and his head the other. He was dead, his neck having been broken. Morris had at one time been in a responsible position with the B. & O., but owing to his drinking habits he was discharged. His wife had notices put up in saloons, not to sell him liquor. Then again a year later, and again at a later date, Mrs. Morris had personally requested that saloon men sell him no more liquor. He had been a kind husband and father, and industrious, doing well all work he had to do.

Judge Roby then made the statement for the defendent, James N. Ritter. He alluded to Morris' habits of drinking and this was admitted. If this fact is proved, Ritter will lose the case, but he expects to disprove the claim that Ritter sold Morris liquor after being notified. The damages asked by the plaintiff are $10,000. The defense intends to show Morris had long been dissipated and had ceased to be a support to his family and will show that Ritter was not to blame.

The first witness was C. E. VanAuken who testified as to the character for industry, etc., of Mr. Morris.

The next witness was Mr. Nelson, a ditcher and hoop shaver, who says his home is generally among "farmers and honest men" in Butler township. He is the man who drank last with Morris in Ritter's saloon. Had known Morris a year or two. Went into Ritter's saloon about 5 p. m., that day. Saw Morris standing by the bar. We talked awhile. Then Morris treated. We both took whisky from same bottle. Then I treated. Think Morris was under the influence of liquor before I came in. I had taken several drinks before I came to Ritter's. In about half an hour, we went away. I did not see Morris get into his buggy, but saw him as he stood by it. I went away. He said Morris staggered. This witness caused some merriment by the nature of his replies on cross examination. He said he was English born, and thinks Whirledge is. Had drank at Whirledge's place. Did not feel so certain whether Morris was English.

Jeff Clark testified. He saw Morris, when he came out to B. & O. grade that afternoon. Think he showed influence of liquor then. Some time after I got home, I found Morris' horse turned in at my house. I started him away but in about fifteen minutes he came back. Morris was too drunk to drive. We braced him up in the wagon and hung the lines over the dash board and started the horse homeward.

TUESDAY FORENOON.

Mrs. J. D. Williamson took the stand. I live next east of VanAuken's. Morris was a neighbor. Was pleasant in his family. He was generally busy He worked on ditches, on sewer in Auburn, and B. & O. grades. I saw his body laid on the lounge as they brought him into the house. They had plenty of provisions of all kinds. They had two cows and had corn, hay and fodder in plenty. He was kind to his children and often had them with him and brought them to school.

Cross-examined by Roby. I cannot give date of his taking them to school. I saw him drunk two or three times.

John M Ketcham took the stand. Am a farmer. Knew Morris, saw him often and he often worked for me, and for other families and worked land on shares.

Cross-examination. Morris worked as much as men generally do. Do not know how often he got drunk. Saw him once when he was drunk and at times when he was under the influence of drink. Never heard he lost a job, nor why he quite the railroad.

Charles Rugman called. Am farmer, and do grading and ditching. Had charge of all teams on the sewer work in Auburn. Morris worked on sewer about four months with team at $3 and has helped me on the sink at Feagler's Corners. Was as good hand as we had of 31 teams. I was present when he was taken home. The boys had lifted him to the ground when I got there. His barn was well stocked with feed, and he had plenty for his family.

Cross-examination. I am an Englishman. Morris has worked for me. I sent Morris to the Junction for some beer, but he did not come back that day. Morris was taken from the buggy at my place. My boys took him out and laid him on the ground. When I got out, we put him into the buggy and took him home.

W. E. Ruple sworn. Have lived west of town three years. Am bridge stone mason. Have had experience with men. Knew Morris. Saw him often working at various things. Did his work well. Never visited at his house.

Cross-examination by Mountz. Morris had good crops, kept in good shape. It was about five acres. Saw him working on the sewer. Saw him intoxicated, but not in '99.

Frank Rugman sworn. Am son of Chas. Rugman. I came out in time to see the two men lift Morris up. We straightened him up in the buggy. His face was bruised. I went to town for doctor, and my father and older brother had charge of Morris. When Morris worked on sewer, he did his work well and kept his team well.

Jay Link sworn. Am son of Holmes Link. On evening of Dec. 6, 1899, I went to Junction through Auburn, passed the Morris rig just west of Rugman's. I was alone. Saw no one in wagon. I stopped at Rugman's and Frank came out. As we were talking, Morris' rig came up. We stopped the horse. A little later Harry Whittington came up. While talking I thought I saw a robe hanging out of the buggy, and said I would take it up. I found it was Morris, his head hanging out to the north and his feet in the buggy sticking out south. We got him out and called Rugman, We saw who it was. We put him in the buggy and took him home and laid him on the lounge No signs of life, Head bruised on right side where spokes had struck him.

Henry Shulthess sworn. Saw Morris in Ike Whirledge's saloon about five p. m., Dec. 6. He had an open rig and light gray horse. I rode east with him. He stopped to see Clark. He went back to Whirledge's and went in and asked for drinks. I hitched the horse. They would not give him drinks as he was intoxicated. He staggered. He went out and think he went east. I then went home with my father, Henry Shulthess.

Cross-examination. I am sixteen. I was in at Whirledge's twice. I went in to see my father. He was not ready to go. That is the reason I went home with Morris. Did not work for Elmer Grogg.

Dr. Baxter sworn. Have practiced medicine in Auburn five years. Had been in practice ten years before. I was called out to see Will Morris about 9 p. m. Found him lying on the lounge dead. Head was bruised, neck broken and shoulder bruised. No cross-examination.

Sound Digestion.

Health and Happiness Depend upon it. Now possible for All.

Few physicians have contributed more to the welfare of their patients than has Dr. Stone. He has personally treated and cured thousands of cases of stomach and liver trouble. The marvelous remedies that he has devised after thirty years of constant study of these ailments are now offered to all under the name of Dr. Stone's New Dyspepsia Cure. There is nothing else sold that is at all like it. It consists of two prescriptions put up in a tablet form. Both enclosed in a simple package. One completely restores the digestive powers of the stomach, the other regulates and stimulates the liver. It promptly cures cases of indigestion or liver trouble that ordinary treatment will not reach at all. It will usually benefit the worst cases within twenty-four hours, and improvement is seen with each succeeding dose. If you have suffered from indigestion, billiousness, nervousness, or debility for years, this remedy is guaranteed to relieve you at once and to cure you in less time than you now think possible. Every druggist who handles it is authorized to refund the money if it fails. Price 50 cents. Sold by H. B. McCord.

BUTLER.

The storm of last Friday caused quite a fright to many of our Butler people.

The German Baptists have erected a tent on the south side and are the attraction of the religious and unreligious elements of the town.

Haying prospered very slowly last week and considerable was damaged by the rains.

A stranger was picked up dead by the side of the Lake Shore track east of Butler last week. His remains were identified as those of Guy Elliott of Marion, Ohio.

Mr. Downey has retired from the Herald. He is succeeded by Ferguson & Winbaugh of Fort Wayne. We welcome the new proprietors to our town and hope for their success.

J. A. Campbell is enlarging and improving his North street residence.

Henry Haskins is still very poorly, with meager hopes for recovery.

The health of town is remarkably good for this time of the year.

E. A. Campbell of Toledo, brother of J. A. Campbell, visited over Sunday with him and on Monday they visited Auburn and Huntertown where the farmer has a half brother.

Our people were well entertained one evening last week by a couple of young men on wheels, who were making a trip from New York to San Francisco.

Wheat fields about Butler with the shocks of wheat still in them, look like meadows in June. A second crop of grass will probably be gathered.

Elias Kepler still remains very poorly.

The aged father of Mrs. J. M. Lingenfelter, Mr. Pennington, is nearing death's door.

CEDAR.

W. C. Kitchen expects to see Niagara Falls again next month.

John E. Lung is still buying grain for S, Bash & Co. of Fort Wayne.

George Lung of Albion Indiana Sundayed with friends here last week.

T. H. Mills of Fort Wayne Ind. visited his son Sam at this place last week.

Mrs. George Lung's brother and his wife of Lincoln, Neb., are visiting friends here.

Messrs. Stonestreet and Weygant made a business trip to Fort Wayne on Saturday last.

The rainy weather of last week was not favorable to those who wanted to thresh their wheat.

Anyone wishing an introduction to the constable from Auburn should call at the second door south of the post office here.

Jacob Fansler has a brother from Allen county, Ohio, visiting him. He is an older man than Jake but Jake can beat him laughing.

Messrs Elson and Burns are painting the church here. It is unnicessary to say that the patrons will be sure of a first class job as the boys are first clss workmen.

Millions Given Away.

It is certainly gratifying to the public to know of one concern in the land who are not afraid to be generous to the needy and suffering. The proprietors of Dr King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, have given away over ten million trial bottles of this great medicine; and have the satisfaction of knowing it has absolutely cured thousands of hopeless cases. Asthma, Bronchitis, Hoarseness and all diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs are surely cured by it. Call on H. B. McCord, druggist, and get a free trial bottle. Regular size 50c and $1. Every bottle guaranteed or price refunded.

A Popular Excursion.

Niagara Falls and Alexandria Bay Excursion, Lake Shore Ry.

August 16 the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railway will run a popular low rate excursion to above points. Rate, Niagara Falls and return, $6 25; Alexandria Bay, $6.50 higher. Tickets good twelve days including date of sale. Passengers from points on Fort Wayne branch will use regular train No. 459, leaving Auburn at 5:48 p. m. and connecting at Waterloo with fast special leaving at 8:51 p. m., running to Falls.

Niagara Falls

Round Trip, $6.25

Every man, woman and child should have an outing at least once a year. Niagara Falls is the greatest natural wonder of the world. If you wish to visit this exhilarating and recreative spot, you will have no better opportunity than on on which date the Wabash Railroad will sell tickets at the above rate. Take the whole family. It will give you a new lease on life and will be an education for the children (half the above rate if under twelve; if under four, free).

A Good, Long Limit

of twelve days will give you plenty of time to see all the sights at Niagara, and to avail yourself of some of the many

Attractive Side Trips

which will be offered at greatly reduced rates. For instance, the Thousand Islands of the St. Lawrence—world renowned for their picturesque beauty—can be visited at an additional cost of only $6.50.

Toronto, the Queen City of Victoria's "American Domain"—a delightful trip across Lake Ontario—will cost but $1.00 additional.

BUFFALO, round trip.....$ .50
Muskoka Wharf, round trip.....$ 9.80
Loon Lake (Adirondacks) round trip, $15.05
Montreal, round trip.....$15.50

As the Kneiper River takes a southwesterly direction in order to discharge itself into the Black Sea, it passes a succession of rapids, and it is proposed to utilize the power of the rapids for the generation of electricity.

Long rides in trolley cars are recommended for insomnia. Some of the unfortunate victims to sleeplessness say the prescription works well while one is on the cars, but after he gets into bed the drowsy god keeps as far away as ever.

The healthiest spot in the whole world is Aumone, a French village containing forty people. Twenty-eight of the inhabitants are over 80 years of age, and three have passed a century. There are no graves in the local cemetery, and the oldest inhabitant cannot remember seeing a funeral.

Among the letters advertised in a recent catalogue of a Berlin bookseller are several written by Emperor Friedrich during the ninety-nine days of his reign. One of them gives expression to his aversion to courtly ceremonies, and refers to various reasons why he should not be expected to attend the receptions given by ambassadors.

On the Island of Kauai (Sandwich Islands) a new species of petrel has been discovered by a Stanford University graduate, Mr. Searle. He has also found on the same island a new species of sea gull. He is going to Guam to explore that island and to make a collection of birds and fishes for the famous Bishop Museum of Honolulu.

A showstorm started a fire on the premises of a farmer living at Hebuterne, Belgium. He placed a quantity of quicklime near a shed on his farm and left it there all night. In the course of the night snow fell on to the lime, and the heat thus developed became so great that it set the shed on fire, completely destroying it and its contents.

Four hundred elk tusks were sold in Spokane, Wash., for $1,000. The demands of the members of the Order of Elks and the growing scarcity have increased the value of the tusks. Fourteen years ago a Montana man paid but $80 for an Indian head-dress that contained 800 elk teeth. Last year a similar head-dress containing 280 tusks sold for $200.

A year or two ago the students of Tufts College submitted to the faculty of that institution a proposition that all violators of the college rules should be tried by a student jury, which should have absolute jurisdiction, but which should look to the president of Tufts for guidance. The faculty carefully considered the scheme, but have now rejected it as impracticable.

The old-fashioned vocation of lamp lighting is being relegated rapidly to the rear. Gas lamps in the streets are gradually giving way to electric lights in all the big cities, and soon the only place for the lamplighter will be in suburban towns and small villages. Like the old-time watchman, with his lantern and pike, he will soon become a mere figure in municipal history.

Anyone in this country can now write to his friends in the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila and any other island of the Samoan group owned by Uncle Sam, Hawaii or Porto Rico, and a pretty, rose-colored 2-cent stamp will carry the letter, subject, of course, to the usual regulations regarding weight. Cuba doesn't come in on this, as she isn't at present a part of the United States.

Elephants in the Indian army are fed twice a day. When meal time arrives they are drawn up in line before a row of piles of food. Each animal's breakfast includes ten pounds of raw rice, done up in five two-pound packages. The rice is wrapped in leaves and then tied with grass. At the command, "Attention!" each elephant raises its trunk and a package is thrown into its capacious mouth. By this method of feeding not a single grain of rice is wasted.

GAY FUNERALS.

Some Peculiarities of Burials as Seen in the Far Southwest.

"In the hotel at Santa Fe last summer the notes of a brass band playing the tune 'Marching Through Georgia,' with great vigor, called me to the window," said a tourist who recently returned from New Mexico and California. "It was a Mexican funeral procession that I saw advancing toward the plaza. The mourners followed the hearse on foot, and in advance marched the local Mexican band. As it reached the plaza the band changed its tune to 'There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town To-night,' and to this melody the procession moved across the public square on its way to Campo Santo. The expression of all the mourners was grave and decorous, and some of the people on the plaza uncovered their heads as the procession passed. This marching to music was the time-honored Mexican way of showing respect to the dead. A New Mexican friend explained to me that the musical repertory of the band being limited to three or four pieces, it was necessary to make the same tunes do duty at a funeral, a merrymaking, or a political meeting.

"On passing the ancient Indian village of Isleta on my way by train down the Rio Grande, a man described to me the funeral of an Indian chief that he witnessed there. The body, laid out in state in the open air before the church, was wrapped from head to foot in gay-colored ribbons and was watched by a band of warriors attired in the ancient war dress of their tribe, with feathers, beads and antique weapons. Three musicians of the tribe, with tom-toms, sat on the ground, beating time to a dolorous chanting which they kept up while the guard of honor joined in the refrain. All the people of the town were dressed in holiday attire, in preparation for the procession and burial, which, though conducted under the rites of the Roman Catholic Church, were to have many features peculiar to the Indians, vestiges of the heathen customs of their ancestors. The ceremonies concluded with a funeral feast for which bread, tortillas, mutton, native wine and aguardiente had been provided in profusion.

"In the quaint New Mexican town of Mesilla, with its great willow trees, vineyards and broad irrigating canal winding along the main street, through the plaza, I heard the church bell clanging loudly one day at noon. It was for the funeral of a young child, and the procession was just entering the plaza. Four brown-skinned girls, bareheaded and gowned in white, with flowers in their hair, held each a corner of a board swung between them. On this the body lay under a white cloth strewn with flowers. Behind them walked six or seven women and half-grown children. The bell continued to clang until the procession entered the church where the simple burial service was to be performed. After that the body would be taken to Campo Santo, the great white sandbank, which was the burial ground for the commoner sort of Mexicans—an uncertain spot for a final desting-place, for the sands shifted with the wind, and the capricious Rio Grande in one of its sudden changes of channel might wash away or cut through at any time. The Mexicans make no mouring over the death of infants, believing that they at once enter upon a happy future existence as angelitos—little angels."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Mexican Houses.

In a Mexican household the arrangement of furniture is apt to be formal. It is a common sight to see a splendidly furnished parlor with a row of straight-backed chairs all alike with their backs against the wall and as close together as they can be placed clear around the room. Heavy single doors, such as are used in the United States, are practically unknown in Mexican houses either at entrances or between interior rooms. All doors open in the middle and are fastened with bolts top and bottom. Exterior doors are always fitted with glass panels, for they also serve as windows. All such doors opening on the street or open court are fitted with solid shutters that are folded at the sides out of sight when not in use. A great deal of responsibility rests on the Mexican cook. She is given so much money a day, and with this amount she will purchase each morning all the provisions for the day, including even the staples that are usually bought in large quantities in other countries. On a dollar a day a cook will provide a very good table for a family of three or four, and get enough beans and tortillas and chile to set the servants' table besides. They can really do better than their mistresses, because they can usually drive sharper bargains with the marketmen of their own class, and they have more patience to haggle over the last penny.

To Give a Cent Party.

A cent party is the latest idea for whiling away an evening when a few friends are met together. Here is the recipe for one:

Each guest was given a card. Fastened to the card with ribbons was a cent with a hole in it, and a pencil. At the top of the cards, in fancy letters, was painted, "A penny for your thoughts." Underneath this were the names of fifteen objects which can be found on a cent. The guest who properly fills his card received a prize of a cent dipped in gold for a watch charm. The ladies' prize was a hatpin on the same order. The following are the articles to be searched for on the cent:

1. An animal ..... Hare
2. Serpent ..... Copper head
3. Southern fruit ..... Date
4. Emblem of royalty ..... Crown
5. A spring flower ..... Tulip
6. Part of an ancient armor ..... Shield
7. Another term for matrimony . United
8. Part of a hill ..... Brow
9. Plenty of assurance ..... Cheek
10. Found in a school ..... Pupil
11. Ancient place of worship .... Temple
12. Early American settler ..... Indian
13. Emblem of victory ..... Wreath
14. Part of a river ..... Mouth
15. A messenger ..... One cent

—What to Eat.

An Inoffensive "Quid."

A Frenchwoman who has been writing a book upon America makes the surprising discovery that chewing gum is a product of the gum tree. It is the swamp gum tree that reminds her of "those wretched sticks for chewing, of which American children are passionately fond, and not only the children, but the majority of the common people. In the cars, in the railway trains, I noticed everywhere this automatic movement of the jaw which shows the chewing habit; it is an inoffensive 'quid.' I admit that this substitution has sometimes helped men to overcome the tobacco habit, but what excuse can there be for the women who chew this vulgar product?"

All that Is Required.

Make the best of yourself. Watch and plant and sow. Falter not, faint not! Perhaps you cannot bear such lordly fruit, nor yet such rare, rich flowers as others; but what of that? Bear the best you can. 'Tis all God asks.

PRIDE OF OUR NAVY.

The Oregon Has Won a High Place in the Popular Affection.

The United States battleship Oregon, which ran aground on the island of Hoo Kie, fifty miles north of Che-Foo, China, has won a place in history and in the popular affection paralleled only by the Constitution, the Merrimac, the Hartford and the Olympia. She made her builder famous, and brought immensely valuable orders from other nations to American shipyards. She made known to the world the ability of Pacific coast builders—3,000 miles from American iron fields—to not only equal the achievements of their rivals on the Atlantic coast, but to surpass in every detail of warship construction the best achievements of the shipbuilders of any country.

CAPT. WILDE.

Coming out of the yards of the Irving M. Scott Company at San Francisco in May, 1896, she beat all existing records for ships of her class on her trial trip, showing a maximum speed of 17.34 knots per hour.

The Oregon went into active service early in 1897, and was the chief vessel of the Pacific coast squadron when early in 1898 Capt. Charles E. Clark, of the Monterey, was given command of her and ordered to sail around Cape Horn to take part in the impending battle with the approaching Spanish squadron under Admiral Cervera.

That voyage was the most marvelous exploit of its kind in the history of seagoing battleships. Aside from the fact that the Oregon is the only battleship that ever rounded the Horn, the voyage was productive of many unprecedented achievements. For example, the Oregon's complete journey from Puget Sound to Sand Key, Fla., done in eighty-one days, covered 18,102 statute miles, or 15,741 nautical miles, the longest voyage ever made by a battleship. She steamed 4,726 miles without making a stop of any kind, again creating a record. She steamed 2,844 knots at a uniform speed of thirteen knots an hour. The total number of days she spent at sea, out of the eighty-one required to make the voyage, was fifty-nine.

UNITED STATES BATTLESHIP OREGON.

Starting in perfect order, the great ship arrived on the Florida coast in exactly the same condition, ready, and more ready than most of the ships she found there, to go into the battle, where she outfooted the fleetest of the fast cruisers and did more execution than any other vessel engaged in the destruction of the Spanish fleet that tried vainly to escape from Santiago on the morning of July 4, 1898.

The commander of the vessel at the time she grounded was Capt. Wilde. The Oregon weighs, roughly speaking, 10,000 tons. The range of her four 13-inch guns is ten miles, and they hurl projectiles weighing 1,100 pounds, propelled by 550 pounds of powder, which gives them power to pierce twenty-seven inches of steel at 1,500 yards. Her eight eight-inch breech-loading rifles and four six-inch breech-loading rifles complete her main battery. For an enemy that ventures within close range the Oregon has a secondary battery of terrible destructiveness.

The body of this monster is 348 feet long, and its extreme breadth is 69½ feet. It is protected by a side armor 18 inches thick. The armor of the 13-inch turrets is 15 inches in thickness, of the 8-inch turrets 6 inches and of the sponsons 6 inches. The 13-inch barbettes are protected by 17 inches of Harveyized steel, the 8-inch barbettes by 8 inches.

THE OLDEST LOCK.

Gigantic Ancient Key Found in the Ruins of Nineveh.

The very oldest lock in existence is one which formerly secured one of the doors of a temple of Nineveh. It is a gigantic affair, and the key to it, as large as one man can conveniently carry, reminds one of the scriptural passage where the prophet makes reference to such instruments being carried on the shoulder. The exact words in the passage referred to are: "And the key of the house of David I will lay upon his shoulder."

This enormous key to the lock from Nineveh is nearly three and a half feet in length, and of the thickness of a four-inch drain-tile. It was found at the head of a ruined chamber, where a large wooden door had probably once stood, the gigantic brass hinges and heavy bars being still in fair condition, though somewhat corroded. This relic of the olden times has but little resemblance to the keys of modern manufacture, or even to those of the early part of the Christian era. The tubular idea had never been thought out in those days; but the key is fearfully made, being equally as intricate a piece of machinery as the lock in which it was used. A great many of the bars and pegs of the lock are believed to have been made of wood, as their places are now empty. The notches and pegs in the key, however, show that there were corresponding pegs and bars in the lock at one time. The great lateral iron bars at the end of the key, with their complicate series of notches, cross-bars, bumps, etc., are proof that the lock was once similarly provided. This being the case, it is reasonable to suppose that at one time the door of the palace could not have been opened until the key had been inserted and the impediment to the drawing back of the bolt removed by raising up so many bars and pins which had fallen down into their places upon the key having been withdrawn.

A CYCLIST IN SPAIN.

Some of the Annoyances to Which He Is Subjected.

An odd and extremely aggravating obstructionist to be reckoned with in the realms of Don Alfonso and Don Carlos is the creaking ox cart. On first-class roads the thing is not formidable, but met in the mountains, where there is not one only, nor any fewer than twenty of them, in a long, ear-tormenting procession, it becomes vexatious. It is worse still when, in descending one or other of the glorious mountain zig-zags, you see a dozen or two of the monstrosities studded about the road beneath you.

Of course, no man will be likely to cycle in these countries without a brake. Even then, however, it galls prodigiously to pull up in the very middle of ecstasy time after time. Moreover, there may be a very profound ravine on one side of the road, and it is somewhat more than possible that the oxen, heavily yoked though they are, may yield to a panic at sight of the cycle. Then anything may happen, from death of one span of beautiful mild-eyed beasts to the death of the cyclist himself at the hands of the frenzied driver.

As of the oxen, so of the mules, high-spirited and inexperienced horses, and even the generally phlegmatic common donkeys of the land. The cycle is quite as likely as not to excite in them all a feeling of alarm akin to madness. We write this with an especially tender recollection of the overturn of a large wagon of goods and human beings, drawn by four mules, all of whom took flight most gracefully under the gentle stimulus of our melodious bell. This was on the high road between Burgos and Madrid. It was a petrifying calamity at first, though in the end, happily, it did not mean anything very serious. An oath or two from the swarthy Castilian men of the party, a good deal of tugging with the aid of other mules as well as the terrified four, some sobs and prayers to the Virgin from the women and children thus surprised and capsized, and a peseta or two from the cyclist himself for the bruises of the youngsters, with all the regrets he could signify—and that was the full tale of the mischief. But the cyclist subsequently reflected, with a curdling of the blood, about the awful consequences if the disaster had happened on the edge of a precipice instead of on the borders of a wheat field.—Chambers' Journal.

Value of Nettles.

The common nettle, long considered by all but the stupid donkey as least among the herbs of the field, has at last come into its own, and now stands accorded a high place among the household remedies. A learned Bohemian herbalist has lately published a pamphlet on nettles and their importance, while Father Kneipp sings the praises of herb dumplings made with nettles as nourishing and wholesome. He concludes his panegyric with this prescription for the helpless rheumatic: "Let those who are suffering from rheumatism and can no longer find any remedy for it rub or strike the suffering part with fresh nettles for a few minutes daily. The fear of the unaccustomed rod will soon give way to joy at its remarkable healing efficacy."—Buffalo Commercial.

Models of Inventions.

R. C. Gill, superintendent of models in the patent office at Washington, has charge of about 400,000 models of United States inventions granted during a period of something over a hundred years.

A girl's idea of tough luck is to have a big fire or funeral occur in her home town when she is away visiting.

OUR BUDGET OF FUN.

HUMOROUS SAYINGS AND DOINGS HERE AND THERE.

Jokes and Jokelets that Are Supposed to Have Been Recently Born—Sayings, and Doings that Are Old, Curious and Laughable—The Week's Humor.

Little George, who lives in a handsome house on a fine avenue, had been reading the biographies of Horace Greeley, Abraham Lincoln, George Peabody and Gen. Grant. Laying down the book with great impatience he exclaimed, "If we were only just poor there might be some chance for me."

Makes a Difference.

Teacher—Take your seat at once, you naughty child. What do you want?

Ethel—But please, Miss Smith, mamma told me to ask you to come to tea this evening.

Teacher—Why, certainly, my dear. You are a very obedient little girl.

The Natural Inference.

Mrs. Whyte—We have had that china teaset now for nearly fifteen years, and only one piece has been broken so far.

Mrs. Greene—Yes, but don't you find it inconvenient sometimes doing your own work?—Somerville Journal.

Applying the Rule.

Robbie was a very vindictive little fellow, always watching his opportunity to "pay back" for all wrongs, real or imaginary. His mother had many an earnest talk with him about the golden rule, but he would always reply:

"Yes, mamma, that is just what I am doing. You see when Ted strikes me, then that is just what he would have that I should do unto him, so I ought to pay him back."

Wasn't Sore About It.

Guest—Say, waiter, this steak must be at least three weeks old, isn't it?

Waiter—'Deed, I dunno, sah! I'se only been heah a week, sah.

All She Noticed.

Detective—Did you see a man and woman driving past here in a buggy about an hour ago?

Mrs. Blank—Yes.

Detective—Ah, we're getting on track of them! What kind of a horse was it?

Mrs. Blank—They were driving so fast I didn't notice that. But the woman had on a Scotch mohair and wool jacket of turquoise blue, last year's style, with stitched lines, a white pique skirt with deep circular flounce, a satin straw hat, tilted and rather flat, trimmed with hydrangeas and loops of pale blue surah, and her hair was done up pompadour. That's all I had time to see.—Chicago Tribune.

A Necessary Precaution.

Wife—Are you going to shave, dear?

Husband—Yes.

Wife—Just wait until I take the parrot out of the room. I don't want her to learn any bad language.—New York Journal.

He Got the Job.

"So ye want a job, eh? Ever done any thrashin'?"

"I should say so. I'm the father of eleven children."

Her Idea of the Only Way.

"Do you have the iceman weigh the ice in your presence, Sara?"

"No, Richard, I don't; I save time and settle the whole business by weighing it on our scales myself."

A Shocking Tragedy.

"Flossy and I can't be together at all this summer."

"Had a falling out?"

"No; but we accidentally got a lot of shirtwaists exactly alike."

A Meddlesome Interloper.

Pa—Daughter, I think it is time I were asking that young man of yours his intentions.

Daughter—No, don't you do it. Do you want to cheat me out of ice cream soda water for the whole summer?

Enough for Her.

"Do you think you can manage with my salary of $12 a week, darling?" he asked after she had said yes.

"I'll try, Jack," she replied. "But what will you do?"—Philadelphia North American.

An Appropriate Place.

The Poet—Where is my poem, "The Dove?"

The Editor—In one of those pigeonholes.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Things He Could Remember.

Tourist—How many children have you, Mr. Green? Farmer Green (doubtfully)—Well, now, I dunno exactly. There's Bob, an' Jack, an' Alice—wife, how many children are there? Mrs. Gren—Seven; five boys and two girls. Tourist—A fine family and a fine farm, Mr. Green. You've a large stock, I presume. Farmer—Aye! I've 173 head of cattle, 8 horses, 781 sheep and 27 pigs. Then, there's 815 geese, 18 turkeys an' just 250 fowls.—The Western World.

Shy of Material.

Maud—How do you like my new bathing suit?

Maud's Papa—Judging from its brevity I should say you must have purchased the material at a remnant sale.—Philadelphia Record.

Appearances Deceptive.

McJigger—Young Spouter has hung out his shingle as a lawyer, and he's working pretty hard, I guess.

Thingumbob—Why do you think so?

McJigger—I saw him buying an alarm clock yesterday. He must want to get up very early in the morning.

Thingumbob—Wrong. He wanted it for his office, to wake him up when it's time to go home.—Philadelphia Press.

Two Opinions.

"I have my opinion," said the lady in the street car, holding to a strap, "of a man who will not offer his place to a woman."

"So have I," responded the man sitting in front of her, "but I am too polite to express it."

A Different Effect.

Mr. Johnson—Dat must 'a jah'ed me pow'ful, Miss 'Mindy, steppin' off'n dat cah.

Miss Porter—Ah hope it 'ain' stopped yo' watch, Mistah Johnsing?

Mr. Johnson—No, indeedy—hit's made huh run fo' neahly a min'it!

An Exhibitory Spurt.

Mr. Jones—What do you suppose possessed our old horse to kick up and run away?

Mrs. Jones—He must have overheard you read that article about his day of usefulness being past.

Probably.

Haughty Lady (who has purchased a stamp)—Must I put it on myself?

Postoffice Assistant (very politely)—Not necessarily, ma'am; it will probably accomplish more if you put it on the letter.—Tit-Bits.

Expert Evidence.

"What is a phenomenon, Clara?"

"A phenomenon is a man who can carry an umbrella over a woman without poking her eyes out or pulling her hat off."—Chicago Record.

Those Depot Clocks Are Misleading.

Uncle Hiram—Gosh, all fishhooks, Marthy, ef my watch ain't lost nigh onto three hours by this here city time.

A Frank Father.

Green—I always tell my boy he can't go to the circus if he isn't good.

White—I never do.

Green—Why not?

White—Because he would never get to a circus unless I lied.

Waste of Money.

"I think it was awfully foolish of you to pay so much money for a seat on the Stock Exchange," said Mrs. Bronxborough to her husband. "Every time I come down to see you I always find you standing up or walking about."—New York Journal.

Where Reciprocity Fails.

"We ought to have a new hose."

"Yes; but those careless folks who lend us their lawn mower would be sure to borrow it and wear it out."

Proof Positive.

Hix—I guess your friend Meeks is coming out on top, after all.

Dix—How so?

Hix—I saw him purchase a bottle of hair restorer in a drugstore the other day.—Chicago News.

Floral Monstrosities.

A rival to the green carnation is the black rose, to the cultivation of which a Russian botanist has been devoting himself for some years. Now that he has achieved success he threatens to go to London and exhibit the results of his misdirected experiments. When he arrives he will no doubt be invited to explain the purposes for which he considers that his sable blossoms should be utilized. Since he can hardly anticipate that they will be employed for table decoration or for personal adornment, it can only be supposed that he intends to recommend them for use at funerals. It is happily improbable, however, that English horticulturists will be anxious to disfigure their gardens by cultivating them, even for that purpose.

The City of Hongkong.

Hongkong is both a city and an island. It is about twenty-nine square miles in area, separated from the mainland of China by a narrow stream, and was ceded to Great Britain in 1861 as indemnity for what is known as "the opium war."

JUDGMENT, NOT SUPERSTITION.

Miners Show Wisdom in Paying Heed to Certain Phenomena.

"Well, that isn't superstition; it's reality," and Coal Mine Inspector Denman didn't seem a bit pleased with the suggestion that superstition might sometimes be responsible for the actions of miners.

"Coal miners," he went on to say, "are not superstitious. Hear noises? Of course they do, but do people suppose those noises are imaginary? It beats all how little is known generally about coal mining.

"Folks get it into their heads," the inspector continued, "that a man who will quit work in a certain part of a mine because he sees the rats deserting that section is superstitious, when, as a matter of fact, he simply displays sound judgment. Very soon after the rats quit sounds will be heard, and later on a slide follows. What would have happened to the man had he credited his fear to superstition by disregarding the exodus of the rats and the subsequent noises?

"Rats are the first of a mine's inhabitants to realize danger, and then comes the mule. Man is the last. So it is only natural that he should take as positive indications of trouble the actions of the others, and he should not be regarded as a superstitious creature on that account.

"After rats desert an entry it is next to impossible to get a mule into it, not because the rats left, but because the mule realizes the danger. Left to themselves rats or mules would never be caught in slides in mines, but it is different with men, who will not follow the lead of the other two."—Denver Post.

Not Soured.

At what age bachelors and maids should be called old is a topic now being generally discussed. It is safe to adhere to the old truth that a woman is no older than she looks, and a man no older than he feels. The fact is, people bring upon themselves the appellation of "old bachelor" and "old maid." As a rule it is not given to any one who retains a well-regulated mind, a disposition to enjoy simple pleasures, sympathy with the suffering of others, and fortitude to support his or her own pains. A bachelor who becomes small in his aims and pursuits, who is self-absorbed, if not selfish, who behaves in an unseemly way, who is easily provoked, who rejoiceth in iniquity—such as he is considered a miserable "old" bachelor. So, too, the term "old" maid is given soon and frequently to the harsh-voiced, abrupt-mannered, unmarried woman, who imitates man in dress, and tone, and bearing, who interferes with relatives and sets them quarreling, whose rudeness and selfishness make every one uncomfortable at the hotel or boarding house where she, her cat, dog and canary bird live. Very different is the old maid who may be described as a success—and there are such. She may not have an absorbing mission, but she puts every one into good humor, and is always desired. She is not soured by celibacy, but can think of and plan for the happiness of others. She is gentle, ready, helpful, and firm withal in sickness or any other emergency.

Freezing Injures Meat Food.

Meats frozen and kept in cold storage for long periods do not undergo organic changes in the ordinary sense—that is, they do not putrify, soften, or smell bad, but they deteriorate in some intangible way. After a certain time frozen meat loses some life principle essential to its nourishing quality. Such meat lacks flavor; it is not well digested or assimilated. Its savorless condition cannot be remedied or successfully disguised by the use of sauces and condiments. Those who eat cold storage food for any length of time developed diarrheal disorders, lose in weight and would eventually starve to death unless a change of diet was made. The same reasoning applies to tinned fruits and vegetables. They should not be used after a certain period has elapsed. Especially should people be warned against using stale eggs and old milk and cream. Milk and cream are kept for days, rancid butter is washed and treated chemically, but all food, and especially cold storage food, is damaged by long keeping and will not nourish the body properly. There is the greatest abundance of food, but it does not satisfy.—Sanitary Record.

Pays Employes Every Day.

One New York millionaire who earned his fortune by his own efforts under rather disadvantageous circumstances conducts his business in a way that is highly original in many particulars. One of the most striking of these is his method of dealing with his employes. They are paid every night, and at the close of every business day all the expenses of running the business have been met and the manager knows just how his affairs stand, as far as that feature of the business is concerned. But that is not his object in paying salaries every day instead of following the usual custom and waiting until the end of the week or month. He employs many men who have lost former situations through intemperance, although they were all men of ability in their field. If they severed their connection practically with the establishment at the close of every business day it made no difference to the employer what happened to the man after he left his establishment. By this means the millionaire is able to get the service of good men at a small salary and have no responsibility as to their conduct after they have received their pay for one day's work.—New York Sun.

Curiosity of Life Insurance.

"Accident insurance companies do more business when times are hard than they do when everyone is prosperous," says an insurance man. "The workingman thinks he should insure his family against danger when he is out of work."

World's Death Rate.

The death rate of the world is 67 and the birth rate 70 a minute, and this seeming light percentage of gain is sufficient to give a net increase in population each year of 1,200,000.

What has become of the old-fashioned woman who thought that any kind of a black dress was always genteel?

Folding Hay Door.

It has always been a good deal of trouble to close the end door to a barn where hay is taken in with a horse hay fork. We prefer to drive in the barn to unload the hay, but will admit that a barn will hold more when it is taken in at the end. The cut explains itself. The upper part of the door is hung to the lower part and folds in when open and will open clear back under the cornice and can be easily closed by closing the lower part first and raising the upper part from the inside. This closes the opening sufficient to keep out all storms provided the barn has a hood to accommodate the hay fork, and all barns should have a hood to keep the hay from rubbing against the barn so hard. The hood is not shown in the sketch, as it would hide the view of the door.—Ohio Farmer.

DOOR FOR BARN GABLE.

Watering Places.

There is need of concerted action or a State law providing suitable watering places for horses along the much traveled roads. In the olden times the roadmakers, when the road crossed a brook or ran along the edge of a pond, left places where one could drive in to water the horse, and perhaps swell the felloes of the wheels if the tires were loose, but now the brooks are bridged over to the width of the road, and the ponds fenced at the roadside to keep animals out, because the water supply for some town or village is taken from it, and it must be kept pure. This is all right when the town has provided public watering places where man and beast can quench their thirst, but when economy prevails to such an extent that these are not put up, and one may drive on a much traveled road for ten or fifteen miles without a chance for the horse to wash the dust out of his mouth, it is time that provision were made, even if we returned to the village pump and watering trough. They were very well where no brooks were available, but the pump sometimes would not work well, and sometimes the driver would not work the pump handle, and the poor horse got lukewarm and filthy water, or none at all, unless the driver wanted a drink himself.—American Cultivator.

Curing Clover Hay.

Alvah Agee tells in the National Stockman how he cured five acres of clover hay this year, in which he goes farther than we have advised in the way of curing it in the heap, and we have been accused of being very radical on that subject. He followed the advice of T. N. Ralston, as given at the Farmers' Institute in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania. The clover was cut from June 12 and June 13, in cloudy weather, and light rains followed nearly every day until June 18. Most of it was put in the heaps after about two hours wilting. One lot was left an hour longer, and this came out dark. One lot was racked and bunched before much wilted, and some of this was moldy. The bunches were opened out and aired on the following Monday not more than is usually thought necessary in ordinary handling, and then drawn to the barn. With the exceptions above noted, where the clover was wilted not enough or too much before heaping, the hay was quite green in color, with all heads and leaves on and no waste. He considers the experiment a success.

Care of Greenhouses.

Insects and fungous diseases are bad enough in the open field, but much worse when they get into the greenhouse. An occasional scalding of the benches and shelves, and washing them down with a solution of carbolic acid or sulphuric acid, will help much to keep them out, but if this fails it may be necessary to clean them out, removing the earth and putting in a new supply, then close and fumigate with burning charcoal and sulphur, taking care not to inhale the fumes, or let them get into another house where the plants are. Remove earth from all pots, wash them with carbolic acid solution, wash off in clear water the earth from roots of plants, and repot in fresh earth. Much work it is, but what is the use of a greenhouse when plants will not grow?

Tobacco Insects.

The tobacco crop must contend with the black cutworm in the ground and the large green worm on the leaf. The former will sometimes do great damage, attacking the plants as soon as they are put in the ground, often necessitating frequent renewals of plants. They must be hunted and destroyed whenever a plant is cut down until they disappear, which they do as the season advances. The green worm appears about the first of July, and must be hand-picked off the plants, going over the plot frequently.

$200,000,000 Worth of Poultry.

Two hundred and ninety millions of dollars for poultry, the proceeds of one year, compared with $188,000,000 for hogs for the same time, tells with emphasis the enormous magnitude of the poultry business. It becomes startling when it is remembered that we are still importers of eggs, for we should supply every home demand and be able to export besides. England imports 135,450,111 dozens of eggs at a cost of $20,365,326, and we furnish 447,033 of the amount, or did in 1897.

Hog Cholera.

I have been raising hogs for eight years, and have never lost one from cholera, although the cholera has been in my neighborhood several times during that time. Two years ago the cholera attacked my nearest neighbor's hogs. I advised him to give them equal parts of wood ashes, salt, charcoal, sulphur and soda, in one tablespoonful doses for each hog, twice a day. He did so, and of five sick hogs which received the treatment two died and three got well. About the same time a very fine pig of mine became sick and I gave him the same treatment. He recovered in two or three days. I gave the same remedy to my other hogs, and none of them were sick.—A. J. Legg, in Epitomist.

Dairy Dots.

The feed does not affect the richness of the milk. You cannot tell by the looks of milk how rich it is.

You cannot afford to run cows on half time.

To get high grade milk brush the cows before milking, and it is advised by many that the udders be clipped.

Manage to have the cows come fresh, so as to maintain a uniform supply throughout the year.

It is claimed that summer silage will stop summer shrinkage.

Don't make a strainer do too much work. Have a fresh one for every ten or a dozen cows.

Cool the milk and keep it at a given temperature.

Care, cleanliness and cold are the three "c's" of milk production.

Foreign Insect Pests.

Some of the insects brought to this country from abroad do more damage to crops than in their native countries. They are the more destructive here because their natural enemies (such as parasites) were left behind; hence the insects are kept in check in their native localities and have greater opportunities to multiply in America. The cabbage worm, so destructive here, has a parasite in Europe which prevents it from doing great damage. The Hessian fly parasite, however, has been imported to this country, and has done much to keep the fly in check.

Poultry Specializing.

There is much said about the necessity of specializing in the poultry business, but the fact remains that nearly all the successful poultrymen are uniting the egg and market poultry branches. The necessity for keeping up the plant the year around and employing all the time and facilities seems to make it necessary to raise broilers and market chickens as well as layers. Besides, the broiler men who depend upon others to furnish satisfactory eggs for hatching are likely to be disappointed.—Farm and Home.

Losses from Grain Rusts.

The aggregate loss from rusts in grain is estimated by the Department of Agriculture to be over $40,000,000 annually. The only method of controlling rusts appears to be in the direction of obtaining resistent varieties by crossing and breeding. The loss from smuts of grain is annually reduced through the application of hot water and other methods of treating the seed to kill the smut spores. The present average yield of grain, says the department report, will be largely increased when the smut diseases are conquered.

Pennsylvania Oleo Law.

The Superior Court of Pennsylvania decided that what is known as the color clause of the oleo law is sound. This means that oleo cannot legally be sold. Yellow is the standard color of butter, and it is illegal to counterfeit other fats by coloring them yellow. Instead of grieving over this the oleo men ought to rejoice, for it gives them a grand chance to prove that people are eager to buy oleo. Let them put it on the market for just what it is, uncolored and with no attempt to call it butter.—Rural New Yorker.

First in His Class.

This Shorthorn bull was first in his class at the Birmingham, England, Shorthorn show.

Curing Chickens of Cholera.

Those who make their pin money by raising chickens or turkeys would like to know how to cure cholera. This is the way I cured mine: Took about a quart of wheat flour, mixed it very thin with water and gave every morning. If fowls are too sick to eat, pour it down their throats. Give poultry plenty of buttermilk, and cholera will not bother them. I have not lost any since I gave this to them.—Mrs. C. Frank.

To Destroy Thistles.

Cut down the plants as low as possible and pour a teaspoonful of sulphuric acid on the crowns of the plants, the acid to be used only in glass, as it attacks all metals and wood and should be handled with great care. If properly applied it will destroy every thistle.

Salt for Asparagus.

In sandy or comparatively dry soil, salt is an excellent article to apply to asparagus beds. It will not, however, take the place of strong manure. Its chief office seems to be to encourage a plentiful supply of moisture.—Meehan's Monthly.

Saving Labor in Ironing.

I have learned quite a saving in washing, says Mrs. C. H. Moores. When my red napkins and tablecloths are ready for the line I fold them as if I had ironed them, then run them through the clothes wringer and hang out. The napkins I fold and put on table without ironing. For every-day use the iron does not improve them, and it saves time. The tablecloth will sometimes do; then again it will need the iron, but it will iron so much easier. My crash toweling, after it gets a little worn, I fold as if it were ironed and run through the wringer and hang out smooth, and it can be folded up and put away without being ironed. I do these things every week, and find they answer the purpose. White tablecloths are generally made out of much smaller thread than the red, and don't smooth as nicely. I bought two yards of Indian Head domestic for 25 cents; got eight napkins out of it. I pulled the thread, made fringe and hem-stitched them and got quite a cheap lot of napkins. They look almost like linen. This saves more for me than any item I know of.

Recipe for Cheese Cake.

Put two quarts of milk in a can. When lukewarm add two junket tablets. Stand this aside gently until it becomes thick and jellylike, then, with a fork, separate the curd from the whey and drain it in a bag. Put this into a bowl and add to it four eggs well beaten. Beat to a cream two tablespoonfuls of butter, adding gradually two-thirds of a cupful of sugar. Add half a teaspoonful of grated nutmeg and stir this into the other mixture. Line a square dish with good paste and turn the mixture in. Bake for half an hour. Send to the table cold. Cheese cake may also be made from the ordinary cottage or sour-milk cheese, using the same proportions of the other ingredients.

The Teapot.

"A perfect cup of tea can never be made in a tin teapot," says a demonstrator for a teahouse. "Scald the earthen teapot the first thing you do. Measure out the tea, allowing a half teaspoonful for each cup of boiling water. Have fresh water that has come to a boil for the first time. Put the tea in a cloth strainer and pour on the bubbling, boiling water. Cover closely with a tea cosey, and let the tea brew on the back of the range or at the table from three to five minutes. If the tea is to stand for some time remove the strainer with the tea leaves, else the fragrant aroma is wasted and the tannin extracted."

Parisian Chocolate.

Add two tablespoonfuls of hot water, and the same of granulated sugar, to one square of chocolate broken up small, stir thoroughly, let cook till smooth. Add the mixture to a quart of milk heated in a double boiler; cook from five to ten minutes. To each cup add, just before serving, a spoonful of thick whipped cream which has been sweetened slightly and flavored with vanilla. Serve lady fingers with it, or any delicate sponge cake.

Custard Souffle.

Two tablespoonfuls each of butter, flour and sugar, one cupful of milk, four eggs. Boil the milk. Blend the butter and flour, add them gradually to the boiling milk, stirring often. Beat the sugar with the yolks of eggs. Add to the cooked mixture and set away to cool. When cold add the whites, beaten to a stiff froth, and bake in a buttered dish for twenty minutes in a moderate oven. Serve immediately with wine sauce.—Miss Parloa.

Summer Floor Coverings.

For summer floor coverings mattings are most generally used, but it is a point to be noted that the cheaper qualities do not wear well. Denim, which comes in all manner of pretty designs and shades, is a very good substitute, provided it is put down over a layer of carpet lining or old newspapers.

Lettuce and Egg Salad.

Arrange crisp lettuce leaves in a nest of two or three leaves, in a salad bowl. Cut three hard-boiled eggs into quarters and place on the lettuce. Serve with mayonnaise or boiled salad dressing.

Hints for the Housewife.

Adding a pinch of salt to coffee gives it tone.

Sprinkle clothes with hot water and a whisk broom.

Try rubbing tough meat with a cut lemon to make it tender.

Add one or two tablespoonfuls of sugar to strong turnips when cooking.

Mix stove blacking with a little ammonia to prevent it burning off.

Add a few drops of ammonia to the blue water to whiten the clothes.

Add a little sugar to milk to prevent it sticking to the vessel while boiling.

Place an apple in the bread and cake boxes to keep bread and cake moist.

Mix a little cornstarch with salt before filling the salt shaker, to prevent its clogging.

Add a tablespoonful of kerosene to a pail of clear hot water to wash the windows.

Sprinkle grated cheese over oatmeal porridge instead of sugar and eat with cream.

Wet a cloth in cider vinegar, wrapping cheese in it to keep moist and prevent molding.

Dip a bit of parsley in vinegar and eating to sweeten the breath and remove odor after eating onions.

Dip stale doughnuts in cold water, placing in a paper bag, heating thoroughly in the oven and serving hot.

Mix flour and sugar together, before adding water, to prevent lumping, where flour and sugar are used in making sauces.

Add a tablespoonful of vinegar and a tablespoonful of sugar to counteract anything that has accidentally been made too salty.

Make a splendid furniture polish by taking a wine glass of olive oil, one of vinegar and two tablespoons of alcohol, apply with a soft cloth and polish with flannel.—Rural World.

ART OF PACKING CLOTHES.

Ladies' Home Journal Gives Some Valuable Advice.

In packing a trunk, first collect all the articles to be packed in one place, and then sort them according to their kinds, says the Ladies' Home Journal. Shoes should be wrapped in soft cotton covers, secured with strips of tape and placed at the bottom of the trunk, together with any books, heavy wraps and heavy flannel or woolen garments. Above these, and separated from them by a large towel spread and tucked down if the trunk is not of the dresser or bureau variety, should come heavy underwear. A second towel should separate this layer from the piles of gowns or waists and a third should divide the gowns and fine underwear. The towels, besides making a useful protection to the different piles of garments, are convenient when you are traveling from place to place, and only want to partially unpack, as the garments may be lifted out almost as if the towels were trays.

The upper tray should be carefully packed, precedence in it being given to any hats or bonnets to be carried. The crowns of either should be carefully packed with soft, crushable articles, as this economizes space, and the weight also aids in keeping them in place. The hats also may be kept in place by packing numerous small crushable things about them. An impromptu hat or bonnet case may be formed by putting pasteboard about either one. Everything in a trunk should be packed closely and nothing will suffer.

Handkerchiefs should always be packed in a case; veils, gloves and ribbons in boxes; cuffs and collars also in boxes; sewing materials in a tightly lidded box. If medicines are carried they should be put near the top of the trunk, the bottles being carefully corked, wrapped in cotton batting, and packed in a box with the lid securely fastened, so that there may be no danger of one's clothing being ruined in case the bottles should break.

The convenient dresser or bureau trunk is invaluable for the summer traveler. Summer hotels are always indifferently supplied with closet accommodation, and as this trunk is especially made with flat top and back, to stand against the wall, it is a convenient piece of furniture. The bottom of the trunk is designed to hold boots and articles too heavy to pack in the tray drawers above. The drawers are usually four in number, and are fitted with handles or straps by which they may be pulled open. They rest in grooves, and any one of them may be pulled out and opened without disturbing its neighbor. The top tray is divided into numerous small compartments, and the second, which has a lid, is of sufficient depth to receive hats and bonnets.

The wardrobe trunk is a case bulged at one end and on each side, so that it can be stood only on the flat end, and on the top or bottom, thus preventing the articles in its interior from becoming disarranged. The case contains a detachable swinging box, in which is a sliding rack which pulls out readily. From this rack depend separate hangers on which skirts and waists may be hung. This trunk is arranged to hold a dozen frocks without creasing or crushing.

The wardrobe trunk also contains a deep tray with compartments for hat, shoes, underwear, etc. All the compartments are well fitted with straps and fastenings for keeping in place the articles that are packed in them.

Frozen Stiff but Live.

It is a common experience among mountain climbers to find butterflies lying frozen on the snow, and so brittle that they break unless they are very carefully handled. Such frozen butterflies, on being taken to a warmer climate, recover themselves and fly away. Six species of butterflies have been found within a few hundred miles of the north pole.

We have noticed that when women refer to another woman as refined looking, it will be found that she is very thin

Crane Carried His Satchel.

Arthur A. Leeds, of Tioga, met Stephen Crane several years ago under circumstances which showed how little the novelist traded upon the fame that came to him. Mr. Leeds got off a train at Delaware Water Gap. The only man on the platform was humped up against the side of the depot gazing into space. He looked like a farmer's boy. His trousers were baggy, his coat battered, and his hat rowdy.

"Say, carry this stuff to the hotel for me, will you?" asked Mr. Leeds. The man grasped the bags and started in the wake of Mr. Leeds toward the hotel.

When the hotel was reached Mr. Leeds lost sight of his porter for a few minutes while he greeted friends. Looking around for his baggage he saw the man who had packed it to the hotel sitting on the piazza with his legs on the railing. He was reading a book.

"Who's that man?" asked Mr. Leeds.

"Oh, that's Stephen Crane," some one said. The next day Crane left the place before Mr. Leeds had an opportunity for explanations.—Philadelphia North American.

The Highest Cross in the World.

Crosses are placed in all sorts of positions, but the monster structure that has recently been erected on the peak of the highest of the Hartz Mountains can certainly claim to be the highest cross in the world. As a matter of fact, the cross is a tower, and has been built more for the purpose of sight-seeing than anything else. The tower stands on the Josephshaehe Mountain, and commands a magnificent view.

The mountain itself is 1,731 feet above the level of the sea, and the cross-tower is 120 feet high. The colossal structure rests on a quadrangle, shaped into an immense hall, to hold 500 people. A stairway of 200 steps leads to the top, and a hydraulic elevator will soon make travel upward easier.

Millions for Baseball.

A million of dollars are spent every year for baseball, but large as this is, it cannot equal the amount spent in search of health. We urge those who have spent much and lost hope to try Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It strengthens the stomach, makes digestion easy, and cures dyspepsia, constipation, biliousness and weak kidneys.

Ritualistic Suit.

An Episcopal church of Boston has been sued because it is not sufficiently "high church." A certain person left money to the church with the provision that the services should come up to a certain standard of churchmanship. The minister has failed, it is claimed, to get as much ritualism into the service and the responses of his flocks as the money calls for.

Victoria Cross.

Of the men who won the Victoria Cross in the far-away '50s no fewer than sixty-four are living to-day, so that of all the living men who are entitled to wear the Cross more than two out of every five have lived to wear it for more than forty years. Even of the band of sixty-two Crimean heroes who were decorated by the Queen in Hyde Park on the 26th of June, 1857, twenty-four are still living.

What Do the Children Drink?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called GRAIN-O? It is delicious and nourishing, and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee, but costs about ¼ as much. All grocers sel it. 15c and 25c.

Don't Drink Ice-Cold Water.

Ice-cold water is not so good as iced water—that is, water cooled by ice without coming in contact with it. The less of either the better. It is an excellent practice to drink water—an abundance of it—just before retiring, also the first thing in the morning. It is a cleanser of the system, and is a good diuretic.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Cures Them—Two Letters from Women.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I write to tell you of the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me. I was sick in bed about five weeks. The right side of my abdomen pained me and was so swollen and sore that I could not walk. The doctor told my husband I would have to undergo an operation. This I refused to do until I had given your medicine a trial. Before I had taken one bottle the swelling began to disappear. I continued to use your medicine until the swelling was entirely gone. When the doctor came he was very much surprised to see me so much better."—MRS. MARY SMITH, Arlington, Iowa.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I was sick for two years with falling of the womb, and inflammation of the ovaries and bladder. I was bloated very badly. My left limb would swell so I could not step on my foot. I had such bearing down pains I could not straighten up or walk across the room and such shooting pains would go through me that I thought I could not stand it. My mother got me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and told me to try it. I took six bottles and now, thanks to your wonderful medicine, I am a well woman."—MRS. ELSIE BRYAN, Otisville, Mich.

Sheriff's Sale.

By virtue of an execution issued on a transcript of a judgment filed in the office of the clerk of the DeKalb circuit court on the 22d day of April, 1895, and to me directed by the clerk of said court, I will offer for sale at public auction and outcry, to the highest bidder, at the door of the court house in Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana, on

SATURDAY, AUGUST 11, 1900,

between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following described real estate, situated in DeKalb county, in the state of Indiana, to-wit;

Lot numbered seventy-two [72] in Ensley's second addition to the town of Auburn.

And in case the rents and profits fail to bring the amount demanded to satisfy the judgment and decree aforesaid, interest and costs, together with all accruing costs, I will, at the same time and place, and in like manner as aforesaid, offer for sale, at public auction and outcry, to the highest bidder, all the right, title, interest and estate in fee simple of Grant Owens and John C. Owens at his death and now holden by his heirs, in and to the above described real estate, or so much and such part thereof as may be necessary to satisfy the judgment and decree aforesaid, which is in favor of Solomon Shilling and against Grant Owens, John C. Owens.

Said real estate will be sold without relief from valuation or appraisement laws, and subject to the redemption laws of the state of Indiana.

Thursday's Daily.

—August 16 has been decided upon for old settlers' day at Angola.

—David Beber of Garrett has been granted an increase of pension.

—The democrats of Keyser township will nominate candidates for township officers at Garrett on Saturday evening July 28.

—WANTED:—Black Walnut logs for timber. Highest cash prices paid for same. Address, The Sanders & Egbert Co., Goshen, Ind. 8

—A letter from J. S. Funk leaves him well, his present address being, Milmine, Platt Co., Ill. He sends cash for the COURIER, and says it is a welcome visitor.

—If you are sick all over, and don't know just what ails you, it's ten to one your kidneys are out of order. Foley's Kidney Cure will bring you health and energy.—H. B. McCord.

—Mathias Cupp was a caller today. He is not in very good health, but can work most of the time, He devotes himself to gardening, and has been very successful this year.

—Mrs. Minnie Wilson Schneider returned last evening from a pleasant visit with her uncle, and today went to Fort Wayne accompanied by her aunt, Mrs. James H. Rowland.

—Why not send General Otis to China. A man who could so often suppress the Philippines rebellion with one hand tied behind him ought to make short work of the Boxers.

—The blood is strained and purified by the kidneys. No hope of health while the kidneys are wrong. Foley's Kidney Cure will make healthy kidneys and pure blood.—H. B. McCord.

—Carpet rags dyed with Putnam Fadeless Dyes do not fade, are brighter and will not stain if you should spill vinegar or other fruit acids on them. 10c per package. Sold by F. E Davenport. 27

—Mr. A. Cunningham of Nashville says, "I used a number of things, but did not get the satisfaction that I got from Barnes' Kidney and Bladder Cure. I believe one-half dozen bottles would cure anyone."

—The Christian Endeavor society of the Lutheran church will give an ice cream social on the lawn at Simps Johnson's, North Main street, Wednesday evening, July 25. They invite everybody to come.

—Mr. Alex F. Johnson of Decatur, Ala., says, "I have used two bottles of your Barnes Kidney and Bladder Cure and the pain which I had in my back has ceased and I feel greatly benefitted in many other ways."

—A special election will be held in Springfield township, Allen county, to vote on the question of giving a subsidy of $10,000 to the Fort Wayne & Butler railroad. Maysville is in that township and is hustling hard to get the road.

—For quickly relieving that distressed feeling after eating, a single dose of that gentle acting Krause's Little Liver Pills is all that is required as a certain cure for constipation, that prolific cause of so much suffering. Krause's Little Liver Pills are warranted. Sold by H B. McCord.

—The present troubles in China can be used as an argument on both sides of the expansion question. For instance, if we didn't have the Philipines, we should have to send ships and men all the way from San Francisco, and then on the other hand, if we didn't have the Philipines, we should probably keep out of China altogether.

—The state board of health has been quietly investigating vinegar sold in various places and has found that fully 80 per cent of all the so-called "cider vinegars" are not made from cider. Fully 90 per cent of the vingear sold, according to a statement made by the board today, is what is known as "whisky vinegar," made at distilleries. It is, however, said to be wholesome. Other vinegars investigated have been found to contain coloring matter in the form of burnt sugar, glucose, soda ash and boiled cider.

—Fred Funk has at last obtained a settlement, with the contractor who built the power house. After waiting nearly a year and laying out of his money, and then throwing off a part he got his money. Fred is a hard working man and deserves better treatment.

—Miss Alta Noragon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Noragon, of Constantine, Mich., is here, a guest of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Clifton. Her mother is a sister of Mr. Clifton and was formerly a teacher in this county. Her father was a Franklin township boy.

—David Heckathorn was here yesterday and gave the COURIER a visit. He seems to be keeping his promise of good behavior, made to the court when he was released. But there is a good deal of bitterness yet, in his comments on what he considers the wrong done him in these various arrests. He is apparently going ahead to make up, at least in part, the losses he has suffered in his financial matters. If he keeps sober, he can do this, as he is a man of good business ability.

Saturday's Daily.

—Light snow reported at Marshall, Mich., last evening.

—Mike Kiplinger of Waterloo, was in town today, a guest of his son-in-law Ralph Thomas.

—Viril Houser of Indianapolis is in town. We believe he is representing the Rand & McNally publishing house.

—Thomas A. Husselman and Sylvester Stopher left on the forenoon train for Fort Wayne where they will spend Sunday with friends.

—J. C. Cramar, from east of town brought in the other day, a wagon load of live hogs, as fine ones as we ever saw. He is also shipping away some sheep.

—The aged mother of M. A. Buck of Garrett, died July 16 at her home in Laporte. Many people in the northwest part of the county know the family.

General Ordinance No. 13.

An Ordinance Establishing Fire Limits.

Section 1. Be it ordained by the Common Council of the City of Auburn, Indiana, that the following fire limits be and are hereby established within said city, and the erection of any building, or addition to any building, unless the outer walls thereof are made of iron, stone, brick and mortar, or some of them, is hereby prohibited within such limits. Said fire limits are as follows, to-wit:

Beginning at the center of the intersection of Cedar street and Seventh street; thence north to Sixth street; thence west on Sixth street to a point half-way between Cedar street and Main street; thence north to Fifth street; thence west on Fifth street to Jackson street; thence south on Jackson street to Tenth street; thence east on Tenth street to Main street; thence south on Main street to Eleventh street; thence east on Eleventh street to Cedar street; thence north on Cedar street to Tenth street; thence east along the middle of Tenth street to a point half-way between Cedar street and East street; thence due north to Seventh street; thence west on Seventh street to the place of beginning.

Section 2. Any building erected in violation of the foregoing section shall be taken and deemed a nuisance and the marshal or street commissioner of said city shall cause such building or portion thereof to be torn down, altered, repaired or rebuilt, and the expense thereof shall be recoverable of the owners of said building in an action to be brought by the city for that pur ose.

Section 3. Any person, firm, company or corporation violating Section 1 of this ordinance shall be subject to a fine of not less than $25 nor more than $100, and each and every day of such violation of Section 1 shall be taken and deemed a separate offense.

Section 4. All ordinances or parts of ordinances in conflict herewith are hereby repealed.

Section 5. This ordinance shall be in force from and after its publication for two successive weeks in the Auburn Courier.

Passed July 16, 1900.

General Ordinance No. 12.

An Ordinance Concerning the Sale of Intoxicating Liquors and the Licensing Thereof.

Section 1. Be it ordained by the Common Council of the City of Auburn, that it shall be unlawful for any person to sell, barter or give away any intoxicating liquors to be used in and upon the premises where sold or disposed of as aforesaid in the residence portion of the city of Auburn; providing that all that portion of said city lying without the following described limits shall be deemed residence portion within the meaning of this ordinance. Said limits are as follows, towit:

Beginning at the center of the intersection of Cedar street and Seventh street; thence north to Sixth street; thence west on Sixth street to a point half way between Cedar and Main streets; thence north to Fifth street; thence west on Fifth street to Jackson street; thence south on Jackson street to Tenth street; thence east on Tenth street to Main street; thence south on Main street to Eleventh street; thence east on Eleventh street to Cedar street; thence north on Cedar street to Tenth street; thence east along the middle of Tenth street to a point half-way between Cedar street and East street; thence due north to Seventh street; thence west on Seventh street to the place of beginning.

Section 2. This ordinance shall apply to all sales or gifts of intoxicating liquors to be used on the premises within the said residence portion of said city, whether the seller has taken out a license from said city, or DeKalb county, or the state of Indiana, or not, and such license, if the seller has one, shall constitute no defense to any action founded on this ordinance.

Section 3. It shall be unlawful for any person to sell, barter or give away any intoxicating liquor to be used upon the premises where sold within the corporate limits of the City of Auburn or within two miles of the corporate limits of said city, without first procuring a license from the clerk of said city to sell intoxicating liquors as aforesaid,

Section 4. Any person who shall after the first day of August, 1900, procure from the board of commissioners of DeKalb county, Indiana, a license to sell intoxicating liquors within the corporate limits of the City of Auburn or within two miles of the corporate limits of said city, and who shall pay into the treasury of said city the sum of two hundred and fifty dollars ($250.00), and who shall present to the city clerk a receipt from the city treasurer for said sum of two hundred and fifty dollars ($250,00) shall be entitled to receive a license to sell intoxicating liquors for the period of one year, except that no license shall be granted to sell intoxicating liquors in the residence portion of said city.

Section 5. Any person who, on the first day of August, 1900, holds an unexpired license from said city to sell intoxicating liquors in said city, or any person who holds an unexpired license from the board of commissioners of DeKalb county, Indiana, to sell intoxicating liquors within two miles of the corporate limits of said city, shall obtain a further license from said city for the unexpired period of their said license by paying into the city treasury such proportionate part of two hundred and fifty dollars ($250.00) as the unexpired term of his said license bears to the whole term thereof, and by presenting to the city clerk the city treasurer's receipt therefor and his said unexpired license; provided that when said applicant holds an unexpired license from said city issued under prior ordinances of said city or town of Auburn, there shall be credited to said applicant on his new city license as herein provided, such proportionate part of the amount said for such prior city or town license as the unexpired term thereof bears to the whole term thereof, and provided further that no person holding a license to sell intoxicating liquors in the residence portion of said city shall have the right to renew his license as aforesaid.

Section 6. It is provided that any person now holding license outside the prescribed territory be permitted to continue business until the expiration of such license by complying with all other provisions of this ordinance.

Section 7. Any person violating any section of this ordinance shall upon conviction thereof be fined in any sum not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than one hundred dollars, and each sale made in violation of this ordinance shall constitute a separate act and a new and distinct offense.

Section 8. All ordinances or parts of ordinances in conflict herewith are hereby repealed.

Section 9. This ordinance shall be in full force from and after its passage and publication for two weeks in the Auburn Courier.

Passed July 16, 1900.

Attest: C. B. WEAVER, City Clerk.

To Asthma Sufferers.

Lawson Elvidge of Barrington, Ill., says he was cured of chronic asthma of long standing by Foley's Honey and Tar. It gives positive relief in all cases of asthma, so this disease, when not completely cured, is robbed of all its terrors by this great remedy.—H. B. McCord.

Court News.

WEDNESDAY FORENOON.

Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. Morris testified. She said her husband provided well and was always kind when sober. He had in his pockets when he died, over $48. She said she had found whisky bottles in the house with Ritter's name on. Had notified Garrett saloons not to sell Morris any drinks.

S. C. Clemans, barkeeper for Whirledge, said Morris was in their saloon that afternoon, but was full and he refused to sell him a drink, but gave young Shulthess a cigar. Cross-examination by Roby. I think Fred Elson called several times that day, but Morris only the one time. He seldom got drinks of us. I have seen him drink.

Frank McDowell sworn. I am brother of Mrs. Morris, and went with her and gave notices to the Garrett saloons. He gave one to someone in Ritter's place, but cannot say whether to Ritter or a bartender. This was in the spring of '93. Cross-examination. Morris would be liable to go on a spree every month or two.

Miles Baxter sworn. Am brother-in-law of plaintiff. In December '93, I wrote for her, notices to all the saloons in Garrett not to sell Morris any liquor. She signed them. I served them. Do not know whether it was Ritter or a clerk I gave one to.

Mrs. Morris recalled. I depended on my husband for my support and that of the children.

J. N. Ritter sworn. Am the defendant. Frank McDowell served a notice on me, but no one else ever did. I gave orders to all my clerks not to sell to anyone who gets drunk. I told them Shorty Morris was one. The day in question, I was out part of the time. I did not see Morris that day. A letter was shown him which he identified as his own, that he had written to Morris' brother in Danville, Ill. He asked if Morris was subject to fits, having heard such a rumor. The object was to get a defense against the coming suit. He told the brother he was being sued for $10,000, which was as much as he had laid up in the ten years he had been in business. It seems that this brother, Bob Morris, is also a saloon keeper. He did not answer the letter, but Mr Baxter got it.

Coverdale and another bartender for Ritter, testified they did not sell drinks that day to Morris.

Mrs. Jeff Clark testified that Morris was kind when sober, but generally ugly when drunk.

Mr. Loveland testified to about the same. Saw Morris take a sack of chickents to Garrett, but did not know whether he sold to a saloon or not.

Mountz then read affidavits taken by him for one side and Miles Baxter for the other, at Danville, Ill., of several persons, including Bob Morris. Also several taken by himself and John W. Baxter at Benzonia, Mich., of people who knew Morris. A deposition by Fred Elson at the coroner's inquest was read, also.

On Wednesday afternoon, the evidence closed. It had been mainly of the same character as that already reported. The prosecution tried to make it appear that the liquor that brought on the fatal result was, at least the last he got at Ritter's, and that Morris was then drunk, making it unlawful to sell to him. It was also argued that Morris being a kind and industrious when sober, his value to his family was great.

The defense on the other hand sought to belittle the value of Morris to his family and to reduce his good qualities. They also sought to disprove the claim that his last drinks were obtained at Ritter's The bartenders on duty that day, swore they did not sell any to Morris that afternoon. Other witnesses were brought in to prove that Morris did get liquor that afternoon at Whirledge's "place" though the plaintiff had several witnesses to show that Whirledge refused him.

It will be seen from this, that the jury have a hard case to wrestle with.

When the arguments began at 4 p. m. each side was given two hours. Mr. Moody spoke first, for the plaintiff, and then Mr. Mountz followed for the defense.

This morning, Thursday, the arguments were resumed. Judge Roby had one hour for the defense, and the closing speech for the plaintiff was then given by Mr. Baxter and the case given to the jury just before noon.

Altogether it has been a well fought case, for some vital points in law were involved, as well as the large sum of money at stake.

Melon Feast.

The democrats of southern Indiana and the 1st district have arranged for a watermelon love feast at Poseyville Aug. 11. Invitations have been sent to David B Hill of New York and Adlai E. Stevenson, democratic candidate for the vice-presidency. Mr. Stevenson has promised to attend. Frozen watermelon will be served to the crowds. The farmers of Posey county have promised to furnish all the melons necessary.

Foley's Kidney Cure makes kidneys and bladder right.

The Eighth Regulars.

As noted yesterday in a 'phone message from Mrs. W. G. Hogsett, not Mrs. Guilford, as we had it, the Eighth regulars went through Waterloo last evening over the Lake Shore road. It was a big special train in four sections and was to go through at about four p. m., but as usual in such cases, it was behind time and did not go through till nearly ten. A great many Auburn people went up to see the Ankney boys, Samuel and Albert, as they went through, but most of them finding the train would be so late, came home. Their mother, Mrs. Ice, and their sister Mrs. Hogsett, and other relatives, however, staid, in the hope of seeing the boys who have been a year or so in Cuba. They did not expect to see much of them, though it was supposed the trains would halt a moment for the target. But they ran right through. Mrs. Hogsett saw the boys she believes, swinging their hats at them as they whirled through. But the mother saw no one she could recognize as her boys. She feels very bad at the idea of their going so far away as China.

Auburn Inventors.

Geo. Shumaker and Justus Winslow are developing a talent for invention that may eventually be a surprise to our people. They have for a year or so been developing an improvement on marine steam engines and propellers, or rather have developed them on a new principle, one never before applied to any such use. On Wednesday of this week, July 25, they tested their invention, the marine engine, and found it worked exactly as they had planned, except for the friction that is found in all new machines at first trial due mainly to imperfect workmanship or temporary imperfection. This model is five feet long and weighs about 100 pounds and one of its leading principles, if it succeeds as they believe it will, will greatly revolutionize the application of power. So great a step in advance is it, that it will probably create a new subdivision in the machinery list in the patent office. We hope they may succeed.

DeKalb Battalion Reunion.

On account of the old settlers meeting at Angola August 16, the same date set for the reunion of the DeKalb Battalion at Auburn, the officers of the Battalion have changed the date of their reunion at Auburn from August 16 to Tuesday, August 21, to accommodate the soldiers and citizens in both counties who desire to attend both meetings.

In making this change of the date for the benefit of all concerned it is believed by the officers of the Battalion that Steuben county will send large delegations to Auburn August 21. Making this change of date will enable the department commander, G. A. R., to be present, who had a previous appointment for August 16. Other good speakers will address the meeting both in the afternoon and at the campfire in in the evening.

Remember the date and everybody come. This reunion will be the event of the season at Auburn. Exchange please note. COMMITTEE.

No More Big Rallies.

The political rally is rapidly on the decline, says the Rochester Sentinel. People are nearly all reading and thinking for themselves nowadays and few are influenced by long processions and "hip, hip, hurrah" to change their political opinions. The big rally is a tremendous expense and a whole lot of hard work, and party leaders are growing tired of giving a big show for the community to look at.

With General Williams, of the Warsaw Times, we believe that there will be large political meetings held in the future, but a calmer, more close reasoning into the questions at issue between the parties, is almost certain to be the feature of the future campaigns both state and national, and the honest, earnest voter cannot help but welcome such a course as compared with the huge and costly rallies of former days.

Drying Apples.

Industrial houses are sending out circulars urging people to save fruit by drying it. Apples, especially, are said to be greatly wasted by being allowed to rot on on the ground under the tree. It is urged that these be selected, carefully pared and thoroughly dried, tied up in paper sacks and eventually marketed. Children are urged to do this where the quantity of apples is not sufficient to enlist the attention of the farmer himself. In this way, the time of a child will be made of some value, and there may be a nice little sum secured which will be very acceptable about holidays. No doubt the idea is a good one.

The Boys in Camp.

Thursday's Daily.

The past twenty-four hours in camp life have been very dull, owing to a heavy downpour of rain which set in at noon Tuesday and only let up this forenoon. There have been no drills, and guard mount this morning was only an informal affair. Only five men in the Third Regiment were caught in the city last night and they were from the Third battalion. The provost guard stationed in the city has orders to arrest all uniformed men. A few of the Auburn boys, however, are equal to the occasion and in order to visit the city they dressed themselves with citizen clothing, while some of the body guards play their parts as soldiers in the camp.

Those who are here as body guards are Geo. Bishop, Chas. Picker, Ed. Baxter, Clarence Shoemaker and Joe Williamson's two young boys.

Indianapolis visitors to the camp have been very few, owing to the inclement weather. There is but little sickness in camp, hospital headquarters having not been established till today in this regiment. Lieutenant B. F. Joliff was called home by wire last night owing to the serious illness of J. L. Davis. Chaplain Medbury has asked for a leave of absence and will start for home tomorrow. Major Kuhlman and staff were furnished all equipments this morneig, save uniforms.

Friday's Daily.

The special feature of interest in the camp Wednesday was the memorial service held in the Y. M. C. A. tent in honor of the former members of the guard who died during the Spanish-American war and in the Philippines or from the result of such service. The program was in charge of Maj. Newton W. Gilbert of Gen. McKee's staff. Chaplain Knox, of the First regiment, led the song and devotional exercises. He was followed by Lieut. D. R. Gebhart, who sang a solo. Chaplain C. S. Medbury of the Third regiment, read the names of the deceased members of the guard and followed with an address. He endeavored to impress upon his hearers that their service with the national guard was not solely a matter of sport, as many seemed to think, and that it should be taken in all seriousness, as each and every member of it might at any time be called to duty where their service might mean death, as had been the case with those whose names had been just read. List of dead comprised seventy-nine names.

Governor Mount followed Chaplain Medbury with an address which brought forth cheers from the soldiers, often compelling him to stop until their enthusiasm had subsided. He emphasized in every way the real dignity of a soldier's life and service and paid high tribute to those whose lives had been given up in the service of 1898 and in the Philippines. He assured the guard that the state was anxious to provide for them the best equipment possible, and that the efforts of the state should be directed in such a way as to make the newly organized guard second to none. Allusion was made to the conditions now existing in the far east, and when the Governor said he had anticipated the patriotism of the new guard and had already offered to the federal government its services the soldiers became wild with enthusiasm, and it was some minutes before he could proceed. He said he had the fullest confidence that the future would be as heroically met by the new guard, if necessity required, as was done in the sixties and in 1898. The service closed with the singing of "America," in which everybody joined.

Private Bryant was called home by sickness and left last night. The Second and Third battalions of the Third regiment, will go to the rifle range today and some good scores may be the result. No governor's day has been announced and will not be observed unless the chief executive calls for it. Fourteen members of Company K have been declared to remain in camp till Monday for special duty. The Third regiment band gave a concert in front of Col. Studebaker's headquarters last night, which was grand and so popular are they with the boys, that several encores were responded to. It is now thought we will break camp Saturday afternoon.

Saturday's Daily.

Thursday afternoon was devoted to target practice in the Second and Third battalions of the Third regiment. The scores are a little under the average, and but five or six in both battalions qualified for the 300-yard range. Each man was entitled to five shots and could score a possible 25. The records made were as follows:

Sergeant E. M. Hilkey	15
Sergeant Wilson Grogg	19
Sergeant T. Hoodlemier	17
Bugler George Dierstein	15
Bugler Ed O. Little	20
David Guynn	17
Wade McDougall	17
Clint Nichols	15
John Thomas	18

In the 200-yard range none qualified; John Thomas coming nearest, score 13

Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Houser, Pension Agent Leighty, George Henderson and L. H. Willis were visitors yesterday. Brigade review was held last night and the line was a grand sight. There were thousands of spectators in camp during the afternoon. Governor Mount will review the troops at 6:30 tonight, when a monster crowd is expected. Camp will be broken Saturday afternoon, when the march to the city will follow. Company K will probably reach home Saturday night or Sunday morning.

Our Saturday Evenings.

CHAPTER XLII.

Indiana is in many ways a peculiar state with peculiar interests. In fact its interests are more varied than perhaps any other state in the union, and in many regards valuable. As an agricultural state, it ranks with the highest, and its mineral resources are of great variety and value. It has the finest building stone in the world and most of it. Its lithographic stone is abundant; its forests have been of the finest, especially in high-priced and beautiful woods. But we did not start out to tell these things, nor to allude even to its wonderful resources in coal, gas and petroleum. We had a distinctly different idea to follow.

If in the present Chinese muddle, the United States should be led into a war with that unspeakable people, of all the states in the Union, Indiana is probably the only one that has a direct interest in it. We have "commercial interests" of considerable value, that have already suffered by the trouble, and will soon be entirely ruined if the trouble continues.

We refer to the great Indiana ginseng industry. In certain of the wilder parts of the state, where for any cause, the agricultural interests have not cleared away the forests, there has always, from our earliest settlements, been quite a business in hunting ginseng, digging and drying its roots and marketing them. In early days our own local doctors used many of the simple "botanical" remedies, and it would appear they must have been effective as their popularity held so long, and for all we know, still holds.

But it finally became known that a similar medicinal plant was in high favor in China, not only for its curative value, but it was considered a sort of charm, and so had a "spiritual value" not known in this country. Our ginseng diggers at once cultivated this new market and from that day to the present, we have looked to China as a consumer of the great bulk of this mild and pleasant plant. At present, the Chinese quotations largely rule the market.

The plant has never been very abundant in northern Indiana, it being found only in small patches in certain localities. But in certain parts of central Indiana, and more so in the rougher uncultivated parts of certain southern counties, there was a greater amount. And it is still in many localities an important local business. Small farmers and those with no farms, put in quite a portion of their time during the season, in searching the woods for it. Often the whole family will assist.

The plant is a small one, but is handsome and symmetrical, in fact a little beauty from a botanist's point of view. The roots are not large, being usually less in size and length than one's finger, and two or three of these to a plant. The root is washed, dried, and packed for market. That which is sent to China is sold mainly to dealers in Indianapolis, who in turn have agents in China. In cases of scarcity, high prices are obtained, for a Chinaman believes it will not only cure about every complaint, but will scare away almost any of their numerous devils. That devils are numerous in China, is becoming more evident daily.

Now, however, the Chinaman is too busy to get sick and too mad to care whether his family devil is kept away or not, and the market is very dull. In fact, sales to China have nearly stopped.

This is why we say that Indiana will have something to fight about and if Gov. Mount has to call on the militia to go over there, he can depend on every "sang digger" who is a member of a company. Whole families have found this source of revenue cut off, and there is much complaint among the knobs and hills down that way. And who knows but Indiana may be an important factor in preventing what bids fair to be the worst war known? Who knows but the efforts our government is making to prevent war, result from a disposition to save Indiana's ginseng trade with the Orient?

"The Heathen Chinee is peculiar," said Bret Harte. He probably knew what he was talking about. For it is within the memory of many men, when there was a real war in China, occasioned by the Chinaman's strong affection for opium. They had long used the drug for medicine and for smoking, but in 1796 the emperor forbid any being brought into the country and imposed severe penalties, and finally death for smoking it. But eventually the trade increased. It was mostly brought from British India, and trouble arose to keep British ships from bringing it in. No heed being paid to this, about $10,000,000 worth of the stuff was seized by the Chinese on British store ships in the various harbors in 1839 and thrown overboard, as we had done with the tea in Boston Harbor. And at times, there were cities shelled by the British, and various wars followed, during which the English got Hong-Kong, and forced the Chinese to open several ports to foreign trade, and to pay heavy indemnities.

Royal Baking Powder

Makes The Food More Healthful

Royal Baking Powder possesses peculiar qualities not found in other leavening agents, which arise from the superior fitness, purity and healthfulness of its ingredients.

Royal Baking Powder leavens the food perfectly by its own inherent power without changing or impairing any of the elements of the flour.

Thus the hot-breads, hot-rolls and muffins, and the delicious hot griddle-cakes raised by the Royal Baking Powder are wholesome and digestible, and may be eaten without distress, even by persons of delicate digestion.

Alum baking powders are low priced, as alum costs but two cents a pound; but alum is a corrosive poison and it renders the baking powder dangerous to use in food.

A Minister's Good Work.

"I had a severe attack of bilious colic got a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy, took two doses and was entirely cured," says Rev. A. A. Powe of Emporia, Kan. My neighbor across the street was sick for over a week, had two or three bottles of medicine from the doctor. He used them for three or four days without relief, then called in another doctor who doctored him for some days and gave him no relief, so discharged him. I went over to see him the next morning. He said his bowels were in a terrible fix, that they had been running off so long that it was almost bloody flux. I asked him if he had tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy and he said, 'No.' I went home and brought him my bottle and gave him one dose; told him to take another dose in fifteen or twenty minutes if he did not find relief, but he took no more and was entirely cured." A 20-Pound Baby can take Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin with as much safety and beneficial results as an adult. It is a mild, liquid laxative and children thrive upon it. Syrup Pepsin assists nature in cleansing the system, and its use is not attended with any of the unpleasant griping and nauseating effects caused by the use of pills or so-called cathartics. Try a 10c size bottle (10 doses 10 cents.) Also sold in 50c and $1 sizes by H. B. McCord.

For the G. A. R.

The week of the great G. A. R. meeting at Chicago, the two passenger trains on the B. & O., known as 16 and 17, will run into Chicago and out. They have heretofore stopped at Walkerton. No. 17 goes west, passing Auburn Junction at 12:25 p. m., and reaches the city at 5 p. m. No. 16 leaves Chicago about 5:30 a. m., and reaches Auburn Junction at 11:08 a. m. These will be handy trains.

It is a Curse.

Constipation is a curse, and afflicts too great a portion of the American people. There is no excuse for it either, as we sell a remedy that will banish the curse, and with moderate use will keep you well. It is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Sold in 10c, 50c and $1 00 sizes. For sale by H. B. McCord.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

AN APPALLING PLEA.

The saloon robs a man of every thing worth possessing, then when he dies in a drunken fit, enters the plea that he was so worthless and degraded, his life was valueless, and his murderer a public benefactor.

CHANGE THE BARS.

If the heavy iron grates and bars used to keep the victims of the drink traffic in custody for the crimes committed, were transfered to bar the front and rear entrances to saloons, we might have happy home, and sober citizens.

LIQUOR ON THE CONGO.

A man has been on the Upper Congo two years and nine months. He has distinguished himself. I can recommend him to anybody for industry, fidelity and attention to his duties. I wish to preserve him. He has slight dysenteric symptoms. I say to him: "If I thought I could keep you from wine and liquor, I would send you to the coast, and send you home with good care; and if I had authority to bind you under oath, so that you could not touch a glass of liquor, I should be quite sure that you would arrive home, and after a residence there of three to six months, you would be prepared to return." He said: "But I promise you that I will not touch a drop of liquor." "I do not want to exercise any restraint over you, but my firm conviction is, that if you touch it, you will never reach home. Good-bye. Boys, carry him." I give him a dozen hammock bearers. He reaches the coast. The doctors attend him. He recovers from the slight malady. They say now he is in a fit condition to go home. That evening he swaps his coat to a native for a bottle of gin, and by midnight he is dead. HENRY M. STANLEY.

EVENTS OF INTEREST

THAT OCCURRED DURING THE PAST WEEK.

Tersely Told Telegraph Tales in Brief Paragraphs—Many Casualties—A Few Crimes—Some Fires—Political and Religious News.

British Repulsed.

London special: Lord Roberts reports to the war office that General Archibald Hunter's command was heavily engaged July 24 and 25 in the hills south of Bethlehem. The Boers were strongly entrenched and fought stubbornly throughout the 24th and compelled the British to retire from some of their positions with about fifty causualities. At last accounts Gen. Hunter had worked around into Brandwater basin, in the rear of the Boers, while Gen. Hector McDonald and Gen. Bruce Hamilton were blocking outlets on the front of the federals, who evacuated their positions at Witnek.

Neely's Stealings.

The Postmaster General has made public the report of Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow, who investigated the Cuban postal frauds. Mr. Bristow finds that Neely's embezzlements aggregated at least $131,713 and says he was justified in recommending the removal of Director General Rathbone. Whether or not the latter was guilty with Neely in the embezzlements, he says there can be no doubt that in the matter of unauthorized per diem allowances, personal expences and warrants cashed and unaccounted for, he unlawfully appropriated to his own use money of the Cuban revenues.

Forty Were Drowned.

Victoria (B. C.) special: Passengers arriving on the steamer Cottage City, which arrived here from Alaskan ports, report that the stern-wheeler, Florence III, had been caught in a storm on Lake Labarge and was capsized. There were 150 passengers aboard, and forty are said to have lost their lives. The steamer Humboldt is stated to have brought the news to White Horse. The story, however, lacks confirmation.

Increasing the Force.

A dispatch from Vallejo, Cal., says: The force at the Mare Island navy yard is being increased. Orders have been received to rush work on the gunboat Alert, and it is presumed she is destined for work in Chinese waters. Dr. Payne, detached from the naval hospital, and Lieutenant Hirschinger, have been ordered to China. The latter will serve as adjutant to the Fifth battalion of marines.

Eagle Siezes Small Child.

An eagle measuring six feet one and a half inches from tip to tip of wings. was killed by T. Smith, a farmer living in the town of Sheboygan, Wis. While at work he saw the great bird fly close to his children and clasp his daughter Mary, aged 3 years. The man secured a rifle and shot the eagle. The child and bird fell to the ground, the child not being hurt.

Plot To Assassinate.

San Domingo special: A plot to assassinate the governor of Santiago, Ramon Caceres, has been discovered and twenty-five of the conspirators have been imprisoned. Several military officers are involved. The accused will be tried by courtmartial. President Jiminez is visiting the interior. The country generally is quiet.

Fatal Explosion.

An explosion occurred in the chemical department of the Windsor Celluloid Collar Company on the fourth floor of 125 Dearborn street, Chicago, setting fire to the building and resulting in the death of three women, the fatal injury of another and minor injuries to five other persons. The property loss was small.

Russia Adopts Drastic Measures

The London Daily Express has the following from St. Petersburg:

"Admiral Skrydeloff, commanding the Russian squadron in Chinese waters, has received precise instructions to bombard the Chinese coast towns immediately on receipt of confirmation of the massacre at Pekin."

Revolution Collapses.

The State Department has just received a dispatch from Consul General Gudger, at Panama, announcing the collapse of the the revolutionary movement there. He states that the liberals unexpectedly surrendered and that quiet now prevails at Panama.

News From Remey.

Admiral Remey cables the following: Colonel Mead has been relieved on account of rheumatism, and Major Waller succeeds to his command. He says that his investigation clears the marines of any imputation of burning houses or looting at Tien Tsin.

French Missionaries Killed.

The French Consul at Shanghai telegraphs that 100 French missionaries have been killed in southern Manchuria.

Roberts After Boer Army.

Two Drowned While Bathing.

M. B. Hugh, shipping clerk for Swift & Co.'s branch office at Jacksonville, Fla., was drowned at Pablo beach, being caught by the undertow. Ben Pollak, who was with him, was seized with heart disease and was carried from the water in a dead condition.

GREAT FARMERS' GATHERING.

National Congress Likely to Be Greatest in Its History.

Advices from many parts of the country indicate that the annual session of the Farmers' National Congress to be held in Colorado Springs next month will be the largest gathering in the history of the organization. The Governors of nearly every State and territory have appointed delegates and in addition there will be present scores of representatives of railroad and other transportation companies and of boards of trade and other commercial bodies in the leading cities. The convention program covers four days. While matters pertaining to agriculture will be the chief topic of discussion numerous other questions relating to manufactures and trade generally will come in for consideration. Prominent among those who have promised to address the gathering are Gov. Thomas of Colorado, Benjamin F. Clayton of Ohio, H. J. Redding, Secretary of Agriculture of Georgia; Booker T. Washington of Alabama, Prof. Elwood Mead of Wyoming, J. B. Killborn of Tennessee, G. H. Whitaker of Massachusetts, A. J. Lockridge of Indiana, F. D. Coburn, Secretary of Agriculture of Kansas, and Baron Herman, agricultural attache of the German legation at Washington.

INDIANA TO LOSE BIG PLANTS.

National Glass Company Will Remove to the Pittsburg District.

Henry C. Fry, president of the National Glass Company, announces that one of the results following the annual conference of the officials and salesmen of that company at Chautauqua will be the removal of the five company plants from Indiana to the Pittsburg district. The removal will be effected as soon as proper sites can be secured. Negotiations now pending indicate that they will be located in the Ohio valley near Pittsburg. The plants to be removed are now at Summitville, Greentown, Lunkirk, Marion and Albany, Ind. They will take to their new location over 3,000 workmen. The reasons given by Mr. Fry for the change are threefold. First, the supply of natural gas in Indiana is diminishing, and cannot be depended upon; second, Pittsburg gas is better, and should it fail other fuel is of easy access; third, the Ohio river provides unusual facilities for reaching the Southern markets.

MOTHER IS MADE GLAD.

Receives Letter from Son Whom She Has Mourned as Dead.

Mail brought glad news the other day to Mrs. Mary Crump of New London, Conn. A letter told her that the son she has mourned as dead for nine months is alive and well. Richard Law Crump disappeared last October. The young man is a son of former Supreme Court Justice Crump of Connecticut. He is 29 years old and a lawyer. He went to New York, but the police were unable to trace him. Mrs. Crump had given up all hope when the letter from her son was received. It was dated San Francisco. It gave no address, but said that the writer was well.

DEFEAT FOR THE DURKEE HEIRS.

Their Claim of $64,623,512 Against the Central Pacific Dismissed.

The claim of the heirs of Charles Durkee, formerly Governor of Utah, against the United States for certain bonds of the Central Pacific Railroad Company, valued at $64,623,512, was dismissed by Judge Hagner of the District Supreme Court at Washington and the application for a ruling against Secretary of the Treasury Gage to compel delivery of them to the claimants was denied.

Cut Down by a Big Liner.

In a dense fog on the Irish channel the Campania, en route from New York for Liverpool, struck the Liverpool bark Embleton, bound for New Zealand, amidships, cutting her in twain. The Embleton sank immediately. Seven of the crew were rescued, but it is believed the other eleven members of the ship's company, including the captain, were drowned.

Cattlemen Are Seeking Water.

On account of the drouth on the range early in the season the attention of South Dakota cattlemen has been turned toward artesian wells. The first effort in that direction will be made by P. F. McClure on his Cedar creek ranch. If his well proves successful it means the sinking of hundreds of such wells on the great Sioux range.

Explorers Found by Indians.

Midnight Fire Causes a Loss.

Fire which broke out about midnight the other night caused a loss of about $12,000 to the building and coffee and biscuit stocks at 50 to 70 Churchill street, Chicago. The fire was discovered in the premises of the Gessling Coffee Company, in the rear of the Quaker Biscuit Company, and spread to the front of the building, occupied by the latter concern.

FOUR PERISH IN KLONDIKE.

Gold-Seekers Swept to Death in Stewart River Rapids.

Late advices from Dawson give the details of another tragedy, four out of a party of five losing their lives as a result of the terrible trip taken to the head waters of the Stewart river. The dead are: Antoine Perry, Charles Sandstrom of Boston, Oscar Van Buren, who started for the Klondike with Sandstrom from Boston, and Louis Bouchard, who joined the party in Atlin. In addition to these was George Saxholm of Oakland, Cal., who is the sole survivor. He was picked up below the mouth of the Stewart river, floating down the Yukon toward Dawson. When discovered he was nearly dead, having, he explained after gaining his senses, been as near as he knew four days without anything to eat. The party left Atlin in the fall of 1898 and in November separated, Sandstrom and Van Buren never thereafter being heard from. Perry and Bouchard were drowned in the rapids by the capsizing of their craft.

HAD A LIZARD IN HER STOMACH.

Dread of Strangulation Causes Death of Pennsylvania Woman.

Some time ago Mrs. Anna M. Jones of Marcus Hook, Pa., accidentally swallowed a lizard while drinking water. Frequently the reptile climbed up into her throat, but at all times successfully resisted all attempts at ejectment. Mrs. Jones was a prey to the constant fear that in one of these excursions of the lizard she would be choked to death. The other night, after complaining of a choking sensation, she suddenly expired. It is believed her dread of an imminent violent death had a fatal effect upon her heart, as there is no evidence of strangulation.

NEW OIL FIELD FOUND.

Wild Scramble Being Made for Land Near Yuma, Cal.

There is much excitement among the miners in the eastern part of San Diego County, Cal., and the residents of Yuma over the discovery of what is believed to be a bed of oil in the pot-holes district of the Colorado river, about fifteen miles north of Yuma. A rush was made for the scene of the discovery, and the scramble for land within the belt became so exciting that some of the first locators were compelled to use rifles in protection of their rights.

Colombia Revolution Lost.

In consequence of the last defeats sustained by the rebels the Colombian revolution is now considered lost. The Government has again occupied Bucaramanga and Cucuta, after a bloody battle in which many prisoners were captured.

APPEALS FOR HELP.

BELATED MESSAGE FROM CONGER IS RECEIVED.

He Writes from Pekin July 4 that a General Massacre Was Imminent—Besieged in British Legation and Shelled by Chinese.

A written message, signed Conger and dated July 4, was received at Tien-Tsin on the 21st. It was cabled to the Navy Department in Washington Tuesday by Captain Charles Thomas, commander of the Brooklyn. The Conger note says:

Been besieged two weeks in British legation. Grave danger of general massacre by Chinese soldiers, who are shelling the legation daily. Relief soon, if at all. City without government, except by Chinese army. Determined to massacre all foreigners at Pekin. Entry of relief forces into city will probably be hotly contested.

A Washington correspondent, writing Wednesday, says that the letter from Minister Conger in his own handwriting, under date of July 4, reported to the State Department contains no encouragement for the officials who have been confident of the safety of the foreigners, and have accepted the message of July 18 as genuine. More than anything heretofore received this message casts a gloom over the capital. The statement that Pekin was in control of imperial troops has no significance further than to indicate the helplessness of the Government at the time the letter was written.

The serious position of the foreigners as reported by Mr. Conger has aroused apprehension and revived skepticism in official circles where the developments of the last few days have had the effect of arousing hope that Chinese reports were sincere. The accuracy of the conditions reported in Mr. Conger's letter cannot be questioned and unless the Chinese Government has regained control of the imperial troops and has taken foreigners under its protection there is reason to fear the worst and question the sincerity of Chinese officials.

Li Hung Chang's prediction that the march of international forces upon Pekin would result in massacre of foreigners is now accepted in connection with Mr. Conger's report as indicating purpose to prepare the world for the announcement of the death of the foreigners.

Up to Wednesday no information has been received from the Chinese legation or Chinese Government in response to President McKinley's reply to the Emperor, and no answer had been received from the second dispatch sent to Minister Conger through Minister Wu.

TIEN-TSIN IN HORRIBLE STATE

Native City Ruined and Many Bodies Lying Unburied.

Tien-Tsin advices via Shanghai say that the native city presents an appalling spectacle of war and desolation. Scarcely a dozen houses are intact on the side facing the settlements. Inside the city damage is terrific. Many of the buildings nearest the wall were literally blown to pieces.

Among the residences charred corpses are everywhere. Dogs and pigs are feeding on them. The allies are busy removing the dead. Owing to their great number, many have not yet been buried. The Chinese, it is said, have lost altogether about 11,000 since the trouble started. Most of them have been killed by Boxers and soldiers.

The streets throughout the city are strewn with all kinds of articles, and dozens of Chinese are digging in the ruins for money and other valuables. Most of the houses which are intact or little damaged display the flags of one or the other of the allied forces, the Japanese and French flags predominating.

BIG INCREASE IN PATENTS.

Five Thousand Increase in Applications Over Preceding Year.

The report of Commissioner of Patents Duell for the fiscal year ended June 30 last shows a total of 26,540 patents granted, including reissues and designs. There were 1,660 trade marks, 682 labels and 93 prints registered. Patents that expired numbered 19,988. Allowed applications forfeited for non-payment of the final fees were 4,052. Of the total of 39,815 applications received 2,263 were for designs, 90 for reissues, 1,759 for caveats, 2,105 for trade marks, 872 for labels and 127 for prints.

The total receipts of the patent office were $1,358,228; total expenditures, $1,247,828; surplus turned into treasury, $110,401. On July 1 thirty out of the thirty-six examiners had their new work within one month from the date of filing and three of the remaining six overran that time by only one day. The amended work in nearly all of the divisions was acted on within fifteen days after filing.

Applications awaiting action by the patent office numbered 3,564, which is between 500 and 600 more than on July 1, 1899. The number of applications for patents, etc., received during the fiscal year just closed was 5,000 greater than during the preceding year, and the number of amendments acted upon was also correspondingly greater. The work of the clerical divisions also has been kept up to date.

This and That.

During the year ended June 30, 1,149 immigrants landed in Galveston.

Lightning shattered the foremast of the United States collier Caesar at Norfolk, Va.

Electric power is being increasingly used on some large Western farms for pumping.

Alexander B. Glenn was rendered dumb by a bolt of lightning at Painesville, Ohio.

Rich placer gold field found in lower California, about fifty miles south of Camp Companis.

In the regular army of the United States there are 25 per cent of foreigners, while in the navy 52 per cent of the petty officers and 42 per cent of the seamen are foreign-born.

MOB RULE IN IN NEW ORLEANS.

Four Negroes Killed and Many Others Are Shot.

A mob took possession of the streets of New Orleans Wednesday night and before it dispersed of its own accord had killed four negroes and wounded a dozen men, three of whom were white. The lawlessness grew out of the murder the day before of two policemen by Robert Charles, a negro.

The mob, several thousand strong, formed at Lee Circle and marched out Charles avenue in a body. It was reported that the mob would march upon the parish prison and demand the negro Pierce, who was with Charles when the police officers were killed. The police accordingly sent strong re-enforcements to the prison, and when the mob made its appearance the leaders were told that an effort to secure the prisoner would be resisted to the end. The members of the mob slowly dispersed, small bands of men and boys forming and scattering to several parts of the city. Many negroes who were on the streets and riding in cars were fired on.

Just before midnight Acting Mayor Mehle issued a proclamation calling on all good citizens to aid the authorities in preserving the peace and to let justice take its course. As a result of the night's lawlessness four men are dead, a score severely wounded, a hundred bruised.

Not since the lynching of the Italians several years ago has there been such excitement in New Orleans. The funerals of Captain Day and Patrolman Lamb took place Wednesday afternoon, and this served to intensify the feeling of their friends.

CUBA FRAUD REPORT.

Bristow Says Rathbone Is Only Less Guilty than Neely.

Official investigation of the Cuban postal frauds, made by Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow has resulted in the declaration that Director General Rathbone is guilty of gross official neglect and also of fraudulent practices; that his guilt is only less than that of Charles F. W. Neely and the latter's subordinate accomplices, and that deposed Postmaster Thompson of Havana is involved in the network of fraud. These findings are made public in the report of Mr. Bristow.

E. C. RATHBONE.

Mr. Bristow finds that Neely's embezzlements aggregated at least $131,713, and says he was justified in recommending the removal of Director General Rathbone. Whether or not the latter was guilty with Neely in the embezzlements, he says, there can be no doubt that in the matter of unauthorized per diem allowances, personal expenses and warrants cashed and unaccounted for, he unlawfully appropriated to his own use money of the Cuban revenues. For this, Mr. Bristow says, he believes Mr. Rathbone should be required to answer.

"VANDERBILT OF CHINA."

Prince Sheng, One of the Leaders of the Celestial Empire.

A Celestial who is playing a somewhat conspicuous part in the present troubles in China is Prince Sheng, the director of telegraphs of the empire, and who is said to be one of the most capable, intelligent and broad-minded of men in China. He has had charge not only of the telegraphs, but of the railways also. He is the head of the imperial bank, a position akin to the secretaryship of the treasury, and he is the principal director of the China Merchant Steamship Company and the leader of a dozen private enterprises. Sheng has shown a remarkable capacity for the absorption of the western business spirit and has been quick to realize the wealth that is to be created out of the undeveloped conditions and resources of China. He was first brought out by Li Hung Chang, who became his patron, but Sheng soon displayed talents which promised to enable him to surpass his eminent friend in modern enterprise if not in statecraft. He has been called the "Vanderbilt of China."

PRINCE SHENG.

MORE MISSIONS IN PERIL.

Governor of Hai-Nan Can Protect Foreigners No Longer.

Consul General Wildman at Hong Kong has been informed that the Chinese governor of the Island of Hai-Nan has served notice on the consuls that he is unable to protect the foreigners any longer. The American missions have appealed to Consul Wildman to send a warship to Hoi-How to bring away the foreigners.

Two hundred Russian troops guarding the railway between Charbin and Telin were surrounded by 15,000 Chinese with artillery and massacred after prolonged resistance. Many missionaries and hundreds of native converts were butchered July 4 in Southern Hai-Nan. It is reported that the missionaries at Nodis have been murdered.

The imperial edict promulgated by Viceroy Tak at Canton has left a disagreeable impression in Washington. Despite the Chinese minister's view to the contrary, this edict is looked upon as suspiciously like a preliminary to a formal declaration of war and as only one step toward securing time to move Chinese forces into a better position for defense against the internationals.

REPLIES TO CHINA.

M'KINLEY DEFINES ATTITUDE OF THE UNITED STATES.

President Offers to Mediate Under Certain Conditions for the Prevention of War with Europe and Division of the Celestial Empire.

Secretary of State Hay Monday afternoon handed to Minister Wu the reply of President McKinley to the appeal from Emperor Kuang Hsu to the United States to act as mediator and endeavor to bring about a settlement of the present troubles in China without war between China and the powers. The President consents to act as mediator, or rather to use the good offices of the United States to bring about co-operation by the powers with China for the purpose of carrying out the policy outlined in Secretary Hay's note of July 2 to the powers.

By consenting to act as mediator the President has assumed that Minister Wu and the Chinese authorities in Pekin are acting in good faith. Secretary Hay did not even require any proof from Minister Wu that the request for mediation was genuine. He accepted the fact that it was presented at the State Department by the accredited diplomatic representative of the Chinese empire as sufficient guaranty of its authenticity. Meanwhile efforts will be pushed to relieve the ministers in Pekin.

The position of the Chinese as they would like to have the world understand it is that the imperial government has at no time participated in the anti-foreign outbreak or in any attack upon the ministers or other foreigners, but has done all in its power to restrain and prevent such attacks; that the taking of the Taku forts by the powers was an act of war against China, and that the imperial government is justified in regarding with suspicion the motives of the powers, which, having previously despoiled the empire of territory, are now suspected of seeking opportunities to enlarge their territorial possessions.

The United States is the one power that is not suspected of coveting Chinese territory, and this fact, taken in connection with Rear Admiral Kempff's refusal to join in the attack on the Taku forts, is given as the reason why China has appealed to the United States to endeavor to bring about a peaceful settlement.

The understanding upon which the President consented to act is understood to be that the Chinese Government shall, so far as it is within its power to do so, bring about the objects which the United States announced as its purpose in Secretary Hay's note. These are:

"The opening up of communication with Pekin and the rescue of the officials, missionaries and other Americans who are in danger.

"The affording of all possible protection everywhere in China to American life and property.

"The guarding and protecting of all legitimate American interests.

"The prevention of the spread of disorders to other provinces of the empire and of a recurrence of such disorders."

The first of these objects will have to be accomplished as preliminary to any action by the United States desired by the Chinese Government.

CENSUS OF PORTO RICO.

The Most Densely Populated of Our New Possessions.

The results of the Porto Rican census, taken in October last, show that the island has 953,243 inhabitants. With a population of 264 to the square mile, Porto Rico is the most densely populated part of our new possessions. There is good reason why Porto Rico should have a far larger population, in proportion to area, than Cuba. The island was always the favored colony of the Spanish. For over two centuries Spain invited colonization. Lands were allotted gratis, while they lasted, and settlers were exempt from direct taxation. The interior, though very hilly, is well adapted for small farming. Most of the land is owned by the peasantry and small holders, fruit farms predominating, though there are many small coffee estates, as well as large and small farms raising sugar, tobacco and cattle. This is the reason why four-fifths of the population is scattered through the rural districts and only one-fifth live in the towns. Porto Rico is notably a country of small farmers. The island is still growing in population. Since 1887, the density has increased from 220 to 264 to the square mile. With good government, more schools, and larger commercial opportunities, there need be no pause in the development of Porto Rico. But not a few observers believe the island has population enough. There is little prospect that an increase in density would be advantageous.

Telegraphic Brevities.

Yellow fever is said to be dying out in Havana.

John Shaw and Christopher Rents, Astoria, Ore., were killed by a boiler explosion.

Ben Herders, farm hand, St. Louis, found dead on street car track. Perhaps murdered.

Dr. Nathaniel Sawyer, Frankfort, Ky., is missing in New York. Foul play feared. He went there June 29.

The board of naval construction has decided to recommend to the Navy Department the purchase of the submarine torpedo boat known as the "Improved Holland," the disposition of which was left open by Secretary Long when he bought the Holland.

John M. Roach, president of the Union Traction Company of Chicago, has outlined to the street railway commission a plan for a subway to relieve street traffic. It involves an equal sharing of the expenses between the two traction companies.

The Finnish Senate has addressed a memorial to the Czar declaring its inability to promulgate the imperial rescript regarding Russian language in Finland, the limitation of the right of public meeting and granting the right of Russians to carry on trades prohibited to Finns.

Rev. Charles M. Sheldon of Topeka, Kan., was questioned in London regarding the cabled report of his nomination for the vice-presidency by the United Christian party, and said: "My name has been proposed without authority. I have no intention of accepting the nomination."

An appeal has been issued by representatives of organized labor in Chicago to all the unions in the United States and Europe for funds to aid the Building Trades Council in preserving its entity as a central labor body in Chicago.

The German Emperor has not yet been crowned, although he has reigned for twelve years. It has now been settled that the 200th anniversary of the foundation of the Kingdom of Prussia is to be celebrated at Koenigsberg by the coronation of his Majesty and the Empress, and the festival will last for a week. All European sovereigns will be invited to the ceremony, which will be of magnificent description.

INDIANA INCIDENTS.

RECORD OF EVENTS OF THE PAST WEEK.

Plague of Grasshoppers at South Bend Land Owners Will Hunt Up Oom Paul—Dr. Casto Declared Not Guilty—Big Oil and Gas Deal.

The swarms of grasshoppers that swooped down on South Bend recently are causing merchants much trouble. In clothing stores they are particularly troublesome. They seem to possess an appetite for fabrics of almost any sort and in several places have damaged suits of clothes displayed. Merchants who have had experience with the many pests common in the business say the grasshoppers are far more destructive than moths or any other insect they have encountered. They work holes in cloth and are very ambitious. As yet no one has appeared who can advance a probable theory to account for the presence of the grasshoppers in such great numbers. There is nothing to attract them to the barren pavements of the city and yet the business district is alive with them. A few nights ago one merchant swept over a quart of dead insects from the vestibule of his store.

Land Owners Send Agents to Africa.

Land owners in the Kankakee region will unite in sending a representative to the Transvaal to encourage emigration and settlement of colonies upon the immense tracts of land which have been reclaimed in the immense waste of swamp land which stretches across northern Indiana. The representatives who will visit the Boer republics will hunt out President Kruger with a view of obtaining his co-operation in the enterprise. The movement is well organized and has the backing of men with almost unlimited capital.

Gas Plant Changes Hands.

One of the largest oil and gas deals ever made in the Indiana field is about to be closed at Marion. The Mississinewa Mining Company that owns the local gas plant and 20,000 acres of gas and oil leases, is to be sold for $800,000. The promoter of the deal is John R. Pierson, president of the Indianapolis Gas Company. It is not thought, however, that the transfer will be made to the Indianapolis company, but that the Standard Oil Company is the real purchaser.

Doctor Guiltless of Arson.

After being out forty-eight hours the jury in the trial of Dr. Casto at Terre Haute, accused of trying to burn his three stores to collect $22,000 insurance, returned a verdict of not guilty. There was a sentiment with all that the circumstantial evidence perhaps did not prove beyond a reasonable doubt that it was the doctor who had honeycombed his stores with trains of powder, oil and paint.

THE HEART OF THE TREE.

What does he plant who plants a tree?
He plants a friend of sun and sky;
He plants the flag of breezes free;
The shaft of beauty towering high;
He plants a home to heaven anigh
For song and mother-croon of bird
In hushed and happy twilight heard—
The treble of heaven's harmony—
These things he plants who plants a tree.

What does he plant who plants a tree?
He plants cool shade and tender rain,
And seed and bud of days to be,
And years that fade and flush again;
He plants the glory of the plain;
He plants the forest's heritage,
The harvest of the coming age,
The joy that unborn eyes shall see—
These things he plants who plants a tree.

What does he plant who plants a tree?
He plants, in sap and leaves and wood,
In love of home and loyalty,
And far-cast thought of civil good—
His blessing on the neighborhood
Who in the hollow of his hand
Holds all the growth of all our land—
A nation's growth from sea to sea
Stirs in his heart who plants a tree.

A CULINARY TRIUMPH.

WHEN Dorothy Griswold, after a brief but blissful courtship, became Mrs. Philip Marston, it seemed to her that life could hold no more of happiness. But, alas, a cloud appeared on the sky of connubial bliss which increased in dimensions and density every day. The fact of the matter is this: Dorothy could not cook—not a little bit. Like too many of the girls of the present period, she was educated in anything and everything but the one thing needful to a housekeeper whose husband is a clerk in a Chicago department store.

Dorothy awoke from her dream of bliss to a realizing sense of her deficiencies. She discovered that burnt steak, muddy coffee, soggy biscuit, and dried-up roasts were not exactly the right sort of fuel with which to feed the flickering flame of domestic love. Philip was too much of a gentleman to indulge in unkind or sarcastic speeches to the bride of a few months, but he lost his bright spirits, became serious and preoccupied in his manner, lost his appetite, and, horrors, began to get thin.

Dorothy became anxious and worried him nearly to death with her solicitude. When, one morning he announced to her that his firm desired him to go to

DOLLY DEFTLY CHANGED THE PLATES.

New York to buy goods for his department, she actually rejoiced, though it would take him from her for a time, saying: "I am glad, Phil, dear; the change will do you good. I can stay with Aunt Sarah, you know, while you are away."

She put her flat in order, locked the doors, and betook herself to her aunt's house, which was a few blocks away. A few questions from her aunt, who noticed her troubled eyes, brought the whole matter to light.

"O, Aunt Sarah, I am so miserable," sobbed Dorothy, "and we were so happy. What shall I do?"

"Do?" cried Aunt Sarah, energetically. "Why, learn to cook; that's all."

"But where, and how?" asked Dorothy, bewildered.

"Here," said her aunt.

On the afternoon of Philip's arrival, a busy little figure in a gingham apron flitted through the rooms on household duties intent. Philip would not get home until 6 o'clock in the evening. She had planned a good plain dinner with a few kickshaws as a treat. Every article was of her own cooking, and she felt as proud as a queen. Her bread had turned out beautifully white and spongy and baked a beautiful brown. Philip was so fond of home-made bread—when it was good. She was so glad the pie was a success; Philip doted on apple pie. Then there was a Charlotte Russe, and a mold of lemon jelly to go with it for dessert. Everything was ready for the salad, the dressing made, the lobster prepared, and the lettuce crisp and cool.

Twenty minutes to 6 the bell rang. Dolly flew to the door, expecting to see only her liege lord. What was her surprise to find with him a stranger, whom he presented as his cousin, Jack Reynolds, from New York. She had often heard her husband speak of this cousin, however, and received him cordially.

"A real stroke of good luck, Cousin Dorothy," said this young man, proceeding to make himself at home at once, "my running against Phil just as he got off the train. He could not escape me, though I believe he tried," which was truer than he thought.

The soup was good and was followed by raw oysters, celery, and olives, with delicate soda biscuit. Dolly deftly changed the plates, and she could scarcely keep her face straight when Philip, carving the tender, juicy roast as if in a dream, stared at the beautiful, snowy bread and the well-cooked vegetables in amazed wonder.

His spirits rose visibly. By the time all were served and he beheld his Cousin Jack attacking the viands before him with great zest, his happiness was complete. His relief was so great when the dessert arrived that he became almost hilarious in his appreciation of his cousin's jokes and Dorothy's witty responses. He tried in vain to catch her eye. She resolutely avoided meeting his glances

"You are the strangest fellow I ever came across, Phil," declared his plain-spoken cousin, when dinner was nearly over. "You were as glum as a death-head before dinner. Who could imagine that a full stomach would make such a difference?" at which Philip flushed guiltily and Dorothy laughed outright.

When Jack was leaving he said, heartily: "Cousin Dorothy, you are a prime housekeeper. Phil is a lucky dog to get such a wife. Almost thou persuadest me to become a benedict."

"Do it," said Phil, with his arm thrown across his wife's shoulders and his face glowing with pride and affection. "If you can find another like Dolly," and Jack went his way, delighted with his visit.

"What a hypocrite you are, Philip!" cried Dorothy, her face hidden on her husband's breast. "But you needn't get your breakfast down-town any more. I can cook lots of things"—she was sobbing now—"b-b-beefsteak and b-b-bacon and m-m-mu-muffins and—"

"Some infernal fool had to tell you that, I suppose," growled Philip, with his head laid on her yellow pompadour. "I swear I'll never do it any more, Dolly."

"You won't need to," cried his wife, triumphantly, lifting a tear-stained but beaming face so near his that he did what any young husband worthy the name would do in his place.—From What to Eat.

BEAUTIFUL FEET ARE RARE.

Present-Day Footwear Distorts the Extremities Abominably.

A man who denies that he is prejudiced, but claims that he is a good judge of feminine beauty, declares that there is scarcely a beautiful foot to be found among the women of to-day. The high heels, the exaggerated curve at the ball of the foot, the stiff heel stays and the pointed toes, he declares, have distorted the foot in a painful and ugly manner.

The ankles are misshapen In some cases the bones are enlarged until they bulge out so that every bone is perceptible. The weight of the body thrown upon the toes has caused them to spread out. Crowded into pointed toes, they stick up in clusters of knotty corns.

The foot should be as shapely as the hand. Footwear should fit as a glove fits the hand. The perfect foot is slender, with an arched instep and toes that lie smoothly and easily.

The first step toward acquiring a pretty foot is to wear shoes that fit it comfortably. The next is to take exercises that will render the toes strong and supple. Begin by spreading out the toes to the utmost extent; then hold four toes still and attempt to move the remaining one. Every toe should be distinct and able to move separately. Every nail should keep its shape, just as finger-nails do. The big toe should be straighter and shorter than the next one and the arch should be shapely and pliant.

The feminine foot of to-day renders a graceful carriage an impossibility. And all because Dame Fashion has decreed that a short, high-heeled, pointed-toe shoe is the correct thing in dressy footgear, forgetting that there never was a human foot built that way.

SUN DIALS OF ANCIENT TIMES.

How the Flight of the Hours Was Indicated to Children of the Desert.

It is probable that the earliest sun dial was simply the spear of some nomad chief stuck upright in the ground before his tent. Among those desert wanderers, keen to observe their surroundings, it would not be a difficult thing to notice the shadow shortened as the sun rose higher in the sky and that the shortened shadow always pointed in the same direction. The recognition would have followed very soon that this noonday shadow changed in its length from day to day. A six-foot spear would give a shadow at noonday in latitude 40 degrees of twelve feet at one time of the year and of less than two feet at another time.

This instrument, so simple, so easily carried, so easily set up, may well have begun the scientific study of astronomy, for it lent itself to measurement, and science is measurement, and probably we see it expressed in permanent form in the obelisks of Egyptian solar temples, though these no doubt were retained merely as solar emblems ages after their use as actual instruments of observations had ceased. An upright stick, carefully plumbed, standing on some level surface, may, therefore, well make the first advance upon the natural horizon. A knob at the top of the stick will be found to render the shadow more easily observed.—Knowledge.

Tit for Tat.

It is characteristic of those who are severe on others that they cannot bear severity. Dean Swift, the severest satirist of his day, was one day dining with a company of gentlemen, one of whom he had made the butt of his ridicule, with repeated sallies. At last the Dean poured upon a piece of duck some gravy intended to be eaten with a roasted goose. The unfortunate gentleman, seeing this, immediately said: "My good dean, you surprise me—you eat a duck like a goose." The company roared, and the poor dean was so confused and mortified that he flew into a rage and left the table.

Putrefaction Is Life.

Putrefaction is probably not death, but the contrary—the life that follows death, or a sort of resurrection. The laws of conservation and of conversion apply to vital as well as to inorganic forces. Fermentation or putrefaction is a vital process, reciprocally generated by and generating inconceivable millions of impalpable organisms, which charge the atmosphere and are everywhere at work, transmitting dead organisms into elementary living ones—and why not passing on the vital activity into higher forms?

Boy Without a Chance.

Little George, who lives in a handsome house on a fine avenue, had been reading the biographies of Horace Greeley, Abraham Lincoln, George Peabody and Gen. Grant. Laying down the book with great impatience he exclaimed: "If we were only just poor there might be some chance for me."—Detroit Free Press.

SCENES IN THE WHEAT COUNTRY.

MOVING THE WHEAT CROP.

A Gigantic Industry Employing Millions of Capital and Countless Hands.

At the present time the quantity of wheat which is sent abroad from the United States and Canada annually is about 250,000,000. Yet this, large as it is, will certainly be more than doubled within the next ten years.

Sir William Crookes, the distinguished president of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, writing recently of the proportion between wheat production and wheat consumption, ventured to name the year 1931 as a date when the world's bread-eaters would cry for more wheat than the world's farmers could produce. This may be an overestimate, yet the statistics from which such prophecies are drawn show how very closely the consumer treads upon the heels of the producer, and how imperative is the necessity of distributing the crop—grown perhaps half a world away from the centers of consumption—as soon as it is shaken from the threshers in a million fields, in order that every white man shall have his loaf, and have it before his last supply has run out.

Great Britain eats her entire wheat crop in about thirteen weeks, and then she must be supplied immediately with the products of America or Central Russia or India, or else she must suffer. If the United Kingdom be completely blockaded, say by the ships of allied Europe, her population would probably be totally extinguished by starvation within three months. The like is true of every country in western Europe, although in some of them actual starvation could be much longer averted.

Generally speaking, the vast tides of wheat sent to the east and north—from the emigrant farmers on the edge of civilization to the cities of the old countries; from the American continent, Chili, and Argentine to Europe. There are lesser tides to the west and south, as from California to China, from Russia and India to England, from the United States to Brazil.

A few years may make a great many changes in these tides. The rice-eating Chinaman has tasted the food of the white man and he finds it good. He could consume the present world's crop and still go hungry. Siberia, opened by the Russian railroad, may yet be one of the greatest wheat-producing countries. Australia has been farmed only around its fringes.

When a European thinks of food he thinks in terms of wheat. He is the greatest of bread-eaters. Yet in the best of years Europe never produces enough, even including the crops from the vast fields of Russia, to supply her own needs. She is therefore absolutely dependent on the United States, Canada, India, Australia and Argentine.

Progressive Wheat Growers.

The American and Canadian farmer, and particularly the Northwestern wheat farmer, who ploughs and reaps and threshes by machinery without so much as touching his product with his hands, is becoming pre-eminently a man of business. The Governments have supplied colleges for educating him, and they send him regular bulletins containing the results of long-continued experiments conducted by the Department of Agriculture. He is a wide reader, sometimes a thinker, and always a politician. Every morning during the days of harvest he receives the reports of the Board of Trade or the Chamber of Commerce where his wheat is likely to be sold. He has also on his desk daily prices and a general advisory letter from his commission men.

The primary movement of wheat is the natural flow to the local flour mill, where it is ground to feed the farmer's family, and toward the granary, where it is stored up for seed. The proportion of wheat thus actually retained and consumed in the country where it is grown is very large.

When the farmer has amply provided for himself, he begins to think of selling his surplus—which in 1898, for the United States and Canada, amounted to the enormous total of 450,000,000 bushels. Of this, something less than half is consumed in the cities of the United States and Canada, and something more than half is exported to foreign countries, either as wheat or as flour.

The wheat crop of the average year is, therefore, divided into three more or less equal parts, the first being consumed by the farmer and his immediate neighbors of the smaller towns and villages, the second going to supply the concentrated masses of population in the great cities, and the third being exported as wheat or flour to feed the foreigner.

Mr. Ray Stannard Baker, in an article on the Movement of Wheat, in McClure's Magazine, tells of the manner in which the wheat crop is disposed of by the wheat farmer.

There are three general methods by which this is done. In the prolific Northwest, where large numbers of farmers are cultivating from 3,000 to 10,000 acres of wheat a year, where the various farm buildings are connected by telephone, where the ploughing is done by complicated machinery, where the farmer owns from two to ten threshing machines, from twenty to fifty reapers and hundreds of cattle and horses, the sale of a crop becomes a large business proposition.

But the great mass of smaller farmers, especially throughout the winter wheat districts, still sell in the old-fashioned way, to the local elevator man or buyer. They keep themselves so thoroughly informed, however, as to the reigning prices in the great marts and the probabilities as to rise or fall, that the commissions of the local dealer have been scaled to the lowest notch. Indeed, in this day of many railroads, if the small wheat grower is dissatisfied with local prices, he can combine with his neighbors—a not infrequent occurrence—and ship directly by carload lots to some city commission man, who is only too willing to buy his grain at the highest possible price.

System of Elevators.

So fierce is the competition among the wheat buyers that at some centers, most notably Minneapolis, vast systems of elevators have sprung up, each controlled by a powerful central house at the terminal point. There are no fewer than thirty-six elevator companies in Minneapolis, controlling 1,862 country elevators with a combined capacity of nearly 50,000,000 bushels of wheat.

A single company controls 115 country elevators having a capacity of 4,750,000 bushels of wheat. And the head of this company is also the head of other companies there, having lines of elevators in Minnesota and the Dakotas with a combined storage capacity of nearly 10,000,000 bushels. He also has lines of elevators in Nebraska and Kansas.

Perhaps no one thing so simplifies and facilitates the movement of wheat as the present rigid system of inspection and grading. In former times a load of grain must needs be carefully examined by every prospective purchaser, were he miller or commission man; and if this buyer sold again, a second examination became necessary, with its attendant disagreement as to quality. The business of wheat buying, indeed, was full of time-consuming details, and in the end neither party to a trade was likely to be satisfied.

As a consequence, the State government, or, in some primary markets, the local chamber of commerce, stepped in, and assumed charge of the whole system of grading and inspection; and now no portion of the great wheat business moves with more ease and efficiency, a degree of care and accuracy simply amazing to the outsider being constantly maintained.

The method of grading the wheat is thus described by Mr. Baker, in McClure's:

"The deputy inspector and his men are out early in the morning. The cars from the wheat fields have been shunted to their special sidings in each of the yards. One man goes ahead, recording the numbers and initials of the cars, and examining the seals to see that no one has tampered with them. A second man breaks the seals and opens the doors, and then comes the deputy himself—the wheat expert. He is quick and keen, long schooled in observing the minute differences which mark the wheat from different parts of the country. I saw one grizzly old inspector who had become so expert that, according to humorous report, he could tell what county in the West a car of wheat came from merely by sniffing a pinch of the grain.

At present the four great wheat elevator centers are Minneapolis, Duluth, Chicago and Buffalo. In the last-named city some of the elevators have a storage capacity of from 100,000 to 2,500,000 bushels, some of them built of steel, operated by electricity from Niagara Falls, protected from fire by pneumatic water systems, and having complete machinery for cleaning, drying and scouring the wheat, when that is necessary.

The elevators are provided with so-called "legs," long spouts, containing moving bucket-belts, which are lowered into the hold of a grain-laden vessel. Here the wheat is shoveled by grimy workmen, toiling in a cloud of dust, into the pathway of huge steam shovels, which, in turn, draw the yellow load—it looks from above like so much sand—to the ends of the "legs," where the buckets seize it and carry it upwards into the elevator, and distribute it among the various bins. A cargo of 180,000 bushels can thus be unloaded in a few hours, while legs on the other side of the elevator will reload it into cars, six at a time in five minutes, or in an hour fill a canal boat.

The cost of all these operations has been reduced to a ridiculously low figure—the entire work of unloading, storing and reloading rarely adding more than one cent to the price of a bushel of wheat.

Carriage to Seaboard.

The transportation of wheat from the West to the seaboard is a business of almost inconceivable magnitude. It means millions of dollars a year to railroad and ship owners, and during the rush season of the late fall, so great is the demand for transportation that shippers find difficulty in obtaining enough cars and vessels.

Most of the wheat of the Northwest now goes by way of the lakes, through the Sault Ste. Marie canal, to Buffalo, where it is shipped by rail or canal to New York, Boston, Baltimore and Philadelphia.

Few appreciate the magnitude of the lake shipping interests, which have been developed to a considerable extent by the transportation of wheat. Duluth-Superior is the second port in the United States in point of tonnage, being exceeded only by New York. The Sault Ste. Marie Canal passes two and a half times as much tonnage in eight months as the Suez Canal passes in a full year. Lake shipping furnishes, moreover, the cheapest transportation in the world, the rate being approximately three-quarters of a mill per ton per mile.

Some of the greater lake vessels carry enormous cargoes—up to 250,000 bushels of wheat in a single load. Without comparisons, it is difficult to form any conception of the immensity of a cargo of this size. In Duluth, 700 bushels are estimated as a carload. At that rate, a cargo of 252,000 bushels, which has actually been transported from Duluth to Buffalo, would fill 360 cars, or nine trains of forty cars each. At fifteen bushels to the acre, this cargo would represent the yield of 16,800 acres of land. In many localities a farm of 160 acres is looked upon as a large one. It would take 105 such farms to raise enough wheat to furnish this one cargo.

Until recently New York had the lion's share of the wheat export business; but latterly Boston, Baltimore, Philadelphia, New Orleans, Galveston and Montreal have been large exporters. For the fiscal year 1899 New York took only 28.8 per cent. while New Orleans and Galveston had 16.9 per cent. each, Boston 12, Baltimore 9.4, and Philadelphia 6 per cent., the remainder being scattered between Montreal, Portland, Norfolk and Newport News.

To quote again from Mr. Baker, the average yield of wheat per acre is gradually creeping up. In 1890 it was only 11.1 bushels to the acre; in 1895 it was 13.7 bushels; while in 1898 it had reached 15.3 bushels. By the use of machinery, combined with cheaper rates of transportation for supplies, the farmer can produce a larger yield more cheaply than ever before, so that, although the farm prices for wheat do not average higher from year to year, the farmer's profits are larger.

LAKE VESSELS LOADING AT A CHICAGO ELEVATOR.

Destroying Mosquitoes.

For several months past experiments have been conducted at Sassari, in Sardinia, by Dr. Ferni, Dr. Cossul-Rocca, and Dr. Lumbau, for the purpose of ridding that town of the mosquitoes with which it is overrun. The doctors effectually destroyed the larvae by distributing large quantities of petroleum in the swamps and other spots where the insects bred, and the mosquitoes were exterminated by chlorine and other powerful destructive chemicals. The doctors in their report considered it possible to free any town infested with mosquitoes by this means, provided the place is not too unfavorably situated. It is an economical remedy, costing only about $250 a year for a town possessing a population of about 50,000 inhabitants.

The only impression an elocutionist makes on her hearers after all her training, is that she has a remarkable memory.

SERMONS OF THE WEEK

Sin.—Christ puts sin in its true light. He makes it seem more awful, rather than less awful.—Rev. D. N. Beach, Congregationalist, Denver, Col.

Adversity.—Adversity coming early in life has been the cause of dwarfing the future of many a man, more probably than any other force.—Rev. M. B. Pratt, Methodist, Akron, Ohio.

God and Man.—It is not unreasonable to believe that God, who made man, should enter into manhood to guide and save his creatures.—Rev. W. W. Wilson, Episcopalian, Chicago, Ill.

The Best Blood.—It cost the best blood of all the centuries to establish the truths of Christianity, and to defend the dear old Bible.—Rev. L. L. Sieber, Lutheran, Indianapolis, Ind.

Copartnership.—God does not need man's help or agency, but because he loves him he takes him into association and copartnership with him.—Rev. W. H. Phillips, Baptist, Philadelphia, Pa.

Education of the Jew.—The entire education of the Jew, his religious training, his social habits, rested upon the happiness and holiness of home.—Rev. Dr. Schneeberger, Hebrew, Baltimore, Md.

Salvation.—Salvation is living daily under the smile of God and in the conscious presence of the living Christ. One can never be content until he is satisfied with God.—H. R. Keats, Quaker, Glens Falls, N. Y.

The True Thinker.—The true thinker will want to know why he should believe the Bible, just what it says, just what it means and what the relation of its teaching to truths known in other realms.—Rev. George H. Trever, Methodist, Milwaukee, Wis.

Judgment Day.—I do not believe that man will ever return to this body at some future judgment day. This erroneous and unsaisfactory notion is contrary alike to nature and the plain teaching of holy scripture.—Rev. F. W. Millar, Universalist, Chicago, Ill.

Satan.—For 10,000 years Satan has been living, and judging from the sign of the times he is just as bad as ever. If sin would kill sin, the devil should have been dead long ago, and the angels would have rejoiced.—Rev. D. A. Blose, Congregationalist, Akron, Ohio.

The Unseen Hand.—It would be better that the earth be annihilated than that the unseen hand that fashioned it be withdrawn; better that the flowers be swept away than that the unseen hand that formed them be destroyed.—Rev. Charles A. Shatto, Boston, Mass.

Kind.—We should be kind in word as well as in thought. How many of us that are thoughtlessly unkind in our speech. We carp at the faults of our friends while they live and praise their virtues when they are dead.—Rev. Nevin Woodside, Presbyterian, Pittsburg, Pa.

Character.—There is too much thought about conduct, too little about character, too much of the effort to copy Christ's deeds, too little of the effort to possess his spirit, too much imitation and too little following.—Rev. A. C. McGiffert, Presbyterian, New York City.

Rest for the Soul.—Rest for the soul you have sought everywhere in vain. This has been the soul's story in every age. And as the dove found no rest until taken into the ark, so you will find no rest until you rest in God.—Rev. Dr. M. C. Peters, Independent, New York City.

Christ's Life.—It is Christ's life that throbs and pulsates in the great reforms, in the mighty philanthropies, in the vast evangelisms that are fast making this sin-cursed world, this awful wilderness, to be like the garden of the Lord.—Rev. P. R. Fisher, Presbyterian, Newark, N. J.

Christian Living.—Take the twelfth chapter of Romans and ask wherein you fall short of its statement as to Christian living. Then, after all you can do, take yourself and your sins to Christ, confess all and plead his merit and peace will return to you.—Rev. T. H. Rice, Presbyterian, Atlanta, Ga.

Piety.—Gloom and sadness are no part of piety. Why should we be sad when contemplating a flight of time? It is true we are passing into the vale of years, but righteous old age looks forward to future endless youth and progress grander than the past.—Rev. J. T. Steffy, Methodist, Pittsburg, Pa.

Example of Christ.—By following the example of Christ we grow up into him in all things, and he is again incarnated in human form. It is a serious mistake to associate the Christ exclusively with the man of Galilee. It minimizes the power of spirit.—Rev. F. E. Mason, Spiritualist, Brooklyn, N. Y.

A Union of Believers.—There ought to be a union of believers with one another. The church ought to be a gigantic trust, controlled by one hand alone, and that the nail-pierced hand. It should be a union of absolute love and confidence and co-operation.—Rev. C. F. Wishart, Presbyterian, Allegheny, Pa.

Joyous and Helpful Communion.—Christians with an unwavering faith in a risen Christ, who fulfilled all the law and the prophets and responded to every prophecy of good in a groping and an aspiring paganism, will never stammer in their utterances regarding a joyous and helpful communion of the saints above with those below.—Rev. S. Fallows, Episcopal Bishop, Chicago, Ill.

AUBURN WEEKLY COURIER.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF DeKALB COUNTY

JAMES A. BARNS, Editor.

Registered at the Auburn, Indiana, postoffice as second-class matter.

THURSDAY.....AUGUST 2, 1900.

For Assessor.

I wish to announce to my democratic friends of Butler Township that I will be a candidate for Assessor, subject to the democratic caucus to be held at Butler Center this coming summer; on account of the sad accident which happened to me last spring, which put me back so with my work on the farm, I will not be able to canvas the township but I hope you will consider the matter and do as you think best. I remain your's truly, John H. Benninghoff.

Butler Township Caucus.

The democrats of Butler township will hold their caucus at the Center on Saturday Aug. 18, at 1 p. m. to nominate a candidate for trustee, assessor, one justice of the peace, one constable and three members of the advisory board. Let all attend.—J. D. WILLIAMS, Committeeman.

DeKalb County Battalion.

ST. JOE, IND., July 28, 1900.

Gen. Order No. 1.

Headquarters DeKalb County Battalion, G. A. R.

The annual meeting of all of the G. A. R. Posts of DeKalb county will be held at Auburn, Ind., on Tuesday, 21, 1900. The Colonel commanding the Battalion orders all of the Posts of DeKalb County to assemble at the above named place at 9:30 o'clock a. m. of said day, and they are requested to have rations in their haversacks for one day. All of the Posts are further commanded to see that suitable provisions are made whereby the Ladies' Relief Corps of the different Posts shall have transportation to said meeting. It is further ordered that all of the comrades be present at the time mentioned to answer the roll call on penalty of being fined. See to it, comrades, that all of your friends come with you. We have written the Dept. Commander and expect him to be with us. All ex-soldiers are invited to be with us. The comrades of DeLong Post, at Auburn and members of the entertainment committee will see to it that a suitable camp ground is prepared, including program for the entertainment of the Battalion. The program will be published hereafter. By order of

Is Coming Back.

The following is taken from the Russell, Kansas, Reformer, of July 13:

The Hawley neighborhood is about to lose one of its best farmers in J. H. St. Clair, who is planning to move back to Indiana to take charge of the old homestead. Mr. St. Clair has done well in Kansas, and he is not leaving because he is dissatisfied or anything of that kind; but because he is needed to take care of the family homestead in the Hoosier state.

Since this was published, Mr. St. Clair has sold out and is coming back to DeKalb and will move onto the old home farm south of Waterloo. To show that he has not made a failure of his Kansas venture, we see by a letter to his brother Al, that he got $4,500 for his farm. He had 260 acres of wheat and has threshed 100 acres, the best of it, which yielded 2,528 bushels. The rest will be about half as good. He has also threshed 478 bushels of oats. It should also be noted that he will bring back the two faithful horses that he took there with him thirteen years ago. We welcome him back to the old home county.

He Fooled The Surgeons.

All doctors told Renic Hamilton, of West Jefferson, O., after suffering 18 months from Rectal Fistula, he would die unless a costly operation was performed; but he cured himself with five boxes of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, the surest Pile cure on Earth, and the best Salve in the World. 25 cents a box. Sold by H. B. McCord, druggist.

Attention Farmers.

The Auburn Handle Factory will pay the highest cash price for ash handle block delivered at their factory on the Lake Shore tracks, cut 58 inches long. Also want ash logs cut 9½, 14½ and 19½ feet long. All timber to be smooth and sound. Will also take basswood cut 4 feet long and 8 inches in diameter and up, left round with bark on. Will pay $3 percord.—J. M. CHERRY & Co.

Letter From Paris.

PARIS, FRANCE, July 18, 1900.

EDITOR COURIER:—A great many people asked me to write to them, but I have not the time to write to all, so I thought I would write you a few lines which you could publish in the Daily if you wished. While in Buffalo, N. Y., we both had time to run up and take a little look at Niagara, then we went to New York City by the Erie road through the mountains of southern New York and northern Pennsylvania.

We shipped out of New York all right and had a pleasant trip; neither of us were really sea-sick, but of course we were a little light headed by spells.

We sailed Memorial day in the morning and arrived at Liverpool on Sunday June 10, in the evening, but we did not get off the boat till the next morning. We spent the time till Wednesday noon buying a bicycle, seeing the docks and some other interesting points. Second-hand wheels seemed to be scarce and dear in Liverpool, but after we had about given up buying we found a Humber tandem for which we had to pay £10. It is a very good machine and we have ridden it the whole distance on land so far. From Liverpool we went north through Lancaster and the English lakes. At Grasmere we saw Dove Cottege, the early home of Wadsworth. Then through Carlisle and Dumfries which is in the land of Bobbie Burns, to Glasglow which we reached Saturday p. m. Sunday we made the short run to Aberfoyle. Monday we went through the Trosachs to Loch Katrine; we took a walk on the shore till we were opposite Ellen's Isle, then we went back through the Trosachs and the ground made famous by Scott's "Lady of the Lake" to Callandar, thence to Edinburgh through Stirling. We staid in Edinburgh from Tuesday afternoon till Thursday morning. It rained several showers the days we were in Edinburgh but we managed to see the principal points of interest. Next we went through Kelso and Coldstream to the ruins of Norhan castle; we also saw the ruins of Twizel castle. On account of being directed wrongly we did not get quite on Flodden Field, but we were on Flodden Hill and drank from the well of "Sibyl Grey." Then we went through Worler, New Castle, Durham, York, Nottingham, Leicester, Rugby, Stratford-on-Avon, Oxford and Windsor to London. At Windsor we saw the Khedive of Egypt going from the station to the castle to visit the queen, but did not get to see the queen; probably if she had known we were so near she would have invited us in to tea(?) As we wanted to get to Paris by the Fourth, we did not stay long in London, but we were in St. Paul's, Westminster, and saw many other historic places and buildings; were through many of the most famous streets, and went up the river to Kew Gardens.

Leaving London we went to New Hiven by way of Brighton. Here a young fellow who had been to America as a sailor, had us leave our wheel in their yard, took us to see the town and then invited us in to tea, and we got a very interesting glimpse of the life of a sea-faring family. We crossed the channel to Dieppe on the night boat. I think the fare is quite dear as it is only called sixty-four miles and we had to pay 11s 1d each and 6d for the wheel.

It was Monday morning when we got into Dieppe and as it rained almost all day we could not leave till next morning, when we came on to Paris by Rouen, arriving at noon on the Fourth. As we had to find a room and get settled down we did not get to see much of the celebration. We got a fine large room with a good bed and plenty of other furniture and everything handy, up three flights of stairs, in a big apartment house on the Rue Guersant, not far from the Arc de Triomphe, for twenty francs a week.

I will not say anything about the fair as my letter is too long already; we went up the Eifel tower. I have just suggested the route we went and you will have to imagine the scenery enroute and the places of interest we saw, but I am satisfied we we saw more going as we have than we could by train. I will not burden you with our troubles, but of course, as Longfellow says, "Into each life some rain must fall, some days be dark and dreary."

We expect to leave today for Germany and Holland if everything goes our way.

Yours respectfully, WILSON FEAGLER.

Latest News.

At last we have better news from China. Another message from Conger, our minister in China, at Pekin, confirms the report of the last few days that fighting stopped July 16. It appears that many Chinese had been killed and they were quarreling among themselves. Now the regular government is supplying the forigners with food, and helping to keep the rebels from attacking them again. Forign troops are gathering for an advance on Pekin, including an additional force of Americans, for it seems the Chinese government is not strong enough to liberate and send away the foreigners.

But it may take some time to gather the troops of various countries. If the forward movement begins soon, it will be by those now on the ground, Russians, Japanese, Germans, British and Americans.

In Italy, the murder of King Humbert Saturday, has cast a gloom over the country. The murderer is an anarchist with the same old reason that all kings ought to be killed. The new king, is Humbert's son, who will be Victor Emanuel III.

In South Africa, the British are still gaining ground, have captured an important force from the Boers.

In the Philipines there is nothing of importance taking place.

A Life and Death Fight.

Mr. W. A. Hines of Manchester, Ia., writing of his almost miraculous escape from death, says: "Exposure after measles indused serious lung trouble, which ended in Consumption. I had frequent hemorrhages and coughed night and day. All my docters said I must soon die. Then I began to use Dr. Kings New Discovery for Consumption, which completely cured me. I would not be without it even if it cost $5 00 a bottle. Hundreds have used it on my recommendation and all say it never fails to cure Throat, Chest and Lung trouble." Regular size 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at McCORD'S Drug Store.

OBITUARY.

Sarah Ann Smith was born in Columbiana county, Ohio, February 4, 1814; departed this life July 4, 1900, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John Funk, at Concord, DeKalb county, Indiana, aged 86 years and 5 months.

She was married to Isaac Estry, February 12, 1836. To this union were born seven children, six daughters and one son; all are living except one daughter who preceded her to the spirit world, as also did her husband, who departed this life August 23, 1881. She leaves six children, thirty-two grandchildren and thirty-six great-grandchildren, and a number of relatives and friends to mourn their loss. She joined the Lutheran church in Ohio in early womanhood. Moved to Allen county, Indiana, in 1855, from which time she has been a member of the Springfield Center church. She was a faithful wife and a loving and kind mother.

Farewell, mother, thou hast left us,
Here on earth we'll meet no more;
But we hope again to greet thee
When we reach the other shore.

Now we see the vacant chair,
And we hear her voice no more.
Ah! We miss her love and care,
And their loss we do deplore.

They are going one by one,
Friends that we have dearly loved:
They are going to their home
In that brighter world above.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Hursheiser at the Lutheran church at Maysville and the remains were tenderly laid to rest in Maysville cemetery.

Glorious News

Comes from Dr. D. B. Cargile, of Washita, I. T. He writes: "Four bottles of Electric Bitters has cured Mrs. Brewer of scrofula, which had caused her great suffering for years. Terrible sores would break out on her head and face, and the best doctors could give her no help; but her cure is complete and her health is excellent." This shows what thousands have proved—that Electric Bitters is the best blood purifier known. It's the supreme remedy for eczema, tetter, salt rheum, ulcers boils and running sores. It stimulates liver, kidney and bowels, expels poisons, helps digestion builds up strength. Only 50c. Sold by H. B. McCord, druggist. Guaranteed.

To Drain Cedar Creek.

The case in the circuit court to drain or straighten Cedar Creek, having failed or been withdrawn, a new move is now started, this time under the ordinary ditch law before the Board of Commissioners. Chas. Knisely of Waterloo and Andy Lower of Smithfield, both of whom are interested as land owners were here yesterday. They are pushing the plan to start the drain at the source of the stream above Cedar Lake coming down to the city limits of Auburn. Then it will remain for the people of Auburn to arrange to have it come on through the city. It is also possible that an effort will be made to push the improvment south, even to the county line. But all these things require careful consultation, and for that purpose a meeting has been called at Waterloo for Saturday, August 11, at 2 p. m. to which all interested parties are invited and urged to come. Don't forget the time and place of this important meeting. Every man near the line ought to attend.

Indigestion Banished.

No Failure, and No Waiting For Results.

When Dr. Stone began his practice there were few specialists. All physicians were supposed to treat every disease. But at that time, over thirty years ago, Dr. Stone determined to concentrate his attention to a single line of work. He resolvee to devote his life to the treatment of stomach and liver troubles, and as a result, has become the master of these ailments. He regards dyspepsia, indigestion and liver troubles as extremely easy to cure and proceeds to demonstrate this with the two preparations which is put up in one package under the name of Dr. Stone's New Dyspepsia Cure. This treatment will positively cure indigestion, biliousness and other stomach and liver troubles. No matter how much good you expect from it, you are still apt to be surprised at the quick relief it gives. Usually helps from the first dose. If it fails, your money is refunded. Price 50 cents. Sold by H. B. McCord.

HERE is a medical lecture in a nutshell. The Kidneys drain water and impurities from the blood. The Liver makes bile and helps to drive off other waste. If these organs work badly the body becomes a cesspool and disease sets in. You must get them into healthy action or die.

Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver & Kidney Balm is an old and unsurpassed remedy for Backache, Debility, Sleeplessness, Lost Appetite, Foul Tongue, Palpitations and all other symptoms of disease in those organs. It cures as well as prevents every serious trouble in Kidney, Liver or Bladder. At druggists, $1.00 per bottle.

—R. M. Lockhart and wife of Waterloo and Mrs. Wagner of Hudson were among the relatives entertained by the family of J. E Ensley yesterday. Mrs. Wagner will be remembered by many of our people as Miss Emma Gilliland.

—The amount of mortgage exemstions filed with the county auditor this year was $794,877; the total amount allowed and deducted from the valuation was $486,457. The total valuation, exclusive of railroads and corporations is $11,077,135.

—John Zimmerman received a card this morning from his brother Frank, dated at Oberammergau, July 15. Himself, Rev. Guild and Frank Eckhart had just witnessed the passion play and were preparing to go south into Italy. All were well and enjoying the trip.

—Township trustees are now publishing their annual estimates of expendature for the coming year. They are also required by law to publish annually a full report of moneys received and paid out, but not over half of them obey the law, although there is a penality for failing to do so.

—Peter T. Suffel of Edgerton and Miss Lebertia Casebeer of Stafford township were united in marriage Monday afternoon, July 30, 1900, by Rev. W. L. Meese at his rooms on West Ninth street. They will make their home in Edgerton where the groom is employed in the basket factory.

—Mr. and Mrs. E. Zimmerman returned Saturday afternoon from their visit with the family of her brother, Frank Coder at Norvell, Mich. They had a fine visit there, and also went to other points in that section, including Monroe. On their return they met their daughter Bessie at Waterloo, she having been visiting friends at Goshen.

—Among our callers Saturday, were Miss Mollie Moody and her cousin, Mrs. Eli Shull, whose home is near by in Keyser township. Miss Moody has been in poor health for some years but we are pleased to see she is on a fair way to recovery. Her mother enjoys reasonable health. The writer remembers with pleasure, many hours spent with this hospitable family.

—Frank Wingard showed us on Saturday an illustrated paper sent him, by his brother John we suppose, showing the various interests in and about Independrnce and Coffeyville, Kansas. It is a fine production, either as a work of art, or as an effort to boom the material interests of that section. His brother writes him that the finding of natural gas there has opened up wonderful possibilities for the development of the country. It will no doubt result in as great a boom as struck Indiana a few years ago.

Tuesday's Daily.

—Court adjourned Saturday till the October term.

—Notice the article on draining Cedar Creek. Be sure and attend the meeting if you are interested.

—C. W. Heltz, son of John H. Heltz, has returned from Angola, where he has been attending the normal school.

—If you are bothered with moths or carpet bugs use McCord's Buffalo Moth Exterminator. a2 —HOUSE FOR RENT:—Good rooms at reasonable price. Inquire at H. Greenberg's, North VanBuren-st. Auburn.

—Prof. Coe took his little son Ear to Ft. Wayne yesterday to consult an aurist. It is hoped the trouble will not prove serious.

—Train for Baw Besse Park Aug. 8, leaves the Junction at 7 a. m. Fare for round trip $1 from Junction, Auburn and Waterloo.

—The Askew property north of Lutheran church for sale at a bargain. For particulars address Phil Plum, Waterloo, Ind. tf

—W. S. Taylor of Kentucky and Congressman Watson will be the principal speakers at Island Park Assembly on Republican day, August 7.

—Jonas Deardoff of near Goshen sowed about 180 acres of wheat last fall. He cut seventy five acres and has threshed 520 bushels for his total crop.

—Mr. and Mrs. George Cox, who have been visiting relatives near Corunna, took the afternoon train here yesterday for their home in Muncie.

—LOST:—July 24, on the road to Fort Wayne, a tan colored jacket trimmed with brown braid. Finder will be suitably rewarded by leaving at this office.

—For stockings and mittens for the children, dye the wool with Putnam Fadeless Dyes, scarlet, cardinal or turkey red. Each time you wash them makes them brighter. Sold by F. E. Davenport. 33

—Much credit is due Mrs. Wise, who as president of the Sunday school had so much to do with the success of the convention at Norris Chapel last Sunday. The program was excellent and ably carried out.

—A laborer employed on the B & O. grade east of town had one foot badly pinched yesterday afternoon by a dump-car running over it. He was brought up town to the office of Dr. Baxter, who dressed the injured member.

—Thomas Slade of Elkhart, father of Lieut. Charles Slade, deceased, of the 157th regiment Indiana Volunteers, who died at Fernandina, has been granted a dependent father's pension of $17 per month, dating from January 28, 1900.

—John Kelley of Kendallville and Will Peltier of Fort Wayne were here a short time yesterday evening, coming overland from the former place in Mr. Kelley's new automobile. They stopped at Garrett coming over, and made the trip in a little over an hour.

—Mrs. J. G. Johnson of Angola and her daughter Edna, and Mrs. Sadie Hosack of Fredricktown, Ohio, are guests in the family of J. E. Ensley. Mrs. Johnson is a sister to Mrs. Ensley, and Mrs. Hosack is a sister to J. G. Johnson and used to reside in Waterloo.

BILL THE BLUNDERER

APPELLATION WHICH MAY BE GIVEN M'KINLEY.

President Is Likely to Involve the United States in China Just as He Has Done in the Philippines—Luzon Not Subjugated.

Washington correspondence:

There will be no special session of Congress. At first it was rather a puzzle to know why McKinley was so afraid of his own Congress, but a canvass of the directory showed that so many of the opulent Republican Congressmen are spending the summer in Europe that the impecunious Democrats who stay at home would have a majority in the House if an extra session were called now. The administration has no notion of having a hostile Congress on its hands with an election approaching. His own Republican Congress made more adverse campaign material than McKinley likes to contemplate. A session now with the Democrats in control in the House would emphasize the issue of Imperialism in the most startling fashion.

McKinley hurried to Washington from Canton at the first report of the murder of the legations at Pekin, but now he has gone back and resumed his front porch campaign. Meanwhile about 15,000 troops will be sent over to China to get into quarrels with the troops of the continental powers. When they have been sacrificed McKinley will do the baby act just as he did in the Philippines matter and beg for more troops and plead that unlimited blood and treasure should be wasted because he drifted along and got into complications of his own making in the first place.

The continental powers are quarreling with each other about their respective spheres of action in China. Russia has the advantage in being on the ground, and she is not the nation to give up an advantage. England, having no white troops to send, is trying to form an alliance with the United States and Japan as against the field. On account of his understanding with Great Britain, McKinley is hurrying all the troops that can be mustered to China.

If the Monroe doctrine had not been relegated to the limbo of oblivion long ago with the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution, the Republican party would not now be dragging this nation into a war whose end cannot be foreseen. There is plenty to excite apprehension. The Chinese have modern guns and know how to use them. Despite internal dissensions they have thousands of soldiers to every hundred that European nations can furnish. The Chinese are fighting for the preservation of their nation against foreign aggression.

The usual sophistries about our "interests" are being put forth in order to furnish an excuse for getting involved in the international quarrel which is about to begin. It may be well to remember that the only trade interests the United States had were given because we approached the Chinese as a peaceful power, having no sympathy with the imperialist designs of foreign powers.

The Chinese trouble has served to show the exact situation in the Philippines. The administration has been sending out rose-colored reports for the last six months, stating that the Filipinos were subjugated, and that merely a few "robber bands" remained to be hunted down. Now comes General McArthur's statement that he cannot spare any of our enormous army in the Philippines to march on China, and that he will have to have 100,000 men in order to complete the campaign in the Philippines.

This gives the lie to the stories which the administration has been sending out for campaign purposes. The Filipinos are no more conquered than they were eighteen months ago. They are fighting for independence. If it had been given them in the first place, along with protection against foreign interference for a reasonable ime, there need have been no war.

It is noticeable that Roosevelt in his rampant and warlike speeches neglects to state what results have attended applied imperialism in the Philippines. The Republicans had the effrontery to assume that they could choose the campaign issue, and they are much chagrined to find that the people agree with the Democrats that "imperialism is the paramount issue."

The First Fruit of Imperialism.

Sixteen insane soldiers in a darkened emigrant car passed through Council Bluffs lately. They came from the Philippines, and were going as fast as steam could take them to a living death at the U. S. hospital in the city of Washington. Fine, stalwart fellows they were, at least most of them. They were unshaven and begrimed with dirt from their long journey through the heat and dust of the Alkali deserts. A few were gaunt, and the vacant stare told only too plainly that God's image had been brought down to the reasonless state of the mere animal creation. A vigilant regular watched and waited on the poor fellows who laughed and jibbered like apes inside the darkened car. Very few were above 21 years old, and it wrenched the heartstrings to see some of the young fellows talking to themselves, about "home," and "mother," and the "boys and girls" that once grouped themselves in the "old nest," that they in this world should see no more forever. Then others were violent, and to prevent a tragedy their guardians manacled them, and strapped them to a seat, where they moaned like some mad creature in its agony.

McKinley Imperialism.

The fact that the President has declined to summon Congress gives a bad flavor to his attitude before the country. It greatly strengthens the accusations of his imperial purposes and certainly impairs confidence among many who sincerely desire to support the administration. In such a fearful emergency the President should resolve all doubts in favor of acting clearly within the lines of constitutional authority, and his failure to do so gives warrant to the charge that his policy is—"I am the state."—Philadelphia Times.

THE PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN OF 1900.

The presidential campaign of 1900 is under way. The leaders have been chosen and the lines of battle drawn. William McKinley is primarily a politician. He wears his principles lightly. When he thought silver popular he was a free silver man. He voted for free coinage along with Bland, when Bryan was a boy at school. Later he said the Democratic party was not doing enough for silver, and told how much more the Republicans would do if they were intrusted with power. In the Republican convention four years ago he was afraid to have the word "gold" mentioned. Now he is a partisan of the absolute, unmitigated, single gold standard. In Congress, when he had no offices to distribute, Mr. McKinley was an ardent civil service reformer. He became Governor of Ohio and turned over the helpless lunatics in the insane asylums and the inmates of all the other State charitable institutions to the tender mercies of the spoilsmen. When he was a candidate for President the first time he promised that he would take "no step backward" in the matter of civil service reform. When he took office he became the first President to take a backward step since the reform was first instituted under Arthur, fourteen years before. President McKinley said that we could never be guilty of criminal aggression, and then he began and carried on an unnecessary war in the Philippines. He said that it was our "plain duty" to give the Porto Ricans free admission to our own markets, and then he not only accepted but actually forced through Congress a bill levying heavy taxes both ways on Porto Rican trade.

All these inconsistencies have a single cause—Mr. McKinley is not his own master. He speaks from the good impulses of his heart and then he does what he is told to do. It is impossible even to imagine William McKinley making such a stand for his principles against the pressure of party leaders as William J. Bryan has made this week. When we elect McKinley to office, therefore, his words furnish us no clew whatever to his probable course after he gets into power. To know what he is going to do we must know the man who for the time being is "running" him. In this case it is Mark Hanna.

William J. Bryan is the very antithesis of this opponent. No man has had more virulent or more unscrupulous enemies; no man has been more outrageously misrepresented; no man has had his character, opinions and conduct more distorted and caricatured, but in all the whirlpool of detraction that has surged about him nobody has ventured to suggest that Mr. Bryan is owned by anybody but William J. Bryan. He takes orders from no Hanna. He does not have to call anybody into consultation to find out what he thinks. His convictions, based on his own matured study, are his own property, and when he has once formed them no power on earth can induce him to give them up or modify them or hide them under a mask. The country is coming to know and admire that splendid stubbornness of Mr. Bryan. The Democrats who did not agree with him on the silver question, annoyed as they were with what seemed to them an unnecessary sacrifice of political strength, are beginning to be glad that they have had that revelation of unconquerable, inflexible conviction. While it is against them on one point, it gives them confidence that upon the other points on which they and the candidate agree they will not be betrayed. They have been looking for a man who would display on the side of the people that same immovable obstinacy that Cleveland displayed on behalf of the privileged classes, and they have found him.

Another term of McKinley, involving the indorsement of the almost unbroken record of bad faith which has characterized nearly all the acts of his administration, would be about as bad a commentary on popular government as could be imagined. But could not the cause of popular government suffer still more should the party which has taken up the task of reviving the Declaration of Independence and other old-fashioned views of national honor be betrayed by its candidate? In the present crisis signs of surrender by that candidate to bosses or to moneyed interests, or the exhibition by him of any of the marks of the "quitter," would be very disquieting to many a gold Democrat.

What we need in the presidency now above all other things is an honest man—not merely one who is above picking pockets himself, but one whose honesty is aggressive—one who will not tolerate Neelys and Rathbones under him or Hannas over him, and whose honesty extends not merely to matters of money, but to matters of principle. We know that if William J. Bryan said that anything was our "plain duty" he would shut that steel-trap jaw of his and keep Congress in session until that duty was performed or the congressional term expired. If an organ told him that this action would cost him three million votes of growers of filler tobacco and "garden sass" he would tell it that the people could elect another President if they chose, but that fifteen million voters would not make him do a thing he thought wrong. That is a comfortable sort of person to lean on in a national crisis.—New York Journal.

ROOSEVELT IS ROASTED.

Willis J. Abbot Flays the Rough Rider Most Unmercifully.

If Democrats were well versed in the vocabulary of invective which Theodore Roosevelt habitually employs they might say of that noisy personage, with perfect justice, that he is a ranter, a quibbler, a charlatan, a demagogue and a liar. Unhappily, the Democratic party does not furnish an exact parallel to Talkative Teddy. Religion has his mate in the Rev. Sam Jones. Journalism boasted a true Roosevelt in the late lamented Brann, of the Iconoclast. Among the middle-of-the-road Populists there's a fellow named Jo Parker who has a really Rooseveltian way of calling all who disagree with him thieves, rogues and traitors. Incidentally it may be noted that the last-named person is a protege of Mark Hanna—a further point of resemblance to Roosevelt.

Democracy, however, does not furnish his match. Even its most radical leaders—Altgeld, Tillman and the others whom in 1896 Governor Roosevelt said should be set up against a wall and shot dead—fall so far short of the Rooseveltian standard as to habitually prefer argument to invective. This inability to answer the Rough Rider in his own vernacular is unfortunate. When a man calls a whole party—some 7,000,000 people—traitors, repudiators, copperheads and cowards, mere argument is unsatisfactory. The sober sense of the people must be relied upon to discern that a man so prodigal of hard words for his fellows must be exceedingly anxious to divert attention from his own character and record.

It is, perhaps, Roosevelt's plan to shift the issue from himself, his egomania, his surrender to boss rule, his charlatanry and his innate brutality to a discussion of the purposes and beliefs of his adversaries. Acting upon Nelson's maxim, "The best defense against an enemy's fire is a vigorous use of your own guns," he has opened the engagement with a broadside of billingsgate.

Nothing quite so repugnant to refined senses has been known since with progress in the art of war the Chinese abandoned the use of stink pots.

Is he a charlatan? Read the accounts in his own Chicago organ of the way he uses a battered hat as a sort of theatrical property. Every five minutes he is "tossing his old campaign hat in a corner," "hunting for his old campaign hat," "waving his old campaign hat," or in some other way making capital out of a relic of cheap and boastful "heroism." As yet he has not brandished the pistol with which he killed two Spaniards—bragging lustily about it afterwards in a book as no real soldier nor true gentleman ever could.

Is he a liar? What of a man who opens a speech by declaring himself one who "has come not as a Republican to speak to Republicans, but as an American to speak to Americans," and thereupon talks nearly two hours in a bitter attack upon all Democrats and impassioned eulogy of all Republican politicians? What of a man who can say of the one organized body which is striving for a world-wide peace, charity and amity, "Our opponents represent all the forces of discontent, malice and envy, formed and formless, vague and concrete?"

Is he a demagogue? Read his speech and see if ever man put out a more arrant piece of demagogy. It is shameful demagogy to say that against McKinley are arrayed "the forces of chaotic evil," to describe honorable opponents as "pandering to the worst and most degraded elements in our national life," as "willing to purchase party success at no matter what cost of ruin to the nation."

Is it short of demagogy to try to excite the passions rather than arouse the reason of your audience? Was there a single appeal to reason in the St. Paul speech? Not one of a higher sort than this: "They (the Democrats) stand for lawlessness and disorder, for dishonesty and dishonor, for license and disaster at home, and cowardly shrinking from duty abroad."

Look about you, reader, and consider whether your Democratic neighbors merit this description. To just which Democratic public men, from William Jennings Bryan down, would you apply it? Roosevelt, with crazy self-assurance, applies it o all.

What does the Democratic platform declare the paramount issues of this campaign? Imperialism and militarism. How does Roosevelt meet this? "We cannot argue with them on this proposition because no serious man thinks for one moment that they believe what they assert."

That is an easy way out. If your opponent lays down a proposition which you cannot controvert, say you know he doesn't mean it and clinch your argument by calling him a traitor or a copperhead. If this doesn't convince the nation there always remains the Rooseveltian argument of standing him up against a wall and having him shot.

But enough! As some of the sentiments in the St. Paul speech are left over since '96, it will doubtless do duty all this campaign. Meantime, I recur to my original theorem, Why let Theodore Roosevelt, a "scholar in politics," retain his long-time monopoly of the use of billingsgate? Is he the only man licensed to use hard words and still be petted by the "better classes?"—Willis J. Abbot, in Chicago American.

Bryan to Gold Democrats.

Lincoln, July 17.—W. J. Bryan's attention was called to-day to the statement that some of the opponents of imperialism had announced that they would be opposed to him on account of the silver plank in the platform, and he was asked whether this would seriously affect the anti-imperialist vote. Said Mr. Bryan:

"Several gold-standard opponents of imperialism have already announced their intention to support the Democratic ticket, although the Anti-Imperialism League has not acted officially. In such a matter each individual is governed by his own views as to the relative importance of the issues.

"The Democratic platform declares the question of imperialism to be the paramount issue. If any opponent of imperialism refuses to support the Democratic ticket because of the silver plank it must be because he considers the money question more important than the Philippine question—that is, he prefers a gold-standard empire to a bimetallic republic.

"When the test comes I believe that those who adhere to the doctrine that governments derive their just powers not from superior force but from the consent of the governed will support our ticket even though they do not indorse the silver plank.

"A large majority of the Democrats believe that a restoration of bimetallism would prove a blessing, but the anti-imperialists who dispute this will admit that any evils that might arise from bimetallism could be corrected more easily than the evils which would follow from the deliberate indorsement of militarism and imperialism."

Receiver Worse than Thief.

Hanna proposes to partially buy and partially steal the presidency and Major McKinley stands ready to accept the office thus obtained. Concerning the Summer Girl.

Jack—Well, whatever the summer girl may be, there is one thing she is not.

Will—What's that?

Jack—She is not contagious?

Will—How do you mean?

Jack—You can't catch her.

His Guess at It.

"What does it mean, Tommy," the Sunday school teacher asked, "where it says 'they rent their clothes?'"

"I suppose they couldn't afford to buy them," replied Tommy.

The Next Question.

"Excuse me, sir," said the census enumerator, briskly, after the name and age had been duly recorded, "but what is your occupation?"

"I am a poet."

"But what do you do for a living?"

SAURIANS ARE HUGE.

AUSTRALIAN CROCODILES GROW TO IMMENSE SIZE.

Possesses Enormous Strength and Are Things of Terror to Fish and Animals—Large Bullock Stands No Chance in Fighting One of Them.

The crocodile of the Nile differs very little from that of the northern rivers of Australia, which is generally termed "alligator," though in reality a true crocodile. The head of a true alligator is broader and shorter than that of the crocodile. There is also considerable difference in the teeth and their disposition in the jaws. The teeth of the alligator are unequal, and the larger of the lower canines enters a cavity in the upper jaw, while that of a crocodile simply fits into a groove on the outside of the upper jaw, leaving the tooth clearly visible when the mouth of the monster is closed. There are also differences in the webbing of the toes and the form of the legs, though to the general observer there is little or no difference. Crocodiles seem equally at home in salt or fresh water, while alligators do not appear to relish, and rarely visit, salt water. Crocodiles no doubt feed largely upon fish, but as they grow older and stronger and require great quantities of food, they will, when hungry, attack anything from a sheep or a kangaroo to a bullock, a big crocodile making short work of a bullock weighing over half a ton.

Some crocodiles measure as much as twenty-seven feet in length and possess immense strength, besides wonderful cunning and patience. They will lie in watit at a watering place frequented by animals, hardly distinguishable from a log of wood, so still and passive have they become. The unwary victim coming down to drink is suddenly seized in the crocodile's huge jaws and drawn into the water and drowned. At other times the tail is used to sweep the prey into deep water, where, even though it be a heavy bullock, it has little or no chance against its enemy, which is specially provided by nature with an arrangement that prevents the water rushing down its huge throat, even though the jaws are fully distended through holding its prey. Thus, after a few brief seconds the unequal struggle is over and the saurian takes the carcass in tow to some favored locality, where he can enjoy it at his leisure.

Crocodiles at night time low and bellow just like cattle, especially like bulls, and I have spent some nights in an open boat in Cambridge Gulf, northwestern Australia, where the whole place seemed to be alive with them, and what with their splashes and cries, the weirdness of the whole scene, and their close proximity as they at times rocked the boat, sleep was impossible, for there are several instances on record where crocodiles have taken or have attempted to take men from out of camps and boats. A poor fellow named Reed, the mate or second mate of the Gulnan, had gone in his vessel to some river in Carpentaria Gulf. The vessel was at anchor near the mouth of the river. The mate, Reed, had been dispatched in charge of a watering party, and was some distance up the river in a large open boat. Water had been obtained, and they were all ready for a return to the ship. All being made snug, the tired fellows turned in, having made their camp in the boat. The night was a very fine one, the moon shining brightly, when toward midnight the sleeping camp was aroused by some terrific shrieks. These were the cries of poor Reed, who, enveloped in his bedding and mosquito curtains, was being borne off by a crocodile. It is said by those who knew him well and accompanied him on this and other previous trips that he had a habit of sleeping with his foot on the gunwale of the boat, and no doubt this afforded the crocodile an easier opportunity of seizing him. All that night and a great part of the next day was spent in searching for the missing man's body, but without success.

The crocodile has a remarkable eye. It can arrange the pupil to a vertical or horizontal position at will to suit its requirements by day or night. It has a special natural protection to the eye, and through a "duct" escapes the fluid when the "monster weeps. In fact, he is a peculiar brute altogether, with many special gifts besides his huge jaws that help to make of him the terror that he is. The crocodile lays a large number of eggs, which are remarkably small for so large a reptile, being just a shade larger than those of the domestic duck. Its nest is a huge mound of long grass, leaves, reeds, flags and a kind of broad-leafed grass, built to the height of four or five feet, with a circumference of from thirty to forty feet, and always near water. The northern crocodile lays its eggs in January or February. Neither parent does any sitting. The eggs are deposited to the number of forty or fifty near the top of the mound, which looks just like an ordinary haycock. The rain—and it rains at this time of the year every day—and the hot sun create a great heat in the mound, which hatches the eggs.—Sydney Mail.

Bull in a China Shop.

A correspondent says he saw an ox in a china shop at Barrass Bridge, England, whose behavior was most exemplary. The animal escaped from a drove and made its way into the shop with as much effrontery and expedition as it might go into its own hummel. After going all about the place, to the admiration of a great crowd of people, it was conducted out by a policeman without having broken so much as a handle of a tea cup.

Long-Range Photography.

Captain Gentilli, an Italian officer who has been experimenting in long-distance photography, has discovered a means of taking photographs at a distance of many miles. By this means it has been possible to photograph fortresses from a distance of eleven miles and masses of troops at a distance of eighteen miles. Captain Gentilli's invention is likely to become of considerable importance from the military point of view.

STURGEON IS NEARLY EXTINCT.

Rapid Decrease of Catch in the Past Few Years.

It may surprise some persons to learn that a full-grown female sturgeon is as valuable a creature as the fur seal. Yet this is a fact. It may also interest and surprise many to be told that more than $1,000,000 are invested in the sturgeon catching industry in the Delaware River alone, and that more than seven-eighths of the caviar sold in this country as Russian caviar is made a few miles below this city from eggs of the sturgeon caught in this vicinity. Yet both these things are true also. The slaughter of the fur seals in Behring Sea and their threatened early extinction by Canadian poachers produced at one time widespread excitement throughout the country, and for a while caused decidedly strained relations between the governments of the United States and England. The sturgeon is as perilously near extinction as the fur seal. At the rate this valuable fish is disappearing and unless something is promptly done to prevent it in five years there will be none to catch.

To show how rapidly the sturgeon are passing away it is only necessary to refer to the report of the Pennsylvania Fish Commission. According to the document, between the years 1880 and 1889 it was not uncommon for 1,000 sturgeon to be seen on the dock at Bayside as the result of one day's catch. In the latter named year the fish began to decrease in number rapidly. The average catch to a net that season was 60; in 1891 about 55; in 1892 it was 43; in 1893 it had fallen to 32; in 1894 down to 26; in 1895 the average to a net rose to 32, but in 1896 it fell to 27; in 1897 the average was 22; in 1898 it fell to 13, and in 1899 it sank to 8. In 1898 the total catch of sturgeon in Delaware bay and river was over 5,000. Last season it was 2,510. It cannot take long at this ratio to bring extermination.—Philadelphia Ledger.

WEARS MASCULINE ATTIRE.

Woman Dentist Goes to Cape Nome Clad in a Man's Garb.

Dr. Lu Ella Cool is a woman who has made quite a reputation as a dentist, traveler and explorer on the Pacific coast. She has determined to go to the Cape Nome gold fields, and when there will wear male apparel. She says this kind of a costume will enable her to get along better in the land of gold and cold. She has already worn the clothing, "just to get used to it," during the early morning hours while she was busy about her Haywards home, which she calls "Casa Esperanza." The first morning she appeared among her various pets attired in the costume of a man the animals failed to recognize their mistress, and it was only by repeated coaxing that she could induce even a pet dog to approach her. Dr. Cool is confident that she will fare as well as any of the many people who are tempting fortune at Nome.

Adventure is no new thing to this woman dentist. Several years ago she went to Central America to practice her profession, and, though she could not at the time of her arrival there speak a word of Spanish, she speedily learned the language and prospered financially. A revolution, however, lost for her in forty-eight hours the results of a year's labor. Counting herself lucky to escape with her life from a land where she had lost her fortune, been a sufferer from yellow fever and had several narrow escapes from death, she returned and took up her residence at Haywards, where she has since conducted a dental office. Haywards, however, proved too slow for her, and when the Nome excitement broke out she was not long in making up her mind to forsake dentistry for prospecting.

AMERICAN SOLDIER OF FORTUNE

He Organized the Chinese Army and Gave It High Standing.

An American is entitled to the credit—if credit it is—of reorganizing the Chinese army upon a basis approaching its present efficiency. Frederick Townsend Ward was a soldier of fortune and a native of Massachusetts. In 1860, when the Taoping rebels were everywhere successful, Ward, who was 26 years old, and had served in the French army, found himself in Shanghai. He organized a band composed of men of various nationalities, and offered to capture a city for a fixed price. The first achievement of his small army was the capture of the walled town of Sungkiang, which was held by 10,000 rebels. As a reward he was made a mandarin of the fourth rank. Ward then cleared the country around Shanghai, being paid so much cash after each victory he won. After a while he disappeared and was next heard of when the natives attacked the city in large force, when Ward appeared at the head of three well-armed and well-drilled native regiments, who rescued Shanghai. Thereafter he became one of the leading men in the defense of Shanghai. He adopted the Chinese nationality, under the name of Hwa, married the daughter of a wealthy mandarin and was made a mandarin of the highest grade and admiral general in the service of the Emperor. General Ward died as the result of a wound received in directing an assault on Tsekie. The Chinese paid him the highest possible honors after his death by burying him in the Confucian cemetery at Ningpo. Ward's successor in command of the Chinese forces was Major Charles G. Gordon—"Chinese" Gordon.

Benefit from Smudges.

A curious bit of adaptation to circumstances may be seen in summer among the cattle of the swamp lands along the Mississippi. From July to mid-September blood-stucking insects—mosquitoes, flies, gnats and so on—are so bad their cattle are sometimes in danger of their lives. So are people unless they make smudges—that is to say, fires so thickly smothered they fill the air with clouds of smoke—and thus drive away the pests. The cattle soon learn the use and value of the smudges.

STARVED

HAIR

Slow growth of hair comes from lack of hair food. The hair has no life. It is starved. It keeps coming out, gets thinner and thinner, bald spots appear, then actual baldness.

The only good hair food you can buy is — Ayer's Hair Vigor. It feeds the roots, stops starvation, and the hair grows thick and long. It cures dandruff also. Keep a bottle of it on your dressing table.

It always restores color to faded or gray hair. Mind, we say "always."

$1.00 a bottle. All druggists.

"I have found your Hair Vigor to be the best remedy I have ever tried for the hair. My hair was falling out very bad, so I thought I would try a bottle of it. I had used only one bottle, and my hair stopped falling out, and it is now real thick and long."

POOR PICKINGS OF AUTHORS.

Cash Comes in Most Cases After Publisher Gets It in Hand.

In a brief chat with one of our leading booksellers the other day it was very curious to hear him speak in a purely commercial way of books which we have all read and enjoyed, discussing the sales of this or that volume in the same way that a wholesale grocer or commission merchant would discuss barrels of flour or bags of potatoes. Every now and then a rumor becomes current that some writer has received vast sums for his work. As a matter of fact, there is a certain regular percentage which is all that ever reaches even the most successful. When anyone who is not entirely unknown, and may even, perhaps, already have some literary reputation, brings his manuscript to a publisher, the writer usually is given an advance ranging from $1,000 to $10,000, the largest in recent years having been given to an English author within the past three months. When the novel is finally published the writer will receive 15 per cent. of the actual selling price of each copy, including the advance money, which on a book selling at $1.50 would amount to 22½ cents for each copy sold. Let us suppose that the author had received $10,000 it would be necessary for the publisher to sell about 22,000 copies before he got his money back, because it costs him about $1.05 to put the book on the market. Then for the next 22,000 issued he would make about 45 cents on each book, until the author's total royalties had equaled the advance copyright, at which point the publisher would again be obliged to pay the writer the 22½ cents for each of the books sold.

It will be readily seen from the above figures that even the greatest selling books do not make their authors and publishers millionaires at one jump. Of course, only a very few and fortunate of the many writers ever receive any advance on their copyrights, as no publishers are going to take the risk of paying out money without feeling very certain that they will eventually get it back. Occasionally some well-written story remains unprinted for a long time, but all publishing houses are eagerly keeping watch for novelties and the possibility of discovering new authors is ever in their thoughts; therefore when one hears young writers complaining that they cannot get a hearing it is safe to surmise that their wares are not of any value.—Philadelphia North American.

WHAT THE CHINESE EAT.

Rice Is Not the Principal Diet of the Common People.

It is the popular belief in this country that rice is the chief diet of the lower classes of China. This is erroneous, for rice is a luxury from their point of view, because too costly for every-day consumption. They eat much pork, which costs little for hogs of razor-back breed are plentiful everywhere, and the pig is the domestic animal par excellence. She sleeps in the living room, recognizes her name and displays in her intelligence the inherited results of centuries of training. She litters twice a year, and of her offspring the males are fattened while the females are sold or kept for breeding. The household porker is a pet; she is fed at every meal of the family, foraging for herself at other times in the streets and fields. And it should be remembered that the pig is decidedly a clean animal when properly kept.

Rev. Dr. Williams, in his "Middle Kingdom," says that the Chinese in the vicinity of Canton, from whom are recruited nearly all of the pig-tailed immigrants to this country, have a remarkable appetite for cats. One frequently sees pussies hanging, nicely dressed, in the butchers' windows, the meat looking so white and clean as to be almost appetizing. They are kept alive in the shops, too, in cages ready for killing. Because they are so prolific and find so much of their own food, they can be raised profitably. Cats' eyes are considered a great delicacy by the rich, those of black cats being regarded as choicest and commanding the highest price. Rats and mice are seldom eaten, except in case of famine; they are too hard to catch to be cheap. But among the Chinese there is an old joke about an imaginary dish called "honey and squeak," made by inclosing a live mouse in a piece of honeycomb.

TRADE OF TIEN-TSIN.

An Important Commercial City of the Chinese Coast.

The bund, or water front, gives one some adequate idea of the commercial importance of Tien-Tsin. The docks of Liverpool or New York, although many times greater in extent, are not more crowded and busy. Here the lighters, anchored in the river, just across the way from the great warehouses, are loaded with cargo to be sent out or which has just been received from the ships at Taku. There are mountains of bales done up in matting and bound securely with iron for their protection in their long journey to the uttermost quarters of the globe; there are boxes and casks of Chinese make marked London or Hamburg, and in the midst of all this merchandise throngs of half-naked coolies swarm like insects, insects furnished with lusty and never-silent voices. There are tons of wool from Mongolia, camels' hair, skins, charcoal, and soda from Siberia, mats and grain. One now and then has whiffs of musty perfume, the breath of oriental bazaars, spice and sandalwood. It is one of the busiest spots in the world and can furnish a succinct object lesson to one at all interested in the problem of our commercial relations with the far east.

The Chinese Postal System.

The postal system of the Chinese empire is still in a primitive condition. It is carried on under the direction of the minister of war by means of post carts and runners. There are 8,000 offices for post carts in the eighteen provinces, and there are 2,040 offices for runners scattered over the empire. There are also many private postal couriers, and during the winter the foreign customs office maintains a service between Pekin and the outposts.

Every time a thoughtful man looks around his house he sees purchases that convince him he has been a fool with his money.

KISSES ARE HIGHLY PRIZED.

Kansas Schoolma'am Distributes Them as Rewards of Merit.

In Nemaha County, Kansas, Miss Millie Daniels, who is described as unusually handsome, has adopted a novel means of rewarding the faithful and well-behaved among her pupils, and her plan has been approved by the board of trustees, who have engaged her for another year. Miss Daniels, whenever a student attends school one whole week without being tardy or absent, kisses that student, whether male or female. If the student is tardy only once she allows that student to kiss her. All students who disobey this standard are ruled out of the kissing match. The kisses are given and taken every Friday afternoon. Needless to say the young men do not play "hooky" on that day.

There are sixty-five pupils at the Wilson district school. Four years ago Miss Daniels went there from Illinois. She was a good teacher, but the students, mostly boys, were hopeless victims of the "hooky" habit. Try as she would the pretty schoolma'am could not keep them in school regularly. She arranged a list of prizes to those who attended regularly, but they held no attractions for the country boys.

Then she consulted with the school board on the kissing question. They were willing if she cared to experiment that way. Some of the school board said among themselves if she did adopt the plan they believed they would start to school again. So two years ago she adopted the scheme, and it has worked well ever since. Speaking of her unique experience Miss Daniels said:

"I do not think I am doing anything wrong in allowing my young men students to kiss me as prizes for obedience. Indeed, I think it is a great reform or I should not practice it. My pupils all respect me. I have a good attendance. The patrons of the district like me, for haven't I been given another two years' job. I do not mind criticism from outsiders; my thoughts are about my school."

QUEER KAFFIR NICKNAMES.

They Are Generally Based on Some Distinguishing Peculiarity.

Apropos of Major General Baden-Powell's sobriquet, "Ihlala Pansi," literally meaning "to stay below," bestowed upon him by the Zulus, it may be mentioned that the natives of South Africa are peculiarly happy in their bestowal of names upon persons and places, generally based on some salient peculiarity in the case of places and on some physical defect or virtue in the case of persons.

"B.-P.," in the Matabele campaign, was further christened "Impeso," or the wolf, by the Kaffirs, on account of the fact that he used to steal over the veldt at dusk. The late Sir Theophilus Shepstone, while British diplomatic agent at Fort Peddie, in the Cape Colony, acquired the name of "M-soutsu," the mighty hunter, a title by which he was ever afterward known in South Africa. The late Bishop Colenso, whose affection for and deep interest in the Zulus is well known, was designated by them as "M-sabantu," father of the people. John W. Shepstone, son of Sir Theophilus and for many years judge of the Natal native high court, is called by his legal subjects "Mr. John." The attorney general of the colony apparently strikes awe into the native breast, as do certain other heads of departments, who, from the fact of their occupying private rooms remote from the clerks, are designated "Izinkosi ka Pakati" (lords of the inner chamber). A tall, thin young man in Maritzburg was known to his black servants as "Umtwasa lo Twishi," meaning the goodly sapling, and a man who was left-handed in most things was promptly distinguished as "Ncell," or the left-hander.—Pall Mall Gazette.

RUSSIAN DISLIKE OF TUNNELS.

Remarkable Statement by an American Railway Inspector.

There are naturally a number of sweeping curves through the Urals, but all tunneling has been avoided. The writer did not see a single tunnel in the Ural Range. It is a remarkable fact that during the transsiberian railway inspection the writer did not observe a tunnel anywhere; and even after continuing the inspection right into the heart of Russia about 2,000 miles more of line had been covered before he saw the first tunnel. This was near Tyfa, not far from the illustrious Tolstoi's home; and it was while responding to a prearranged invitation from le grande Russe that the writer came across this, the first tunnel noted, after 6,000 miles of overland railway inspection.

A Russian railway engineer would sooner blow up a small mountain than make a tunnel, leaving a yawning chasm between the rocks, with two "streaks of rust" at the bottom thereof as a souvenir of his activity. Or, if he finds that, after going to the mountain, the mountain is not likely to yield to him, his instructions are to circumvent it by a long detour. Anything to avoid tunneling! The primary aversion to tunnels in Russia is not alone their first cost, but their subsequent cost; for tunnels, like houses, always have "something the matter with them."—Cassier's Magazine.

Nervy Fraud on a Bank.

An impudent fraud was perpetrated upon an English bank by one of its customers, who opened an account with some few hundreds of pounds. The man, after a few weeks, drew two checks, each within a pound or so of his balance, and, selecting a busy day, presented himself at one end of the counter while an accomplice, when he saw that his friends checks had been cashed, immediately presented his own to a cashier at the other end. Both cashiers referred the checks to the ledger clerk, who, thinking the same cashier had asked him twice, said "right" to both checks. The thieves were never caught.

Expatriation.

It is said that a large number of wealthy Americans are thinking of settling permanently in Great Britain.

An unfortunate characteristic of a girl is that if two girls have been faithful friends for fifteen years, a young man they have known but ten days can make trouble between them.

Like the Deadly Under-Current which grasps one without warning, the mucous membrane which lines the entire body suddenly becomes weakened in some spot and disease is established. It may be of the lungs, the head, throat, stomach, bowels, or any other organ. Wherever it is, and whatever it seems, it all springs from the same cause—or inflammation of this delicate pink membrane.

CATARRH

The system is weakened in winter. The delicate lining is more susceptible to irritation or inflammation, and thus we have pneumonia, grip, colds, coughs, fevers, etc., all catarrhal conditions which may easily be checked by one catarrh cure—Pe-ru-na.

That's the only way out of it. You may dose forever—you will not be well until you try the true cure and that is Pe-ru-na. You may think your trouble is some other disease and not catarrh. Call it what you will, one thing is sure, your system is affected and must be treated, and Pe-ru-na is the only remedy which reaches the right place and does cure.

Silver and His Score.

Tom McCormick, superintendent of the Grandin road links, tells of an old, near-sighted Scotsman who often golfed on the St. Andrew's links in Scotland. Ofttime the old man would appear upon the links, and, accompanied by a caddie, would manfully strike out to make the round by himself. He was a desperately poor hand at golf, and often after making a hole in eight or nine strokes would look puzzlingly at his caddie and say:

"An' noo, Rabbie, hoo mony strokes wan it?"

"Nine!" the caddie would answer.

"Think agen, Rabbie, think agen! Are ye sure it waur not sax?"

And the old man would wink at the caddie and significantly rattle silver in his pocket. The boy, of course, would mark the score down to six, as the old gentleman suggested, and finally at the end of the round the old fellow would triumphantly exhibit a score that would make a professional green with envy, and say:

"I ca' prove it by yon caddie! Kem here, laddie! Did ye no see me mak' th' scoor?"

And the caddie would loyally swear to it, and the old man was happy. And later on Rabbie, the caddie, would exhibit the money the golfer had given him and say:

"Auld Jamie had muckle strookes I didnt coont, a' now I hav' muckle siller t' coont!"—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Dr. Beecher Was Right.

When "Bob" Burdette started out to lecture he struck the same town as Henry Ward Beecher, who sent for him.

"Well, young man, how do you like it?"

"Mr. Beecher," he replied, "it is awful. I nearly die every night from nervousness."

"Let me console you, then. The longer you lecture the more nervous you'll get." And "Bob" declares it is true.—Saturday Evening Post.

Boston Aldermen and Theaters.

Boston's Aldermen have so abused the courtesies which the managers of the leading theaters in the Hub have heretofore extended to them that the latter have almost unanimously decided to refuse written requests for tickets from the municipal legislators in the future. The Aldermen are to be admitted free, however, whenever they may present themselves in prson at the box offices to ask for seats. Not content with this, they are highly indignant over the "insult" offered them by the theatrical men and threaten to avenge the same when requests for renewals of licenses shall be made next year.

O—I—C

When a preparation has an advertised reputation that is world-wide, it means that preparation is meritorious. If you go into a store to buy an article that has achieved universal popularity like CASCARETS CANDY CATHARTIC for example, you feel it has the indorsement of the world. The judgment of the people is infallible because it is impersonal. The retailer who wants to sell you "something else" in place of the article you ask for, has an ax to grind. Don't it stand to reason? He's trying to sell something that is not what he represents it to be. Why? Because he expects to derive an extra profit out of your credulity. Are you easy? Don't you see through his little game? The man who will try and sell you a substitute for CASCARETS is a fraud. Beware of him! He is trying to steal the honestly earned benefits of a reputation which another business man has paid for, and if his conscience will allow him to go so far, he will go farther. If he cheats his customer in one way, he will in another and it is not safe to do business with him. Beware of the CASCARET substitutor! Remember CASCARETS are never sold in bulk, but in metal boxes with the long-tailed "C" on every box and each tablet stamped C. C. C.

Odd Excuse for Burglary.

An odd excuse for urglary was given by a one-legged boy, aged 14. He broke into a hardware store in Kansas City and was captured. He pleaded that he wanted to steal some tools which would enable him to make a wooden leg for himself.

Notice of Sale of Real Estate.

Notice is hereby given that I, John S, Potts, administrator of the estates of John Henney and Elizabeth Henney, deceased, by virtue of the orders of the DeKalb circuit court to me directed, will offer for sale at private sale on FRIDAY, AUGUST 10, 1900,

at my residence in Fairfield township, DeKalb county, Indiana, the following described real estate, to-wit.

The east half (½) of the east half (½) of the southwest quarter (¼) of section number twenty-five (25), in township numbered thirty-five (35) north, of range twelve (12) east, in DeKalb county, in the state of Indiana.

Said sale will be continued from day to day until a satisfactory offer is received or until the further order of the court,

Such sale to be upon the following terms, to-wit: One-third (⅓) of the purchase price cash on day of sale, one-third (⅓) thereof in six (6) months and one-third (⅓) thereof in twelve (12) months from said date, the deferred payments to be evidenced by the purchaser's notes, bearing six per cent interest and secured by mortgage on the premises sold, with the privilege to the purchaser of paying all in cash if he desires to do so.

JOHN S. POTTS, Administrator.

John W. Baxter, Att'y.

Sheriff's Sale.

By virtue of an execution issued on a transcript of a judgment filed in the office of the clerk of the DeKalb circuit court on the 22d day of April, 1895, and to me directed by the clerk of said court, I will offer for sale at public auction and outcry, to the highest bidder, at the door of the court house in Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana, on

SATURDAY, AUGUST 11, 1900,

between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following described real estate, situated in DeKalb county, in the state of Indiana, to-wit;

Lot numbered seventy-two [72] in Ensley's second addition to the town of Auburn.

And in case the rents and profits fail to bring the amount demanded to satisfy the judgment and decree aforesaid, interest and costs, together with all accruing costs, I will, at the same time and place, and in like manner as aforesaid, offer for sale, at public auction and outcry, to the highest bidder, all the right, title, interest and estate in fee simple of Grant Owens and John C. Owens at his death and now holden by his heirs, in and to the above described real estate, or so much and such part thereof as may be necessary to satisfy the judgment and decree aforesaid, which is in favor of Solomon Shilling and against Grant Owens, John C. Owens.

Said real estate will be sold without relief from valuation or appraisement laws, and subject to the redemption laws of the state of Indiana.

JOHN H. HATHAWAY, Sheriff of DeKalb County, Indiana.

Thursday's Daily.

—Mrs. Emma Reesh of Garrett was in town today.

—W. H. Leas and D. L. Leas were in court on business yesterday.

—Over at South Bend, grasshoppers are invading the stores and injuring the goods of merchants.

—The Auburn Lumber Co. has just received a car load of No. 1 white pine lath, the best in the market. j31

—The Waterloo Press says a rough rider's club will soon be organized in Auburn. We had one here last Saturday.

FOR SALE:—A team of good work horses, with wagon and harness; also a good, fresh milch cow. See John Groscop. d1wtf —Mrs. Minnie Wilson Schneider, and Miss Fitzsimmons of Huntertown were guests of Dr. Vesta Swarts at dinner yesterday.

—William C Maybury, Mayor of Detroit, was nominated yesterday as the democratic candidate for governor of Michigan.

—The cement factory at Stroh is shut down; the cylinder head of one of the large engines having been blown out last Sunday.

—J. A. Slaybaugh of Kendallville and his sister, Mrs. I. Fish of Fairbury, Neb., are visiting his daughter, Mrs. E. E. Baird, and family.

—Cal. Husselman threshed a part of his wheat Monday, including 500 bushels of the popular Rudy wheat. He is making a specialty of furnishing clean seed wheat of this variety.

—On the program for the Angola old settler's meeting, is a picture of the Angola band. It has a serious drawback, for you can't see their faces for their horns. No pun intended.

—Mrs. Minnie Wilson Schneider left today for Springfield, O., having completed her visit here. She will visit there several weeks and then return to her home in Little Rock, Ark.

—Miss Sadie Farrell writes from Crooked lake that they are having a pleasant outing and enjoying the fishing. Mrs. Frank Draggoo caught a four-pound bass before breakfast Tuesday morning, and other members of the party have had good luck.

—Angola Republican:—Judge Powers, being anxious to secure a speaker for the Old Settlers' meeting who could be heard by the large audience, sent an invitation to Free Kelley, of DeKalb county, and then placed his ear to the ground and waited to hear the answer.

—A dispatch from Cleveland says: About twenty members of the Indiana republican editorial association, headed by President Wallace B. Campbell of Anderson, called on National Chairman Hanna today to pay their respects. The annual convention of the association has just been held at Put-in-Bay.

—Isaac Barker of Summit was a caller today, and set his paper account over into 1901. It might be also mentioned that he is one of several enterprising young men, who are in the race for trustee of Smithfield township. The other two are Herbert Waterman and John C. Clark. W. A. Austin of Ashley is also a candidate. Any of them would serve the people well.

—YOUNG MEN WANTED:—With fair education and good character, to learn telegraphy, railroad accounting and typewriting. This is endorsed by all leading railroad companies as the only perfect and reliable institution of its kind. All our graduates are assisted to positions. Ladies also admitted. Write for free catalogue. Fall term opens August 15th.—Globe Telegraph College, Lexington, Ky. tf —Attorneys in the Morris-Ritter case, got into hot words two or three times and had to be called down by his Honor, Judge Hartman, and rapped into decorum by Bailiff Husselman. While an attorney is justified in making a hot fight for his client, hot words certainly work against him, and do his cause no good. With men as capable and intelligent as jurymen generally are, there are many things that attorneys deem vital, which have no effect whatever on the jury.

Hearing of Ditch Petition.

In the matter of the petition of William Spangler et al. No. 705.

Notice is hereby given that a petition has been filed with the auditor of DeKalb county, state of Indiana, and viewers have been appointed who have viewed and reported said view which is on file in my office. The hearing of said petition upon its merits will be heard by the board of county commissioners on the same being the 2d day of their August term, 1900. The prayer of said petition is that a ditch be constructed on the following route, to-wit:

Tuesday, August 7, 1900,

Beginning fourteen [14] rods north of the west quarter corner of section thirty-one [31], township thirty-four [34] north of range thirteen [13] east, in DeKalb county, Indiana; thence in a southeasterly direction ending at the iron pipe under the Baltimore, Ohio & Chicago railroad, where the Isaac Hague ditch crosses said railroad. Said ditch to be tile to Station 56, plus 76 feet; the remaining portion to be open ditch.

This proposed work will affect the lands of the following persons.

Harvey Cupp, Catharine Cupp and Harvey Cupp, Frederick Carper, Mathias Cupp, T. W. Hackett, Frederic Huelsenbeck, C. B. Jackson and Effie D. Jackson, Lovina Mathews, Adam McNabb, F. W. Dunham and C. K. Bristol, the Monitor property; Elizabeth Beuner, Samuel S. Teeters, Fort Wayne & Jackson Railway company now owned and operated by the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Railroad company, Charles Rugman, Philip Fluke, Jacob B. Casebeer and Sarah E. Casebeer, Lydia Spangler and William W. Spangler, Lewis Spangler estate (heirs William Spangler and Lydia Spangler), George W. Morr, John Harris, Josephine Harris, G. A. Bovee, Wabash Railroad company (Eel River branch), Baltimore, Ohio & Chicago Railroad company, Mary A. Mitchell, Union Township, Jackson Township, Sarah B. Sheets, Martin C. Sheets, Nicholas Ensley (und ½), Nancy C. Stafford (und ½), Incorporated City of Auburn, Indiana; Harry D. Draggoo, Joseph E. Ensley, Frank Boyle, Benjamin F. Myers, Godfrey E. Mathews, Mary J. Thompson, George F. Spear, Peter Dittmar, Joseph Ashley and Englebert Ashley.

—G. S. Erlston of Chicago Junction is bound to keep ahead of the printer, having just paid his COURIER to Oct. 20, 1901. How's that for high.

—Wheat comes in fairly well, both new and old, bringing about 73 cents here. Frank Borst at the Lake Shore took in a few loads this forenoon.

—The graduating class of a western high school, disdaining to use a Latin motto, used this one in plain English, "Beyond this lies the washtub and the sawbuck."

—Fremont Smith has had another touch of bad luck, this time losing several hogs which got out onto the B & O. track and were killed by a passing train.

—Mrs. J. C. Lochner, Mrs. John Clark, Mrs. Ed. Beaty and Miss Lola Dice spent Thursday with Mrs. C. W. Bartles near Jackson Center and had a most enjoyable time.

—The dread of people with weak lungs who suffer with stubborn coughs is consumption. Foley's Honey and Tar, if taken in time, cures incipient consumption. H. B. McCord.

—The Rebekahs had a committee meeting here today, to arrange for the district meeting they are to have Aug. 23. Chas. Voss of Waterloo, Sol. Barney of St. Joe and Mr. Stewart of Garrett represented their several lodges.

—The principal speakers at the old settlers' reunion at Angola, August 16, will be Judge Bowersox and Hon. M. M. Boothman of Bryan, and Ex-Gov. Luce of Michigan. The latter was formerly a resident of Steuben county.

—Henry Harris is expected home to spend Sunday with his people, the family of John Harris at the Junction. Henry graduated only a few years ago, in the Auburn schools and now has charge of the hoop mill at Wakarusa in Elkhart county.

—Dr. Vesta Swarts has a letter from her husband, mailed the same day he sent the cablegram from Liverpool. He says they had a very cool passage across the ocean, getting into the track of several big icebergs, but none of the passengers were seriously ill.

—One of the men mixed up in the fight the other day came into 'Squire Walter's court yesterday and plead guilty, paying his fine. Young Wraggs, for whom a warrant was issued, is in Chicago but is expected to make his appearance in court later on.

—Garrett Herald:—John Krieger, a B. & O. employe living in East addition, stepped in front of an engine near the coal chutes here, and one of his legs was cut off below the knee. Dr. Thompson dressed the wound, and the man is doing as well as can be expected.

—For quickly relieving that distressed feeling after eating, a single dose of that gentle acting Krause's Little Liver Pills is all that is required They are a certain cure for Constipation, that prolific cause for so much suffering. Krause's Little Liver Pills are warranted. Sold by H. B. McCord.

—The Deutscher Kriegverien held its twenty-sixth annual reunion at Chicago July 22. This is like our G. A. R., but is made up of the men who served in the war of 1870, between Germany and France. The society is quite strong in some parts of the United States, but we know of only one member in Auburn. That is Fred Funk, who carries a medal for good service in that memorable conflict.

CLAY CITY, IND, Jan. 14, 1897. Dr. W. B. Caldwell, Monticello, Ill.

SIR:—I have used Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin for dyspepsia and constipation with great benefit to myself. Some days I was not able to do my office work. I had run down to only 135 lbs. After taking several bottles of your wonderful medicine I now weigh 185 lbs. I now feel like a new man. I have recommended Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin to my friends and will answer any and all letters of inquiry I may receive as to the merits of your medicine. Yours respectfully,

WM. H. SHIRELY, Prop. Kline Hotel. H. B. McCord.

SUFFERED FOR YEARS.

WITH KIDNEY TROUBLE—A CASE THAT BAFFLED THE BEST DOCTORS.

WINDSOR, ONT., Jan. 13, 1900.

I make the following statement for the benefit of people in advanced years: I have used Dr C. D. Warner's Compound of Seven Cures with the best possible results. I am sixty-five years old and have suffered more or less with my kidneys for over three years. After taking eight bottles of your Seven Cures I feel like a new man. I can truthfully recommend it as one of the greatest remedies of the age. Yours respectfully,

Justice's Court Reform.

The next Indiana legislature may be called upon to consider some changes in the present law relative to justice of the peace, says the Columbia City Post. It is asserted by lawyers and others familiar with justice court proceedings that a reformation in that quarter is needed. A justice of the peace is quoted as suggesting the following changes:

Place all the justices of the peace in Indiana on a salary of at least $600 a year. It should be more, but that amount would satisfy the majority of them.

Let all fees which now come to us go to the township. It would swell the school fund.

Today many say we are compelled to decide one way or another to secure our fee. This feature would be eradicated.

We should have jurisdiction in all misdemeanors, also concurrent jurisdiction in civil courts to the amounts of $500, and exclusive of $200.

The assault and battery law should be changed. There is too much fighting going on in all classes. Many say, "I would be willing to pay a fine to whip such and such a person."

Our present law provides that the fine in such cases shall be not less than $1 or more than $100 to which six month's imprisonment may be added.

Let the fine be not less than $25 nor more than $500 and fighting will stop at once

Right Here in Auburn.

Auburn may yet be a summer resort. We know a young lady who had a choice of places for a vacation or summer outing. She looked about the homes, groves and lawns of Auburn, picked out one that just suited her, and there she will spend the time, and we trust will spend it pleasantly. She can have the needed rest and freedom from care. She can have plenty of sleep, plain fare, fine shade, lovely grass, fresh air, books, and what she would not have at a sylvan resort, plenty of late newspapers. And she can have the discomforts if she wishes. We have plenty of showers, wet grass, mud, bugs, spiders, flies, mosquitoes and tan. Everything can be had here except fishing and that does not seem to be much of a factor lately. And the expenses are not a fourth.

A Bad Runaway.

While Dr. Stamets and A W. Bates were riding behind the former's horse near the Wabash track this forenoon, the animal became frightened at a passing engine and making a sudden turn threw the gentlemen out of the buggy. The horse then followed the engine up the track, overturning the buggy at the station platform, and finally became tangled in the wreck of the vehicle and came to a stop back of the Watson hotel. Though the gentlemen escaped serious injury the buggy was a total wreck. The engine was running at a high rate of speed and the occupants of the buggy had no warning of its approach until too late to prevent the runaway.

A Popular Excursion.

Niagara Falls and Alexandria Bay Excursion, Lake Shore Ry.

August 16 the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railway will run a popular low rate excursion to above points. Rate, Niagara Falls and return, $6.25; Alexandria Bay, $6.50 higher. Tickets good twelve days including date of sale. Passengers from points on Fort Wayne branch will use regular train No. 459 leaving Auburn at 5:48 p. m. and connecting at Waterloo with fast special leaving at 8:51 p. m., running to Falls.

New K. P. Lodge.

There is to be instituted at Newville this evening, a new K. P. lodge and a number of Auburn Knights started down that way this afternoon to do the work. Among those reported going, are Dr. Nusbaum, C. M. Brown, J. Y. W. McClellan, Harry Richwine, H. C. Shull, J. C. Clark, Dr. Fitch, W. D. Rickel, Frank Depew, Miles Baxter, Bert Beidler and others. They go in several rigs and expect to do a good job.

The Passion Play.

OBERAMMERGAU, July 15, 1900.

DEAR WIFE AND DAUGHTER:—I have not written you in full for nearly week but we have been going so fast I could not find time. I am not sure whether I wrote you about the trip up the Rhine, but I think I did, so will commence on Tuesday. We left Mayence on that morning and unfortunately took the wrong train to reach Berne and Interlaken. I had to stay over night at Berne and as it turned out we were well satisfied. It rained in the forenoon and made it quite unpleasant. We stopped at Heidelberg but saw but little. We reached Interlaken at 10 o'clock and took a train up into the mountains at 11:45 and returned about 7 o'clock and it was one of the grandest half-day of sight-seeing I ever expect to have. The gorges, cliffs, waterfalls and snow-capped mountains are grand beyond description. We ascended to the snow line and had quite a time snowballing. We went into a tunnel made in the ice about 200 feet. The railway part of the way up is a cog railroad. We left Interlaken on Thursday morning by boat across the lake to Bruenz where we took a train for Lucerne, arriving about 1:30, and at 3:30 we took a boat and crossed the lake and went up on Mount Rigi and stayed over night. I wrote a card there to you. This is a very high mountain and the view was beautiful. We were completely turned around and we had considerable amusement at each others expense about it. Guild commenced to make fun of Frank Eckhart and myself for looking in the wrong place for the sun to come up. And when we finally saw the sun come up, he had been searching the horizon in nearly all opposite directions. We could see the Snow mountains that we were at the day before, 40 or 50 miles away, and they were beautiful with the reflection of the sun on them from Lucerne. We went to Zurich and Munich, arriving at the latter place Friday evening at 10:30 tired and dirty. Next morning we got a good bath and after breakfast I went out to get shaved and hair cut which cost me 50 pfennig an equivalent of 12½ cents, and gave the barber a tip as usual of 10 pfennig. This was was the cheapest work of the kind I have had done; have paid 25 cents for shaving. At Munich we joined tour "B," We visited several places of interest with the crowd which has now increased to fifty-five people, and it is quite a sight to see so many people tramping after one man. We reached Oberammergau Saturday evening at 7 o'clock, and finally got located with one of the residents. It all appears very novel to us. They are all Germans and we make signs and most anyway to make ourselves understood. The man of the house is one of the actors, being one of the judges of Israel, the body known in the Bible as the Sanhedrin, of which there were seventy. This is a village of 900 or 1,000 and of them 680 take part in the play. We have been at the play all day from 8 a. m. to 11:45, and from 1:15 to 5:30, and you can imagine how intensely interesting it is when you know it did not seem much longer than an ordinary entertainment. The acting and costumes were grand, and when we consider that they are all the common people it is hard to understand how they do it. While it was grand and sublime, I never want to see it again. I shall not attempt to describe it by letter. When I tell you that everything is wide open, and that they seem to drink nothing but beer, you will feel as I do, that it seems like desecrating a sublime tragedy.

The costumes of the mountaineers are picturesque. I managed to get several snap shots. I got two boys to stand for a picture, and I tried to get several pictures of the women. You would laugh to see them, they are nearly as broad as high, and they are larger around the waist than I am, and you can imagine how they look. The men in native costumes wear pants not quite to the knee and then a leg of a sock commencing about 5 or inches from the pants and reaching to the ankle, and a short bare space between it and shoe, and pants and jacket fancily decorated. I will not have time to write more, as we must get up at 5 o'clock to start on a drive of about 40 miles, I understand to Innspruck. From there we go to Venice, as in tour "B."

I received your letter of the 27th at Munich. I expected one from John but I suppose he is very busy. You can imagine how glad I was to get it. I was glad you wrote about Frank Eckhart's boy, as they have not been telling him any of his sayings, just what he wanted. I imagine how Wayne will begin to ask when I am coming home. How I wish I could see you all. Kiss Wayne and Ethelwin for me, and tell him grandpa will write him a letter as soon as he gets time. I hope you are all well and enjoying yourselves. Tell John I will write him in a day or two, as soon as we stop long enough. With love to both, I am

Your husband and papa,
FRANK ZIMMERMAN.

A TERRIBLE ACCIDENT.

William Gilmore Meets Death at the Hands of his Brother.

A fatal accident occurred about four miles east of Hamilton yesterday afternoon, the circumstances of which are peculiarly distressing. The victim was William Gilmore, aged 79, for some years a resident of Butler and well known in that section, and the saddest part of the affair is that he met death at the hands of his own brother, Lucius, aged 74, who was here from Wisconsin on a visit after an absence of thirty years. The particulars of the accident were furnished us by Hon. C. M. Brown, and are as follows:

The two old gentlemen, who had been enjoying a pleasant visit, went out yesterday afternoon to shoot at target, the range being fired at 200 yards. After several shots had been fired some defect was noticed in the target, and the elder brother went to fix it. After a few moments, Lucius, noticing the target was in position and thinking William was out of the way, raised his gun and fired. As he pulled the trigger William raised up in front of the target and the ball struck him in the head, killing him instantly.

The terrible accident is sincerely regretted in the neighborhood where Mr. Gilmore was well known and respected, and the brother by whose hand he met his death is almost crazed with grief. The deceased leaves a wife and several children.

SUFFERED FOR YEARS.

WITH KIDNEY TROUBLE—A CASE THAT BAFFLED THE BEST DOCTORS.

WINDSOR, ONT., Jan. 13, 1900.

I make the following statement for the benefit of people in advanced years: I have used Dr. C. D. Warner's Compound of Seven Cures with the best possible results. I am sixty-five years old and have suffered more or less with my kidneys for over three years. After taking eight bottles of your Seven Cures I feel like a new man. I can truthfully recommend it as one of the greatest remedies of the age. Yours respectfully,

B. STICKLE.

Annual Picnic.

The Richland township Sunday school association will hold their annual picnic at Richland Center, two miles south of Corunna, Saturday, August 18, 1900. The ladies' military band of Waterloo has been engaged for the occasion. This band need not be recommended to the people of this county and especially this township, for they were with us a year ago and gave perfect satisfaction. Everybody is cordially invited to attend and spend a day of pleasure as well as profit. Each school of the township is expected to be present with prepared music which will add much to the pleasure of the day. Plenty of good speakers will be on hand.—H. M. FRETZ, President.

Gentlemen:—Some personal experience enables me to heartily recommend the use of Henry & Johnson's Arnica and Oil Liniment. For external applications in cases of sprains and bruises it is unquestionably excellent. It takes hold and gives relief. This is not a guess, but a word of testimony.

EDWARD HAWES, D. D.

Dr. Hawes was for many years pastor of the First Church, Burlington, Vt. His testimony is the testimony of all who use the Arnica and Oil Liniment. It never fails to give satisfaction. Sold by all druggists at 25 and 50 cents a bottle. E. M. Fischler, F. E. Davenport and H. B. McCord. 1d&W can take Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin with as much safety and beneficial results as an adult. It is a mild, liquid laxative and children thrive upon it. Syrup Pepsin assists nature in cleansing the system, and its use is not attended with any of the unpleasant griping and nauseating effects caused by the use of pills or so-called cathartics. Try a 10c size bottle (10 doses 10 cents.) Also sold in 50c and $1 sizes by H. B. McCord.

A 20-Pound Baby

Fair and Beautiful Faces.

Impure blood is sure to cause pimples and roughness of the skin. Dr. Warner's Compound of Seven Cures, the great blood renewer, makes a rough skin smooth and fair. F. E. Davenport.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

No other class of crimes is so carefully concealed as those resulting from the drink traffic. Within the past two weeks there have been several occupants of the jail and city prison in Auburn on account of drunkenness, and in one case recently from criminal assault. It is also a fact that men laid off from work for this cause, or business men, who have imbibed until they have become unfit to attend their duties, are reported sick.

Several minors have been found dead drunk, one was arrested, and the various officers necessary called out from their beds at night, so that the boy could have his trial and be sobered off by morning, and ready to report for duty at his employer's office.

An occasional sermon on temperance, and the doleful exclamation: "It is too bad that saloons are allowed to carry on their dreadful work," is a back number in temperance reform. The sermons will continue to be preached, with a definite organization back of them, to carry out the willl of the pulpit and pew.

FARMLAND

The temperance people of Monroe township, Randolph county, recently remonstrated by power of attorney, against C. L. Leeks, an applicant for a saloon license, who desired to open a saloon in Parker City. The Circuit Court held that remonstrating by power of attorney is legal, and refused to grant license. There is only one other saloon in the township, located at Farmland, and as soon as the license expires, which will be in November, the Anti-Saloon League will meet the proprietor, J. B. Burns, with a remonstrance. "Dry" territory is rapidly extending. We are believers in this sort of expansion.

THE CANTEEN AND THE SOLDIER.

A canteen puts liquor (beer and light wines) in front of a man, and induces him to drink, which, with this temptation removed he would never do.—Gen. Guy V. Henry.

The great majority [of the men in the army] are temperate, abstemious men, it is to these that the evil effects of the post exchange system works the greatest injury; as young men who would not think of going away from the post for liquor will, when it is placed before them, and every inducement offered them to purchase, do so and thus gradually acquire habits of intemperance.—General William R. Shafter.

Notice to Farmers.

The South End flouring mills will this year confine its business strictly to the accommodation and interest of farmers, thereby enabling us to give each customer the best flour his wheat will make, which is not usually the case in custom and merchant mills where flour is shipped out. We have also arranged to grind your grist and give flour from your own wheat in grists of not less than ten bushels, flour all guaranteed. Chop and meal ground while you wait.—THE AUBURN CITY MILLS, South End. 35

Over-Work Weakens Your Kidneys.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys once every three minutes.

The kidneys are your blood purifiers, they filter out the waste or impurities in the blood.

If they are sick or out of order, they fail to do their work.

Pains, aches and rheumatism come from excess of uric acid in the blood, due to neglected kidney trouble.

Kidney trouble causes quick or unsteady heart beats, and makes one feel as though they had heart trouble, because the heart is over-working in pumping thick, kidney-poisoned blood through veins and arteries.

It used to be considered that only urinary troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all constitutional diseases have their beginning in kidney trouble.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

ROYAL

is the baking powder of general use, its sale exceeding that of all other baking powders combined.

Royal Baking Powder has not its counterpart at home or abroad. Its qualities, which make the bread more healthful and the cake of finer appearance and flavor, are peculiar to itself and are not constituent in other leavening agents.

Great efforts are made to sell alum baking powders under the plea that they are so many cents a pound cheaper than Royal. The admission that they are cheaper made is an admission that they are inferior. But alum powders contain a corrosive poison and should not be used in food, no matter how cheap.

Remarkable Experience.

Barnes Botanic Drug Co.,
Tullahoma, Tenn.

Gentlemen:—

For over a year I have been a great sufferer with kidney and bladder trouble. The disease was so severe that about three months ago I fell in a faint on the street, and a physician who attended me thought that I was past help, but after being relieved by rest I found that I could not work at my trade at all. I suffered intensely with my back and head.

I had heard so much of your Barnes Kidney & Bladder Cure that I concluded to try it. I have taken altogether two bottles of this wonderful remedy, and am a well man, and work at my trade feeling as well as I ever did at any time in my life. I found the remedy seemingly slow at first, but determined to give it a good test, and now when I look back it was wonderfully quick to give me such relief in so short a time.

I wish that every sufferer from kidney and bladder trouble would take this grand remedy.

Yours Sincerely,
W. C. OGLE.

Gen. Order No. 1.

Headquarters DeKalb County Battalion, G. A. R.

The annual meeting of all of the G. A. R. Posts of DeKalb county will be held at Auburn, Ind., on Tuesday, 21, 1900. The Colonel commanding the Battalion orders all of the Posts of DeKalb County to assemble at the above named place at 9:30 o'clock a. m. of said day, and they are requested to have rations in their haversacks for one day. All of the Posts are further commanded to see that suitable provisions are made whereby the Ladies' Relief Corps of the different Posts shall have transportation to said meeting. It is further ordered that all of the comrades be present at the time mentioned to answer the roll call on penalty of being fined. See to it, comrades, that all of your friends come with you. We have written the Dept. Commander and expect him to be with us. All ex-soldiers are invited to be with us. The comrades of DeLong Post, at Auburn and members of the entertainment committee will see to it that a suitable camp ground is prepared, including program for the entertainment of the Battalion. The program will be published hereafter. By order of

A Minister's Good Work.

"I had a severe attack of bilious colic got a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy, took two doses and was entirely cured," says Rev. A. A. Power of Emporia, Kan. My neighbor across the street was sick for over a week, had two or three bottles of medicine from the doctor. He used them for three or four days without relief, then called in another doctor who doctored him for some days and gave him no relief, so discharged him. I went over to see him the next morning. He said his bowels were in a terrible fix, that they had been running off so long that it was almost bloody flux. I asked him if he had tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy and he said, 'No.' I went home and brought him my bottle and gave him one dose; told him to take another dose in fifteen or twenty minutes if he did not find relief, but he took no more and was entirely cured." HISTORY OF A WEEK.

PEOPLE, PLACES AND THINGS OF THE WORLD.

News of Crimes and Criminals, Accidents, Fires, Etc., from North, South, East and West, Sandwiched with Minor Affairs.

All Are Alive and Safe.

At last the story of Pekin has been told. Dr. Morrison, in the London Times, holds up the Chinese government before the world as guilty, and to a degree of infamy and duplicity that exceeds the surmise of its worst detractors. In the same dispatch he gives a more hopeful view of the prospects of the besieged than has been expressed by any of the others who have been heard from. All the ministers, members of legations and their families are alive but vigilant.

Simultaneously there comes from the Belgian charge d'affairs at Shanghai an official statement that the allies are expected to reach Pekin in about a week.

Assassin's Wife Suffering.

New York special: Captain Usher, of the Hoboken police, says that Mrs. Bresci, wife of the assassin of King Humbert was in such a nervous condition that she has gone to the house of a friend for rest. The woman is destitute. She still tries to hope that the man arrested in Italy is not her husband, but she admits that there is little reason for hope. She will be kept under police surveillance pending developments in her husband's case.

Woolen Trade Is Brisk.

The American Woolen Company, popularly known in the clothing trade as a trust, opened its line of spring 1901 samples to buyers, in New York, Wednesday. The manner in which the opening is attended speaks volumes of the business outlook. Long lines of purchasers awaited their turn. Heavy orders were the rule throughout. It was estimated that many million dollars' worth of contracts were booked.

A Horrible Death.

Arthur Lemon met with a horrible death at Connersville, Ind. He climbed the supports of a bridge between the Connersville furniture buildings to a height of thirty feet, where he accidently caught hold of a live electric wire charged with 2000 volts. The shock knocked him off the bridge. He alighted on his head and shoulders on the ground below, the fall killing him instantly.

China Bars Cipher Messages.

A dispatch from Che Foo says: The Governor of Shang Tung has telegraphed to United States Consul Fowler that the tsungli-yamen directs him to notify the consuls that as the military operations at Pekin and Tien Tsin are unsettled, only messages in plain language, without cipher or reference to military affairs, will be delivered to the ministers.

Burglar Trap Slays Child.

A bicycle dealer by the name of Sanborn, of Middleport, Ohio, set a trap to catch burglars by attaching a string to the door of a safe and connecting it with the trigger of a loaded revolver. Harley Sanborn, his son, aged 12 years, accidentally set off the trap and was mortally wounded, the bullet piercing his lungs.

Election Ordered in Cuba.

The War Department has issued an order for a general election to be held in Cuba on the third Saturday of September to elect delegates to a convention to be held in Havana on the first Monday of November. This convention is to form and adopt a constitution for the people of Cuba.

Attempted Assination.

The Vienna correspondent of the London Daily Chronicle says: A rumor has reached here from Belgrade that an attempt was made to assassinate King Alexander while he was driving through the town. It is said that he was shot at but was not injured.

Canal Property Seized.

The government of Nicaragua has taken possession of the property of the Maritime Canal Company and removed the company's cars, rails and property to the interior from Greytown, under article 54 of the concession.

Crongressman Daly Dead.

William D. Daly, member of the House of Representatives from the Seventh New Jersey District, died at Far Rockaway, L. I., of appoplexy. He had been in his usual health up to the hour of his death.

To Look After Anarchists.

Ex-Governor Wolcott, of Massachusetts, who has accepted the ambassadorship to Italy, has asked the United States to have the secret service men investigate the anarchists of this country.

Less than One Thousand.

An official report from General Hunter says that the number of Boers that surrendered was 986 instead of 5,000 as first reported.

Pettigrew's Son in Boer Army.

The Lorenzo Marques correspondent of the London Daily Express says: "The Boers are preparing to retreat from Watervalboven. Frank Pettigrew, son of United States Senator Pettigrew, has arrived there and has joined Commandant-General Botha's staff."

A Noted Historian Dead.

John Clark Ridpath, the historian, died in the Presbyterian hospital, New York City, from a complication of diseases. He has been a patient in the hospital since April 26.

Training Ship Goes on a Cruise.

The United States training-ship Hartford left Charlestown navy yard for Southampton, England. The first stop of a cruise which is expected to last a year will be Southampton. The Hartford will visit Turkey, Gibraltar, Italy and France after leaving England.

Yukon Railroad Is Completed.

The Lake Bennett section of the White Pass and Yukon Railroad is completed, and from now on through trains will be run from Skaguay to White Horse. The completion of the road will result in the deserting of Bennett City, so long the point for thousands of Klondikers.

TUNNEL TO FREE A CONVICT.

Bold Plan Discovered in Time by Pittsburg Police.

One of the boldest and most systematic plans for the release of one or more prisoners from Riverside penitentiary in Pittsburg, Pa., was thwarted by accident. The object of the rescuers was to secure the freedom of the notorious real estate swindler, J. C. Boyd, wanted all over the country, who is serving a seven-year sentence in the penitentiary for his misdeeds. The rescuers hoped to reach the inside of the penitentiary wall by tunnel from the cellar of a house on Sterling street, nearly opposite one of the gates. One of the officers crawled 201 feet in the dark passageway and was compelled by gas to return before reaching its end. On March 15 last Thomas Brown, who represented himself as a Chicago solicitor, purchased from John C. Langfitt, engineer in the penitentiary, the house at 28 Sterling street for $4,000, paying $250 down and agreeing to pay the balance in installments. Neighbors had their suspicions aroused because of the small quantity of furniture going into the supposed home of the new family, and by the fact that the principal article taken in was a piano. The shades were always down, but the piano was rarely silent. During the intervals when there was no music the neighbors heard a grinding, whirring noise, which gave them the impression that the Browns were always grinding coffee. Their suspicions of crookedness were confirmed when they saw a load of galvanized pipe and a load of lumber taken into the house. They called the attention of the police to the place, but no charge could be made against the occupants. The Browns left the house on the night of July 5, leaving word for Mr. Langfitt that they were going to New York, but would return to pay the first installment on the house.

TRADE SITUATION IRREGULAR.

Few Important Changes Noted During the Last Week.

Bradstreet's says: "Important changes in trade and speculation are notably lacking this week, but counter currents of demand in various sections and industries lend a rather more than usually irregular appearance to the situation. Among the features calling for notice are the practical assurance of an immense corn crop in the farther West; the continued cheerful reports from the sections which have gathered and are now marketing a large winter wheat crop; fairly satisfactory gains in gross railway earnings, and less weakness in prices of the country's leading cereal products, based apparently on renewed buying for export. Unfavorable elements in trade probably find their chief and greatest exposition in the iron and steel business. That industry is, if possible, more depressed than at any time for three years past, and expectations that price declines would be checked by the arrival of finished material at a cost basis have been disappointed. "Wheat, including flour, shipments for the week aggregate 2,363,743 bushels, against 3,029,381 bushels last week, 3,366,432 bushels in the corresponding week of 1899. Corn exports for the week aggregated 3,243,745 bushels, against 4,182,159 bushels last week, 3,700,320 bushels in this week a year ago.

WRECKED IN GULF OF MEXICO.

Schooner Etta A. Stimpson Meets Disaster Off American Coast.

Edward Shea, mate of the schooner Etta A. Stimpson, which sailed from Bangor, Me., June 28, arrived at Southampton, England, and reports that the Stimpson was wrecked in the Gulf of Mexico. All of the crew of the schooner were picked up by the French vessel Milo and landed at Cherbourg. The Etta A. Stimpson was a three-masted schooner of 268 tons and hailed from Thomaston, Me.

YACHT ROBERTA IS DESTROYED.

Burned Up in Lake Erie—Crew Escapes—Loss, $12,000.

The steam yacht Roberta, owned by C. H. Lawrence of Detroit, was burned on Lake Erie about twelve miles out from Sandusky. The crew got away in boats. The yacht was in charge of Capt. Jarrett. The flames caught in the boiler room and spread with such rapidity that nothing could be done to save the boat. The Roberta was valued at $12,000 and was rated as one of the finest of its class afloat on the fresh-water lakes.

Sad Accident in Wichita.

Four women driving in the park at Wichita, Kan., whipped their horse while crossing a bridge. He ran away, overturned the carriage and threw the occupants to the ground. Miss Grace Gilbert died from her injuries. Mrs. Blanche Chandler Miller is not expected to recover and Miss Ella Chandler is seriously injured.

Prayer for Rain Answered.

The people of Ulysses, Kan., believe that Rev. Mr. Johnson stands very near to God. The other night he prayed fervently for rain for the farmers' crops. Soon a deluge came. The rain fell in torrents all night the the people were unable to leave the school house until the next morning.

Show Train in a Wreck.

Section 1 of the Buffalo Bill Wild West show's train suffered a severe collision near Milwaukee Junction, Detroit, resulting in the smashing of a show employes' sleeping car containing forty persons. One of the latter is dead and nine others are in Detroit hospitals suffering from injuries.

Railway Power House Burned.

The street railway power house burned at Akron, Ohio. The fire originated from a bursting boiler tube. An addition containing $600,000 worth of machinery was saved. Damages to building and machinery, $25,000.

Ridpath, the Historian, Dies.

John Clark Ridpath, the famous historian, succumbed in a New York hospital to a complication of diseases. He resigned the vice presidency of De Pauw University to devote his entire time to writing.

Miners' Wages Raised.

One thousand miners in the Davy coal fields, West Virginia, have been granted a 10 per cent. increase in their wages. The mines throughout the State are running at full capacity and are unable to keep up with orders.

Hold-Up of a Saloon.

Three men entered the saloon owned by Ed Santry at 328 West Van Buren street, Chicago, and while two of the robbers covered John Deere, the bartender, with revolvers, the other rifled the cash register of its contents, $27.

Son Kills Father.

In New York Pat Logan, aged 18, killed his father, Edward Logan, crushing in his skull. The father had been abusing his wife and the son rushed in to protect his mother from being hit.

Big Fire in Grass Valley, Cal.

In Grass Valley, Cal., a fire which started in a laundry burned over two business blocks, causing a loss of $75,000.

Express Robber Foiled.

Just after the Missouri Pacific train No. 1 left Atchison, Kan., at 11:45 the other night for the north, a masked robber entered the express car, covered John Kreiser, the messenger, with a revolver, and demanded the contents of the express safe. Keiser convinced him that the safe could not be opened until the train reached Omaha, and, after taking a silver watch from an express package, the robber got off and escaped.

BUILDERS GO AWAY.

Chicago Union Men in Demand in Other Cities.

Continued requests for structural iron workers are being received by Secretary Nicholas Darrah of the Bridge and Structural Iron Workers' Union in Chicago. Twenty-five iron workers were sent to Duluth the other day on request of the Lehigh Valley Coal Company to work on towers for the mammoth coal chutes being built there. Twenty more men were sent later. The towers are to be completed by Jan. 1, 1901. Fifty men went to West Superior to work on the grain elevator being constructed there. The contractors express a decided preference for the Chicago builders, and are endeavoring to recruit all the extra men needed from the Chicago union. The building now under way at West Superior will be the largest elevator ever constructed. When completed it will have a capacity of 2,000,000 bushels. Ten bridgemen were sent recently to Jefferson, Wis., where two bridges spanning the Rock and Crawfish rivers are to be built for the Northwestern Railroad. The combined length of the bridges will be 900 feet. Twenty iron workers were sent to Pearl, Ill., upon request of the Chicago and Alton Railroad.

RAILWAY STATION ROBBED.

Two Men Hold Up Night Operator at Isinours, Minn.

The night operator at Isinours, Minn., one of the largest stations on the southern Minnesota division of the Milwaukee road, was held up and robbed by two men who appeared at the ticket window with a revolver in each hand, demanding that the operator hold up his hands. He did so and was taken from the depot, bound and gagged and locked in a refrigerator car. The men robbed the cash drawer of its contents, amounting to $28.75, and escaped. After being in the car for three hours the operator attracted the attention of passing trainmen, who released him.

GIGANTIC TRUST IS PLANNED.

Scheme to Control Farm Products of the Mississippi Valley.

Farmers in Minnesota and the Dakotas have received letters and circulars soliciting their aid in the formation of a trust to control the market for the products of the farms in the Mississippi Valley. The plan is to pay each delegate, farmer or editor who attends the amount of his expenses in farmers' federation scrip, which will be received in payment of commissions at any of the commission houses the company may establish.

Street Cars Crash Together.

A terrible head-end collision occurred on the Dayton and Xenia, Ohio, traction line. Both electric cars were smashed and a dozen people injured, some fatally. The railway people allege that some one tampered with the electric signals, setting them "open" for both cars. The cars met at full speed near a sharp curve, were forced up on end, left their trucks and toppled over.

Iron Company Is Bankrupt.

The Continental Iron Company, composed of Henry B. Shields, J. Dudley Shields and others of Youngstown, Ohio, has filed a petition in voluntary bankruptcy. The company was organized last August with a capital of $200,000 and has been operating mills at Niles and the rolling mill at Wheatland, Pa.

PUSHING ON TO PEKIN

ALLIED ARMY ADVANCES ON CHINESE CAPITAL.

International Relief Force of 20,000 Men Begins the Forward Movement—Fifty Missionaries Reported Slain—Rumor of Japanese Repulse.

The march on Pekin began Wednesday, and the allied troops, it is declared, will not turn back until there is a government in China capable of maintaining its international obligations. It is estimated that the expedition numbers 20,000 men of all arms, with 170 guns. The column started toward Pekin under the general command of the Russian admiral, Alexieff. By placing the Russian admiral in command the allies settled the first point of difference and secured the prompt help of Russia in this undertaking for the immediate relief of the legations. Russia has greater interests to protect than the other powers, and has a larger army in China. Admiral Alexieff is also the ranking officer in the allied armies.

ADMIRAL ALEXIEFF.

Gen. Chaffee has instructions to cooperate heartily with the other commanders, but so far as possible to keep his American force in a compact body. The general went to Tien-Tsin on Monday, and instructions were cabled him there to take command of the troops already mobilized and proceed to Pekin, if the other forces were ready, without waiting for the cavalry regiment on the transport Grant. This regiment will proceed to Tien-Tsin as soon as landed and protect that place while assisting to keep open communication with the column marching on the Chinese capital.

This Government, according to Washington advices, will give no heed to the Chinese warning that the danger of the ministers depends on the discretion of the powers. This is recognized as simply a diplomatic threat that the lives of the ministers may be sacrificed if the allies march on Pekin. This Government, however, takes the position that the freedom of its ministers is not a matter for diplomatic negotiation. It will not treat with China for his rescue. It will not make any agreement or condition regarding his rescue.

Numerous communications from Chinese officials have been received at the State Department suggesting that the allies shall be kept at Tien-Tsin in order that China may be able to protect the ministers from further attack. The intimation has clearly been that an attack upon Pekin will be followed by a general massacre. The Government has replied to these intimations that it cannot take them into consideration. It has lodged with China a demand for free intercourse with its minister. That must be granted without condition. There will be no change, it is asserted, in the policy of this Government toward China, but China must carry out her treaty obligations.

GATE OF THE TIEN-TSIN WALL.

The President will not recall the troops now in China nor check their march on the Chinese capital, says a Washington correspondent. They will move forward to the rescue of Minister Conger and other Americans in Pekin. The condition of the Chinese capital as reported by Minister Conger will be the President's only guide in future directions given to Gen. Chaffee. There is no hope that these conditions will appear more favorable than they now do.

The Government, from the information in its possession, believes that the imperial troops have attacked the foreign legations. It further believes that Prince Tuan, the father of the heir apparent, has directed the hostile demonstrations. Whatever the purpose of these attacks, they were hostile to this Government.

It is reported from Shanghai that fifty missionaries have been massacred in the Shan Si province. According to a dispatch from Tien-Tsin, under date of Sunday, the Japanese vanguard has been repulsed with a loss of 150 killed and wounded.

The Chinese fortress at Hung Hun was stormed by the Russians under Gen. Ajgustoff July 30, thus relieving the posts of Novokijevskoje and Postja, threatened by the Hung Hun garrison. Many guns were taken.

The topographical features of the country between Tien-Tsin and Pekin are favorable to the operations of trained troops against such masses as the Chinese might collect to oppose them. The land is low and nearly flat, and the only difficulties in the way of transportation are the streams and the semi-swampy character of the soil. It is reported that the Chinese have prepared dams that will enable them to flood the country, but it is improbable that much could have been done to make these works effective. A movement up the Pei-Ho river might even be aided by torpedo boats.

WILL SAVE MANY LIVES.

Law Compelling Automatic Car Couplers Now Effective.

A national statute that will result in a great saving of human life became effective on the morning of Aug. 1. It is the law providing that all railway cars engaged in interstate traffic shall be fitted with automatic couplers and air brakes. Hereafter any railway company that uses a car not thus fitted will be liable to a fine of $100 for each offense.

For years the labor people have fought for this law. The number of accidents on the different lines, due to the lack of the coupler, were becoming appalling. In its annual reports the interstate commerce commission advocated its passage. An average of 250 employes were killed annually while coupling cars, while those injured in the performance of that duty averaged 8,500 yearly.

Outside of the accidents to employes the coupler and brake also affected the general traveling public, for had they been in use it is believed that many disasters would have been averted. When it is shown that in the last ten years the railway accidents in the United States have injured from 40,000 to 50,000 annually and that the deaths which resulted numbered from 6,000 to 8,000 a year it can easily be seen what effect the brake and coupler might have had in preventing the horrors and preserving life.

The first bill for the automatic coupler and brake was passed March 2, 1893. This, however, was several times amended, in accord with the views of the labor organizations, and now the act has become operative.

Since the passage of the law the interstate commerce commission has given the railroads two extensions of time in which to comply with its provisions. The first extension was for one year, and the last, granted last December, was for six months.

BLEAK HOUSE FOR SALE.

It is said that one of America's wealthy enthusiasts may purchase Bleak House, the house of which Dickens wrote. It is located at Brodstairs, Kent, in England, and the price has been fixed at $15,000. It is on the market, and unless soon purchased it will be demolished to make room for a modern boarding house.

BLEAK HOUSE.

STORY OF PEKIN SIEGE.

Austrian, Italian, Belgian and Holland Legations Burned.

Dr. Robert Coltman, Jr., the staff correspondent of the Chicago Record in Pekin, who had not been heard from since June 12, sends the following dispatch from Pekin under date of July 21:

"Baron von Ketteler, the German minister, was murdered by Chinese troops, and his secretary wounded June 20, while on his way to the Tsung-li-Yamen. The foreign residents are besieged in the British legation, and have been under a daily fire from artillery and rifles. The cowardice of the Chinese fortunately prevented them from making successful rushes. Our losses are sixty killed and seventy wounded. The Chinese losses exceed 1,000.

"There has been no word from the outside world. Food is plentiful, such as it is—rice and horse flesh. Yesterday, under a flag of truce, a message was sent by Yung Lu, asking if Sir Claude Macdonald, the British minister, would consent to a truce. The minister replied he was willing, provided the Chinese came no closer. The shell firing then ceased and everything is now quiet. We hope that, having defeated the Chinese, relief is nearing us. We are all exhausted with constant standing on guard, fighting, building barricades and digging trenches both night and day.

"All the legations except the British are utterly wrecked by shot and shell. The Austrian, Italian, Belgian and Holland buildings are burned to the ground. The British legation is also much shattered. The United States marines still hold a vital position on the city wall commanding the legations. After a brilliant sortie on the night of July 3, Capt. Myers succeeded in driving back the Kansuh mounted troops. During the fight Capt. Myers was slightly wounded. We fear that treachery is possible when the defeated Chinese troops enter the city. Meanwhile we are living in intense anxiety and hoping for early relief."

LADY RANDOLPH MARRIED.

Is Now the Bride of Lieut. George Cornwallis West.

Lady Randolph Churchill (nee Jerome) has been married to Lieut. George Cornwallis West, after a courtship full of troubles. She is 53 and he is 26. They are both favorites of the Prince of Wales. The ceremony was performed at St. Paul's Church, Knightsbridge, London. The two front pews, which had been reserved for the family of the bride, were unoccupied, while the Cornwallis West family was not represented. The Duke of Marlborough gave the bride away and slipped away into a seat near his young American wife.

RECORD OF THE WEEK

INDIANA INCIDENTS TERSELY TOLD.

Decrease of Activity in Oil Fields—Blow with Fist Kills an Old Man—Train Taken by Tramps—Fatal Powder Explosion in Brazil.

The Indiana oil field report for July shows a marked decrease in the number of new wells being drilled. One reason given is that producers are beginning preparations for winter and another is the price of junk and other material used about a well is at least 50 per cent higher than the price of oil justifies. There is a falling off of 44 per cent in drilling wells and 59 per cent in new derricks building, or, therefore, 103 less new wells in progress for the beginning of August than there was for July 1. This means that about 200 laborers are out of work. The decrease in new work is divided equally among all districts.

Old Man Killed by a Blow.

Rariden Meek, aged 77, a well known and highly respected citizen of Wayne County, met a violent death and George Jenkins and William Gates, residents of Richmond, and both married men, are now locked up in the local jail as a result. It seems that Gates and Jenkins were out in search of blackberries and while thus engaged went on to the land owned by Meek. The old man saw them and went out to order them off. A dispute followed and one of the men struck Meek, his death following almost instantly.

Tramps Flag a Train.

A gang of tramps flagged a Chicago and Southeastern freight train at Lapel and when it stopped boarded the train and took possession. In a fight which ensued Conductor Lambert was badly beaten. A brakeman jumped from the train and went to Lapel, where he telegraphed the Anderson police. The tramps, to avoid arrest, however, compelled the engineer to let them off near the city limits and escaped to the woods.

Boys Play with Powder.

In Brazil four boys, ranging in age from 15 to 19 years, were fearfully burned by an explosion of a keg of powder with which they were playing. The injured were John Mattri, John Scabber, Rolly Forrester and James Ambrose. Mattri died of his injuries and Scabber and Ambrose are not expected to live, as they are burned so badly that flesh falls from portions of their bodies.

After robbing the postoffice at Young America, the thief hid $127 worth of stamps under a porch, while he entered a store, where he was frightened away. The stamps were found.

In Evansville Louis Awenius, 27 years old, went home the other night and before retiring said to his sister: "I have had three fights to-night and don't feel well." At noon the next day his sister went to call him and found him dead. Doctors say death resulted from blows on the body.

John Franks, a Noble township farmer, was swindled out of $2,500. Two men, who registered as W. H. Harris of Indiana and W. C. Brown of Hamilton, Ohio, visited Franks for the ostensible purpose of buying his farm, telling him he must produce $2,500 to prove his responsibility. Franks put his money into a satchel. The men were to put $5,000 in another. They switched satchels and Franks got a bundle of paper.

The last few nights a stranger has been going to the home of the widow Lemasters, south of Shelbyville, and after knocking on the weather boarding with a club disappearing. Indignant residents have gathered each night at the Lemasters home and watched with shotguns for the intruder, who defiantly continues his visits without harm. One night the neighbors encircled the house with wire on which was a bell that would ring on the mysterious visitor running against it. This proved futile, as the man removed the bell, bombarded the house and disappeared. A few nights later Mrs. Lemasters heard a noise in the rear yard and opening a door suddenly was confronted by a man, who ran behind a tree. The woman called to the men on watch on the inside, and as she did so the intruder hurled a stone at her, knocking her senseless.

SILENT SAM.

IT was a strange conglomeration of humanity that occupied the mining camp in Rocky Gulch. Prospectors and adventurers from all parts of the globe were there assembled. There was Red Mike; there was Baldy Slick, who had made and lost fortunes at the card tables; there was Coyote Pete, who had prospected in every gold field upon the face of the globe; there was Silent Sam, so called because of his disinclination to join in conversation; and Talkative Bob, who received his appelation for a dissimilar reason; there was St. Louis Joe, who dispensed liquor to the miners; and Tipsy Tim, whose sole ambition was to pan enough dust to keep himself in a chronic state of intoxication. There were others, but among them all no representative of the gentler sex until Joe Hardy—Honest Joe, they dubbed him—drifted into the camp, accompanied by his brave young wife.

Some way the camp seemed different after "Mrs. Joe" came. There may have been no less drinking, but there was less brawling; there was perhaps just as much gambling, but there was less shooting; and when Joe's baby came a wave of reformation actually swept through the camp.

It became the custom to gather around Joe's cabin every Sunday, and the baby was gazed at with mingled awe and admiration. As months went by Babe, as every one called her, developed cute and affectionate ways, and she was almost worshiped by those rough miners.

"YOU ARE AS HANDY AS A MOTHER."

There came a sad day for Rocky Gulch, however. Babe was ill. She lay upon her little bed, tossing her tiny arms and moaning plaintively. The miners knocked off work and gathered in anxious groups a little distance from the cottage. St. Louis Joe closed his saloon tight, and declared not one drop would the boys get till Babe got well.

"Ain't it-goin' ter hev some galoot git full and git a-shootin' off his gun an' disturbing Babe," he said.

Half a dozen of the men remained up all night near the cottage, "to be on hand," they said, "ef Joe wanted anything."

The second night Silent Sam offered to sit by Babe to "spell" Joe and his wife. His services were accepted, though Joe and his wife took turns sitting up with him.

"You are as handy as a mother," remarked Mrs. Joe, after Sam had been ministering to the little sufferer.

Sam swallowed a big lump in his throat two or three times before he replied:

"I had a little feller about Babe's age when I left home two year agone."

"I should think you would want to go home to your family, Sam," said Mrs. Joe; "they must miss you sadly."

"Me an' the old woman had some words; that's why I left," said Sam. "Guess I was mostly to blame, though," he added, "an' purty hasty."

"I'd go back," said Mrs. Joe, softly.

Babe didn't improve, and the anxiety of the community deepened day by day. At last one night, shortly after midnight, Joe came to the half-dozen men who still kept their nightly vigil near his cabin. They gathered around him.

"Any change, Joe?" they eagerly inquired.

Joe struggled some minutes to reply, and then with a great sob said:

"Babe's gone," and rushed past the group into darkness.

Every inhabitant of Rocky Gulch knew of Babe's death long before morning, and the most of them were gathered at a respectful distance from the cabin when Joe stepped to the door after sunrise.

"Come in, boys, an' see her," he said, and one by one they filed past the peaceful figure which lay with a smile on the sweet, upturned face.

"It's a cryin' shame," said Coyote Pete, "that the Babe can't hev a genuine, first-class funeral, but there ain't no show fer a spread in this hole."

"Ef there was time I'd go ter 'Frisco an' tote a casket in on my back," said Red Mike, "but there ain't, so's no use talkin'."

"Now, don't ye fret," said Baldy Slick, "Babe's goin' ter hev a funeral, the like of which ain't been seen in Noo York itself," and he unfolded his plan to the boys.

Two of Baldy Slick's tables were torn apart and a rude casket was constructed of the boards. The inside was lined with a beautiful dry moss, gathered from the mountain side, the outside coated with fresh pitch, upon which was sprinkled gold dust, contributed by the willing miners.

A grave was hollowed out in a pleasant place near Joe's cabin, and that, too, was lined with moss, upon which was sprinkled some of the dust.

When the casket was taken to the house Joe and his wife broke down completely.

"O, it is so sweet!" said Mrs. Joe, "and it is so kind of you. We were troubled to think that Babe could not have a nice burial, and now this—this——" And she could say no more.

The services at the grave were simple. Mrs. Joe had a Bible, and Silent Sam was asked to read a chapter. He did so, and then the little form was lowered into the mossy bed prepared for it. One by one the men passed the open grave, tossing in their last offering to Babe, fresh blooming flowers gathered from the mountain side, and as they turned from the grave they each took Joe and his wife by the hand in silent sympathy.

Silent Sam was the last to clasp their hands, and as he did so he said:

"Good-by, Joe; good-by, Mrs. Joe. I'm going home to my little feller an' the woman."—Buffalo News.

LIKE A SCENE FROM HADES.

Traveler Comes on the Vaudoux Dance in Depths of Haytian Forest.

The night grows in round us again. As we top the next incline a scream pierces upward to us. We push on. Now you can hear the short, sullen bark of the Vaudoux drum, and, advancing from behind a curtain of black trees, in which are netted stars and fire-flies, we come in sight of a great, red glow set in the heart of the forest.

A group of negroes are dancing round the fires; it is the wind-up of a three-days-long Vaudoux orgie. Two days ago a black goat was sacrificed to the sacred snake, and the frenzy of the worshipers is still unexhausted. There they are, screaming, writhing and swaying, apparently blind to all outward things. You rein up your horse to watch. They take no heed of you, for they have no eyes in this remote and lonely spot save for their excesses. Here they are not afraid of interference, not that interference is to be expected anywhere in the island, but here in these wild districts, cut off from civilization and the town by the slabby and unmanageable mud of the rainy season and by the pathless hills, they omit all precaution.

Easily you can pick out the Mamaloi. There she is in dirty white, bound round the waist with a red sash. Opposite to her dances a large, fierce-eyed splay-footed negro. The fires, the posturing black forms, the uncouth howls—it is like a scene from hades. You may be the bravest man in the world, but when you recollect that the probabilities are hugely in favor of these same people having sacrificed a child to their god at some date not too remote your hand goes creeping to your revolver.

When you grow tired of watching, you turn and make a detour skirting the far edge of the clearing, and finding the track again you pass through a deserted village, the inhabitants of which are all at the Vaudoux dance. The fires, which the negro always keeps a light, still shine, mere little glow-worms, on the bare, brown earth.

While upon the subject of child-sacrifice, let me state that, although there can be no doubt that at certain seasons of the year, and more particularly at Easter and Christmas, such sacrifices do most certainly take place, still, regardless of what has been written upon the subject, I strenuously believe that no European, with the single exception of one, has ever actually been present on an occasion of the kind. The dead child sacrificially dismembered has frequently been seen afterward, but the actual ceremony excludes most rigorously all save the initiated.

WHERE LIGHTNING KILLS.

Five Persons in Every Million Liable to Be Struck Dead—Ohio's Hard Luck.

The weather bureau has issued a statement of damage to property and loss of life through lightning in the United States during nine years.

It appears that 312 persons are annually killed by lightning in this country, taking a fair average. The worst year was 1895, when 426 Americans were destroyed in this way. In 1898 the mortality was 367. In nine years from 1889 to 1898, inclusive, five in every million of the population were killed by lightning. The danger seems to be least in large cities.

Farm hands furnished the most victims. Ohio is the greatest sufferer, the death rate by lightning in that State being twenty-four in every hundred thousand persons of the farming class.

The greatest proportion of fatal strokes is found in the Missouri Valley, on the Great Plains and in the Rocky Mountain region. In 1898, 1,866 buildings were damaged or destroyed by lightning, involving a loss of $1,446,880. During the same year lightning killed live stock of a value of $48,257.

Much damage might be avoided by grounding wires at intervals along barbed wire fences.

So far as human beings are concerned practically all the deaths occur from April to September, the highest record being in June and July.

Electric Power in the Navy.

The cautious experiment of electrically driven turret turning machinery on the Brooklyn, of chain ammunition hoists on the Puritan, the system of blowers and exhausters on the Wilmington, have all been grouped on the Kearsarge and Kentucky. These two battleships have more of their auxiliary machinery driven by electric power than any other warships afloat. These battleships represent the intermediate stage between steam and electrically driven auxiliary machinery, and show results in economy in coal.

THE MORMON EXPERIMENT IN MEXICO

The Mormons in great numbers are settling in Northern Mexico and are growing prosperous in the colonies which they have planted. There are now nearly 5,000 of them in Northern Sonora and Northwestern Chihuahua. There is a steady stream of immigration from Utah and the colonies are rapidly increasing in population. The Mormons are going into the Mexican republic as rapidly as farm lands can be secured for them. They are an agricultural people and occupy only the valleys where irrigation is possible. The enactment of laws in the United States against polygamy brought the first Mormon immigration to Mexico. When plural marriage was pronounced illegal there were many Mormons who preferred to leave Utah rather than surrender any of their religious principles or relinquish any of their wives. Mexico appeared to them an inviting country in which to settle, provided they could procure the assurances they needed from the Mexican government. The climate of Chihuahua and Sonora being similar to that of Utah, only milder, and the topography being the same, it only remained for those who proposed to emigrate to secure in advance the necessary concessions from the authorities of the country into which they were about to move.

The proposal of the Mormons to settle in Mexico met with instant approval and encouragement from the officials of that government, since they were known to be thrifty and adapted to the work of developing a new country. Mining companies and ranchmen especially welcomed them because they would readily supply the camps and cattle haciendas with provisions and farm products, formerly imported at considerable cost. Mexico encouraged their immigration by admitting all their household effects, building material and other articles of use in the erection of their homes free of cost. They also received many other concessions and privileges.

The Wilderness Transformed.

The country into which they removed was practically a wilderness. Here and there were large ranches, with now and then a mining camp. There were a few Mexican villages, at intervals of fifty or one hundred miles. The country was arid, treeless and uninviting, except in the valleys, where a rich soil only needed irrigation and cultivation to return ample crops of fruits and cereals.

The first colony was planted in 1889, and called Colonia Juarez. It was established in the valley of the Casas Grandes River, sixteen miles from the old Mexican town of Casas Grandes, the present terminus of the Rio Grande, Sierra Madre and Pacific Railroad, constructed in 1897. The settlers arrived from Utah in covered wagons. They lived in tents until they dug irrigation ditches and made their first crop. Then they began to erect their homes. Besides their teams and camping utensils and a few agricultural implements, they had nothing but muscle and religious enthusiasm. At that time the nearest railroad was El Paso, Texas, while a sandy desert, almost impassable, intervened. The mountains, too, held roving bands of renegade Apaches that occasionally raided the new settlement and drove away cattle and horses.

As to the practice of polygamy in the republic of Mexico, it may be said that the law of the land recognizes but one legal wife. The second or third wife has no legal status, and her children, in the eyes of the law, are not legitimate. After the first marriage the law has nothing to do with the matter of a Mormon's increasing the number of his wives, except that a second and third wife may not be taken unless the first wife gives her consent. But the Mormons are guided by their religion, not by the law, in the institution of marriage. A Mormon in Mexico never or seldom takes a second or third wife until he is able to support more than one family.

Mormon converts are gained invariably from among the most humble classes. Two thousand missionaries are at work all the time in the United States and Canada and in Europe, adding to the Mormon fold. In justice to the Mormons it must be said that the converts they make are usually bettered in every respect. Thrift is a cardinal principle in the Mormon creed and it is exemplified nowhere better than in the colonies of Northern Mexico. Comfortable homes, cultivated fields and abundant crops show that the Mormons on the whole are industrious, frugal and economical. They are obliged to maintain a community of interest. They labor together and assist one another in everything that is to be done.

At present there are eight colonies of Mormons in Mexico, with a combined population of nearly 5,000. They are Colonia Juarez, the capital colony; Colonia Diaz, Dublan, Oaxaca, Pacheo, Garcia, Chuichupa and the recently established colony of Morelos. Colonia Juarez is situated in a narrow valley, and the land is irrigated with water from the Casas Grandes River. The neat brick residences of the settlers are hidden gravevines and thick clusters of pear, plum, peach and apricot trees. The water runs in a clear stream through all the cross streets, and is turned into yard or garden at will. Here the president of the "stake," which embraces all the colonies, resides. He lives in a handsome brick residence that cost $10,000. He guides the destinies of the Mormons in Mexico with the head and hand of a capable captain. He is a man of education and of unusual intelligence, and was at one time a candidate for Governor of Utah. He is the first and last court of resort for all internal troubles and disputes.

Education Not Neglected.

The Mormons build schools in their communities even before they erect a church. All of the colonies have schools and an academy is maintained at Colonia Juarez. In this colony there is a great mill, a canning factory and other industries. There is a tithing store, the only one in the colony, but there is not a saloon, nor a tobacco shop, nor a policeman in this or any other of the Mormon colonies.

Lubian is the largest colony. It is also the most important commercially. It is four miles from the terminus of the railroad, and is situated in a broad valley. The village, which has about 1,000 inhabitants, is scattered over several square miles of territory. The Mormons of Dublan have thousands of acres of rich land, which produces abundant crops. They have beautiful orchards and gardens. They have laid the foundation of a splendid temple and a large school building. They have a tithing store as in Colonia Juarez, and each Mormon contributes 10 per cent. of his income to the support of the church. He gives labor, lumber, fruit, meat, milk or honey, depositing 10 per cent. of whatever he may have at the tithing store. In addition to this taxation the Mormons of Dublan have a self-imposed income tax of 8 per cent., which is to be used to build and equip their academy.

The Mormon colonies are socialistic communities. Everything is done on a system of co-operation. They use little money in their dealings with one another. Obligations are paid in labor or the products of labor. If one Mormon builds a house his neighbors assist and charge their labor against him. The debt is settled in kind. They have differences of opinion sometimes and occasionally there occurs a dispute, but the elders and bishops settle the trouble or, if they do not, then the president does.

Surprised by the Engine.

The natives of a wild country never fail to wonder over the coming of a railroad, with its snorting locomotive and rattling cars. The antics of the native Egyptians and Arabs, says Owen S. Watkins, who was with Kitchener in his Sudan campaign, afforded not a little amusement to the railway battalion under Lieut. Midwinter.

The quantity of water consumed by the locomotive was a constant source of wonder. The Arabs had never dreamed of such a thirst as that monster seemed to possess. One day, when the working party climbed abroad after loading all the trucks, the Egyptians cried, "For shame!" charged them with overloading the poor engine, and asked if they thought themselves men.

Once the driver of an engine was asked by an Arab to permit his young wife to crawl under the engine, as she was sure if she could do that, her married life would be blessed.

Sales Drop Off When Authors Marry.

Some one asked quite seriously the other day if I thought that the announced engagement of Mr. Paul Leicester Ford would interfere with the sale of his novels. I smiled the smile of incredulity.

"You need not smile," said the lady. "I know that Richard Harding Davis' marriage has greatly interfered with the sale of his novels. His readers, who are largely young girls, like to think of him as an unmarried man. They find his books more interesting when they so regard him."

"What about Kipling?" I gasped. "Has his stock depreciated because of his wife and babies?"

"Oh, no!" was are reply. "It is different with Kipling. He writes more for men, and then his stories are not love stories."—Harper's Bazar.

Where Land Is Most Valuable.

The growth of the land values is one of the most wonderful phenomena of the age. Every inch of land between King William's statue and Trinity square, London, cost £30 10s. or at the rate of £191,000,000 per acre—beyond all doubt the highest price ever paid in England for land. The Southeastern Railway Company was asked at the rate of $65,000,000 per acre for a piece of ground in Bermondsey, which had a depth of sixteen feet only. The demand was so exorbitant that even a railway company had to pause, finally declining to purchase. In the year 1880 land in Cannon street was sold for $30 a square foot, and six years later the price of land in this identical street went up to $75 a square foot.—The Forum.

Man's Expectation of Life.

An ingenious mathematician maintains that the number of years which anyone is likely to live may really be ascertained by applying the following rule: Subtract from the number 86 the age already attained by the person and divide the remainder by 2. For example, suppose that we wish to find out how long a person who is now fifty years old is likely to live, 86—50—36; 36÷2—18, and 18 years is the answer to the question. The same statistician also assures us that out of every 1,000 persons who are 00 years old only 599 will live to be 70, 120 to 80, seventeen to be 90, and it is doubtful if even four will attain to the dignity of centenarians.

A critic points out that these figures may seem very convincing, but they cannot be accurate in all cases. It may be easy, he explains, to show how long a man of 50 is likely to live, but the rule applied in his case cannot be applied in the case of a man who is over 86, and hence it cannot be accepted as infallible.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Cool and Methodical.

A lawyer who worthily bears a distinguished name occupies an old-fashioned mansion on the edge of New York. His sister, who lives with him, tells a laughable story, which is reported in Harper's Round Table, illustrating his coolness and love of method.

Recently his sister tiptoed into his room some time after midnight, and told him she thought burglars were in the house. The lawyer put on his dressing-gown, and went downstairs.

In the back hall he found a rough-looking man trying to open a door that led into the back yard. The burglar had unlocked the door, and was pulling at it with all his might. The lawyer, seeing the robber's predicament, called to him:

"It does not open that way, you idiot! It slides back!"

Hit It by Accident.

At a time when every man, woman and child in Colorado Springs was investing in mining stock and almost every man, woman and child had been badly bitten, it happened that a certain mine owner and stock manipulator died suddenly. The local paper held the press to put in an account of his death headed, "Death Loves a Shining Mark," but when it came out the people with whom he had had his business dealings were surprised and pleased to read, "Death Loves a Mining Shark."—San Francisco Wave.

FOCUSED ALL ATTENTION.

Woman's Telegram Diverted Audience from the Performance.

When a woman receives a telegram at her home it causes her heart to palpitate at a greatly accelerated rate and she hesitates long before opening the envelope. What must be the effect upon her when the missive comes to her, with every appearance of urgency, when she is seated in a theater? A young woman on a visit to Wilkesbarre Pa., recently underwent the experience while the entire audience, gathered to witness a performance by a distinguished actor, watched the effect the missive had upon her.

The orchestra had just begun to play after the curtain had dropped upon the second act when the manager of the theater appeared before the curtain and motioned the leader to silence. His face was very grave and he held a telegram in his hand.

GETS A TELEGRAM.

"Is Miss Vermont, of Washington, in the house?" he asked. "A telegram has been brought to the theater addressed to her."

Miss Vermont turned suddenly cold with terror. Mother had had a stroke or father's automobile had run away with him, or brother Jack had been capsized on the river and drowned. She saw every detail of her fearful home journey—the sleepless night of waiting for the first train, the interminable crawling of it Washingtonward. She saw herself in the deepest mourning. In a half second she lived a week of misery. Her two cousins were gazing at her in frightened helplessness. She staggered to her feet.

"I am Miss Vermont," she said, with an effort.

An usher ran down the aisle. Every eye in the theater was on her. Every woman there felt for her. For a moment she could not nerve herself to open the envelope. She must. She must know which one it was. The message was a blur before her. It was signed Jack. She caught the words, "Wire at once." It was mother, then, or father. She looked closer. This time she made out the whole message. It read:

"Mother left out pink organdie. Do you need it? Wire at once."

Under Water.

Strange acquaintances are to be made under water. H. Phelps Whitmarsh, who for a time adopted the calling of pearl-fisher in Australian waters, tells this story of meeting a submarine monster:

It was a muddy day, and everything in consequence looked blurred and exaggerated. In the yellow distance I saw an immense dark object moving slowly toward me. As it came nearer, I made out a central body with several great arms or feelers waving rhythmically. My heart was in my mouth.

I felt sure it was an octopus. Then, when I was about to stir up the mud at my feet, to avoid being seen, I discovered that the enemy was nothing more than a fellow-diver. The feelers I had imagined were his arms, legs and lines.

A shadowy giant about twelve feet high, with huge hands and a head like a small barrel, was approaching. He walked slowly, his heavy boots raising the mud behind him like a cloud of dust, and his great central eye gleamed darkly. Although I knew him to be a man, it was with difficulty that I refrained from taking to my heels. At sight of me, he, too, was startled; but he quickly recovered, and we shook hands. Then we nodded, grinned, showed each other the state of our bags, and parted.

Four to One.

An English officer in Malta stopped, in riding, to ask a native the way. He was answered by a shrug of the shoulders, and a "No speak English."

"You're a fool, then," said the officer.

But the man knew enough English to ask:

"Do you understand Maltese?"

"No."

"Do you know Arabic?"

"No."

"Do you know Italian?"

"No."

"Do you know Greek?"

"No."

"Then you four fools. I only one!"

Skating in Persia.

Capital skating is generally to be had in Teheran, Persia, at Christmas time, but the Persians have never taken keenly to the amusement. When the late Shah was alive he was so delighted with the performance of English residents on the ice, that he got some skates for his ministers, who were far too fearful of losing their heads to disobey his command to put them on. Their antics on the ice amused Nasr-ed-Din to such an extent that he nearly had an apoplectic fit.

The examinations for the guide's diploma have just been held at Chamounix. Each candidate has to produce certificates stating that he has made ten ascents recognized as "dangerous." These include Mont Blanc, the complete tour of Mont Blanc, the Col du Geant, the Buet with the descent to Six, the Jardin and five others chosen by the candidate himself.

WILLIAM W. ASTOR.

LEFT AMERICA TO GAIN FAME IN ENGLAND.

Now He Finds Himself a Millionaire Without a Country—Tabooed by the Prince of Wales' Set for Insulting Sir Archibald Milne.

The story of William Waldorf Astor, who grossly offended English society a short time ago by insulting Sir Archibald Milne, a particular friend of the Prince of Wales, and who has been ostracised by the smart set, which basks in the Prince's favor, is that of a man without a country. He began life with unlimited wealth and boundless ambition. He still has both, for the latter has never been satisfied.

About twenty years ago a group of young men among the rich New Yorkers were starting out in life, all with some political ambition and all backed up by an old family and a big rent roll. None of them promised so much and failed so dismally as William Waldorf Astor. He intended to be President of the United States. He is now a man without a country, disappointed, cynical, with no future before him at 50. He was the son of John Jacob Astor III., the head of the great family who came from the little village of Waldorf, Germany, about 120 years ago, and started in life as butchers and fur traders. When William Waldorf came into the world the Astors owned 9 per cent. of the real estate in New York City, and had taken social precedence over the old Knickerbocker families, who once held themselves aloof from a man who peddled furs on his back. Astor was educated at the law school of Columbia University. He imagined himself a second Disraeli and began simultaneously a career in politics and in literature. He was elected State Senator. He ran for Congress to succeed Levi P. Morton and was defeated by the late Roswell Flower. He was appointed minister to Italy by President Arthur. He distinguished himself there by scattering golden scudi with a lavish hand. Incidentally he got along with his ministerial duties without discredit to the government. Nothing came up to demand diplomacy, and Mr. Astor was equal to the situation. He returned home and threw himself into politics in New York State. Perhaps it would be more correct to say that he threw himself at politics. He worked very hard, and he was very much in earnest, but his efforts came to nothing. He gave his money freely and he gave his time without stint. But he failed to connect with the people, and that is an essential element to success in American politics, as Mr. Astor found out. He wrote a novel called "Valentino," and followed it with another Italian romance called "Sforza." In the judgment of critics they had considerable literary merit. There was a lack of the two great things, power and imagination. There were polish and scholarly ability to a good degree. But here again Mr. Astor failed to connect with the people.

WILLIAM WALDORF ASTOR.

Why Astor Left America.

To crown his political and literary disappointments a dispute arose as to whether Mrs. William Waldorf Astor or Mrs. John Jacob Astor was entitled to be called "Mrs. Astor." In short, was John Jacob Astor or William Waldorf Astor the head of the family? Society settled the question in favor of the popular John Jacob, and William Waldorf, in pique, built next door to his cousin the big and fashionable hotel, the Waldorf-Astor House. Then he gathered up his household goods and moved to London. He disposed of as much of his property in America as he could and invested his money in England. He rented his residence and declared publicly and often that America was not his country. He became a naturalized Englishman and for a couple of years was apparently an intimate friend of the Prince of Wales. It was rumored that he was to be given a peerage and marry a daughter of the Prince, for he is now a widower. Then gossip connected his name with that of Lady Randolph Churchill, and recently with that of Mrs. Ogden Goelet, of New York.

All the time Mr. Astor has attempted to secure a firm footing in English society. He bought the Pall Mall Gazette and Pall Mall Budget, and started the Pall Mall Magazine, all ultra-Tory, and catering to the smart set. He bought from the Duke of Westminster, the richest man in England, the handsomest seat on the Thames—Cliveden. Then Mr. Astor built a high wall around the park, stationed guards, and warned the public to keep off of his grounds. Such a thing is not usual with English country gentlemen and everybody bristled with indignation at the American snob, as they called him. Gradually Mr. Astor has become the "bete noir" of pretty nearly all classes of Englishmen. He is 10,000 miles from a peerage, and probably now fully as far from a royal drawing-room. His conspicuous use to-day is as a warning to Americans who will not keep in touch with their countrymen.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF DeKALB COUNTY

JAMES A. BARNS, Editor.

Registered at the Auburn, Indiana, postoffice as second-class matter.

THURSDAY.....AUGUST 9, 1900.

Bryan at Indianapolis.

Last evening Bryan and Stevenson reached Indianapolis to be present at the big meeting today, when the formal notification speeches are to be made. They were received at the Union station by an immense and enthusiastic crowd. In the party with them were Mrs. Bryan and little son, W. J. jr., Mrs. Stevenson, Senator Jones, chairman of the National committee, and other leading members of the committee, several governors, Mayor Harrison of Chicago with 350 members of the Cook county marching club, a Chicago band of sixty pieces, and many other well-know men.

In the crowd at the Grand Hotel, a big Irishman stepped forward and grasping Mr. Bryan's hand said, "Sure, sor, I voted against yez in '96, but praises be to hiven, Oi'll vote for yez this time, sure."

Before retiring, both candidates, in response to continued calls, came to the balcony and Mr. Bryan said: "My friends, I need not inform you—for you must know it already—that Mr. Stevenson and myself are quite wearied by our journey from the lakes. We shall both be proud to see you tomorrow, when we will be in better condition to talk to you. Mr. Stevenson and I understand that we were nominated about a month ago. We have not tonight entirely made up our minds as to whether we will accept, but if you will give us until tomorrow I think we will have reached a decision by that time."

Great crowds waited for the train at all chief points on the line from Chicago down.

Today is the great day and the city is overflowing with crowds from every part of the state. Bryan's speech of acceptance is to be the real platform of the campaign, and McKinley, and republicans generally are waiting to see what he will say.

New Cable to Europe.

The Postal Telegraph Cable company makes the following announcement: The Commercial Cable Company's new cable to the Azores Islands is laid and in operation. It connects at the Island of Fayal with the Europe and Azores Company's cable from the Azores to Portugal and completes the Commercial's fourth route across the Atlantic. It is the first cable to connect the Azores direct to America, and opens direct communication for the first between the United States and Portugal.

The Europe and Azores Company's cable makes connection at Libson with the Portugal land line, the Eastern Telegraph Company's cables to Spain, the Mediterranean ports, all Africa, India, China, Japan, Australia and the Philippines, and with the Western Telegraph Company's cables to Brazil, Argentina and other parts of South America. The new route via the Azores is the most direct, shortest and quickest to all these countries. The rates from Europe will be the same as those in force by the existing cables of the North Atlantic Cable companies.

John W. Boyle Dead.

Ex-Sheriff Boyle died about 9 a. m. yesterday Aug. 6 at his home in Butler. He had been in poor health for a number of years and lately it was known that he had been slowly failing. The funeral will be held tomorrow, Wednesday, ot 2 p. m. We presume many Auburn people, and especially county officers and ex-officers will attend.

For Assessor.

I wish to announce to my democratic friends of Butler Township that I will be a candidate for Assessor, subject to the democratic caucus to be held at Butler Center this coming summer; on account of the sad accident which happened to me last spring, which put me back so with my work on the farm, I will not be able to canvas the township but I hope you will consider the matter and do as you think best. I remain your's truly, John H. Benninghoff.

Butler Township Caucus.

The democrats of Butler township will hold their caucus at the Center on Saturday Aug. 18, at 1 p. m. to nominate a candidate for trustee, assessor, one justice of the peace, one constable and three members of the advisory board. Let all attend.—J. D. WILLIAMS, Committeeman.

From Puget Sound.

EDITOR COURIER:—Here on the Sound we have several kinds of harvests. The hay harvest, the fish harvest, the fruit harvest and the lumber harvest. The last is of greater importance than all the rest combined. This bright, clear weather and long days are favorable to the harvest of logs, now at its height. Cutting logs has been entirely revolutionized within the past ten years. Formerly an ordinary camp consisted of sixteen men and sixteen oxen. It was then necessary to clear a road to each and every log and by the combined efforts of the oxen and men with blocks and ropes and much of the most terrible profanity, the great logs were finally worried to the water. Now all this is changed. Even horses have had their day. The camp of today consist of about twenty-five men and two dinkey engines. One main road is constructed with a track eleven feet wide for the engine and cars to convey the logs to water. Then the other engine does the yarding by means of a steel wire cable fifteen hundred feet long which circulates through the timber bringing in a constant stream of logs, no roads being necessary as the logs attached to the cable will climb right over everything, and will travel up hill or down and over gulches with equal ease. In this way one engine will do the work of twenty men and many oxen. Logs in this country are never loaded on wagons as they are too heavy and no wagon could be made that would hold up these monster logs. Some of the common longs contain from six to eight thousand feet, and they are dragged over skids to the cars. No logger here would cut such small logs as you will see in the Michigan pineries. Many of these giant fir trees are two hundred feet to the first limb and eight or ten feet in diameter. I have helped to saw a log here that was 120 feet long, free of knots or limbs. Wages of lumbermen here are from $52 to $100 per month without board; board is charged at the rate of $4.50 per week. Loggers live well; no hotel can compare with the loggers' bill of fare. But the work is hard and oftimes dangerous. This fir timber is the best in the world for all around purposes and is shipped to all parts of the world. Next in importance is the cedar shingles of which you are well acquainted and their reputation is such that I need not say more.

We are well and enjoying most pleasant weather. I send my best regards to all the readers of the dear old COURIER. Yours truly,

JOSEPH A. SHADE.

OBITUARY.

Philena Reynolds, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Reynolds, was born in Lorain county, Ohio, August 12, 1836; died in DeKalb county, Ind., August 1, 1900, aged 63 years, 11 months and 19 days.

At the age of 18 she was married to Mr. Lafayette Agate. To this union were born three children. Six years later her husband died. December 2, 1863, she was married to Mr. Charles Scattergood, who still survives her, although in feeble old age.

She was the mother of five children, four of whom are living. They are Geo. R. Agate of Cleveland, Ohio, Arthur L. Agate of Elyria, and Fred and Mabel Scattergood.

In 1869 Mr. and Mrs. Scattergood moved to Indiana and located on a farm east of Waterloo, where they lived until the year 1879, when they moved onto the farm south of Showers' corners, in Richland township, which is now their home.

Mrs. Scattergood was a member of the United Brethren church for a number of years and died in the faith of the Gospel of Christ.

The funeral occurred at the Showers' Corners church, August 3, Rev. C. E. Moorman, pastor of the U. B. church, officiating, and the interment in the Waterloo cemetery.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately, a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters;' and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50cts., guaranteed, at H B. McCord's Drugstore.

From China.

The allies, 16,000 strong, had a battle a few miles from Tientsin on the advance to Pekin, Sunday. It was a hard struggle, but the allies won, after a heavy loss.

It look as if the southern provinces, who are the real Chinese, would side in with the foreigners against the government, which is of Tartar or Manchu origin and opposed to foreigners.

For G. A. R. National Encampment.

The Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Ry. will sell tickets to Chicago and return at one cent per mile, each way, on Aug. 25, 26, 27, 28 and 29. They will be good for return until August 31, or by depositing tickets and payment of fee of 50 cents an extension of time for return until Sept. 30 can be had.

Further information from ticket agents. a23

From China.

The latest is that firing on the forign legations in Pekin has begun again. A dispatch from Conger, our minister, comes direct. He says:—"Still besieged. Situation more precarious. Chinese government insisting upon our leaving Pekin, which would be certain death. Rifle firing upon us daily by imperial troops. Have abundant courage, but little ammunition or provisions. Two progressive yamen ministers beheaded. All connected with legation of the United States well at present moment. —CONGER."

In another message he says, there is no government in Pekin except that of Boxer chiefs, opposed to foreigners.

The danger is undoubtelly great and it is believed that when our troops reach Pekin, the mob will overpower and kill all forigners before we can reach them. On the other hand, it appears that the Chinese want to send the forigners out under an escort, to meet our advancing forces, hoping that we will then turn back. But the trouble is that when the foreigners get outside the city, they would be murdered probably.

In Sunday's battle, the losses were not as bad as at first reported. It was about 400 killed and wounded for the allies, the greatest loss being by Russians and Japanese, as they had the most men. The British lost about 60 but no reports come as to the Americans. The Chinese losses were heavy, but they have a vast army and it looks as if there was hard work ahead.

Teachers' Institute.

The county teachers' institute will be held at the M. E. church in this city August 20 to 24 and promises to be well attended. A fine program has been prepared, and the exercises will include the following:

DAY EXERCISES.

President W. W. Parsons, of the Indiana State Normal School will give three lessons each day on General Pedagogy and Literature.

Dr. Andrew Stephenson, Professor of the Department of History of DePauw University, will present three lessons each day on the subject of History.

Thursday at 2:30 p. m., Rev. Theo. F. Frech, Pastor of the M. E. church, Butler, Indiana, will give his pleasing and instructive lecture, "Trampe, Cranks and Dudes."

EVENING LECTURES AND ENTERTAINMENTS.

Monday Evening:—Dr. Andrew Stephenson will lecture, subject to be announced.

Tuesday Evening:—The great impersonator, Prof. Montaville Flowers, and his invisible company will render "The Little Minister." We can safely promice those who patronize the entertainment something more than the ordinary. Prof. Flowers is considered the best talent on the platform of entertainers today.

Wednesday Evening:—Rev. Selah W. Brown, ot Fostoria, Ohio, will give his lecture on "The Old Times and the New." This lecture should be heard by every person, young and old, in the city and community.

Thursday Evening:—Dr. W. W. Parsons will lecture on "Hamlet." Those who have heard President Parsons on Shakespeare will tell you that this lecture will interest all those who are fond of high class literature.

The charges for these entertainments are as follows: Monday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings the admission will be 10 cents. Tuesday evening the usual charges for high class talent will be collected, 25 and 35 cts.

Rev. Selah W. Brown's lecture is worth much more than is charged, but we desire to place the price so that every person, rich or poor, can hear it without any sacrifice.

Sues City of Auburn.

J. B. Hill, through his attorneys, Frank S. Roby and Samuel Harper, has filed suit against the city of Auburn, asking damages in the sum of $2,000 for injuries sustained, as claimed in the complaint, by reason of a defective sidewalk or crossing. As a result of his injuries the plaintiff was laid up for some time and prevented from attending to his business as an insurance agent. City Attorney Link will look after the defense in the case, which promises to result in a lively fight when it comes up for trial at the October term of court.

East Auburn Boom.

We have already said that Auburn is on the boom and a stroll over that way will prove it easily. The new houses being erected by the McClellan estate, are now well started and will be pushed rapidly to completion so that all will be ready for fall occupation. They will be models of comfort and convenience for families of ordinary size, good homes for people in average circumstances. They will be, we believe, either for rent or for sale on easy payments. Every dwelling put up will add to the value of property over there and we look for a reasonable rise, that will be gratifying to all property owners in that part of the city.

John W. Baxter sold one of his lots up there Saturday, and has disposed of several of them this spring and summer, and we understand there will be houses erected on some, at least.

The citizens over there who already own their property, have been improving and beautifying a great deal, making this one of the most desirable residence districts in the city. In fact it is now the only district where good residence lots can be obtained cheaply within the same distance from the court house. A lot on Main street, no farther away than the east part of East Auburn would cost $1,000. Yet it will be but a few years till East Seventh and East Ninth will be as easily reached, and nearly as popular. We reach the east over fine bridges, and the low grounds in that direction are rapidly filling up with residence and business buildings, the low ground being filled and raised to a level with the street, and soon we will walk along these sidewalks and not realize we are on the creek bottom. The proposed improvements in the bed of Cedar Creek will still more help out the improvements along there.

Altogether it looks as if East Auburn is rapidly coming into prominence and popularity.

Old Mr. West and the lot next east are beginning to fill up their grounds some more. They expect to make it level with the street.

Perry Long has all the late improvements, including hot and cold water in his dwelling.

A Thousand Tongues

Could not express the rapture of Annie E. Springer, of 1123 Howard-st., Philadelphia, Pa., when she found that Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption had completely cured her of a hacking cough that for many years had made life a burden. All other remedies and doctors could give her no help, but she says of this Royal Cure—"it soon removed the pain in my chest and I can sleep soundly, something I can scarcely remember doing before. I feel like sounding its praises throughout the Universe." So will every one who tries Dr. King's New Discovery for any trouble of the Throat, Chest or Lungs. Price 50c. and $1.00. Trial bottles free at H. B. McCord's drugstore, every bottle guaranteed.

BUTLER.

The Salvation Army still holds their tent. Their exercises still draw large crowds nightly, and quite a number have been induced to change their way of living.

A small railroad show struck Butler last Monday, The attendance was good considering the size of the show.

John W. Boyle, ex-sheriff of DeKalb county and a resident of Butler for more than thirty years, died at his home last Monday morning. He leaves a wife and two sons.

T. C. Fralich, wife and three children visited over Sunday with J. A. Campbell and other Butler relatives. They returned to their home in South Chicago last Monday.

Mrs. Nellie Whicker of Coesse, Ind., is visiting her sister Mrs. M. T. Campbell. Her husband is spending the summer near Denver, Colo., on account of ill-health.

Harvey Gilmore, a former resident of Butler, was here to the funeral of his brother William.

Mr. Pennington, of whose illness mention was made last week, died, and his remains were taken to eastern Ohio for burial.

Mrs. Ida Stonestreet was under the doctor's care most of the time last week. Dr. Buchtel of Auburn was the attending physician.

Although Sam Mills claims to be a genuine republican he has papered his kitchen with Bryan pictures.

Relatives from Blackford county visited at Geo. Lung's last week.

Mrs. S. J. Guthrie and daughter of Kendallville, Ind. visited at O. Himes on Tuesday last.

H. L. Hauser and D. F. Heitz with their wives took in the excursion to Detroit on Sunday last.

P. L. Bishop of Auburn loaded a car with wheat at this place last week. We understand that it was bought for seed wheat and cost 75c per bushel.

Messers Shink and Haag put in several days fishing last week and as usual those that got away were larger th an those caught.

We understand that J. W. Kenton and family will soon move back to Cedar.

We understand that a resident of Keyser township treated his wife to a pair of black eyes and is now boarding at Hotel Hathaway at Auburn.

A National Disease.

Stomach Troubles are Universal, but There's a Way to Escape Them.

There are hundreds of thousands of people in this country who are needlessly suffering from such troubles as these: Water-brash, heart burn, palpitation of the heart, souring of food, belching of gas, headache, dizziness, loss of energy, and many other symptoms of a disordered digestion. The time was when it was difficult or impossible to find relief, but it is so no longer. You can be helped in a day and rapidly cured by the use of Dr. Stone's New Dyspepsia Cure. It will be folly to question this statement; you have never used a remedy like it and you can use this one without risking a cent. Dr. Stone's New Dyspepsia Cure consists of two remedies which gave this physician his reputation as a successful specialist in stomach troubles. The two prescriptions are prepared in tablet form and put up in one package at 50 cents. You take the remedy according to directions and if not satisfied with the results, the druggist will promptly refund your money. Sold by H. B McCord.

Domestic Infelicity.

Last December John C. Lamphere and Mrs. Pluma C. Harvey of Butler township were arrested on information furnished by the latter's daughter, on a charge of fornication. The matter was finally settled by a marriage ceremony at the jail, though the groom had to serve some time behind the bars. The second chapter came a few days ago when Lamphere gave his wife a severe beating, and now he is in jail to await trial at the coming term of court, on a charge of assault and battery. Lamphere is evidently a pretty tough citizen.

Stealing Binder Covers.

When a thief gets his hand in, it don't seem to make any difference what he steals. We have just learned that last Friday night some sneak stole a good reaper canvas from W. C Carmer, east of town. It was a good one worth something like $5 or $6. Mr. Carmer had left it out since harvest work began, and he had expected to finish Saturday and then take in the machine. Saturday morning it was gone. Several of his neighbors have also lost reaper covers.

DON'T BE DUPED

There have been placed upon the market several cheap reprints of an obsolete edition of "Webster's Dictionary." They are being offered under various names at a low price dry goods dealers, grocers, agents, etc., and in a few instances as a premium for subscriptions to papers.

Announcements of these comparatively

Worthless

reprints are very misleading; for instance, they are advertised to be the substantial equivalent of a higher-priced book, when in reality, so far as we know and believe, they are all, from A to Z,

Reprint Dictionaries,

phototype copies of a book of over fifty years ago, which in its day was sold for about $5.00, and which was much superior in paper, print, and binding to these imitations, being then a work of some merit instead of one

Long Since Obsolete.

The supplement of 10,000 so-called "new words," which some of these books are advertised to contain, was compiled by a gentleman who died over forty years ago, and was published before his death. Other minor additions are probably of more or less value.

The Genuine Edition of Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, which is the only meritorious one familiar to this generation, contains over 2000 pages, with illustrations on nearly every page, and bears our imprint on the title page. It is protected by copyright from cheap imitation.

Valuable as this work is, we have at vast expense published a thoroughly revised successor, the name of which is WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY.

—There was a large and attentive audience to greet Rev. Richard Locke at the Presbyterian church yesterday. It was a grand sermon and the music was up to the same standard. Mr. and Mrs. Locke were entertained at dinner at the home of A. C. Robbins. Rev. W. O. Butler and wife who came over from Waterloo with them, were entertained by Mrs. Swineford.

—Hon. C. H. Reeve, of Plymouth, says that he can reduce the temperature in his residence 15 degrees at any time by simply closing all windows, doors and blinds; then opening two doors or windows at extreme points of the room or building. The openings must be at opposite points, and thus a current of air is formed and the air is condensed. The cool air falls and the hot air rises. Similar results can be obtained in a single room.

—An Auburn gentleman took his family for a drive into the country yesterday afternoon and they spent several hours in the cool shade of the woods, turning the horse loose to graze. When they prepared to return home in the evening the horse acted rather frisky—all on account of his outing, of course—and the head of the family, fearing that one of the lines might break, led the animal back to town. But it was a pleasant outing, just the same.

SPROTT & KNAPP

—The Cedar Creek Sunday school will hold its annual picnic at Stoner's mill on Saturday of this week, August 11. A full programe of exercises has been arranged, including good music. All invited.

—Chas. Bartels drove up to Waterloo today to take Rev. Fred Keller to that place. Mr. Keller is on his way to Laporte where the Synod of the Reformed church is in session, and he joins his son at Racine after that.

—The old Benjamin Bailey farm of 120 acres in Jackson township was sold yesterday by Commissioner James H. Rose. The east forty was purchased by Chas. F. Bartels, the west forty by Allen Irvin, and the middle part containing the buildings, was bid in by Amy Bailey.

—The following marriage licenses have been issued since our last report: Peter T. Suffel and Lebertia V. Casebeer; Samuel E. Ellis and Jennie Neidic; Charles Erwin and Lydia Hamman; Henry Sartor and Emma Steinbruner; Hugh J. Dawson and Florence E. Weimer; Charles Donley and Isabelle Howey; Orange E. Moss and Emma Wagner.

—While Thomas Mason, living west of town was at work with his team in a field yesterday he heard the report of a gun and soon afterward noticed that one of his horses had been shot in the hip, the blood running freely from a bad wound. The animal was brought to town for treatment by Dr. Fitch, but the ball could not be located. It is thought the shooting was done by parties from Garrett who were out hunting, and Mr. Mason is investigating the case with a view to recovering damages.

WHAT MAKES SUGAR SWEET.

That Property Is Due to the Peculiar Combination of Its Parts.

With all the enormous advances made in our knowledge of the constitution of matter, both physically and chemically, we are not yet able to supply the complete answer to such a simple question as, Why is sugar sweet? The chemistry of sugar gives perhaps a bare hint in the way of explanation, but sweetness is undoubtedly a condition where constitution or construction rather than percentage composition is responsible for a specific physical property. Smell is a related subject, and at present we cannot tell what determines the characteristic smell of many familiar substances. The chemical composition of turpentine or oil of roses is identical with that of a good many other essential oils—that is to say, the percentage and kind of elements in these bodies are the same; but no one would maintain for a moment that turpentine or oil of cloves is as pleasant as the oil of roses. We are dealing here with a question which most probably relates to the arrangement of the atoms in the molecule. Doubtless a difference in the relative position of atoms determines a great difference in physical character. In other words, the elementary materials are the same, but they are placed, so to speak, in such a way in different bodies having the same composition as to present manifold shapes. A given structure, for example, may contain a certain number of bricks and present an ugly exterior, but the same number of bricks may be contained in another structure which may present an artistic and pleasing appearance.

Sugar is not the only substance known to us possessing sweetness, but it is the only known naturally occurring substance which possesses this characteristic. Therefore it is not uncommonly thought that when a substance is sweet it must contain sugar. Such a notion, of course, is quite erroneous. Glycerin is sweet, but contains no sugar; saccharine is 500 times sweeter than cane sugar and is a definite chemical substance without a trace of sugar in its composition. It is probable, however, that some analogy exists between the structure of these bodies—that is to say, in the relative position of the atoms—which determines the common property, though in varying degree, of being sweet. It is, at any rate, remarkable that according to the respective formulae assigned to these bodies by chemists, starting with the body which contains the least number of carbon atoms—namely, glycerin, which contains three atoms—the rest of the substances possessing sweetening power contain exact multiples of this number. Thus grape sugar contains six atoms of carbon, cane sugar twelve atoms of carbon, milk sugar also twelve atoms, malt sugar twelve atoms again, while that intensely sweet substance saccharine contains six atoms of carbon in its main group. Possibly this fact is related to the physical characteristic of sweetness. It is an interesting matter, this question of the relative positions of the atoms deciding physical characters, for two different substances may coincide exactly in composition, one of which is quite harmless, while the other is a powerful poison.—London Lancet.

TALLEST OF LIVING MEN.

European Scientists Are Interested in a Resident of Minnesota.

The biggest living man is Lewis Wilkins, who is now arousing great interest in the scientific circles of Europe. Wilkins was born on a farm near St. Paul, Minn., in 1874. When he was but 10 years of age he measured 6 feet in height, and now has grown to the tremendous height of 107¼ inches—just three-quarters of an inch less than 9 feet—and weighs 364 pounds.

There have been other tall men and women before Wilkins, and scientists have striven in vain to account for these freaks of nature. Only lately a plausible story has been put forward by a French physician, Dr. Marie, who says that giantism is nothing more or less than a disease. The disease generally occurs in patients between the ages of 18 and 35, and is first called "acromegaly" (from two Greek words heaning "enlargement of the extremities"). If the patient is not attacked until after he is 18 the ends of the bones in the arms and legs are enlarged and prolonged slightly, but if this disease has attacked a child at or soon after birth giantism is the result. The bones are prolonged all along their length, grow unnaturally and the result is a giant.

When you see a big man it is therefore a question whether he is unusually strong or whether he is a sufferer from acromegaly. All giants have not been acromegalic, according to Dr. Marie. He mentions two giants in the French army who did not belong to this class. One was Charles Freut, a cavalry soldier who was 6 feet 11 inches, and another was Marnat, a drum major in the Nineteenth Regiment of Infantry, who measured 6 feet 9 inches.

Perhaps the greatest giant who ever lived before Wilkins was Charles Byrne, an Irishman. He measured 9 feet 2 inches. His skeleton is still preserved, proving beyond question his enormous size. He was probably acromegalic.

Other giants are Constantine, born at Zurich, in Switzerland, 8 feet 1 inch; Herold, born at Leipsic, 7 feet 5 inches; and Lady Emma, 8 feet 1 inch.—Golden Penny.

The Gentle Jap.

To those whose duty or pleasure calls them into the busy thoroughfares of large cities, and whose ears are assailed with the shocking expression with which many of the passers-by delight to garnish their language, Japan should be a terrestrial paradise—for the Japanese never utter an oath. As a matter of fact, the reason for this is that there is no word in the Japanese language which is equivalent to an oath. Even the vast number of foreigners who have gone to that country during the last ten years, and the thousands of new words added to the language, have not in the least affected the Japanese in swearing. In this respect the Japanese stand alone, for all other inhabitants of earth can use pretty strong language, when, for example, on getting out of bed they step on a tack with its "business end up."

The clock is never inclined to boast; on the contrary, it is always running down its works.

If it weren't for our little trials and tribulations, life would soon become monotonous.

BAKING HUMAN BODY

MAN WHO IS ROASTED IN A GREAT OVEN.

Subjected to Intense Heat in Hope of Curing a Grave Malady—His Limbs Were Ossified by an Attack of Rheumatism.

Once in every twenty-four hours Aaron Palmer is baked alive in the great oven of the Bellevue hospital, in New York City. At a temperature of from 350 to 400 degrees he is allowed to roast in the oven for from half to three-quarters of an hour. Then he is removed, thoroughly massaged, and placed in the sun, where a broiling process is begun. And all because he is afflicted with arthritis deformans. Translated that means that he has gout. Not the plain gout that many suffer, but an acute rheumatic gout, which has practically ossified his limbs, so that for over three years his legs and arms were as hard as marble, being frightfully wasted and distorted, and absolutely incapable of any movement or feeling. His condition was pathetic in the extreme and it was only a question of time when the dread paralysis would encroach further upon his body, until it affected some vital organ and thus put an end to his life.

AARON PALMER UNDER TREATMENT AT BELLEVUE HOSPITAL.

It was death that Palmer has been waiting for during these years of suffering. When he was first taken to Bellevue there was some hope of saving his life, but that hope speedily departed when it was found that by no means known were the doctors able to stimulate a perspiration in any of the affected parts. Meanwhile the disease was spreading slowly and surely, and at last hope of stopping it was entirely abandoned. Vapor, Russian and Turkish baths failed to aid. Applications of heat were absolutely useless and recourse was even tried in wrapping him up in blankets and placing his feet as near as they could be placed with safety to a red-hot stove. None of the means tried seemed powerful enough to affect in the slightest the dread malady which affected him. Had it not been for the placing of the great new ovens in the hospital he would shortly be a corpse. Now, however, there is hope of saving his life. More than this, there is every prospect not only of stopping the encroachments of the disease, but of relieving parts already affected. Indeed, the ossification, if it can be so spoken of, has been removed from his arms entirely except from the fingers, and his legs have been revived from thigh to knee. With continued treatment it is expected that the calves and fingers and feet will be saved, and that Palmer will be able to resume his daily life where he left off four years ago, a cured and healthy man.

The Disease Held Him Fast.

Twelve years ago Palmer was first afflicted with rheumatism. He grew worse in spite of the various treatments which he underwent. Finally his legs and arms began to draw up and shrivel, and it was not long ere he was a helpless cripple. No thought of sending him to the hospital occurred to his family until four years ago, when he was suddenly affected by the deadening of his limbs. First his feet were affected. And then the calves and hands. There seemed every prospect of the whole body succumbing to the fearful trouble and great interest was manifested by physicians to see how long he could live. When his feet were first deadened they were affected as though frozen. They became as cold as in death and then gradually stiffened. No strength was sufficient to move them. Then, as the ankles and calves followed, recourse was taken to the various processes recited above to see if something could not stave off the trouble. Finally, when the thighs were similarly stiffened, it was impossible for him to do else than breathe and absorb his food. The arms came next, starting with the finger tips. This spread much more rapidly and in less than a month the entire limbs were rendered useless. It was at this stage that the baking process began. None of the doctors really thought any effect could be produced upon Palmer. It was a month before the slightest encouraging sign was seen. It was noticed during this time, however, that no ill effect was produced, so treatment was persevered in. After this length of time a single drop of perspiration was noticed on one thigh, so small that it was feared that it might be water dropped upon him by some means. However, the next day more beads appeared, and from that time on a perspiration was steadily induced. There was no let up, and it was not a fortnight before the flesh became soft and pliable, although there was still no evidence of power. It was not until recently that any power was developed and then only by constant massaging. As the arms were affected quicker than the lower limbs, so they yielded more readily to the treatment. They were in due course treated similarly. When once the disease began to be dissipated in them it was speedily conquered. Less than three weeks ago they were still held in the marble grasp. To-day all but the fingers have been released.

The fingers and toes are now drawn up against the palms of his hands and soles of the feet. The flesh of the calves has become pliable and soft and the knees are almost released from their captivity. In another fortnight it is expected that everything, except possibly the digits, will be well again. The cause of the trouble has been a deposit of calcium salts in the tissues covering the bones in the parts affected. The flesh has fallen away until the man has become little better than a skeleton, except for his trunk. His weight was down to eighty pounds, and the limbs were reduced to half their usual size. Since the restoration of power he has taken on flesh rapidly in the relieved parts, and he now weighs over a hundred pounds. His normal weight since the beginning of his illness until the ossification began was about 130 pounds. Before he was taken ill he weighed 160 pounds. Palmer is a produce dealer living in New York.

HORSES NOT AS HARDY AS MEN.

Sieges and Battles Show the Animals Succumb to Hunger and Fatigue.

There have been many instances in which fights have been lost or won according to the number and condition of the horse engaged. When the siege of Plevna commenced the Russians were bringing all their stores and food from Sistova by the aid of 66,000 draft horses, and at the end of the siege it was found that no less than 22,000 of them had died from hard work and exhaustion. The want of rest and food tells on a horse far more than on a man, for in the case of the latter there are the stimulating influences of patriotism, the glory of victory, and other feelings which are non-existent in the nature of a horse. Quite half the horses in England sent to the Crimea never returned, most of them having died from hard work and starvation. Indeed only about 500 were killed in action. So reduced and starved have the poor beasts become on occasions of this kind that they have been known to eat one another's tails and to gnaw the wheels of the gun carriages. Napoleon took with him across the Niemen 60,000 cavalry horses, and on his return in six months he could only muster 16,000. More than half the horses which were engaged in our Egyptian war of 1882 were disabled; 600 of these were killed, and only fifty-three slain in action. In the Afghan war of 1838 it is said that 3,000 camels and half the horses engaged were lost in three months. It will thus be seen that actual fighting does not claim so many horses as starvation and overwork. Defective shoeing, sore backs, want of food and rest, and other similar causes go far toward rendering horses useless for practical warfare. One more and important cause needs careful attention, and it is the danger of injury horses run when being shipped across the sea. They are in constant motion, they continually fall—many of them to be trampled to death—and the rest become frightened, kick and batter one another about, and are rendered useless. As an instance of this, it was found that one regiment on the way to the Peninsular war was deprived of just half its horses on the voyage.—Golden Penny.

Buying a Fan.

Miss Katharine Lee Bates, who spent some months in Spain last year, declares that the dark-eyed damsels of the fan and lace mantilla are quite as charming as tradition has pictured them. Ignorant they commonly are, their education being of the most meager, but they are not dull. They are quick-witted, high-spirited and affectionate, and are possessed of a grace of speech and manner which rarely deserts them. Nor do they reserve their pretty ways only for the ballroom or the parlor; even ordinary shopping is lifted into a scene of elegant comedy by the manner in which it is transacted. This is how a Spanish senorita bargains for her fan:

There is nothing sordid about it. Her haggling is a social condescension that at once puts the black-eyed young salesman at her mercy.

"But the fan seems to me the least bit dear, senor!"

"Ah, senorita! You do not see how beautiful the work is. I am giving it away at six pesetas."

She lifts her eyebrows half-incredulously, all bewitching.

"At five pesetas, senor."

He runs his hand through his black hair in chivalrous distress.

"But the peerless work, senorita! And this other, too. I sacrifice it at four pesetas."

She touches both fans lightly.

"You will let me have the two at seven pesetas, senor?"

Her eyes dance over his confusion. He catches the gleam, laughs back, throws up his hands.

"Bueno, senorita! At what you please!"

And the senorita trips away contented with a sharp bargain, although—for Spanish gallantry, even when genuine, goes farther on the lips than otherwise—the price was probably not much more remote from what pleased the smooth-tongued clerk than from what she pleased.

"Horrors!" exclaimed the citizen of the South American Republic. "This paper says that six men were disabled in our revolution yesterday."

"Is that so?" replied another citizen. "Such occurrences give our sport a sort of black eye. But how did the deplorable affair happen?"

"Why, the weather was very damp, you know, and the doctor pronounces it pneumonia."—Judge.

These Parents!

Mabel—So your mother has married again?

Maud—Yes, thank goodness! You can't think how glad I am to get her comfortably settled. You don't know what a terrible trial she has been to me lately.

Making Both Ends Meet.

Useful Some Day, Perhaps.

Husband—What! You bought an artificial arm?

Wife—Yes, dear. You see it was a great bargain and——

Husband—Great Scott! What are you thinking of? You haven't any earthly use for such a thing.

Wife—But, dear, you know you travel on the railroads a great deal, and you can never tell what may happen.—Philadelphia Press.

Usually Fatal.

Briggs—The doctors say I am suffering from a complication of diseases.

Griggs—How many of them have you seen?

"Seven."

"The trouble with you is that you are suffering from a complication of doctors."—Life.

That Was All.

"I can't imagine why Miss Rockingham treats me so coldly. The other evening when I called she said she had been eating green onions and hoped I would excuse her. Since then she has hardly spoken to me."

"That's curious. What did you say when she excused herself?"

"Let me see! Why, I merely told her not to mind; that it would be an easy matter for me to keep far enough away not to be disturbed."

"Oh!"—Chicago Times-Herald.

A Considerate Offer.

Employer—I think I'll have to let you go; there isn't much to do around here, but you don't even seem able to do that.

Office Boy—Well, suppose you pay me half wages, and I'll stay home until you really need me.—Chicago Record.

Decidedly Not.

"You don't happen to have change fur a quarter, do ye?" asked Eaton Shabbelong, who had had an unexpected stroke of luck.

"Change fur a quarter!" echoed Tuffold Knott, with infinite disgust. "If I had do ye reckon I'd be carryin' the thirst I've got with me this minute?"—Chicago Tribune.

All He Had.

"Comrade, lend me your pipe."

"There."

"Got any tobacco?"

"There."

"Now lend me a match."

"Say, you don't seem to furnish anything toward your smoke except your mouth, do you?"

Competition Among Notables.

"They say that Kruger is going at it harder than ever."

"What has braced him up so suddenly?"

"Oh, he's mad because the empress dowager has knocked him out of the public eye."

An Exiled Belle.

"Is your daughter Pamela having a good time in the country?"

"No; she says she hates it; it scuffs her shoes out so."

A Mean Trick.

Juliet—Dearie, did you mail that letter I gave you to mail?

Jack (fumbling in his pocket)—Of course—first thing as soon as I got downtown. I remember distinctly.

Juliet (triumphantly)—Ha, there. I've caught you! I didn't give you any letter to mail.—Chicago Record.

Where Ignorance Is Bliss.

He—I want to know, once for all, who is master of this house?

She—You'll be happier if you don't find out.—Puck.

Plans Gang Aglee.

Mrs. Brown—Mrs. Jones always said if her husband died she would quickly follow him. He has been dead a month.

Mrs. Smith—Yes; but you can't decently expect her to follow him till she has seen the Paris exposition, can you? There is always something to disarrange a woman's plans, you know.—Judge.

It Ought to Be.

Customer—If this underwear doesn't fit may I change it?

Clerk—Certainly. Underwear is always subject to change.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

His Guess at It.

"What does it mean, Tommy," the Sunday school teacher asked, "where it says 'they rent their clothes?'"

"I suppose they couldn't afford to buy them," replied Tommy.—Detroit Free Press.

Too Much for Him.

Twynn—I hear that the weather man has been taken to the hospital.

Triplett—That is true. The shock was too much for him.

"What shock?"

"One of his forecasts came true."

She Has No Chance.

Miss Gilgal (reading)—A girl in Pennsylvania has saved an express train from destruction by taking off her red petticoat and waving it as a signal.

Miss Tenspot—Oh, dear, I could never do anything heroic like that.

"Why not?"

"Because I don't wear red petticoats."

The Automobile Outranked.

First Horse—Well, thank goodness!"

Second Horse—Thank goodness for what?

First Horse—When we get sick we call in a doctor; we don't have to be tinkered with with a monkey wrench.

A Son-in-Law's Finish.

"William is always used up for several days after ma starts to California."

"How does that happen?"

"Oh, he always has to go over her railway map with her, and tell her what to do and what not to do."

Frightfully Mixed.

"Society is getting fearfully mixed; it is embarrassing to meet one's landlord at a garden party."

"Yes; especially if you are behind with the rent."

A Heart-Breaker.

Mrs. Seeside—Oh! I think divorces are simply awful! I never could bear to hear of another woman filling my place—never!

Mrs. Breezy—You couldn't?

Mrs. Seeside—No! It would simply break my heart to think of any other woman writing to Harold for money!—Puck.

Those Dashing Boston Girls.

Hester—Tell me, Kate, you ought to know all about it. Do men—did Charley go down on his knees when he proposed?

Kate—How absurd! How could he have gone down on his knees, when I——. Where do you suppose I was, anyway?—Boston Transcript.

Sure Enough.

Little Clarence—Pa, is there a reason for all things?

Mr. Callipers—Yes, I suppose so.

Little Clarence—Well, then, pa, why do hens lay eggs?

Mr. Callipers—Because they can't stand them on end, my son.—Judge.

Daddy's Definition.

Johnny—Paw, what is conscience?

Paw—Conscience, my son, is something that we always think should bother the other fellow.—Baltimore American.

Too Long to Wait.

The Japanese, as is generally known, are mainly vegetarians, their diet consisting for the most part of rice and a few other simple vegetables.

While they are a healthy and happy people, they are undersized as compared with the meat eaters of Europe and America, and it was seriously recommended a few years ago by advisers of the Emperor, that he should encourage his subjects to adopt a diet of flesh, with a view to increasing the average Japanese stature.

An American who was visiting in Japan tells of a jinrikisha man with whom he became acquainted, who, although able to trot forty miles a day without fatigue, was vexed because of his small size and had begun to eat meat. He asked his American friend one day, in the best English at his command, how long a time would be required, on an animal diet, to make the Japanese a larger race.

"I should say a hundred years, at least," replied the American.

The "rickshaw" man went back to his rice.

SERMONS OF THE WEEK

Knowledge.—Knowledge is not wisdom, but only the tool with which to develop it.—Rev. M. B. Pratt, Methodist, Akron, Ohio.

Presbyterians.—We, as Presbyterians, believe in the scripture as the only infallible rule of belief and obedience.—Rev. L. M. Clarke, Presbyterian, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Universalism.—As a day of redemption Universalism presents a supernal good, an image of divine excellence and beauty.—Rev. Dr. Canfield, Universalist, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Lack of Convictions.—The great trouble with men to-day is the lack of strong, positive, life-compelling convictions.—Rev. W. B. Thorp, Congregationalist, Chicago, Ill.

Isaiah.—The traditions and opinions of men are to hold no place against the word of God. Isaiah is a good enough authority for the Master.—Rev. N. H. Lee, Methodist, Denver, Col.

Making the Record.—We can not move without disturbing the atmosphere about us. So whatever we do or do nothing we are making the record.—Rev. E. M. Wood, Methodist, Pittsburg, Pa.

Sin and Death.—Sin and death can go so far and no farther. Sin is to be blotted out of this otherwise fair universe and God become all in all.—Rev. Marion Crossley, Universalist, Indianapolis, Ind.

Love and Law.—God has written it on our hearts to believe that love is greater and grander than law. Love has glorious victories where law is powerless.—Rev. Geo. C. Lorimer, Baptist, Boston, Mass.

Heathen and Christian Religion.—Heathen religions give us a view of men seeking after God, but the Christian religion gives us a view of God seeking after men.—J. R. Jones, Quaker, North Carolina.

An Old Adage.—The old adage is true. You will get neither a patriotic nor a godly man out of an unclean man. The ancients were great bathers, and they turned out a fine race of men.—Rev. C. Herald, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Faithful to God.—God has assured us if we are faithful to him we shall have eternal life, but since Satan has sinned he shall be punished as God says he will.—Rev. O. S. Hadley, Adventist, Indianapolis, Ind.

The Cross.—The cross must follow the flag. The church must follow up with the missionary the work the state has wrought through the soldier. The battle of civilization is on.—Rev. M. C. Peters, Independent, New York City.

Life.—How many of us have made life just as large as it was possible to make it with all its opportunities and privileges? If we have lost an opportunity it will never return.—Rev. Dr. Holderby, Presbyterian, Atlanta, Ga.

Faith.—Faith is the greatest cohesive force, for it builds and holds together the human world. The child has faith in his parent, the boy in his ability, the Christian in his God.—Rev. John L. Lee, Methodist, Asbury Park, N. J.

The Kingdom of God.—The kingdom of God is not one of violence or force. The seeds of divine grace are secure in the heart, and the man himself is responsible for their proper cultivation and for bringing them to perfection.—Rev. F. M. Bristol, Methodist, Washington, D. C.

Sovereignty of God.—Our confession affirms the sovereignty of God, a great truth which, however, we must explain in harmony with the greater truth of man gifted with the mind and freedom of God and with the greatest truth of the love of God.—Rev. J. C. Smith, Presbyterian, Indianapolis, Ind.

Immortality.—There are those phrases of expression which at times seem to portend something deeper—something beyond. Then, again, when the mind feels the sway of a desire to look into the depths of time, that moment one gets a glimpse of immortality.—Rev. Geo. P. Perry, Baptist, Troy, N. Y.

Work of Christ.—Christ evolved the idea of "humanity" as a common brotherhood (even where the tidings of the gospel were not believed) in all the world over; where its tidings were believed, it cleansed the life and elevated the soul of each individual man.—Rev. A. G. Bakewell, Episcopalian, New Orleans, La.

The Passover.—It was God who interfered in Egypt in behalf of justice and freedom. It was by the decree of the Almighty that the scepter of oppression was broken. In the passover feast we keep alive the traditions that insure loyalty to the past; we bind the children to the fathers.—Rabbi Stolz, Hebrew, Chicago, Ill.

Life.—We enter life raw and unexperienced, and the fool must be ground and ground in the mortar to separate him from his folly. A tender master, by severe methods, trains us to his service, develops us day by day, that we may become of some use in his kingdom.—Rev. J. J. Tigert, Methodist, New Orleans, La.

Position.—It is not position that makes the man nor that keeps the man already made. Position or place often unmakes the man. Position is often thrust on unworthy man with disastrous results, and very often a good man, in the endeavor to obtain position, loses his life and his soul.—Rev. H. C. Johnson, Methodist, Memphis, Tenn.

The Gun and the Cat.

It generally takes "nerve"—the slang synonym for impudence—to be a borrower, but here the Chicago News shows such effrontery at its height:

Quinn—He has more nerve than any man I ever met.

De Fonte—In what way?

Quinn—Why, he went over to his neighbor's to borrow a gun. Said he wanted to shoot a cat.

De Fonte—Where does any nerve come in?

Quinn—It was his neighbor's cat he wanted to shoot.

Nirvana.

A little girl who was trying to tell a friend how absent-minded her grandpa was said:

"He walks about, thinking about nothing, and, when he remembers it, he then forgets that what he thought of was something entirely different from what he wanted to remember."—Collier's Weekly.

The American Working Man.

Much comparison has been made between the endurance of the Chinese and the American workingman. Those with authority say that the average workingman of America is as superior to the Chinese as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is to any other dyspepsia cure. The Bitters also cures constipation, indigestion and prevents malaria.

Looked Suspicious.

The President of the bank seemed very much perturbed. "I'm afraid we shall have to keep an eye on that new clerk," he said. "Have you noticed anything suspicious?" asked the cashier. "Well," said the President, "I saw him in a restaurant this morning eating strawberries with his breakfast."—Philadelphia Record.

ATTACK ON THE SHAH

LIFE OF PERSIA'S RULER ATTEMPTED IN PARIS.

Assassin Uses Cane, Knife and Revolver in Effort to Kill—Evidence of a Plot to Murder Another of the Old-World Monarchs.

An attempt on the life of the Shah of Persia, Muzaffer-ed-Din, was made in Paris Thursday morning, but luckily it resulted in no harm to his majesty. As the Shah, accompanied by his grand vizier, was driving in a landau, a young man jumped from out of a crowd of bystanders and before any one knew what he was about, he raised a cane and aimed a blow at the head of the Shah. His majesty showed wonderful presence of mind, jumped to his feet and at the same time stretching out his right arm broke the force of the blow. The would-be murderer instantly coolly thrust his other hand under his coat and from the folds of his shirt he pulled out a long, gleaming knife and quickly made a thrust at the Shah with this weapon.

The grand vizier, the detectives and police, by this time getting over the surprise of the suddenness of this dastardly act, pounced on the assassin, overpowered and disarmed him. In the scuffle that followed a revolver fell to the floor of the carriage. According to one policeman, who arrested the assassin, the revolver belonged to the murderer. According to others it belonged to the grand vizier, who, in drawing it from his pocket, had it knocked out of his hand during the scuffle. The whole thing took less than a minute and bore all the evidence of being well planned beforehand.

A crowd of 500 people, who witnessed the attempted assassination, made a rush toward the would-be murderer and tried to attack him, but there were many police in the neighborhood acting as guards of the Shah, and these prevented the mob from doing violence to the miscreant. The prisoner was taken to the police station. He declined to give his name or nationality.

FIND JESTER NOT GUILTY.

Jury Acquits Aged Prisoner of the Charge of Murder.

Alexander Jester is free. "Not guilty," is the verdict brought in at New London, Mo., by the twelve jurors upon whose decision hung the fate of the aged pioneer. W. S. Forrest of Chicago, employed by John W. Gates, brother of the dead or missing boy, to aid in the prosecution of the aged prisoner, closed his speech at noon Wednesday. Half an hour later the jurors retired to consider the evidence. Their deliberations ended at 8:30 p. m. in the formally expressed opinion that Jester is innocent.

GILBERT GATES.

This famous trial, which has now been brought to a close, is perhaps without a parallel. Alexander Jester was charged with the murder of a boy companion, Gilbert Gates, near Paris, Mo., in 1871.

In the testimony given by Azel A. Gates, father of the murdered boy, were the allegations upon which the State depended for conviction. Briefly, they were these: Early in the fall of 1870 Gilbert Gates left his home in West Chicago upon a hunting trip through Missouri. While traveling he was met by Jester. The pair were seen together, and then Jester appeared alone with two teams—one of them his own and the other that belonging to the missing boy.

Mr. Gates traced Jester and his son through Missouri until all track of the boy vanished. Then he followed Jester into Illinois, and satisfied himself that young Gates had been foully dealt with. A few weeks later Jester was arrested in Kansas, and young Gates' property was found upon him. He was taken to Mexico, Mo., where he escaped from jail while awaiting his trial. That was early in 1871.

ALEXANDER JESTER.

Nothing more was heard of him until he was arrested in Oklahoma last summer on the complaint of his sister, Mrs. Cornelia Street. A total of 206 witnesses appeared for the prosecution. Most of them were quite old, a fact not to be wondered at when it is remembered that the crime for which Jester has been tried was committed thirty years ago.

The fiddlers at the "concert of the powers" are not all playing the same tune.

All the statements go to show that Prince Tuan is one of those modern rapid-fire liars.

The geography class will get their baggage to the station at once. We are now off for Manchuria.

China will have the deep sympathy of the Sultan when the work of collecting damages is inaugurated.

Emperor William evidently declines to believe that Christianity is merely a matter of turning the other cheek.

The Shah of Persia has completed his visit to the Paris exposition, and the fumigating process is now in progress.

It would be laughable were the great powers to be forced to skip out of China. The Chinamen would certainly "tea-he."

It looks as if it would be a favorable time for any one with a good second-hand last ditch to open negotiations with Oom Paul.

Chinamen in this country are in no danger so long as they keep their laundry lists straight and return the wash on the day promised.

ITALY'S NEW KING.

Victor Emmanuel Reputed to Be a Scholar and a Soldier.

Vittorio Emmanuele Fernandino Maria Gennaro, who succeeds his father to the throne of Italy, was the only son of King Humbert. He was born Nov. 11, 1869, and has the reputation of being a liberal, scholarly and soldierly man. He is a general in the Italian army and a patron of art and literature. He is a chevalier of the Order of the Golden Fleece and a Knight of the Garter.

His wife, Italy's new queen, was the Princess Helena, one of the seven daughters of Prince Nicholas, the ruler of the little principality of Montenegro. She was born in the royal palace in Cettinje in 1873. With her sisters, she inherited the superb dark beauty of their mother, the daughter of a Montenegrin nobleman. She has been most carefully reared by tutors and governesses and is not only admirable in all the arts and graces of European courts, but is well versed in the play of politics and in every way qualified to succeed even so lovely a queen as Margherita of Italy.

VICTOR EMMANUEL.

BRESSI IS UNDISTURBED.

Slayer of King Humbert Has No Regrets for His Awful Crime.

Bressi, the assassin of King Humbert, seems undisturbed by thoughts of the awful work he has accomplished. Reports indicate that he had planned the murder for some time, and that he had chosen Humbert not as an individual personally deserving of violent death, but as a member of the class to which all anarchists are opposed. In New York some misguided malcontents laud the man's deed and call its perpetrator a deliverer. Bressi declares that in the event of his release he will have similar work to do. His friends in this country—the fiery ones—assert that other sovereigns are marked.

In the course of his examination Bressi did not deny that he had been designated to assassinate King Humbert. It is now believed that the crime was arranged in Paterson, N. J.

A man named Salvatoro Quintavalli, who returned to Italy from the United States with Bressi and accompanied him to an anarchist meeting in Paris, has been arrested at the Rio Marina on the Island of Elba. The police found on him letters and photographs of anarchists. Anton Lanner, who accompanied Bressi from the United States, has been arrested at Ivrea. In consequence of these arrests the belief in the existence of a plot is increasing.

Bressi's brother, who is a lieutenant in the Italian army, stigmatizes the crime as the most cowardly act of the century. He had had no news of his brother for a long time and thought he was still in the United States.

Scarcity of farm laborers in the Northwest has caused the owners of big wheat fields to appeal to the railroad companies for help in obtaining men to harvest. Officers of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific have instructed their Chicago agents to send 2,000 laborers if possible.

The passenger earnings of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway for the fiscal year closed June 30 show a marvelous improvement over the previous year. The total passenger earnings amounted to $7,698,513.51, an increase of nearly 14 per cent over last year. The number of passengers carried was 8,677,822.

Traffic officials of the Burlington road say that notwithstanding reiterated reports that the soaking rains which Nebraska received were too late to save much of the corn crop, especially in the southern and southwestern part of the State, all these reports go to show that the rain was in ample time to benefit and did actually benefit the great bulk of the crop, and with favorable weather from now to the end more than an average crop in Nebraska will be secured.

A person who drops anything from a moving train ordinarily says "good-by" to it, but a noteworthy exception was recently observed on the Burlington Railroad. A pocketbook containing $109.25, a gold ring, four rubies and other valuables, was lost by a passenger on the St. Louis-Portland express while the train was advancing fifty miles an hour. From the first stop the loss was wired to Superintendent Phelan at Alliance, Neb., who immediately sent out a searching party. The pocketbook and jewels were found near the track, three miles from Whitman, in as good condition as when lost. They were returned to the surprised owner the next day.

HEARS FROM CONGER.

WASHINGTON GETS WORD VIA TIEN-TSIN.

Chinese Attacks Suspended, All the Envoys Safe, but General Massacre Feared—American Legation Well Provisioned, but Short of Ammunition.

Minister Conger has been heard from again. Under date of July 21, in a letter to the consuls at Tien-Tsin, he says the armistice prevails, but "if they continue to shell us as they have done we cannot hold out long." Mr. Conger confirms the other reports that all the legations are running short of ammunition. There is even later news from Pekin. A letter from Lieut. Col. Shiba, military attache of the Japanese legation, left the capital the evening of the 22d. It graphically recites the anxiety of the brave little colony for the coming of the relief column. "It is not probable we will be able to hold out longer than a week."

Little by little, says a Washington correspondent, the terrible story of Pekin is leaking out to the world. There can be no doubt that when the full narrative becomes known we shall have a tale of savagery, of brave defense, of heroism, well-nigh unparalleled in history. A handful of Europeans and Americans penned up within brick walls and surrounded by tens of thousands of savage fanatics. All the women and children gathered in the strongest inclosure, the British legation, and all of them, be it said to the honor of the international guards, safe up to the time the latest reports were sent out.

The enemy attacked with both rifle and artillery. One night the shelling continued for six hours without interruption. More than sixty of the brave defenders have lost their lives and ninety-eight have been wounded. Two thousand of the Chinese assailants are estimated to have been killed. Four attempts were made to fire the British legation, in which more than 400 non-combatants are sheltered. The cowardice of the Chinese and the bravery of the defenders averted the destruction of the buildings and wholesale slaughter.

Thanks to the certainly authentic letters and dispatches of Sir Claude Macdonald and Minister Conger, and the various other reports received of late, the State Department officials now believe they have a fair understanding of the situation in Pekin. There is little or no doubt that all the foreign ministers and their suites, excepting two or three British attaches and of course the German minister and the Japanese secretary of legation, were safe up to the evening of the 22d inst. It is believed the sixty defenders killed were all among the marines sent from Tien-Tsin early in June to guard the legations. But for the presence of these guards and their heroic defense every foreigner in Pekin must have perished.

CHEE FOO STREET CHAPEL.

Oldest Christian place of worship in Chefoo, built by Dr. Hunter Corbett shortly after he went to China in 1866. Dr. Corbett occupies the foreground, the others being assistants and pupils.

Officials in Washington believe the members of the various legations have been able to communicate with one another, and that by throwing up defensive walls the guards were able to keep the enemy out of legation street.

The most discouraging inference drawn from the facts now known is that the war upon the legationers was made directly by the Chinese Government. This is the belief which prevails in official circles, not only in Washington but in every capital of Europe. Not only have Minister Conger, Sir Claude Macdonald and others sent out word that the attacks were made by "Chinese troops," but many facts now known clearly corroborate their statements.

It is eye for eye and tooth for tooth, continues the Washington writer. The governments of France and Great Britain have solemnly notified the empress dowager, Prince Tuan and their advisers that the Chinese Government will be held to rigid accountability for the safety of the French and English citizens in Pekin. "If our ministers and their suites perish," these governments have said to the Pekin junta, "we shall hold you personally responsible."

These ominous warnings were conveyed through the Chinese ministers at Paris and London. To these ministers significant intimations have been made that for a murdered envoy the head of a prince of the blood will be demanded, and for every secretary or attache or woman or child the head of a Chinese general or mandarin of the first class.

So far no other government has joined in these direct threats through official channels. The United States has given no warnings, but has permitted it to be understood that it is eager to join in the campaign of punishment. That is the attitude of all the other powers, save that Germany, through the Kaiser, has publicly announced a policy of implacable retaliation.

PENSION ROLL INCREASES.

More than 2,000 Names Added in the Past Year.

The forthcoming annual report of Commissioner of Pensions Evans will show a grand total of 993,528 pensioners on the rolls on July 1 last. The figures on which the report will be based are now complete and ready for incorporation in the report. They show that on July 1, 1899, there were 991,519 pensioners on the rolls. During the year 40,645 original pensions were granted and 4,669 names were restored to the rolls. To offset these, 43,334 names were dropped from the rolls during the year, including 35,809 by reason of deaths, 909 by remarriages of pensioners, and 6,616 for other causes, leaving the total number on the roll at the first of this month 993,528.

This is an increase of 2,009 pensioners for the year. The number of claims of all kinds pending July 1, 1900, was 437,104, against 477,239 on July 1, 1899. The report shows a total of 260,797 names dropped during the six years ended June 30, of which 193,014 were because of deaths. The number dropped by reason of death during the fiscal year just closed is about 14,200 less than was estimated.

MISFORTUNE CAME IN CLOUDS.

New Jersey Family Was Visited by an Extraordinary Series of Mishaps.

Francis Fielder, who lives at Turkey, a small village near New Brunswick, N. J., is wondering why misfortune is persistently pursuing him and his family.

Recently his son Edward fell from a scaffolding at Long Branch and was so badly hurt that for a long time his life was despaired of.

Then Mrs. Fielder slipped from the stoop of her home, breaking her collar bone and several ribs.

The next day Mr. Fielder slipped on some loose hay and fell out of the mow. He was shaken up so badly that he had to keep in his bed for several days.

Next a favorite horse died of glanders and all his live stock had to be quarantined and the outbuildings disinfected.

While this was being done a message was received from a son, Elbert, at Asbury Park, announcing that he had lost a horse by theft.

The younger son, Garfield, was the next victim of the family Nemesis. He was riding his wheel to work when he ran into a chicken and was thrown against a post, having a collar bone broken and a shoulder dislocated.

Now that all the members of the family and most of the live stock have been victims of misfortune in one way or another, Mr. Fielder hopes the fates have been satisfied and that brighter days are about to dawn.—New York World.

His Face Said Yes.

It is related of Jefferson that, while riding, in company with two young men, he came to a creek so swollen by a shower that the water was up to the saddlegirths.

A man, standing on the bank with a saddle on his shoulders, looked at the young men as they rode into the stream, but said nothing. As Mr. Jefferson came along, the stranger asked if he could not be allowed to mount behind and thus be carried across.

The President reined his horse up to a stone; the man mounted and, when across, expressed his thanks and walked away. Several men who had seen the novel ferry asked:

"What made you let the young men pass, and why did you ask the old gentleman?"

"Wal, if you want to know, I'll tell you. I reckon a man carries 'Yes' or 'No' in his face. The young chaps' faces said 'No,' the old un's 'Yes'."

"It isn't every one," said one of the party, "who would have asked the President of the United States for a ride."

"What! You don't mean to say that was Tom Jefferson, do you? Wal, he's a fine fellow, anyway. What will Polly say when I tell her I have rid behind President Jefferson? She'll say I voted for the right man."

A Remedy for Nosebleed.

Children are occasionally troubled with bleeding at the nose and in some instances this becomes quite alarming, especially when all known remedies fail and the weakening flow still continues, and in this instance, as in many others, the best remedy is one of the simplest that could be tried. A celebrated physician has claimed in one of his lectures that the "best remedy" is a vigorous motion of the jaws, as in the act of chewing. In the case of a child he recommends giving a wad of paper to chew, as the rapid working of the jaws stops the flow of blood.

BEST FOR THE BOWELS.

No matter what ails you, headache to a cancer, you will never get well until your bowels are put right. CASCARETS help nature, cure you without a gripe or pain, produce easy natural movements, cost you just 10 cents to start getting your health back. CASCARETS Candy Cathartic, the genuine, put up in metal boxes, every tablet has C. C. C. stamped on it. Beware of imitations.

Rubber Culture.

Rubber culture was first scientifically undertaken at the botanical gardens at Peradeniya, in 1876, by Dr. Trimen, and in 1897 Ceylon boasted of 250,000 trees of the Brazilian variety.

Try Grain-O! Try Grain-O!

Ask your Grocer to-day to show you a package of GRAIN-O, the new food drink that takes the place of coffee. The children may drink it without injury as well as the adult. All who try it like it. Shod with Diamonds.

"Did it ever occur to you," said a chemist, "what a remarkable and unique process the blacking of boots is? You see, we smear the boot with a preparation of boneblack, which is entirely devoid of luster, and then by the friction of a dry brush make it shine like the sun. There is not another process like this anywhere in the fine arts, so far as I know, and I never read anywhere any scientific explanation of the process.

"My solution of the seeming mystery lies in the fact that a diamond is nothing but crystallized carbon. The blacking is little more than carbon paste, and the friction of a hair brush, being one of the most efficient methods of generating electricity, has the effect of crystallizing the carbon of the blacking.

"As soon as this is done the boot is covered with millions of infinitely small diamonds, and of course begins to shine as a mass of diamonds would."—New York Telegram.

What Do the Children Drink?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called GRAIN-O? It is delicious and nourishing, and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee, but costs about ¼ as much. All grocers sel lit. 15c and 25c.

Impolitic.

Now that collection boxes are made that allow every one to see what his neighbor gives at church, two things are pretty sure to happen wherever they are used; the collections will increase in value for a time, and then a number of persons will conclude that they are too poor to go to church.

Sheriff's Sale.

By virtue of an execution issued on a transcript of a judgment filed in the office of the clerk of the DeKalb circuit court on the 22d day of April, 1895, and to me directed by the clerk of said court, I will offer for sale at public auction and outcry, to the highest bidder, at the door of the court house in Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana, on

SATURDAY, AUGUST 11, 1900,

between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following described real estate, situated in DeKalb county, in the state of Indiana, to-wit;

Lot numbered seventy-two [72] in Ensley's second addition to the town of Auburn.

And in case the rents and profits fail to bring the amount demanded to satisfy the judgment and decree aforesaid, interest and costs, together with all accruing costs, I will, at the same time and place, and in like manner as aforesaid, offer for sale, at public auction and outcry, to the highest bidder, all the right, title, interest and estate in fee simple of Grant Owens and John C. Owens at his death and now holden by his heirs, in and to the above described real estate, or so much and such part thereof as may be necessary to satisfy the judgment and decree aforesaid, which is in favor of Solomon Shilling and against Grant Owens, John C. Owens.

Said real estate will be sold without relief from valuation or appraisement laws, and subject to the redemption laws of the state of Indiana.

25 prizes of $1 each	25.00
	1,000.00

NOTE—The result will be decided from the vote cast for the head of the democratic electoral ticket.

If the unexpected should happen and Mr. Bryan not carry the state, then the lowest plurality guess, or the one nearest the result, will get the prize.

Where two or more guesses are the same, the first one received will be awarded the prize.

Guessers should be careful to write name and address plainly, and also state whether they are an old or new subscriber.

Conditions.

Any subscriber, old or new, is entitled to one guess on payment of 50 cents—one year's subscription—received at this office before the close of polls on election day—Tuesday, Nov. 6, 1900. The name of subscriber remitting the money will be recorded with the figures of his guess. The receipt of money, as well as his estimate of Bryan and Stevenson's plurality over McKinley and Roosevelt in Indiana, will be acknowledged, and should be laid aside by him until the official vote of Indiana shall have been ascertained, when the names of prize-takers will be duly announced in these columns.

If your subscription is not paid in advance pay it now and participate in this great distribution of actual money. If your subscription is paid in advance, send us 50 cents for another year and give a guess. You stand a chance of getting $300 for 50 cents, and if you do not hit a prize you have your money's worth in The Indiana State Sentinel, the greatest family newspaper in the West.

SEND in your 50 cents with your guess at once. Your judgment is as likely to be correct at this time as it is the day before election. Be careful to date your guesses, and remember you can have as many guesses as you take subscriptions to The Indiana State Sentinel.

Saturday's Daily.

—It is reported that George Apple has been quite sick but is now improving.

—Uncle Henry Shull gets to town now about every day. For a man of 84 he is pretty sound.

—The Eel River conference of the Christian church will be held at Millersburg August 15 to 20.

—Miss Estella Hague went to Winona today to join Mrs. Ella Richards and will remain several weeks.

—J. E. Pomeroy and wife entertained a company of friends at dinner today in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. LaDue.

—Don't miss Niagara Falls excursion August 16 over Lake Shore Ry. Tickets good twelve days. Ask ticket agents about it.

—'Squire Grube was here today and reports his wife some better. Mrs. D. D. Moody is still staying there to assist is caring for her.

—Sheriff Hathaway and wife accompanied the former's parents, who have been visiting here, to their home in Keyser township today.

—The reunion of the 160th Indiana regiment, which served in the war with Spain, will be held at Bluffton August 31 and September 1.

—The Wabash has a force of men at work ballasting the branch from Helmer to Stroh with gravel. The men are paid $1.35 per day and more could be used.

—Mrs. Nathan Johnson and Mrs. Sydney Brown drove out into the country today for a visit with Stephen Lutz and family. Mrs. Brown will spend some time there.

—Those who remember Lester L. Brown, son of John Brown east of Auburn, will be interested to hear that he owns and runs the Independence Repooter, at that thriving town in Kansas.

—Dr. Vesta Swarts today received a postal card from her husband, written and mailed at the top of the Eiffel tower at the Paris exposition. At that point Dr. Swarts was several hundred feet above terra firma.

—Chris. Ashelman will leave the first of next week for a trip to Europe, going by way of Montreal. He expects to be absent several months and will visit his parents' old home in Switzerland among other points of interest.

—Charles Donley and Miss Isabelle Howey, both of Auburn, were united in marriage on Friday, August 3, 1900, by Rev. W. L. Meese at his home on West Ninth street. We hope the newly married pair will have a long and happy life.

—Quite a number of Butler township people were up here today interviewing Surveyor Krontz on ditch matters. They were Benton Hess, Joseph Kelham, John H. Harris and John Grube. They report good wheat down that way and not much injury by rain.

—John Franks, a Noble county farmer, was caught for $2,500 by a couple of swindlers the other day. It was the old trick of the man who wanted to buy a farm, and when Franks produced the cash to prove his responsibility the two fellows gobbled it and disappeared.

D. N. MYERS.

Probably Robbed.

We spoke yesteday of Jacob Sommers having lost his pocket book containing some money. Since then we have met Mr. Sommers and heard fuller details.

He says a talkative stranger was about town that day, and had apparently, by some means, found out the names of persons who sometimes loaned money. The man hunted up L. Bowers, at the latter's home, and wanted to borrow some money of him. But Mr. Bowers suspected something was wrong, and got rid of him. Later on, when Mr. Sommers was in town, this man followed him into John Kruger's grocery, and called him by name and wanted to borrow $500 of him. Mr. Sommers was not struck favorably with the man but gave him to understand he had no money to lend him. The man kept up a conversation, however, and at one time stood up against the counter quite near him and Mr. Sommers thinks the fellow took the pocket book out of his pants pocket, or it may be that he got it some way while Mr. Somers had his money out to pay for something he bought. At all events his money is gone and the stranger disappeared. Mr. Sommers thinks he could not identify the fellow anyhow. The pock etbook had, he thinks, between $100 and $200 in it.

The Village Blacksmith.

Under a spreading chestnut tree stands the blacksmith shop complete. The smith, a mighty man is he, with large and sinewy feet. He works all day in his blacksmith shop with never a care that hinders, and when the evening comes he rests, and from his whiskers pulls the cinders. And the loafers like to gather around and swap bald-headed lies, and watch the busy blacksmith man shoeing horses and also flies. And the town is cussed by the loafers there, and they, verbally, throw it down; and the blacksmith knocks on his anvil hot, but he never knocks on the town. Thanks, thanks my stalwart friend, for this wrought iron lesson wrought, by you as you pounded away at your task, not thinking of the truth you taught. The man who lives on the sweat of his brow is honest with others and fair, but the man who resides on the seat of his pants is the one that makes every one swear.

Story of a Slave.

To be bound hand and foot for years by the chains of disease is the worst form of slavery. George D. Williams, of Manchester, Mich., tells how such a slave was made free. This supreme remedy for female diseases quickly cures nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, headache, fainting and dizzy spells. From the Rockies.

The COURIER was surprised and pleased, yesterday to receive a letter from Miss Etta Prickett who is now in the far west enjoying a trip among the Rocky mountains. She says she cannot enjoy life, however, even in that wonderful region without hearing from Auburn through the Old Reliable Daily COURIER. So she enclosed the cash for it and we hope she will get it regularly. In part her letter which is dated at Cripple Creek, Aug. 6, says:

I arrived safe and the trip was certainly delightful. Such a scenery, one cannot imagine unless one sees it. I had to change cars from Waterloo to Elkhart, Elkhart to Chicago, and had just ten minutes to catch the Colorado flyer, a special, came right through to Denver in one night and day. Then from Denver to Canon City over the Denver & Rio Grande narrow guage and from Canon City to Victor.

Today I am in Cripple Creek and tomorrow I may go to Manitou Springs. The agents say this is the heaviest tourist season ever known, as the rates are so low that every car is crowded to its utmost. I want to go to Pike's Peak on horseback, but as the ladies all ride astride here, I expect they would laugh at me. I will close, as I am going to the hills for flowers. The flowers are abundant in the hills and very beautiful.

Send my paper to Victor and I will have my mail forwarded to me, as I expect to travel around from place and visit all my relatives. The people here think it dreadfully warm, but I am almost frozen. Perhaps I imagine it, as I see snow all the time. Give my best regards to all inquiring friends. Good by, Kindly spoken.—ETTA PRICKETT, Victor, Colorado.

A Minister's Good Work.

"I had a severe attack of bilious colic got a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy, took two doses and was entirely cured," says Rev. A. A. Power of Emporia, Kan. My neighbor across the street was sick for over a week, had two or three bottles of medicine from the doctor. He used them for three or four days without relief, then called in another doctor who doctored him for some days and gave him no relief, so discharged him. I went over to see him the next morning. He said his bowels were in a terrible fix, that they had been running off so long that it [illegible] had tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy and he said, 'No.' I went home and brought him my bottle and gave him one dose; told him to take another dose in fifteen or twenty minutes if he did not find relief, but he took no more and was entirely cured." For sale by H. B. McCord.

Low Rates to Sadusky.

On Sunday, August 19, the B. & O. will sell excursion tickets to Sandusky, Ohio, at the rate of $1.00 for the round trip. Train will leave Auburn Junction at 4:35 a. m. Returning train leaves Sandusky at 6 p. m.

RESULTED IN A TIE.

The Fats and Leans Play a Fine Game of Ball.

The Fat and Lean gentlemen who played ball yesterday have reason to congratulate themselves upon having furnished the large crowd present with an entertainment that was worth many times the price of admission. They might have been fair ball players at some time in their lives, but if they ever knew anything about the game they did not show it yesterday. But the game was just what it was intended to be—the means of furnishing the people a few hours' wholesome fun, and incidentally to swell the exchequer of the band and the G. A. R. In both respects it was a success. The rules of the game were lost sight of and the umpires "Oom Paul" Kessler and "Miss Harriet" Deatrich, were instructed to "go as you please." And they certainly did.

The players lined up on Seventh street and marched to the grounds headed by the band; a special feature of the parade were the representatives of the Red Cross society, Messrs. Spade and Lane, in uniform with flag bearer and attendants carrying a jug of arnica and a big box of foot ease. Gene Trout did his share for the demonstration by furnishing his finest carriage for the use of the umpires. The parade furnished lots of amusement for the crowds along the line of march.

On arriving at the grounds a group picture of the players was taken by Photographer Pickering, and the game at once opened with the Leans at the bat and Dr. Buchtel and Surveyor Krontz in the points for the Fats. Four runs were made, and the Fats followed with three. In the second inning "Had" Hadermann, the funny man of the heavy-weights, introduced a style of bat in use when "two-old cat" was the ball game most in vogue, and after hitting the ball so hard that he broke the bat started for first. He came to grief, however, before reaching the coveted bag and in falling plowed up several feet of earth with his proboscis. There physicians and Red Cross corps gave him immediate attention and after applying about a yard of court plaster "Had" again appeared on the ground but concluded that he had enough base ball for one day, Clyde Brandon taking his place. The amusing incidents followed thick and fast at the end of the sixth inning with the score a tie. Here is the way the score was marked up by Judge Husselman:

Our Saturday Evenings.

CHAPTER XLIII.

In last Saturday's Daily, instead of our usual chapter for that evening we gave the excellent letter of Frank Zimmerman in which he gave some account of the Passion Play they all three attended at Oberammergau. There seems to be some lack of knowledge in regard to this so-called play, and some people, we notice, think of it as an ordinary theater, or theater play. Though it is a dramatic representation, and one that requires a high order of ability, representing as it does, the most solemn and dramatic scene in history, it can by no means be classed with the ordinary theater. There is nothing of the sort anywhere else in the world, and even this one is brought out but once in ten years. While some form of the representation has been produced for many years, it was first fully developed on the stage about fifty years ago. It is a wonderful production and takes about all day to produce it.

Oberammergau, the name of the village, means the upper district on the Ammer river. The village is about forty-five miles southwest of Munich, the capital of Bavaria, in a hilly country and about as high above sea level as Deer Park in Maryland. The villagers who produce the play are above the average Bavarian peasant in intelligence and are devout Catholics.

The Passion Play represents the principal events in the life of Christ and is a very solemn and affecting drama. The village has about 1,000 people, and about 800 of these are necessary to the play.

The first good account of it came out in 1850, 1860, and still better in 1870, the last being given to Harper's Magazine.

Two years before the play is produced, the chief actors are chosen and work soon begins, for it takes long and hard drill. The people there know little of the world, and less of the theaters. To them it is like other church work, a pious duty. The persons are chosen who will look and represent best some special character. As for the part of Christ, the man must have the look attributed to Him, and he must for these two years let his hair and beard grow to the supposed length and style. It is the same with Peter, John, Joseph of Arimathea, etc. In January preceding the summer they after Sunday vespers much time is devoted to preparing the costumes, stage settings, etc. The robes of the priests, etc., are all correct to the Jewish style, and many are costly.

The theater seats about 6,000, all except a few reserved seats are in the open air, or at least were in 1870, which year it rained hard on two or three of the different days, soaking the crowd. But the pious peasants remained, and as usual, wept and moaned at the thrilling scenes, such as the suffering and passion of the Savior. It is intensely affecting, for the person representing Christ is actually fastened to a cross and in such a way as to appear with nails driven through his hands. The two thieves suffer with him, the crosses are borne on the victims' shoulders and are lifted up, as spoken of in scripture. It is recorded that on one occasion, at least, the Christ actually fainted, in his intensely uncomfortable position.

The peasants, though humble wood carvers, have talent, some of a high order, and plenty of good voices for the choruses. Each part of the play begins with a chorus, and a tableau from the Old Testament, typical of the act to follow, taken from the New Testament. There are in all, eighteen of these scenes. The first chorus and tableau represent the Garden of Eden with Adam and Eve driven from paradise, and its following scene shows the entrance of Christ into Jerusalem and the people shouting hosannas and strewing palm branches before Him. It is said to be very exciting as the man looks and appears so wonderfully like our ideas of the Savior that to the simple minded peasants, it seems a reality.

The day before that on which the play is to be given, and it is given many times during the summer, the village band marches through the streets at about 7 p. m., to announce that the great "Fest" will be on tomorrow, and at 9 p. m. the bell rings for all to be in bed. At 3 the next morning, the band plays again, and from that hour till 7, masses are celebrated, the actors receiving a special consecration at high mass. At 8, the doors to the theater or grounds open and the people flock in.

From 8 till 11 a. m., the first half of the representation goes on, including the principal scenes in the life of Christ, the betrayal of Judas, the washing of feet, etc., etc., the afternoon session closing at 5.

The language is German, of course, and much of the music and words of the songs are fine, and at times the acting of the chief characters, such as Christ, Judas, Peter and Mary, are of high order. The tableau parts are generally copied after such famous pictures as the "Last Supper" by da Vinci, the "Descent" by Rubens, and the "Resurrection" and "Ascension" by Raphael. The two last named are made very realistic, as the stage machinery used gives it the appearance of reality. The living Christ is before the audience, and they see him disappear bodily.

The expense of the stage and all preparations in 1870 was $18,000. About $5,000 was received at each performance, the highest, $100, going to the man who was the Christ. But the bulk of the earnings goes to some church or is divided among various charities.

Altogether it is a wonderful thing, but it is not given anywhere else in the world. It has been attempted in other countries, and once or twice was proposed in this country. But it has in all cases been stopped or discouraged, as the opinions and tastes in the more enlightened countries oppose its production, for the subject is too solemn and too sacred to be treated in this way.

It will be of interest to note that in 1870, the Franco-Prussian war was beginning, and a number of the actors were drafted into the Bavarian contingent of the German army, including Joseph Mair, who personated Christ. His prayer in the garden of Gethsemane was real, for he had to be torn from his family the next morning.

The Saving of Money by the use of Royal Baking Powder is considerable.

Royal is economical, because it possesses more leavening power and goes further.

Royal saves also because it always makes fine, light, sweet food; never wastes good flour; butter and eggs.

More important still is the saving in health. Royal Baking Powder adds anti-dyspeptic qualities to the food.

There is no baking powder so economical in practical use, no matter how little others may cost, as the Royal to use Foley's Kidney Cure in time. If taken in earlier stages of Bright's disease and diabetes, it is certain cure. You have noticed the high death rate from these diseases, and it is not to ignore early symptoms when a medicine like Foley's Kidney Cure can be had. H. B. McCord.

Imitation baking powders almost invariably contain alum. Alum makes the food unwholesome.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

WOMEN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION!

Its work is for eternity. But while its record is on high, its memorial is being written on human hearts made glad through its ministrations. Already it is embalmed in loving thoughts by the lips of those who were ready to perish; endorsed by every principle of Christianity; sustained in pulpit and on the platform by the most able, eloquent and spiritual; believed in by the best; trusted in by the tempted. And, from our mount of vision, we behold the ever-widening influence of the white ribbon—the badge, the sign manual, "the outward sign of the inward grace."

A CHAMPION NEEDED.

The little town of Oak Dale in the Cheyenne country about a mile and a half from the railroad station, Mountain View, is not an unmixed blessing to the Indians. It contains about 500 people and five saloons, and every time the Indians go there to trade they are accosted and urged to drink. No wonder Isabel Crawford cries out, "In the name of God and humanity, is there no remedy for this? Is there no law in America? Must these Indians be dragged into the gutter, and pushed into a bottomless pit with none to help? Must the missionaries stay here and see their Indians demoralized and trampled under foot by the so-called march of civilization? Are there no lawyers to plead the cause and insist upon the removal of these saloons? May God hasten the day when another consecrated, whole-souled, determined 'apostle of human liberty' like Abraham Lincoln, with a William Lloyd Garrison and a Wendell Phillips shall arise and champion the cause of the remnant of this 'ruined race of America.'"

SUFFERED FOR YEARS.

WITH KIDNEY TROUBLE—A CASE THAT BAFFLED THE BEST DOCTORS.

WINDSOR, ONT., Jan. 13, 1900.

I make the following statement for the benefit of people in advanced years: I have used Dr. C. D. Warner's Compound of Seven Cures with the best possible results. I am sixty-five years old and have suffered more or less with my kidneys for over three years. After taking eight bottles of your Seven Cures I feel like a new man. I can truthfully recommend it as one of the greatest remedies of the age. Yours respectfully,

D. N. MYERS.

Probably Robbed.

We spoke yestesday of Jacob Sommers having lost his pocket book containing some money. Since then we have met Mr. Sommers and heard fuller details.

He says a talkative stranger was about town that day, and had apparently, by some means, found out the names of persons who sometimes loaned money. The man hunted up L. Bowers, at the latter's home, and wanted to borrow some money of him. But Mr. Bowers suspected somethiog was wrong, and got rid of him. Later on, when Mr. Sommers was in town, this man followed him into John Kruger's grocery, and called him by name and wanted to borrow $500 of him. Mr. Sommers was not struck favorably with the man but gave him to understand he had no money to lend him. The man kept up a conversation, however, and at one time stood up against the counter quite near him and Mr. Sommers thinks the fellow took the pocket book out of his pants pocket, or it may be that he got it some way while Mr. Somers had his money out to pay for something he bought. At all events his money is gone and the stranger disappeared. Mr. Sommers thinks he could not identify the fellow anyhow. The pock etbook had, he thinks, between $100 and $200 in it.

The Village Blacksmith.

Under a spreading chestnut tree stands the blacksmith shop complete. The smith, a mighty man is he, with large and sinewy feet. He works all day in his blacksmith shop with never a care that hinders, and when the evening comes he rests, and from his whiskers pulls the cinders. And the loafers like to gather around and swap bald-headed lies, and watch the busy blacksmith man shoeing horses and also flies. And the town is cussed by the loafers there, and they, verbally, throw it down; and the blacksmith knocks on his anvil hot, but he never knocks on the town. Thanks, thanks my stalwart friend, for this wrought iron lesson wrought, by you as you pounded away at your task, not thinking of the truth you taught. The man who lives on the sweat of his brow is honest with others and fair, but the man who resides on the seat of his pants is the one that makes every one swear.

Story of a Slave.

To be bound hand and foot for years by the chains of disease is the worst form of slavery. George D. Williams, of Manchester, Mich., tells how such a slave was made free. He says: "My wife has been so helpless for five years that she could not turn over in bed alone. After using two bottles of Electric Bitters, she is wonderfully improved and able to do her own work." This supreme remedy for female diseases quickly cures nervousness, sleep lessness, melancholy, headache, fainting and dizzy spells. This miracle working medicine is a godsend to weak, sickly, run down people. Every bottle guaranteed. Only 50 cents. Sold by H. B. McCord the Druggist.

From the Rockies.

The COURIER was surprised and pleased, yesterday to receive a letter from Miss Etta Prickett who is now in the far west enjoying a trip among the Rocky mountains. She says she cannot enjoy life, however, even in that wonderful region without hearing from Auburn through the Old Reliable Daily COURIER. So she enclosed the cash for it and we hope she will get it regularly. In part her letter which is dated at Cripple Creek, Aug. 6, says:

I arrived safe and the trip was certainly delightful. Such a scenery, one cannot imagine unless one sees it. I had to change cars from Waterloo to Elkhart, Elkhart to Chicago, and had just ten minutes to catch the Colorado flyer, a special, came right through to Denver in one night and day. Then from Denver to Canon City over the Denver & Rio Grande narrow guage and from Canon City to Victor.

Today I am in Gripple Creek and tomorrow I may go to Manitou Springs. The agents say this is the heaviest tourist season ever known, as the rates are so low that every car is crowded to its utmost. I want to go to Pike's Peak on horseback, but as the ladies all ride astride here, I expect they would laugh at me. I will close, as I am going to the hills for flowers The flowers are abundant in the hills and very beautiful.

Send my paper to Victor and I will have my mail forwarded to me, as I expect to travel around from place and visit all my relatives. The people here think it dreadfully warm, but I am almost frozen. Perhaps I imagine it, as I see snow all the time. Give my best regards to all inquiring friends. Good by, Kindly spoken.—ETTA PRICKETT, Victor, Colorado.

A Minister's Good Work.

"I had a severe attack of bilious colic got a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy, took two doses and was entirely cured," says Rev. A. A. Power of Emporia, Kan. My neighbor across the street was sick for over a week, had two or three bottles of medicine from the doctor. He used them for three or four days without relief, then called in another doctor who doctored him for some days and gave him no relief, so discharged him. I went over to see him the next morning. He said his bowels were in a terrible fix, that they had been running off so long that it was almost bloody. Just then he asked him if he had tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy and he said, 'No.' I went home and brought him my bottle and gave him one dose; told him to take another dose in fifteen or twenty minutes if he did not find relief, but he took no more and was entirely cured." For sale by H. B. McCord.

Low Rates to Sadusky.

On Sunday, August 19, the B. & O. will sell excursion tickets to Sandusky, Ohio, at the rate of $1.00 for the round trip. Train will leave Auburn Junction at 4:35 a. m. Returning train leaves Sandusky at 6 p. m.

RESULTED IN A TIE.

The Fats and Leans Play a Fine Game of Ball.

The Fat and Lean gentlemen who played ball yesterday have reason to congratulate themselves upon having furnished the large crowd present with an entertainment that was worth many times the price of admission. They might have been fair ball players at some time in their lives, but if they ever knew anything about the game they did not show it yesterday. But the game was just what it was intended to be—the means of furnishing the people a few hours' wholesome fun, and incidentally to swell the exchequer of the band and the G. A. R. In both respects it was a success. The rules of the game were lost sight of and the umpires "Oom Paul" Kessler and "Miss Harriet" Deatrich, were instructed to "go as you please." And they certainly did.

The players lined up on Seventh street and marched to the grounds headed by the band; a special feature of the parade were the representatives of the Red Cross society, Messrs. Spade and Lane, in uniform with flag bearer and attendants carrying a jug of arnica and a big box of foot ease. Gene Trout did his share for the demonstration by furnishing his finest carriage for the use of the umpires. The parade furnished lots of amusement for the crowds along the line of march.

On arriving at the grounds a group picture of the players was taken by Photographer Pickering, and the game at once opened with the Leans at the bat and Dr. Buchtel and Surveyor Krontz in the points for the Fats. Four runs were made, and the Fats followed with three. In the second inning "Had" Hadermann, the funny man of the heavy-weights, introduced a style of bat in use when "two-old cat" was the ball game most in vogue, and after hitting the ball so hard that he broke the bat started for first. He came to grief, however, before reaching the coveted bag and in falling plowed up several feet of earth with his proboscis. There physicians and Red Cross corps gave him immediate attention and after applying about a yard of court plaster "Had" again appeared on the ground but concluded that he had enough base ball for one day, Clyde Brandon taking his place. The amusing incidents followed thick and fast and the crowd was kept in a continual roar of laughter. The game was called at the end of the sixth inning with the score a tie. Here is the way the score was marked up by Judge Husselman:

Notice to Farmers

The South End flouring mills will this year confine its business strictly to the accommodation and interest of farmers, thereby enabling us to give each customer the best flour his wheat will make, which is not usually the case in custom and merchant mills where flour is shipped out. We have also arranged to grind your grist and give flour from your own wheat, in grists of not less than ten bushels, flour all guaranteed. Chop and meal ground while you wait.—THE AUBURN CITY MILLS, South End. 35

Our Saturday Evenings.

CHAPTER XLIII.

In last Saturday's Daily, instead of our usual chapter for that evening we gave the excellent letter of Frank Zimmerman in which he gave some account of the Passion Play they all three attended at Oberammergau. There seems to be some lack of knowledge in regard to this so-called play, and some people, we notice, think of it as an ordinary theater, or theater play. Though it is a dramatic representation, and one that requires a high order of ability, representing as it does, the most solemn and dramatic scene in history, it can by no means be classed with the ordinary theater. There is nothing of the sort anywhere else in the world, and even this one is brought out but once in ten years. While some form of the representation has been produced for many years, it was first fully developed on the stage about fifty years ago. It is a wonderful production and takes about all day to produce it.

Oberammergau, the name of the village, means the upper district on the Ammer river. The village is about forty-five miles southwest of Munich, the capital of Bavaria, in a hilly country and about as high above sea level as Deer Park in Maryland. The villagers who produce the play are above the average Bavarian peasant in intelligence and are devout Catholics.

The Passion Play represents the principal events in the life of Christ and is a very solemn and affecting drama. The village has about 1,000 people, and about 800 of these are necessary to the play.

The first good account of it came out in 1850, 1860, and still better in 1870, the last being given to Harper's Magazine.

Two years before the play is produced, the chief actors are chosen and work soon begins, for it takes long and hard drill. The people there know little of the world, and less of the theaters. To them it is like other church work, a pious duty. The persons are chosen who will look and represent best some special character. As for the part of Christ, the man must have the look attributed to Him, and he must for these two years let his hair and beard grow to the supposed length and style. It is the same with Peter, John, Joseph of Arimathea, etc. In January preceding the summer they are to produce it, rehearsals begin and they have four each week, and after Sunday vespers much time is devoted to preparing the costumes, stage settings, etc. The robes of the priests, etc., are all correct to the Jewish style, and many are costly.

The theater seats about 6,000, all except a few reserved seats are in the open air, or at least were in 1870, which year it rained hard on two or three of the different days, soaking the crowd. But the pious peasants remained, and as usual, wept and moaned at the thrilling scenes, such as the suffering and passion of the Savior. It is intensely affecting, for the person representing Christ is actually fastened to a cross and in such a way as to appear with nails driven through his hands. The two thieves suffer with him, the crosses are borne on the victims' shoulders and are lifted up, as spoken of in scripture. It is recorded that on one occasion, at least, the Christ actually fainted, in his intensely uncomfortable position.

The peasants, though humble wood carvers, have talent, some of a high order, and plenty of good voices for the choruses. Each part of the play begins with a chorus, and a tableau from the Old Testament, typical of the act to follow, taken from the New Testament. There are in all, eighteen of these scenes. The first chorus and tableau represent the Garden of Eden with Adam and Eve driven from paradise, and its following scene shows the entrance of Christ into Jerusalem and the people shouting hosannas and strewing palm branches before Him. It is said to be very exciting as the man looks and appears so wonderfully like our ideas of the Savior that to the simple minded peasants, it seems a reality.

The day before that on which the play is to be given, and it is given many times during the summer, the village band marches through the streets at about 7 p. m., to announce that the great "Fest" will be on tomorrow, and at 9 p. m. the bell rings for all to be in bed. At 3 the next morning, the band plays again, and from that hour till 7, masses are celebrated, the actors receiving a special consecration at high mass. At 8, the doors to the theater or grounds open and the people flock in.

From 8 till 11 a. m., the first half of the representation goes on, including the principal scenes in the life of Christ, the betrayal of Judas, the washing of feet, etc., etc., the afternoon session closing at 5.

The language is German, of course, and much of the music and words of the songs are fine, and at times the acting of the chief characters, such as Christ, Judas, Peter and Mary, are of high order. The tableau parts are generally copied after such famous pictures as the "Last Supper" by da Vinci, the "Descent" by Rubens, and the "Resurrection" and "Ascension" by Raphael. The two last named are made very realistic, as the stage machinery used gives it the appearance of reality. The living Christ is before the audience, and they see him disappear bodily.

The expense of the stage and all preparations in 1870 was $18,000. About $6,000 was received at each performance. At the close of the season the surplus is divided, each actor getting a little, the lowest, $3, going to each child; the highest, $100, going to the man who was the Christ. But the bulk of the earnings goes to some church or is divided among various charities.

Altogether it is a wonderful thing, but it is not given anywhere else in the world. It has been attempted in other countries, and once or twice was proposed in this country. But it has in all cases been stopped or discouraged, as the opinions and tastes in the more enlightened countries oppose its production, for the subject is too solemn and too sacred to be treated in this way.

It will be of interest to note that in 1870, the Franco-Prussian war was beginning, and a number of the actors were drafted into the Bavarian contingent of the German army, including Joseph Mair, who personated Christ. His prayer in the garden of Gethsemane was real, for he had to be torn from his family the next morning.

The Saving of Money by the use of Royal Baking Powder is considerable. Royal is economical, because it possesses more leavening power and goes further.

Royal saves also because it always makes fine, light, sweet food; never wastes good flour; butter and eggs.

More important still is the saving in health. Royal Baking Powder adds anti-dyspeptic qualities to the food.

There is no baking powder so economical in practical use, no matter how little others may cost, as the Royal to use Foley's Kidney Cure in time. If taken in earlier stages of Bright's disease and diabetes, it is certain cure. You have noticed the high death rate from these diseases, and it is not to ignore early symptoms when a medicine like Foley's Kidney Cure can be had. H. B. McCord.

Imitation baking powders almost invariably contain alum. Alum makes the food unwholesome.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

WOMEN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION!

Its work is for eternity. But while its record is on high, its memorial is being written on human hearts made glad through its ministrations. Already it is embalmed in loving thoughts and prayers and around ten thousand firesides; baptised with the tears of the mothers whose babies it wages; blessed by the lips of those who were ready to perish; endorsed by every principle of Christianity; sustained in pulpit and on the platform by the most able, eloquent and spiritual; believed in by the best; trusted in by the tempted. And, from our mount of vision, we behold the ever-widening influence of the white ribbon—the badge, the sign manual, "the outward sign of the inward grace."

A CHAMPION NEEDED.

The little town of Oak Dale in the Cheyenne country about a mile and a half from the railroad station, Mountain View, is not an unmixed blessing to the Indians. It contains about 500 people and five saloons, and every time the Indians go there to trade they are accosted and urged to drink. No wonder Isabel Crawford cries out, "In the name of God and humanity, is there no remedy for this? Is there no law in America? Must these Indians be dragged into the gutter, and pushed into a bottomless pit with none to help? Must the missonaries stay here and see their Indians demoralized and trampled under foot by the so-called march of civilization? Are there no lawyers to plead the cause and insist upon the removal of these saloons? May God hasten the day when another consecrated, whole-souled, determined 'apostle of human liberty' like Abraham Lincoln, with a William Lloyd Garrison and a Wendell Phillips shall arise and champion the cause of the remnant of this 'ruined race of America.'"

SUFFERED FOR YEARS.

WITH KIDNEY TROUBLE—A CASE THAT BAFFLED THE BEST DOCTORS.

WINDSOR, ONT., Jan. 13, 1900.

I make the following statement for the benefit of people in advanced years: I have used Dr. C. D. Warner's Compound of Seven Cures with the best possible results. I am sixty-five years old and have suffered more or less with my kidneys for over three years. After taking eight bottles of your Seven Cures I feel like a new man. I can truthfully recommend it as one of the greatest remedies of the age. Yours respectfully,

EVENTS OF INTEREST

THAT OCCURRED DURING THE PAST WEEK.

Tersely Told Telegraph Tales in Brief Paragraphs—Many Casualties—A Few Crimes—Some Fires—Political and Religious News.

Daring Boer Plot.

The London Daily news has the following dispatch from Pretoria: "A plot to shoot all the British Officers and to make Lord Roberts a prisoner has been opportunely discovered. Ten of the ring leaders were arrested and are now in jail. The conspirators numbered about fifteen. They had planned to set fire to the houses in the extreme western part of the city, hoping that the troops would be concentrated there. The plan was that then the conspirators were forcibly to enter all houses occupied by British officers, these having been previously marked, and to kill the occupants. All the Boer sympathizers are acquainted with the plot, and several had been told off to secure the person of Lord Roberts, and to hurry with him to the nearest commando."

Adds to Rathbone Charges.

Havana special: Martin C. Fosnes, Acting Director General of Posts, appeared for the first time personally Thursday against Estes G. Rathbone, the deposed director, and offered additional evidence in the court of first instance. Deputy Auditor Lawshe, who has been investigating Mr. Rathbone's accounts, disallows items aggregating more than $25,000. These include unauthorized personal expenditures and stuffed pay rolls, together with a number of questionable contracts. It is probable the trial will begin during the first week of September. Mr. Rathbone declined to make a statement.

Orders For Ammunition.

The Union Metallic Cartridge Company at Bridgeport, Conn., is working night and day to fill orders from several governments for ammunition. Besides the big orders for Krag ammunition, the company has a contract for field artillery ammunition to fill for the United States government. The ammunition ranges in size from one pound to twelve pounds. The government is making war preparations on a big scale, in view of the conditions in China, and large orders for ammunition have been placed with the company's agents by the war department.

Bars Goods from Smyrna.

The Secretary of the Treasury has requested the Secretary of State to cable the United States Consul at Smyrna a dispatch announcing that the shipment of certain Smyrna products is prohibited on account of the plague. Following is the dispatch: "Shipment of figs and raisins prohibited. Also second-hand or used rugs and carpets."

The consul at Smyrna in a recent letter reported that there were from fifty to 200 cases of plague there.

Curing Yellow Fever.

A dispatch from Vera Cruz says: The most severe cases of yellow fever here being treated with Dr. Bellinzaghi's serum seem to improve wonderfully and patients are quickly relieved of black vomit and revived from their lethargy. Local physicians here are greatly interested in the cases and department of the young Brazillian doctor, who welcomes all advice from his medical colleagues.

Chaffee Reports Fall of Peitsang.

The War Department has received the following cablegram from General Chaffee: "Peitsang was handsomely taken early Thursday morning by Japanese troops, supported by English and Americans. Japanese loss considerable; English slight; Americans none. Ground very limited. In morning American troops occupied rear position."

Must Go Back to Cuba.

New York special: Judge Lacombe rendered his opinion which indicates that Neely's extradition will be ordered August 13. He says "Neely now has pending against him here two sets of charges. When these are disposed of I shall order his extradition." The charges here will be withdrawn and then the extradition will be granted.

Arrest Larking Americans.

Eight American students of the University of Munich, were arrested in the gardens of a brewery at Loewin, Germany, because they had created a disturbance and roughly handled the waiter, who is seriously injured. Thus far the United States Embassy has not intervened.

Steel Plant Destroyed.

Fire totally destroyed the works of the Shelby Steel Tube company and the Boston Electroduct company, at Beaver Falls, Pa., doing damage to the extent of $300,000. The origin of the fire is unknown. The loss was fully covered by insurance.

Heads Cut Off.

A secret edict has been received at Pekin ordering the decapitation of Sheng and Yu Yin Lin, Viceroy of Hankow, and Lin Kun Yi, Viceroy of Nankin, because they are friendly to the foreigners. Seven other Chinese officials have been executed in Pekin.

Deserter Brought Back.

The transport Sherman, which arrived in San Francisco recently, brought Private Bolt, a deserter, who was captured in a Filipino camp and sentenced to forty years in a military prison.

Must Stay in Mikado's Land.

A dispatch has been received at the Japanese legation in Washington from the Japanese foreign office, announcing that the government of Japan had prohibited for the present all emigration of Japanese laborers to the United States and Canada.

Mob Wrecks a Postoffice.

An official telegram states that a mob entered the postoffice at Mulat, Fla., smashed the windows and doors, destroyed some of the contents of the building and threatened the life of the postmaster. It is further stated that the postmaster has become terror-stricken and fled

ELOPING COUPLE DROWNED.

While Trying to Escape from an Irate Father Their Boat Capsizes.

Miss Martha Hendricks and Paul Varner, while eloping, lost their lives by drowning in the Current river while attempting to escape from the angry father of the girl. Miss Hendricks was 17 years old and the daughter of John Hendricks, a farmer living three miles south of Bennett, Mo. The father objected to their marriage on account of their youth. The other morning the couple attempted to go to Doniphan, the county seat, to procure a license, and Mr. Hendricks started in pursuit. The elopers thought to outwit Hendricks by crossing the Current river. When midway in the stream their boat struck a snag, overturned and threw the occupants into the water. The young man made desperate efforts to save his sweetheart, but her frenzied struggles exhausted him and both sank beneath the water. The bodies were recovered. One hour after the accident Hendricks appeared. When informed of the accident he gave way to piteous grief and he repeatedly embraced the body of his unfortunate daughter. Aid had to be secured to remove him from the scene, for it was found he had become deranged. The bodies were removed to their homes and buried in the same grave.
